COMA (Lat.), n. n. Kom'a^3. Gen., com'atos (-is). Gr., κῶμα. Fr., c. Ger., Koma, Schlafsucht. It., Sp., c. A condition of insensibility from which the patient can be aroused but partially or not at all, occurring (a) without previous symptoms referred to imperfect health or chronic disease, and due chiefly to concussion or laceration of the brain, alcoholic intoxication, narcotic poisoning, sunstroke, encephalic hæmorrhage, cerebral embolism, or cerebral thrombosis; (b) in the course of some pathological condition already diagnosticated (e. g., methepileptic c., c. in general paralysis, c. with meningitis, c. with tumor or abcess of the brain, uræmic c., diabetic c., c. with acute yellow atrophy of the liver, or c. with hyperpyrexia). [α, 25.]—Alcoholic c. C. occurring as a symptom of acute alcoholism; characterized by profound insensibility, complete muscular relaxation, loss of corneal and faucial reflexes, irresponsive pupils, engorgement of the veins of the face and neck, stertorous breathing, and a slow, feeble pulse. [A, 289, 446 (α, 25).]—Asphyxial c. Unconsciousness produced by the paralyzing action on the brain and lungs of substances, such as narcotics, which have been absorbed into the circulation. [D, 25.]—C. agrypnoides. See C.-vigil.—C. des cancéreux (Fr.). A form of c. sometimes observed in persons affected with cancer; caused, according to Klemperer, by some toxic substance in the blood, rendering it less alkaline and destroying its albumin. β-oxybutyric acid has been found in the blood in such cases. ["Semaine méd.," Oct. 2, 1889, p. 372 (α, 18).]—C. diaceticum. See Uræmic c.—C. of epilepsy. See Epileptic c. and EPILEPSY.—C. of uræmia. See Uræmic c.—C. somnolentum. Fr., c. somnolent. 1. A light degree of coma. 2. The insensibility of those who are asleep. 3. A peculiar mental condition seen in many typhoid-fever patients. [D, 74; L, 41.] See also C.-vigil.—C.-vigil. 1. According to Chomel, an unrestful sleep, with frequent periods of waking, and a feeling on the part of the patient that he has not slept for a long time. 2. A condition of the gravest import into which a patient may lapse when suffering from diseases complicated by central nervous disturbances. The special characteristics are continued sleeplessness, general functional inactivity, and mental apathy. [A, 289. 364 (α. 25).]—Diabetic c. Fr., c. diabétique. A form of c. often observed toward the end of diabetes mellitus, generally of sudden occurrence or preceded by a brief stage of agitation with pain in the stomach. It usually terminates in death. It has been attributed to the presence of acetone in the blood. [Senator (α, 18).]—Epileptic c. The condition of unconsciousness which follows an epileptic seizure. [D, 25.]—Hysterical c. Fr., c. hystérique. Ger., hysterische Schlafsucht. One of the rarer manifestations of hysteria. During the attack the patient lies motionless and exhibiting just as many of the symptoms of profound c. as may be within her knowledge or conveniently simulated. The face. however, is natural, the pupils are responsive, and the pulse is normal. There are no symptoms uncontrollable by the patient or indicative of a brain lesion or other serious affection. [α, 25.]—Kussmaul's c. A form of diabetic c. described by Kussmaul ("Dtsch. Arch. f. klin. Med.," xiv, 1874), marked by dyspnœa, a peculiar odor of the breath, and c. [R. Saundby. "Med. Times and Gaz.," Jan. 31, 1885, p. 139.]—Primary c. See C. (a).—Secondary c. See C. (b).—Uræmic c. The c. which attends an attack of uræmia. It comes on more suddenly than that of fevers, less suddenly than that of apoplexy or narcotic poisoning. The sounds in the stertorous breathing are also peculiar in that they are uttered in a higher key than in apoplectic c. [D. 25.]

COMACAI, n. The Ficus citrifolia of Jussieu. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

COMACUM (Lat.), n. n. Also written camacum. Of Pliny, the Myristica aromatica of Lamarck (the Myristica officinalis of Hooker). [B, 121 (α, 24).]

COMAGENE (Lat.), n. f. Kom(ko^{2}m)-a^2(a^3)-jen(gan)'e(a). See COMMAGENE.

COMAGENIUM (Lat.), n. n. Kom(ko^{2}m)-a^2(a^3)-jen(gan)'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). The Costus speciosus or some allied plant. [B, 180 (α, 24).]

COMAGENUM (Lat.), n. n. Kom(ko^{2}m)-a^2(a^3)-jen(gan)'u^{3}m-(u^{4}m). See COMMAGENUM.

COMAKA (Carib), n. The Bombax ceiba. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

COMANDA-GUIRA, n. The Cajanus bicolor. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

COMANDRA (Lat.), n. f. Kom-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)'dra^3. From κόμη, hair, and ἄνδρες, stamens. Fr., comandre. Bastard toad-flax; a genus of the Santalaceæ, tribe Osyrideæ. [B, 19, 42, 121 (α, 24).]—C. darbya [De Candolle]. A species found in Georgia and North Carolina (the Darbya umbellata of Gray). [B, 34 (α, 24).]—C. umbellata [Nuttal]. A species common in rocky woods in America; it is a parasite on the roots of trees. [B, 19, 34 (α, 24).]

COMANTES (Lat.), n. pl. Ko^{2}m-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)'tez(te^{2}s). A family of acrocarpous mosses (Vaginulati acrocarpi) comprising Pohlia and Webera. [B, 121, 170 (α, 24).]

COMARET (Fr.), n. Ko-ma^{3}r-a. 1. See COMARUM. 2. The Potentilla comarum. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. des marais. See C. (2d def.).

COMARIKA (Cingalese), n. Aloes. [B, 88.]

COMARON (Lat.), n. n. Kom(ko^{2}m)'a^{2}r(a^{3}r)-o^{2}n. Gr., κόμαρον. The fruit of the Arbutus unedo. [A, 387; B, 115, 121 (α, 24).]

COMARUM [Linnæus] (Lat.), n. n. Kom(ko^{2}m)'a^{2}r(a^{3}r)-u^{3}m-(u^{4}m). Gr., κόμαρος. Fr., comaret. Ger., Siebenfingerkraut. 1. A section of the genus Potentilla, from which it differs only in its fruit having a spongy receptacle, and in the color of its flowers. 2. The Arbutus unedo. [B, 42, 121, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. palustre [Linnæus]. The Potentilla c. [B, 173, 180 (α, 24).]

COMARUS (Lat.), n. m. Kom(ko^{2}m)'a^{2}r(a^{3}r)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See COMARUM.

COMATA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kom'a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-a^3. The various forms of coma. [Sauvages (L).]

COMATE, adj. Kom'at. Gr., κομήτης. Lat., comatus. 1. Having long or thick hair. [A, 318.] 2. See COMOSE.

COMATÉ, n. See COMATI.

COMATEUX (Fr.), adj. Kom-a^3-tu^5. See COMATOSE.

COMATI, n. In Malabar, the Caturus spiciflorus. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

COMATODES (Lat.), adj. Kom-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-od'ez(as). Gr., κωματώδης (from κῶμα, coma, and εἶδος, resemblance). See COMATOSE.

COMATOSE, adj. Kom'a^{2}t-os. Lat., comatosus. Fr., comateux. Ger., schlafsüchtig. It., Sp., comatoso. In a state of coma.

COMATOUS, adj. Kom'a^{2}t-u^{3}s. Of, pertaining to, or resembling coma (e. g., a c. affection). [B, 117.]

COMATULIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kom(ko^{2}m)-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A family of the Articulata (9th def.). [L, 353.]

COMATUS (Lat.), adj. Kom(ko^{2}m)-at(a^{3}t)'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See Comate and Comose.

COMB, n. Ko^{3}m. A.-S., camb. Lat., pecten (1st def.), crista (2d def.). Fr., peigne (1st def.), crête (2d def.). Ger., Kamm. It., pettino (1st def.), cresta (2d def.). Sp., peine (1st def.), cresta (2d def.). 1. An implement consisting of a row of thin teeth, usually of equal length and occupying the same plane, used for cleansing and arranging the hair and for cleansing the scalp. 2. A crest; in birds, an erect fleshy, longitudinal process or caruncle on the top of the head, as in the domestic cock. [L, 343.]—C.-fern. The genus Schizæa. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—C.-like. Lat., pectinatus. Fr., pectiné. Having the form of a comb.—Gill c. See Ctenidium.—Lady's-c., Shepherd's-c. See Venus's c.—Vaccinating c. A narrow comb-shaped scarificator. [E.]—Venus's c. The Scandix pecten Veneris. [B, 275 (a, 24).]

COMBA, n. In Africa, the Solanum melongena. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COMBINAISON (Fr.), n. Kom-ben-e^{2}z-o^{2}n^2. See Combination.

COMBILIUM [Rumphius] (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m-bi^{2}l'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). The Dioscorea aculeata. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COMBINATE-VENOSE, adj. Ko^{2}mb''i^{2}n-at-ven'os. Lat., combinato-venosus. Fr., combinaté-veineux. Ger., verbunden-geadert. Having lateral veins which unite before reaching the margin (said of leaves). [B, 19 (a, 24).]

COMBINATION, n. Ko^{2}m-bi^{2}n-a'shun. Gr., σύναψις. Lat., combinatio. Fr., combinaison. Ger., C., Verbindung. It., combinazione. Sp., combinación. 1. A joining or mixing of two or more things together, also the product of such junction or the state of being joined. 2. In chemistry, the act of union of two or more bodies to form a new body (e. g., the c. of oxygen with hydrogen to form water); the process which effects such a union; or the result of such a union (i. e., the new compound body). [B.]—C'svermögen (Ger.). See Quantivalence.

COMBINING, adj. Ko^{2}m-bin'I^{2}n^{2}g. Pertaining to the act of combination.—C. capacity, C. power. Ger., Verbindungskraft. See Atomicity and Quantivalence.

COMBRETACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}m-bre^{2}t(brat)-a(a^3)'se^2-(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., combretacées. Ger., Combretaceen. 1. Of R. Brown, an order of dicotyledonous plants, comprising Bucida, Terminalia, Cuncoa, Quisqualis, Combretum, Cacoucia, Laguncularia, Getonia, and Conocarpus. 2. Of De Candolle, an order of the Calyciflorœ, consisting of the tribes Terminalieœ and Combretœ. 3. Of Bentham and Hooker, an order corresponding to the Gyrocarpeœ of Endlicher, and including the suborders Combreteœ and Gyrocarpeœ. [B, 42, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

COMBRETEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Co^{2}m-bret(brat)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., combrétées. 1. Of De Candolle, a tribe of the Combretaceœ, comprising Cacoucia, Lumnitzera, Quisqualis, Ceratostachys, Bruguiera, and Bobua. 2. Of Bartling, an order including the first four genera of De Candolle. 3. Of G. Don, an order consisting of Bartling's genera, and Laguncularia, Guiera, and Chrysostachys. 4. Of Spach, a tribe embracing all the genera of De Candolle. 5. Of Meissner, a tribe consisting of Bobua, Ceratostachys, Caconcia, and Quisqualis. 6. Of Reichenbach (1837), a subdivision of the Circœœ, comprising the sections Terminalieœ, the true Combreteœ (embracing the genera of the Combretaceœ of Endlicher), and Rhizophoreœ. 7. Of Bentham and Hooker, a suborder of the Combretaceœ, including Terminalia, Calycopteris, Conocarpus, Ramatuella, Anogeissus, Guiera, Lumitzera, Macropteranthes, Laguncularia, Combretum, Cacoucia, and Quisqualis. [B, 42, 170 (a, 24).]

COMBRETUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m-bret(brat)'u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Ger., Langfaden. 1. Of Pliny, a kind of rush. 2. Of Linnæus, the typical genus of the Combretaceœ, indigenous to the tropics in both hemispheres. [B, 42, 114 (a, 24).]—C. alternifolium [Persoon]. Fr., c. à feuilles alternes. A Guiana species yielding a tenacious gummy substance suitable for glue. [B, 173.]—C. decandrum [Jacquin]. See C. alternifolium.—C. glutinosum [Perrotet]. Fr., c. glutineux. A species found in Senegambia, where the ashes, containing much alkali, are used to fix the colors in dye-stuffs. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. spinosum [Humboldt and Bonpland]. See C. alternifolium.

COMBURANT (Fr.), adj. Kom-bu^{5}r-a^{3}n^2. See Comburens.

COMBURÉ (Fr.), adj. Kom-bu^{5}r-a. Burned. [L, 43.]

COMBURENS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}m-bu^{2}r(bur)'e^{2}nz(ans). Fr., comburant. Ger., verbrennend. Giving rise to combustion on entering into composition with another body. [A, 385.]

COMBUSTIBILIS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}m-bu^{3}st(bust)-i^{2}b'i^{2}l-i^{2}s. See Combustible.

COMBUSTIBILITY, n. Ko^{2}m-bu^{3}st-i^2-bi^{2}l'i^{2}t-i^2. Fr., combustibilité. Ger., Verbrennlichkeit. The quality of being combustible.

COMBUSTIBLE, adj. Ko^{2}m-bu^{3}st'i^2-b'l. Lat., combustibilis (from comburere, to burn up). Fr., c. Ger., verbrennbar, verbrennlich. Capable of undergoing combustion by combining with another body which is called a "supporter of combustion." [B.]

COMBUSTIO (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}m-bu^{3}st(bust)'i^2-o. Gen., combustio'nis. From comburere, to burn up. 1. Combustion. 2. A burn. See Ambustio.

COMBUSTION, n. Ko^{2}m-bu^{3}st'yu^{3}n. Lat., combustio. Fr., c. Ger., Verbrennung. Intense chemical change attended with the development of heat and light and sometimes flame. [B.]—C. interstitielle (Fr.), C. pulmonaire (Fr.), C. respiratoire (Fr.). See Calorification.—Spontaneous c. Fr., c. spontanée. Ger., Selbstverbrennung. It., combustione spontanea. Sp., combustión espontánea. C. of a body without the direct application of heat or chemical energy from without; produced by the gradual accumulation of heat within the substance until a temperature is reached when ignition takes place (popularly applied to the supposed c. of drunkards). A body prone to undergo spontaneous c. is called a pyrophorus. [B.]—Supporter of c. Fr., soutien de c. Ger., Verbrennungsfaktor. It., fautore de combustione. Sp., sostén de combustión. A substance whose presence is requisite in order that another body may undergo c. The term was formerly used in opposition to combustible; but it is now allowed that the terms are correlative and interchangeable, and that two substances which are capable of combining with the phenomena of c. may be by turns each combustible and supporters of c. [B.]

COMBUSTURA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}m-bu^{3}st(bust)-u^2(u)'ra^3. See Burn and Calcination.

COME (Lat.), n. f. Kom(ko^{2}m)'e(a). Gr., κόμη. Of Pliny, a composite plant with a strong tuft, such as Tragopogon. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COMEDO (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}m'e^{2}d-o. Gen., comedon'is. Fr., comédon, tanne. Ger., Mitesser. It., comedone. Sp., espinilla. Literally, a glutton. A grub, worm, black head; the condition produced by the retention, in a dilated sebaceous follicle, of a plug of hardened sebum, the outer extremity of which usually appears black from admixture of dirt. In the pl., c'nes (Ger., Comedonen), see Acne punctata. [G.]—C'nenmilbe (Ger.). See Acarus folliculorum.—C'nenscheibe (Ger.). See Verruca follicularis.—Double c. A body consisting of two c'nes connected together through a slightly curved canal (supposed to be due to absorption of tissue) leading from one follicle to another. [Ohmann-Dumesnil, "St. Louis Med. and Surg. Jour.," Jan., Feb., Mar., 1888; "Am. Jour. of the Med. Sci.," June, 1888, p. 639.]

COMENAMIC, adj. Kom-e^{2}n-a^{2}m'i^{2}k. Comenic and partaking of the nature of an amine. [B.]—C. acid. Fr., acide coménamique. Ger., Komenaminsäure. A crystalline acid, $C_5H_2(OH)$.-$O(NH)-CO.OH{=}C_6H_5NO_4$, isomeric with comenamide, and usually combined with two molecules of water of crystallization. [B, 3.]

COMENAMIDE, n. Kom-e^{2}n'a^{2}m-i^{2}d(id). Ger., Komenamid. A crystalline derivative of comenic acid having the constitution $C_5H_2(OH).O_2-CO.NH_2.{=}C_6H_5NO_4$. [B, 3.]

COMENATE, n. Kom'e^{2}n-at. Fr., coménate. A salt of comenic acid. The normal c's have the structure $R(C_6H_2O_5)_n$, where R is a radicle of the quantivalence n. Basic c's are also formed in which a molecule of hydroxyl in the acid radicle is replaceable by a metallic oxide. [B, 3.]

COMENIC, adj. Kom-e^{2}n'i^{2}k. Fr., coménique. Related to meconic acid. [B.]—C. acid. Fr., acide coménique. Ger., Komensäure. Syn.: metacomenic acid. An acid, $C_6H_4O_5$, derivable from meconic acid by the action of heat or of strong acids; it forms granular or laminar crystals which are difficultly soluble. [B, 3, 4 (a, 24).]

COMENSÄURE (Ger.), n. Kom-an'zoir-e^2. See Comenic acid.

COMEPHORIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kom(ko^{2}m)-e^2(a)-fo^{2}r'i^{2}d-e-(a^3-e^2). From κόμη, the hair, and φορεῖν, to bear. A family of the Acanthopterygii. [L, 280.]

COMES (Lat.), n. m. and f. Kom(ko^{2}m)'ez(e^{2}s). Gen., com'itis. From con, with, and meare, to go. Ger., Begleiter. A companion; in anatomy, an accompanying structure.—C. nervi ischiadici. A branch of the sciatic artery that enters the great sciatic nerve, which it supplies. [L, 142.]—C. nervi phrenici. See Superior phrenic artery.—C. obliqui superioris [Albinus]. Syn.: gracillimus orbitis, obliquus accessorius [Bochdalek]. An anomalous accessory superior oblique muscle of the eye, resulting from the separation of the muscle into two parts. [A. Macalister, "Trans. of the Roy. Irish Acad.," 1875, p. 7 (L).]

COMESPERMA (Lat.), n. n. (treated by botanists as f.). Kom-(ko^{2}m)-e^2(a)-spu^{6}rm(spe^{2}rm)'a^3. Gen., comesperm'atos (-is). From κόμη, hair, and σπέρμα, a seed. Fr., comésperme. A genus of the Polygaleœ, the seeds of which have silky hairs. [B, 42 (a, 24).]—C. floribunda. A Brazilian climbing species. Its roots are said to be employed against snake-bites. [a, 24.]

COMESTIBLE, adj. Ko^{2}m-e^{2}st'i^2-b'l. Lat., comestibilis. Fr., c. Ger., essbar. It., commestibile. Sp., c. See Edible.

COMETA (It.), n. Kom-at'a^3. The Euphorbia characias. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COMETEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}m-et(at)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Meissner, a tribe of the Paronychieœ, comprising Cometes and Pteranthus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COMETENPUPILLE (Ger.), n. Ko^{2}m-at'e^{2}n-pu-pel'le^2. Lit., comet-pupil; a name originally employed by Helling to describe all forms of the pupil in coloboma of the iris. [F.]

COMETOCORA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}m-e^{2}t(at)-o^{2}k'o^{2}r-a^3. From κομήτης, a comet, and κόρη, the pupil. Fr., cométocore. See Cometenpupille.

COMET-PLANT, n. Ko^{2}m'e^{2}t-pla^{3}nt. The Cometes alternifolia. [B, 275 (a, 24).]

COMFIT, n. Ku^{3}m'fi^{2}t. Fr., confit. A hard, molded sweetmeat. [a, 24.] Cf. Confection.

COMFREY, n. Ku^{3}m'fre^2. Fr., consoude. Ger., Beinwurz, Schwarzwurzel. It., consolida. Sp., consuelda. The Symphytum officinale, also formerly the Bellis perennis. [A, 505; B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]—Bohemian c. The Symphytum bohemicum. [B, 19, 275 (a, 24).]—C.-consound, Common c. The Symphytum officinale. [A, 505; B, 275 (a, 24).]—Forage-c. The Symphytum asperrimum.—[B, 275 (a, 24).]—Middle c. The Ajuga reptans. [A, 505.]—Prickly c. The Symphytum asperrimum (seu peregrinum). COMIZOPHYTUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m-i^{2}z(ez)-o^{2}f′i^{2}t(u^{6}t)-u^{3}m-(u^{4}m). From κομίζειν, to carry, and φυτόν, a plant. Fr., comizophyte. Of Necker, a genus (order) of plants comprising Mahernia, Hermannia, Melochia, Ayenia, Kleinhovia, Ticorea, Connarus, Hugonia, Brownia, Melia, Winterania, Erythroxylon, Swietenia, Turrœa, Gerberia, Trichilia, Abroma, Theobroma, Murraya, Guarea, Piccia, Aytonia, Geranium, Ramphocarpus, Oxalis, Ekebergia, Waltheria, Geunzia, and Samyda. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

COMMA (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m′ma^3. Gen., com′matos (-is). Gr., κόμμα (from κόπτειν, to cut). Fr., virgule. Ger., Komma. See C. BACILLUS.

COMMADU (Hind.), n. The Menyanthes indica. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COMMAGENE (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}m-ma^3-jen(gan)′e(a). Gr., κομμαγηνή (the name of a region in Syria). A certain plant growing in Commagenia. [A, 318.]

COMMAGENUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m-ma^3-jen(gan)′u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Gr., κομμαγηνόν. Of Pliny, a certain Commagenian ointment made of goose-fat, cinnamon, cassia, white pepper, and commagene. [A, 318.]

COMMANDUCATIO (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}m-ma^{2}n(ma^{3}n)-du^2(du^4)-ka(ka^3)′shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., commanducatio′nis. See MASTICATION.

COMMANSUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m-ma^{2}n(ma^{3}n)′su^{3}m(su^{4}m). See APOPHLEGMATISMUS.

COMMARIN DEL BRASIL (Sp.), n. Kom-ma^{3}r-en′ de^{2}l bra^{3}th-el′. The Capsicum baccatum. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COMMELALES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kom-me^{2}l-al(a^{3}l)′ez(as). Fr., commelinées. Of Lindley, an alliance of the Hypogynœ, consisting of the order Commelineœ. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

COMMELIANA (Lat.), n. f. Kom-me^{2}l-i^2-a(a^3)′na^3. See ALOE Commelyni.

COMMELINA (Lat.), n. f. Kom-me^{2}l-i′na^3. Fr., comméline. See COMMELYNA.

COMMELINACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kom-me^{2}l-in-a(a^3)′se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., commélinacées. 1. Of Reichenbach (1828), a family of the Glumaceœ, comprising the divisions Restioneœ (in 1837, the Restiaceœ), Xyrideœ, and Commelineœ. 2. Of Bartling, an order of Juncinœ, embracing Commelina, Aclisia, Campelia, Tradescantia, Cyanotes, Callisia, Aneilema, Palisota, Dichorisandra, Mayaca, Cartonema, Xiphidium, Rapatea, Hagenbachia, Pollia, Philydrum, and Flagellaria. 3. See COMMELYNACEÆ. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

COMMELINEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kom-me^{2}l-in′e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., commelinées. Ger., Commelineen. Of R. Brown, an order of Monocotyledones, embracing Commelina, Aneilema, and Cartonema; equivalent to the same order of Salisbury comprising Zygomenes, Aphylax, Callisia, and Tradescantia. 2. Of Reichenbach, an order consisting of Commelina, Callisia, Tradescantia, and Campelia. 3. Of Sprengel, an order of the Coronariœ. 4. Of Bentham and Hooker, the 2d tribe of the order Commelinaceœ, comprising Commelina, Polyspatha, Aneilema, and Cochliostema. [B, 42, 170 (a, 24).]

COMMELINEUS (Lat.), adj. Kom-me^{2}l-in′e^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Resembling or belonging to the Commelineœ. [a, 24.]

COMMELYNA (Lat.), n. f. Kom-me^{2}l-in′a^3. From the brothers Commelyn, Dutch naturalists. A genus of commelynaceous plants. [B, 19, 42, 245.]—C. angustifolia [Michaux]. A species found in the Southern United States and tropical America, having edible tubers. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. axillaris [Linnæus]. The Tradescantia axillaris. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. communis. Fr., comméline commune. A North American species; used as an emollient. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. medica [Loureiro]. See ANEILEMMA medica.—C. polygama [Roth]. A species growing in the East Indies, Cochin-China, and Japan which furnishes a cooling aperient drink, and also a food. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. Rumphii [Kostel]. A species found in the Moluccas where it is used as "greens." It is a mild laxative, and is said, though very improbably, to promote menstruation and even to induce abortion. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. scapiflora. See ANEILEMA tuberosum.—C. tuberosa [Kunth]. Sp., yerba del pollo [Mex. Ph.]. A species of which the juice, leaves, and stems are hæmostatic, used internally and externally. [J. M. Maisch, "Am. Jour. of Pharm.," April, 1886, p. 168; L, 87.]—C. tuberosa [Linnæus]. Fr., comméline tubéreuse. A native of Mexico; in China, the tubers are considered edible. [B, 170, 180 (a, 24).]—C. vulgaris [Redouté]. See C. communis.—C. zanonia [Linnæus]. A South American species; used at Guadeloupe as an emollient. [B, 173 (a, 24).]

COMMELYNACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kom-me^{2}l-in-a(a^3)′se^2-(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., commélynacées. The spiderworts. 1. Of Endlicher (1837), an order of Enantio blastœ. comprising Commelyna, Pollia, Callisia, Tradescantia, Cyanotis, Campelia, Dichorisandra, Cartonemo, Forrestia (with the addition in 1841 of Murdannia, Lennantia, and Speronema, and in 1843 of Lampra). 2. Of Reichenbach, a family of Glumaceœ, having the divisions Restiaceœ, Xyrideœ, and Commelyneœ. 3. Of Lindley, an order of the alliance Xyridales. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

COMMELYNALES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kom-me^{2}l-in-al(a^{3}l)′ez(as). See COMMELYNACEÆ.

COMMELYNEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kom-me^{2}l-in′e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., commelynées. 1. Of Martius, a family of the Enantioblastœ. 2. Of Kunth (in his revision of families), a family consisting of Dithyrocarpus. 3. Of Reichenbach, a division of Commelynaceœ, comprising the subdivisions Philydreœ, Pontedereœ, and the Commelyneœ genuinœ (including Commelyna, Aneilema, Pollia, Callisia, Murdannia, Tradescantia, Tinantia, Spironema, Cyanotis, Campelia, Dichorisandra, Cartonema, and Forrestia). 4. Of Brongniart, a family of the Juncineœ, consisting of Reichenbach's genera. [B, 170 (a, 24).] Cf. COMMELINEÆ.

COMMENDATORIUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m-me^{2}nd-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-or′-i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). See BALSAMUM commendatoris and AQUA vulneraria spirituosa.

COMMENSALISM [Van Beneden], n. Ko^{2}m-e^{2}ns′a^{2}l-i^{2}zm. From con, together, and mensa, a table. Fr., commensalisme. The state in which two animals are associated together for mutual advantage. [L, 121.]

COMMENSALS [Van Beneden], n. pl. Ko^{2}m-e^{2}ns′a^{2}lz. Fr., commensaux. Animals living in a state of commensalism. [L, 121.]

COMMENSUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m-me^{2}ns′u^{3}m(u^{4}m). From commetere, to measure together. Anything symmetrical. [A, 318.]

COMMENSUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}m-me^{2}ns′u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Symmetrical. [A, 318.]

COMMERCIUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m-mu^{6}r(me^{2}r)′si^2(ki^2)-u^{3}m-(u^{4}m). See SYMPATHY.

COMMI (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m′mi(mi^2). Gr., κόμμι. See GUM.

COMMIA [Loureiro] (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}m′mi^2-a^3. Fr., c., commie, commier. A genus corresponding to the Excœcaria of Bentham and Hooker, indigenous to tropical Asia and Africa. [B, 42 (a, 24).]—C. cochinchinensis [Loureiro]. Fr., c. de Cochinchine. A species (probably identical with Excœcaria agallocha) yielding a white gum-resin which is emetic and purgative. [B, 173 (a, 24).]

COMMINUTED, adj. Ko^{2}m′i^{2}n-u^{2}t-e^{2}d. Lat., comminutus (from comminuere, to crumble). Fr., comminutif. Ger., comminutiv, zersplittert, zerschmettert. It., comminutivo. Sp., conminuto, conminutivo. Broken into a number of pieces (said of a bone). See C. FRACTURE.

COMMINUTIO (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}m-mi^{2}n-u^2(u)′shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., comminution′is. See COMMINUTION.—C. ossis. A comminuted fracture. [L, 30.]

COMMINUTION, n. Ko^{2}m-l^{2}n-u^2′shu^{3}n. Lat., comminutio. Fr., c. Ger., Verminderung, Zerstücklung. The reduction of a solid body into small fragments; especially the fracture of a bone into several small pieces. [L, 94, 109, 135.]

COMMINUTIVE, adj. Ko^{2}m′i^{2}n-u^{2}t-i^{2}v. See COMMINUTED.

COMMIPHORA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}m-mi^{2}f′o^{2}r-a^3. From κόμμι, gum, and φορεῖν, to bear. Fr., commiphore. Ger., Gummibaum. It., gommifero. Sp., gomífero. See BALSAMODENDRON.—C. madagascariensis [Jacquin]. Fr., commiphore de Madagascar. See BALSAMODENDRON agallocha.

COMMISSUR (Ger.), n. Ko^{2}m-mes-sur′. See COMMISSURE.—C. der hintern oberen Lappen des kleinen Hirns. See PONS Varolii.—C. der Riechganglien [Schönlein], C. der Säulchen. The anterior cerebral commissure. [I, 3, 16.]—C. der Schleife. See Wernekinck's COMMISSURE.—C. der Sehnervenganglien. The posterior cerebral commissure. [I, 3.]—C. der Stiele des Septum pellucidum. Of Reichert, a lamina of white substance which is seen at the base of the brain, extending from the anterior cerebral commissure to the beginning of the corpus callosum. [I, 61.]—C. der Vierhügel. The posterior cerebral commissure. [I, 3.]—C. der vorderen Vierhügel. See TRIGONUM inferius commissurœ posterioris.—C. der Zwirbelstiele. Syn.: lamina pedunculorum. The superior lamina of the recessus pinealis, so called because it extends between the opposite peduncles of the pineal gland. [I, 17.]—C. des centralen Höhlengraus. See Meynert's COMMISSURE. C. des grossen Hirns. See CORPUS callosum.—C. des kleinen Hirns [Meckel]. The pons Varolii. [Burdach (a, 18).]—C. des Riegels. The commissure of the obex; a tract of nerve-fibres connecting the opposite common nuclei of the vagus and spinal accessory nerves. [I, 11.]—C. des Rückenmarks. See COMMISSURE of the spinal cord.—C. im Riegel. See C. des Riegels.—Einfache Querc'. See Single COMMISSURE.—Gekreuzte C. A small mass of gray matter which unites the opposite hypoglossal nuclei in the medulla. [I, 17.]—Graue Bodenc'. See TRIGONUM intercrurale.—Graue C. See Gray COMMISSURE.—Graue C. der Medulla spinalis. The gray commissure of the spinal cord. [I, 16.]—Graue Sehnerven- und Schenkel-C. The pons Tarini. [I, 3.]—Grosse vordere Kreuzungsc' des cerebellums (oder des Wurms). The decussation of the fibres of the vermis in the median line. [Stilling (a, 18).]—Hintere C. The posterior commissure of the brain. [I, 17.]—Hintere graue C. See COMMISSURA grisea posterior.—Hintere Kreuzungsc'. A point in the posterior extremity of the horizontal branch of the arbor vitæ of the cerebellum at which fibres from the declive, the vermis superior posterior, and the vermis inferior posterior meet and decussate. [Stilling (a, 18).]—Hufeisenförmige C. [Schwalbe]. See Wernekinck's COMMISSURE.—Kurze sichtbare C. See Short exposed COMMISSURE.—Lange verdeckte C. See Long hidden COMMISSURE.—Meynert'sche C. [Gudden]. A small lamina of gray matter which extends backward from the optic chiasm. [I, 17.]—Mittlere graue C. See Middle gray COMMISSURE.—Obere C. der Oliven [Carus]. An obscure term thought by Burdach to refer perhaps to the roof of the fourth ventricle. [I, 3.]—Ringc'. See SUBSTANTIA gelatinosa centralis.—Totalc' des kleinen Hirns [Reil]. The vermis cerebelli. [Burdach (a, 18).]—Vordere C. The anterior cerebral commissure. [I, 17.]—Vordere Kreuzungsc' des Cerebellums. See Grosse vordere Kreuzungsc' des Cerebellums.—Vordere weisse C. See Anterior white COMMISSURE.—Weiche C. Lat., commissura mollis (cerebri). The middle commissure of the brain. [I, 17.]—Weisse Bodenc'. See White basal COMMISSURE.—Weisse C. See Anterior cerebral COMMISSURE.—Windungsc'. See Association FIBRES.—Zirbelc' [Bergmann]. COMMISSURAL, adj. Ko^{2}m-i^{2}s-u^{2}r'a^{2}l. Lat., commissuralis. Pertaining to a commissure. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COMMISSURE, n. Ko^{2}m'i^{2}s-u^{2}r. Gr., συναρμογή, συμβολή. Lat., commissura. Fr., c. Ger., Commissur, Fuge, Vereinigungspunkt, Verbindung, Berührungsfläche. It., commessura. Sp., comisura. 1. The point of union between any two parts or organs of the body, such as the angles of the lips, eyes, etc. 2. A collection of transverse fibres connecting parts in the brain or spinal marrow [C.] 3. In botany, the line of junction of two bodies; the point at which the carpels cohere, as in the Umbelliferæ. [B, 1, 19, 121 (a, 24).] 4. In ornithology, the line of closure of the two mandibles; the tract or trace of their apposed edges when the jaws are closed; the whole rima oris, the outline of the mouth, when such outline is made one in closure of the mouth. [L, 343.]—Ansulate c. Syn.: commissura ansulata. In certain fishes, fasciculi of white fibres, uniting the anterior crura of the brain.

a, a, the anterior commissure of the brain; b, the middle commissure; c, the posterior commissure. (Seen in horizontal section.)

fibres passing into the opposite anterior, others into the posterior gray cornu. This c. is most distinctly marked in the upper cervical and lumbar regions. [I, 15.]—Anterior medullary c. See An- terior cerebral c.—Anterior white c. of the brain. Lat., commissura anterior cerebri. Fr., c. blanche antérieure. Ger., weisse vordere Commissur. An oval bundle of medullated fibres extending transversely from one cerebral hemisphere to the other, in front of the frontal extremity of the third ventricle, at the level of and near the rostrum of the corpus callosum. As it penetrates the hemisphere it bends downward and forward, passes under and behind the head of the corpus striatum, enters the insula, and spreads out to its termination in the medullary substance of the temporal lobe over the descending cornu of the lateral ventricle. [Krause (a, 18).]—Anterior white c. of the spinal cord. See White c. of the spinal cord.—Canal c. The sinus superior formed by the fusion of the anterior and posterior semicircular canals. A term applied by De Blainville to heads of Annelida which consist of 5 segments. As used in entomology, when relating to metamorphosis, see HOLOMETABOLIC. 3. Of a flower, possessing a calyx, corolla, andrœcium, and gynœcium; also, of dehiscence, having the valves of the carpel open down to the base of the fruit. [B, 77, 104 (a, 24); L, 180.]

COMPLETIO (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}m-ple(pla)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., completion'is. See PLETHORA.

COMPLEX, adj. and n. Ko^{2}m-ple^{2}x', ko^{2}m'ple^{2}x. Lat., complexus. Fr., complexe. Ger., c. It., complesso. Sp., complexo. Complicated; made up of several parts (in botany, said of united flowers, leaves, etc.); as a n., see COMPLEXUS (6th def.). [B, 121 (a, 42).]

COMPLEXIO (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}m-ple^{2}x'i^2-o. Gen., complexion'is. 1. Constitution or temperament [Paracelsus (L, 94).] 2. See COITION.

COMPLEXION, n. Ko^{2}m-ple^{2}x'yu^{3}n. Gr., συμπλοκή. Lat., complexio (from complecti, to represent). Fr., c. Ger., Verwickelung. It., complessione. Sp., complexión. 1. As commonly used, the general appearance of the face, especially as to the tints of the skin, hair, and eyes. 2. The entire appearance of an individual in its relation to his health. [A, 301.] Cf. CONSTITUTION and TEMPERAMENT.

COMPLEXITY, n. Ko^{2}m-ple^{2}x'i-ti^2. Fr., complexité. The state of being complex.

COMPLEXUS (Lat.), adj. and n. m. Ko^{2}m-ple^{2}x'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). 1. (Adj.) complex. 2. (N. [Fr., dorsi-trachéli-occipital, trachélo occipital (Chaussier), dorso-trachélon-occipital, grand complexe; Ger., durchflochtener Nackenmuskel, grosser durchflochtener Muskel; It., musculo grande complesso; Sp., músculo complexo; syn.: semispinalis capitis, secundus movens caput (Falloppius)]) a muscle which arises from the upper 6 or 7 dorsal and the last cervical vertebræ, and the articular processes and capsular ligaments of the 4th, 5th, and 6th cervical vertebræ, and is inserted between the superior and inferior curved lines of the occipital bone. The inner portion of the muscle is termed the biventer cervicis. [L, 142.] 3. (N.) the outer portion of the c. (2d def.). [L, 332.] 4. (N.) in ornithology, a certain cervical muscle. [L, 343.] 5. (N.) in botany, vegetable tissue. [B, 19 (a, 24).] 6. (N. [Fr., cortège symptomatique, syndrome; Ger., Symptomencomplex]), a particular collection of symptoms present in a given case of disease.—C. cellulosus. In botany, cellular tissue. [B, 121 (a, 24); L, 180.]—C. major. See C. (2d def.) and DORSO-OCCIPITALIS.—C. membranaceus. A thin vegetable membrane, formerly regarded as the foundation of all other vegetable tissues. [B, 19.]—C. minor. Fr., petit c. Sp., musculo complexo menor. Syn.: mastoidæus lateralis. The trachelo-mastoid muscle. [L.]—C. of symptoms. See C. (6th def.).—C. parvus. See C. minor.—C. tabularis. Vegetable tissue in a tubular form; woody tissue. [B, 19.]—C. utricularis. Vegetable tissue that is angular. [B, 19.]—C. vesicularis. Vegetable tissue composed of spiral vessels or, according to some, of vessels of any sort with markings on the walls. [B, 19.] Cf. PROSENCHYMA.—Grand c. (Fr.). See C. (2d def.)—Great c. See DORSO-OCCIPITALIS.—Petit c. (Fr.). See C. minor.

COMPLICALIS [E. Coues] (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}m-pli^2-ka(ka^3)'-li^{2}s. See COMPLEXUS (2d def.).

COMPLICATE, adj. Ko^{2}m'pli^{2}k-at. Lat., complicatus (from complicare, to fold together). Fr., compliqué. Ger., verwickelt, zusammengefaltet. It., complicato. Sp., complicado. 1. In botany, folded upon itself. [B, 19 (a, 24).] 2. In entomology, slightly overlapping (said of the elytra). [Kirby (L, 180).]

COMPLICATION, n. Ko^{2}m-pli^{2}k-a'shu^{3}n. Lat., complicatio. Fr., c. Ger., Verwickelung, Gewebe. It., complicazione. Sp., complicación. 1. Lit., a folding together, the state of being complex. 2. A disease, a symptom, or the like, co-existent with and modifying the essential disease without being necessarily connected with it. [D, 20.]

COMPONENT, n. Ko^{2}m-pon'e^{2}nt. Lat., componens (from componere, to put together). Ger., Komponent. 1. In mechanics, one of the primitive forces into which a single force can be resolved. [B.] 2. An ingredient.

COMPOSÉ (Fr.), adj. Ko^{2}m-poz-a. See COMPOUND.—C's aromatiques. See AROMATIC compounds.

COMPOSEEN (Ger.), COMPOSÉES (Fr.). Ko^{2}m-po-za'e^{2}n, -za. See COMPOSITÆ.

COMPOSITA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Ko^{2}m-po^{2}z(po^{2}s)'i^{2}t-a^3. 1. See BOTRYLLIDÆ. 2. A class of the Caducichordata including Botryllidæ and Pyrosomidæ. [L, 201.]

COMPOSITÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}m-po^{2}z(po^{2}s)'i^{2}t-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., composées. Ger., Composeen. Syn.: Synanthereæ [Reichenbach], Asteraceæ [Lindley], Cassiniaceæ [Schultz]. 1. The asterworts; a very large family of herbaceous or shrubby plants with compound flowers; leaves alternate or opposite; flowers crowded, sessile, on the receptacle; calyx adherent; corolla tubular and 5-lobed; stamens 5; anthers cohering into a tube; ovary 1-celled with 1 erect ovule; style single with 2 stigmas at summit; fruit, dry, indehiscent, 1-seeded, and often crowned with a pappus. The family embraces more than 1,000 genera and 9,000 species diffused throughout the globe, but most numerous in tropical America. This family belongs to Lindley's campanal alliance, and forms a natural order of gamopetalous, calycifloral dicotyledons. By Vaillant it is regarded as a division of plants, comprising the classes Cynarocephalæ, Corymbiferæ, and Cichoraceæ. By Gmelin made a class, comprising the orders Semiflosculosæ, Capitatæ (floribus nudis and floribus radiatis). By Adanson made a family consisting of the sections Latucæ, Echinopi, Cardui, Xeranthema, Ambrosiæ, Tanaceta, Conysæ, Jacobeæ, Calthæ, and Bidentes. By Linnæus made the 49th order of plants, comprising the divisions Capitatæ, Semiflosculosæ, Discoideæ (genera: Corynbium, Helenium, Othona, Calendula, Arctotis, and Osteospermum). By Bentham and Hooker regarded as an order of the cohort Asterales, characterized by a unicellular ovary with a single erect ovule; seed often exalbuminous; style of the fertile flowers 2-lobed; leaves varied; flowers surrounded by a common involucre, with the limb of the calyx often reduced to a pappus, or sometimes absent altogether. 2. Of Harz, a group of mosses comprising the genera Stysarius and Stilbum. [B, 19, 34, 42, 121, 170 (a, 24).] 3. See COMPOSITA.

COMPOSITE, adj. Ko^{2}m-po^{2}z'i^{2}t. See COMPOUND.

COMPOSITES, n. pl. Ko^{2}m-po^{2}z'i^{2}tz. See COMPOSITÆ.

COMPOSITI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Ko^{2}m-po^{2}z(po^{2}s)'i^{2}t-i(e). 1. Of Linnæus, see COMPOSITÆ (1st def.). [B, 170 (a, 24).] 2. Of Link, a section of the Gastromyci. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COMPOSITIFLORÆ (Lat.), COMPOSITIFLORES (Lat.), n's f. pl. and m. pl. Ko^{2}m-po^{2}z(po^{2}s)-i^{2}t-i^2-flor'e(a^3-e^2), -ez(as). See COMPOSITÆ.

COMPOSITIFLORUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}m-po^{2}z(po^{2}s)-i^{2}t-i^2-flor'-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From compositus, compound, and flos, a flower. Fr., compositiflore. Having composite flowers.

COMPOSITION, n. Ko^{2}m-poz-i^{2}sh'u^{3}n. Gr., σύνθεσις. Lat., compositio (from componere, to put together). Fr., c. Ger., Vermengung, Vermischung, Zusammensetzung. 1. The act of making up a finished product by the proper arrangement of its component parts, also the product itself. 2. The constitution of a compound substance, with reference to the elementary bodies and intermediate combinations that make it up and their relative quantities, arrangement, etc. 3. A compound.—Structural c. See Structural FORMULA.

COMPOSITUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m-po^{2}z(po^{2}s)'i^{2}t-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). See COMPOUND (n.).

COMPOSITUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}m-po^{2}z(po^{2}s)'i^{2}t-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Fr., composé. Ger., zusammengesetzt. It., composto. Sp., compuesto. United or combined (said of the organs of a plant, as of the inflorescence, buds, bulbs, etc., and of the flowers of the Compositæ, whence the family derives its name). [B, 1, 19 (a, 24).]

COMPOUND, adj. Ko^{2}m-pu^5'u^{4}nd. Lat., compositus. Fr., composé. Ger., zusammengesetzt. It., composto. Sp., compuesto. 1. Made up of two or more parts or ingredients. 2. Consisting of more than one compartment (said of cysts). 3. See C. FRACTURE. 4. Of an inflorescence, consisting of agglomerations of florets surrounded by a c. involucre. [B.] See CAPITULUM.

COMPOUND, n. Ko^{2}m'pu^5-u^{4}nd. Lat., compositum. Fr., composé. Ger., Verbindung, Zusammensetzung. It., composto. Sp., compuesto. A mixture; in chemistry, a substance whose molecule is made up of two or more dissimilar molecules. [B, 77.]—Addition c. Ger., Zusatzverbindung, Zusatzproduct. A c. formed from two other bodies by their direct union.—Aromatic c. Fr., composé aromatique. See under AROMATIC.—Binary c. A chemical body composed of two elements, or of an element and a compound acting as an element. [B, 116 (a, 24).] See BINARY.—Explosive c. Fr., composé explosif. Ger., zerplatzende Mischung. It., composto explosivo. Sp., compuesto explosivo. An expression used in chemistry to describe certain unstable, organic products which are rich in oxygen, and are readily decomposed. [K, 3.]—Leucine c's. C's obtained as products of the decomposition of albuminous bodies by putrefaction or by the action of alkalies and strong acids on proteids. [B, 4 (a, 24).] See LEUCINE.—Quaternary c. A chemical c. composed of four elements. [B.]—Substitution c. Ger., Ersatzverbindung. A c. formed by the replacement of one or more of the elements of a body by another body or other bodies. [B.]—Ternary c. A chemical c. composed of three elements. [B.]

COMPREHENSIO (Lat.), COMPRENSIO (Lat.), n's f. Ko^{2}m-pre(pre^2)-he^{2}ns'i^2-o, -pre^{2}ns'i^2-o. Gen., comprehension'is (-prension'is). From comprehendere, to seize. An old term for catalepsy. [A, 322.]

COMPRESS, n. Ko^{2}m'pres. Gr., σπληνίον, σπληνίσκος. Lat., compressa. Fr., compresse. Ger., Compresse, Bausch. It., compressa. Sp., compresa, cabezal. A folded piece of lint, cloth, or other material, so arranged as to make pressure on a part. [E.]—Cribriform c. Fr., compresse fenêtrée. Ger., durchlöcherte Compresse. It., compressa bucherellata. Sp., compresa perforada. A c. pierced with a number of small openings. [E.]—Doisneu's c. A c. worn in the perinæum and supported around the waist; for making pressure on the seminal ducts. [E.]—Fenestrated c. See Cribriform c.—Graduated c. Fr., compresse graduée. Ger., graduirte Compresse. A c. made progressively narrower and thicker as it approaches the part to which it is to be applied, for the purpose of concentrating the pressure.—Pole c. A mechanical arrangement devised to supersede digital compression in the treatment of aneurysm. One end of a pole of suitable length, being padded, is suspended by attaching the other end to the bed, the ceiling, or a special frame. The padded extremity is then pressed down with the required force upon the blood-vessel to be compressed. [A, 393 (a, 25).]—Prismatic c., Regular c., Triangular c. See Graduated c.

COMPRESSE (Fr.), n. Ko^{2}m-pre^{2}s. See COMPRESS.—C. carrée. A square compress. [A, 301.]—C. criblée. A split compress.—C. découpée. A compress cut at the edges. [E.]—C. en croix de Malte. A square compress cut at the four corners. [E.]—C. fendue. A compress partly torn into three or four portions, used to retract the soft parts during amputation. [E.]—C. fenêtrée. See Cribriform COMPRESS.—C. graduée. See Graduated COMPRESS.—C. longue. A square compress folded in two. [E.]—C. longuette. A long compress folded in two. [E; L, 88.]

COMPRESSED, adj. Ko^{2}m-pre^{2}sd. Lat., compressus. Fr., comprimé. Ger., zusammengedrückt. Pressed into a small solid mass (said of pills, etc.); in botany, flattened; in conchology, having the space between the valves of the shell shallow. [B, 1 (a, 24); L, 180.]

COMPRESSEUR (Fr.), n. Ko^{2}n^2-pre^{2}s-u^{5}r. See COMPRESSOR.—C. de la prostate. See COMPRESSOR prostatæ.—C. du bulbe. See BULBO-CAVERNOSUS.—C. du nez. See Compressor NARIS.—C. ovarique. A truss-like appliance for compressing the ovary. [Féré, "Arch. de neurol.," May, 1882, p. 281.]

COMPRESSIBILITY, n. Ko^{2}m-pre^{2}s-i^2-bi^{2}l'i^{2}t-i^2. Fr., compressibilité. Ger., Zusammendrückbarkeit, Compressibilität. It., compressibilità. Sp., compresibilidad. The quality of being compressible. [L, 56.]

COMPRESSICAUDATUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}m-pre^{2}s-si^2-ka^{4}d-(ka^4-u^{4}d)-a(a^3)'tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). From compressus, compressed, and cauda, the tail. Fr., compressicaude. Ger., mit zusammengedrücktem Schwanze. Sp., compresicaude. Having the tail compressed; as a n. in the m. pl., Compressicaudati, a subfamily of lacertians, having the tail compressed. [L, 41, 180.]

COMPRESSICAULIS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}m-pre^{2}s-si^2-ka^{4}l'(ka^3'u^{4}l)-i^{2}s. From compressus, compressed, and caulis, a stalk. Fr., compressicaule. Ger., mit zusammengedrücktem Stengel. Sp., compresicaulo. Having stems flattened laterally (said of plants). [a, 24.]

COMPRESSICORNIS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}m-pre^{2}s-si^2-ko^{2}rn'i^{2}s. From compressus, compressed, and cornu, a horn. Fr., compressicorne. Ger., mit zusammengedrückten Hörnern, zusammendrückhornig. Having the antennæ compressed. [L, 41.]

COMPRESSION, n. Ko^{2}m-pre^{2}sh'u^{3}n. Gr., θλίψις. Lat., compressio (from comprimere, to compress). Fr., c. Ger., C., Zusammendrückung, Zusammenbiegung, Zusammenballen. It., compressione. Sp., compresión. The act of compressing or the state of being compressed. [a, 25.]—C. of the brain. Lat., compressio cerebri. Fr., c., cérébrale. Ger., Gehirndruck. It., compressione cerebrale. Sp., compresión cerebral. That condition of the brain in which it is unduly pressed upon by any substance, such as a splinter of bone, a tumor, or a blood-clot; also the state of the individual produced by such pressure. In a case of sudden occurrence the symptoms include insensibility; a dusky, congested hue of the face; dilatation of the pupils, or of one pupil with contraction of the other, the pupils reacting but slowly to light; stertorous breathing; and paralysis varying according to the extent and situation of the brain lesion. [a, 25; J; L, 20.]—Digital c. Fr., c. digitale. Ger., manuelle C. Pressure with the fingers (e. g., to effect mechanical control and arrest of the blood circulation through an aneurysm). When this method is adopted pressure is maintained uninterruptedly by relays of assistants, with a view to securing the formation of fibrillated fibrin within the aneurysmal sac. [A, 393 (a, 25).]—Mediate c. Fr., c. médiate. Ger., mittelbare C. It., compressione mediata. Sp., compresión mediata (ó indirecta). The application of pressure to an artery through the overlying soft parts. [L, 20.]

COMPRESSIVE, adj. Ko^{2}m-pre^{2}s'i^{2}v. Lat., compressivus, comprimens. Fr., compressif. Ger., compressiv, zusammendruckend. Serving to make compression.

COMPRESSOR (Lat.), n. Ko^{2}m-pre^{2}s'so^{2}r. Gen., compressor'is. Fr., compresseur. Ger., Zusammendrücker. It., compressore. Sp., compresor. 1. Anything that serves to compress. 2. A muscle that compresses certain parts. [L.]—Arterial c., Artery-c. An instrument for making compression of an artery. Gross's is a long straight forceps the blades of which do not quite come in contact at the middle, and are closed by a screw. [E.]—C. bulbi. See CONSTRICTOR cunni and C. bulbi proprius.—C. bulbi proprius. 1. The deep transverse layer of the bulbo-cavernosus muscle, lying immediately over the bulb of the urethra. [L, 332.] 2. See BULBO-CAVERNOSUS.—C. coccygis. See ISCHIO-COCCYGEUS.—C. hemisphæriorum bulbi [Kobelt]. See C. bulbi proprius.—C. labii [Klein], C. labii proprius. Lat., musculus labii proprius. Ger., Saugemuskel der Lippe. The sagittal fibres of the orbicularis oris muscle. [L, 31.]—C. laryngis. The muscles (regarded in their totality) which lie between the alæ of the thyreoid cartilage and the cricoid cartilage, on account of their functions. [L, 142, 332.]—C. lentis [H. Müller], C. lentis accommodatorius. Ger., Müller'scher Ringmuskel. The circular equatorial fibres of the ciliary muscle. [L, 31.]—C. naris. Fr., maxillo-narinal, transverse du nez, triangulaire du nez, sus-maxillo-nasal, compresseur (ou transverse, ou transversal) du nez. Ger., Zusamendrücker der Nase. A muscle which arises from the superior maxilla above the incisive fossa and passes upward to be attached to the cartilage of the nose, blending with its fellow of the opposite side. [L, 31.]—C. narium major. See C. naris.—C. narium minor. A small muscle attached to the alar cartilage and to the integument at the apex of the nose. [L, 332.]—C. nasi. 1. See C. naris. 2. Of M. J. Weber, the nasal origin of the levator anguli oris. [L, 31.]—C. prostatæ. Fr., compresseur de la prostate, prostatique supérieur, vésico-prostatique. It., compressore della prostata. Sp., compresor prostático. A term applied by Albinus to the middle fibres and by Santorini to the anterior inferior fibres of the levator ani muscle. [L, 7, 332.]—C. sacculi laryngis. See ARYTÆNO-EPIGLOTTIDEUS inferior.—C. tubæ Eustachii. See LEVATOR veli palati.—C. urethræ. See CONSTRICTOR urethræ.—C. venæ dorsalis. Ger., Aufheber des Penis (oder der Ruthe). Houston's muscle; a muscle arising from the ramus of the os pubis or from the symphysis pubis, which passes forward and unites with its fellow of the opposite side upon the upper surface of the tunica albuginea of the penis. By compressing the vein it retards the return of blood from the penis during erection. [Houston, "Dublin Hosp. Reports," 1830, p. 458 (L).]—C. vesiculæ et ductus seminalis. A muscular layer covering the vesiculæ seminales and the vas deferens. [L, 13.]—Duct-c. A dental instrument for compressing Stenson's ducts during dental operations. [E.]

COMPRESSORIUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}m-pre^{2}s-sor'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). An instrument or apparatus for producing compression. [A, 322.]—Bügelc' (Ger.). An arterial compressor or tourniquet consisting of a hoop-like structure encircling the limb loosely, with a pad that can be screwed down upon the artery. [A, 319.]

COMPRESSUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}m-pre^{2}s'su^{3}s(u^{4}s). See COMPRESSED.

COMPSOGNATHA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Ko^{2}mps-o^{2}g-na(na^3)'tha^3. From κομψεύειν, to adorn, and γνάθος, the jaw. 1. Of Marsh, a family or suborder of the Therosaura. 2. Of Lankester, an order of the Dinosauria. [L, 121.]

COMPTE-GOUTTES (Fr.), n. Ko^{2}n^{2}t-gut. Ger., Tropfenzähler. It., contagocce. Sp., cuenta-gotas. A dropper; an instrument for dropping liquids in even measurement. [L, 41, 87.]

COMPTONIA (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}mp-ton'i^2-a^3. Fr., comptonie. Ger., Gagel. The galeworts; of Banks, a genus of shrubs of the Myricaceæ. [B, 19, 34, 42 (a, 24).]—C. asplenifolia. Fr., comptonie à feuilles d'asplénium. Ger., streiffarnblättriger Gagel. Fern-leaved gale, sweet-fern; a species common in dry woods from Canada to Maryland. The plant has an aromatic smell and contains tannin, benzoic acid, a volatile oil, and a substance resembling saponin. It is a tonic and astringent, and the decoction is a popular remedy for diarrhœa. [B, 5, 19, 34, 180 (a, 24).]

COMPUNCTIO (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}m-pu^{3}n^{2}k(pu^{4}n^{2}k)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., compunction'is. From compungere, to puncture. See PARACENTESIS.

COMSAREN, n. In Norway, the Prunella vulgaris of Linnæus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon-a(a^3)'se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Of Lindley, the Coniferæ. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONAMARIN, n. Kon-a^{2}m'a^{2}r-i^{2}n. From κώνειον (see CONIUM), and amarus, bitter. A very bitter neutral resin obtained by J. Harley from the root of Conium maculatum; thought to have no medicinal virtue. [B, 5 (a, 24).]

CONAMBAIA, n. In Brazil, the Cecropia peltata. [a, 24.]

CONAMI, n. At Cayenne, the genus Euphyllanthus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONANAM, n. In Guiana, the Elæis guineensis. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONANTHERA [Ruiz and Pavón] (Lat.), n. f. Kon-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-ther(thar)'a^3. From conus, a cone, and ἀνθηρός (see ANTHER). Fr., conanthère. The Cumingia of Don; a genus of the Conanthereæ of Bentham and Hooker, order Hæmodoraceæ. [B, 19, 42, 121 (a, 24).]—C. bifolia [Ruiz and Pavón]. CONCAUSA (Lat.), n. f. Ko²n-ka⁴z'(ka³'u⁴s)-a³. From con, together, and causa, a cause. Gr., συναίτιον. Fr., concaussa. Ger., mitwirkende Ursache. It., Sp., concausa. A contributory cause. [A, 325.]

CONCAVATION, n. Ko²n-ka²v-a'shu³n. Lat., concavatio (from concavare, to hollow out). Fr., c. Anterior gibbosity of the chest. [L, 41, 94.] Cf. ARCUATION.

CONCAVE, adj. Ko²n-kav'. Gr., κοῖλος. Lat., concavus. Fr., c. Ger., ausgehohlt, hohl, vertieft, konkav. It., concavo. Sp., cóncavo. Hollowed out, having the centre more depressed than the edges. [B, 1, 71 (α. 24); L, 109.]

CONCAVIFOLIATE, adj. Ko²n-kav-i²-fol'i²-at. Lat., concavifolius (from concavus, concave, and folium, a leaf). Fr., concavifolié. Having concave leaves. [L, 109.]

CONCAVITAS (Lat.), n. f. Ko²n²-ka²(ka³)'vi²t(wi²t)-a²s(a³s). Gen., concavitat'is. See CONCAVITY.—C. conchularis (cerebri) [Soemmerring]. The infundibulum of the brain. [I, 3; K.]—C. ossis petrosi [Mundinus]. The cavity of the tympanum. [L, 349.]—C. uteri [Mundinus]. The cavity of the uterus. [L, 349.]

CONCAVITY, n. Ko²n-ka²v'i²t-i². Lat., concavitas. Fr., concavité. Ger., Concavität-Austiefung. It., concavità. Sp., concavidad. A hollow.

CONCAVO-CONCAVE, adj. Ko²n-kav''o-ko²n-kav'. Lat., concavoconcavus. Fr., c.-c. Ger., auf beiden Seiten hohl. It., concavo-concavo. Sp., cóncavo-cóncavo. See BICONCAVE.

CONCAVO-CONVEX, adj. Ko²n-kav''o-ko²n-ve²x'. Lat., concavoconvexus. Fr., concavo-convexe. Ger., auf einer Seite hohl. It., concavo-convesso. Sp., cóncavo-convexo. Having one face concave and the opposite side convex. [A, 301.]

CONCENTRATED, adj. Ko²n'se²nt-rat-e²d. Lat., concentratus. Fr., concentré. Ger., concentrirt. It., concentrato. Sp., concentrado. 1. Drawn to a single point or within narrow bounds, the opposite of diffuse. 2. Condensed, made strong in essential ingredients (said of solutions). [α, 24.]

CONCENTRATION, n. Ko²n-se²nt-ra'shu³n. Lat., concentratio. Fr., c. Ger., Verstärkung, Verdichtung. It., concentrazione. Sp., concentración. 1. The process of increasing the amount of a dissolved substance relatively to the liquid without adding more of the substance; effected by evaporation, by distillation, or by freezing out the water in the solution. 2. A gathering together of anything that is diffused. [B.] [B, 2 (α, 24).]—C. du pouls (Fr.). A contracted state of the pulse. [L, 41, 109.]

CONCENTRATOR (Lat.), n. m. Ko²n-se²nt(ke²nt)-rat(ra³t)'-o²r; in Eng., ko²n'se²nt-rat-o²r. Gen., concentrator'is. An apparatus for effecting concentration.—Light-c. A metallic chimney with a bull's-eye lens in one part through which the light passes. [E.]

CONCENTRIC, adj. Ko²n-se²nt'ri²k. Lat., concentricus. Fr., concentrique. Ger., concentrisch, koncentrisch. It., concentrico. Sp., concéntrico. Having a common centre.

CONCEPTACLE, n. Ko²n-se²pt'a²-k'l. Lat., conceptaculum. Fr., c. Ger., Behälter. A receptacle; a term applied to a vegetable follicle by Desvaux, to the pericarp by Bungius and Medicus, and to the cell of the pericarp by Cæsalpinus; now generally confined to the small spherical sac on the surface of the fronds of Thallophyta, containing the antheridia and oogonia. They appear in large numbers and densely crowded on the ends of the forked branches or of their lateral shoots. They are not formed in the tissue, but are depressions on its surface, which are walled in by the surrounding tissue, and which pour forth their contents by a small opening (the ostiole). [B, 19, 77, 121 (α, 24).]

CONCEPTACULAIRE (Fr.), adj. Ko²n²-se²p-ta³k-u⁶l-a²r. Pertaining to a conceptacle. [α, 24.]

CONCEPTACULIFEROUS, adj. Ko²n-se²p-ta²k-u²l-i²f'e²r-u³s. Lat., conceptaculiferus (from conceptaculum, a conceptacle, and ferre, to bear). Fr., conceptaculifère. Furnished with conceptacles. [α, 14.]

CONCEPTACULUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko²n-se²p(ke²p)-ta²k(ta³k)'-u²l(u⁴l)-u³m(u⁴m). See CONCEPTACLE.—Conceptacula seminaria. See VESICULÆ seminales.

CONCEPTION, n. Ko²n-se²p'shu³n. Lat., conceptio (1st def.), conceptus (2d def.). Fr., c. [O. Fr., concevement]. Ger., C., Empfängniss. It., concezione. Sp., concepción. 1. The act of conceiving, of becoming pregnant. 2. The thing conceived, an ovum.—C'sfahigkeit (Ger.). The capability of conceiving.—C'sfrei (Ger.). Unimpregnated. [L, 332.]—C'stermin (Ger.). The completion of the act of c. [A, 108.]—C'sunfähigkeit (Ger.). Sterility in the female.—False c. Fr., faux germe, fausse c. Ger., falsches Empfängniss. It., concezione falsa. Sp., concepción falsa. Of Montgomery, a blighted ovum in which the liquor amnii has been absorbed, the fœtus has disappeared, and nothing is left but the remains of the umbilical cord. [A, 15.]—Imperative c. In psychiatry, a general term for a class of ideas which manifest themselves to the minds of lunatics, and which even to them may appear absurd or improper, but which can not be driven out, and may explode into the most violent action. [D, 36.]—Intermediate c. A term applied by J. CONCUBITUS [Pliny] (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}n^2-ku^{2}b(ku^{4}b)'i^{2}t-u^{3}s-(u^{4}s). From concumbere, to lie together. Fr., congrès sexuel. Ger., Zusammenliegen, Beischlaf. It., coito. Sp., coito. Sexual intercourse.

CONCURRENZ (Ger.), n. Ko^{2}n-kur-re^{2}ntz'. The struggle of various micro-organisms for the possession of a given nutritive field. [A, 396.]

CONCURSUS (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}n^2-ku^{5}rs(ku^{4}rs)'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From concurrere, to run together. Fr., concours. Ger., Zusammentreffen. It., concorso. Sp., concurso. See ANASTOMOSIS and SYNDROME.

CONCUSSION, n. Ko^{2}n-ku^{3}sh'u^{3}n. Lat., concussio (from concutere, to shake). Fr., commotion. Ger., Erschütterung. It., commozione. Sp., concusión. A shaking, a shock, the condition caused by being shaken.—C. of the brain. Lat., concussio (seu commotio) cerebri. Fr., commotion du cerveau. Ger., Gehirnerschütterung. It., commozione cerebrale. Sp., concusión del cerebro. A jarring of the brain substance without laceration of its tissue or with only microscopic laceration. It is characterized by partial or complete loss of consciousness with feebleness of the pulse, coldness of the extremities, pallor, and dilatation of the pupils, followed by vomiting, moaning, jactitation, and somnolence with warmth of the skin, a full, relaxed pulse, sometimes irregular, and contraction of the pupils; the whole usually ending in gradual recovery. [J. Hutchinson (A, 364).]—C. of the spinal cord. Fr., commotion de la moelle épinière. Ger., Rückenmarkerschütterung. A condition of the spinal cord produced by violent shock, such as may be caused by falling from a height, by a severe blow upon the back, or by a railway collision or similar accident. As complications, small extravasations of blood into the substance of the cord, or rupture of nerve tissue may exist, also hæmorrhage from the spinal meninges and subacute spinal meningitis caused by the initial injury. Paraplegia does not usually supervene. Paresis of one or more limbs, nausea, vomiting, a quick intermittent or irregular pulse, choreic twitchings, and general prostration may severally or collectively occur. The temperature, lowered after the accident, will subsequently be found above the normal. Evidences of impaired digestion and assimilation are palpable. The effect upon the sphincters is variable. The degree and duration of general restlessness and nervous insomnia, as well as of the paralysis, depend upon the severity of the shock. [α, 25.]

CONCUSSOR (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}n^2-ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s)'so^{2}r. Gen., concusso'ris. An instrument or apparatus for administering regulated gentle blows upon a part (e. g., over paralyzed muscles). Such an apparatus, invented by L. Ewer, bears a general resemblance to the dental engine. ["Illustr. Mntsschr. d. ärztl. Polytechn.," Apr., 1888, p. 80.]

CONCUTIENS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n^2-ku^2(ku^4)'shi^2(ti^2)-e^{2}nz(ans). Shaking; as a n., a muscle that shakes a part.—Caput c. Of Douglas, the intertransversales colli muscles, regarded as one muscle. [L, 33.]

CONDAMINEA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Ko^{2}n-da^{2}m(da^{3}m)-i^{2}n'e^2-a^3. Fr., condaminée. Of De Candolle, a genus of rubiaceous trees, distinguished from the Cinchoneæ by its fleshy corolla, the conical shape of the capsule, and the absence of wings upon the seeds. [B, 19, 121 (α, 24).]—C. corymbosa [De Candolle]. A species growing in Peru and Colombia, the bitter and glutinous bark of which is used as a substitute for Peruvian bark and sometimes is mixed with the latter. It differs, however, in taste, and in having a white color on the inner side. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—C. tinctoria [De Candolle]. A South American tree furnishing a light-red bark which in internal structure much resembles cinchona-bark, and the rind of which is used on the Orinoco and elsewhere for dyeing red. [B, 173, 180 (α, 24).] See CINCHONÆ laccifera.—C. utilis [Goudout]. The Elæagia utilis of Weddell. [B, 283.]—C. vera. A variety of Cinchona c. [B, 5 (α, 24).]

CONDAMINEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n da^{2}m(da^{3}m)-i^{2}n'e^2-e-(a^3-e^2). Fr., condaminées. A tribe of the Rubiaceæ, comprising Eucondamineæ, Portlandieæ, and Pinckneyeæ. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONDANG (Malay), n. The Ficus bengalensis. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONDANG-WARIE, n. In Java, the Hibiscus tiliaceus. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

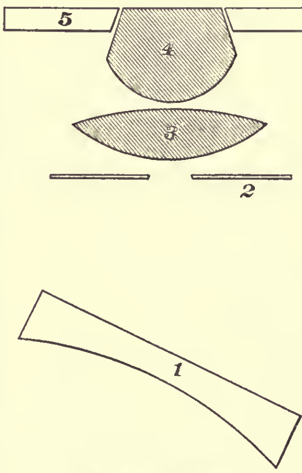
CONDE, n. A native name for the fruit of a Congo palm. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONDENSABILITY, n. Ko^{2}n-de^{2}ns-a^2-bi^{2}l'i^{2}t-i^2. Fr., condensabilité. Ger., Verdichtbarkeit. It., condensabilità. Sp., condensabilidad. Capacity for undergoing condensation. [B.]

CONDENSABLE, adj. Ko^{2}n-de^{2}ns'a^2-b'l. Fr., c. Ger., verdichtbar. It., condensabile. Sp., c. Capable of undergoing condensation. [B.]

CONDENSANT (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n^2-da^{3}n^2-sa^{3}n^2. Lat., condensans. Condensing (formerly said of remedies thought capable of condensing the humors). [L, 41.]



CONDENSATEUR (Fr.), n. Ko^{3}n^2-da^{3}n^{2}s-a^{3}t-u^{5}r. See CONDENSER.

CONDENSATION, n. Ko^{2}n-de^{2}ns-a'shu^{3}n. Lat., condensatio (from condensere, to thicken). Fr., c. Ger., Verdichtung, C. It., condensazzione. Sp., condensación. 1. The act or process of reducing to another and more compact form the bulk of a body without altering its mass. The term is often restricted in chemistry to the passage of gas or vapor into a liquid or a solid state. [B, 2 (α, 24).] 2. The successive direct union of the molecules of a chemical compound with themselves, once or several times, resulting in the formation of polymers. [A, 385.] 3. The formation of a pencil of parallel or convergent rays of light from divergent rays by means of a lens or mirror. 4. In pathology, the solidification of a spongy structure, like that of the lung (see CARNIFICATION and HEPATIZATION).

CONDENSATOR (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}n-de^{2}ns-at(a^{3}t)'o^{2}r; in Eng., ko^{2}n'de^{2}ns-at-o^{2}r. Gen., condensator'is. See CONDENSER.

CONDENSED, adj. Ko^{2}n-de^{2}nsd'. Fr., condensé. Ger., zusammengedräugt, verdichtet. It., condensato. Sp., condensado. In a state of condensation.

CONDENSER, n. Ko^{2}n-de^{2}ns'u^{5}r. Lat., condensator. Fr., condensateur. Ger., Verdichter. It., condensatore. Sp., condensador. An apparatus for effecting condensation of vapor, light, etc.; of Volta, an electrical accumulator. [L, 30, 41, 44.]—Abbé's c. A light-c. which consists of a substage mirror, a diaphragm, and a system of lenses so arranged that the whole apparatus may be raised and lowered in order to alter the focus. In the diagram, 1 represents the mirror. This has a plane and a convex surface. The latter is only to be used with low-power objectives; 2 represents the diaphragm, which is either of the "iris" form or so made that apertures of various sizes may be used; 3 and 4 are the lenses. These are so ground that when a small diaphragm is used, parallel rays will be brought to a focus at a short distance about the upper lens. When, however, no diaphragm is used, the rays are refracted so that the object is illuminated from all sides. All of the image which is produced by shadow is thus obliterated. Those parts, however, which are colored still show, for the color-image and the form-image are different. The most important use of the c. is this obliteration of the form-image, since it makes possible the discovery of stained objects which would otherwise be hidden by the structures about them. [α, 28.]—Achromatic c. An achromatic lens attached to a microscope to concentrate the rays from the mirror on the object under examination. [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Bartlett's c. A combination of a glass retort with a water-jacket, tube, or canister as a c. It is a Liebig's c. applied directly to the neck of a retort. [α, 24.]—Borda y Barcell's c. A c. consisting of a light metallic box or cylinder 18 inches high by 7 in diameter, condensation being effected in the usual manner by supplying the outer vessel with a constant stream of cold water, which enters and escapes by suitable pipes. [α, 24.]—Bull's-eye c. A plano-convex or a bi-convex lens attached to a microscope to aid, by concentrating the light, in illuminating an opaque object under examination. [α, 24.]—Electrical c. An instrument for the accumulation or storing of electricity by its conduction from a non-insulated surface to an insulated one, as in the Leyden jar. If a circular brass plate, covered on its lower surface with copal varnish and insulated by a glass handle, is laid on another brass plate connected with a feeble battery, the upper plate, by induction, becomes an electrical c. and accumulates all the electricity the lower one receives. [B, 158 (α, 24).]—Lieberkühn's c. Also called a Lieberkühn. A concave mirror attached to a microscope to concentrate the rays upon an opaque object. [B, 7.]—Liebig's c. An attachment to a retort by which the distillate is cooled and condensed before passing into the receiver. The glass tube through which the distillate passes is covered throughout its length by a larger tube, generally of metal, and a current of water is made to flow constantly in the space intervening between the two tubes. [B, 14 (α, 24).]—Remington's c. A c. furnished with 7 tubes of 1 inch diameter and 32 inches long, surrounded by a cylinder 5 inches in diameter and 24 inches long. A stout tube at the bottom is connected by rubber tubing with the hydrant, and a similar tube conveys the heated water into the sink. The ends of the condensing tubes are drawn together and tapered. An iron stand is adjusted by a V-support, and secures the apparatus at any required angle. [α, 24.]—Rice's c. A c. that consists of a tolerably heavy copper vessel of about 10 gallons capacity, with a round bottom and closed top, having short inch-tubes projecting from both; one of the tubes supplying the cold water and the other carrying it off. [α, 24.]—Squibb's c. A c. on the principle of Liebig's, but upright and having the vapor tube doubled in the form of a V, in order to economize space in the use of the apparatus. [B, 14 (α, 24).]

CONDENSING, adj. Ko^{2}n-de^{2}ns'i^{2}n^{2}g. Fr., condensateur, condensant. Ger., verdichtend. Causing condensation.

CONDER, n. Ar., koundour. Incense. In Bengal, the resin obtained from the Boswellia thurifera of Roxburgh (which is supposed to be the olibanum or frankincense of the ancients), called by the natives Koondooroo, Ghundurus, or Cundun, of which probably c. is a corruption. [B, 172 (α, 24).]

CONDILLAC (Fr.), n. Ko^{3}n^2-del-ya^{3}k. A place in the department of Drôme, France, where there are alkaline springs. [L, 88.]

CONDIMENT, n. Ko^{2}nd'i^2-me^{2}nt. Gr., ἥδυσμα, ἄρτυμα. Lat., condimentum (from condire, to season). Fr., c. assaisonnement. Ger., Würze, Gewürz. It., Sp., condimento. A stimulating substance used to improve the flavor of food. C's proper usually contain no nutritive material. [K.]

CONDISI (It.), n. Kon-de'se. A corruption of Ar. koundour. Gr., στρουθίον. 1. The Gypsophila struthium of Dioscorides. 2. The Veratrum album of Linnæus. [B, 121, 180 (α, 24).]

CONDIT (Fr.), n. Ko^{3}n^2-de. See COMFIT.

CONDITIPES (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}t'i^2-pez(pas). From conditus, a store-house, and pes, a foot. Fr., conditipède. Capable of concealing the feet (said of the Brachyura). [L, 41, 180.]

CONDITORWAAREN (Ger.), n. pl. Ko^{2}n-det-or'va^{3}r-e^{2}n. See CONFECTIONERY.

CONDITUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}n-di(de)'tu^{3}m(tu^{4}m). From condire, to spice. 1. A medicinal preparation made into the form of an electuary. By the old writers the term was applied especially to preserved fruits and is still used in that sense (e. g., cortex limonis conditus, or candied lemon-peel). [B, 121 (α, 24).] 2. (Vinum understood) of Pliny, wine flavored with honey and pepper. [A, 318.]—C. ad vermes. See ELECTUARIUM ad vermes.—C. catechuicum. Fr., confection japonaise, électuaire de cachou composé. A preparation containing 48 parts of catechu, 32 parts each of tormentilla-root, nutmeg, and incense, 1 part of opium, 24 parts of syrup of orange [Genev. Ph., 1780], 64 parts of catechu, 48 parts of kino, 16 parts each of nutmeg and cinnamon, 1 part of opium dissolved in wine, and 432 parts of syrup of roses thoroughly boiled. [B, 119 (α, 21).]

CONDITURA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}t(det)-u^{2}r(ur)'a^3. Ger., Einmachen, Einbalsamiren. A preserving, seasoning, flavoring. [α, 21.]—C. cadaverum. The embalming of the dead. [α, 21.]

CONDITUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-di(de)'tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). Ger., eingemacht. Preserved, pickled, embalmed; made savory or fragrant; seasoned, spiced. [α, 21.] As a n. m., see CONDITUM.

CONDOM, n. Ku^{3}n'du^{3}m. A corruption of Conton, the name of the inventor. Lat., posthocalyptron. Fr., c., baudruche, capote anglaise. Ger., C. It., c. Sp., condon. A thin bag (formerly consisting of the prepared cæcum of the sheep, or made of gold-beaters' skin, now made of rubber) to be worn as a covering for the penis during coitus, to prevent impregnation or infection. [A, 301; E.]

CONDONDOUG (Malay), n. The Spondias amara of Lamarck. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONDOR, n. The Benincasa cerifera.

CONDORI (Fr.), n. Ko^{3}n-dor-e. The Adenanthera pavonina. [B, 121 (α, 24).]—C. glabre. Syn.: Crête de paon. The Adenanthera pavonina of Linnæus. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. noire. The Adenanthera falcata of Linnæus. [B, 173 (α, 24).]

CONDOUBLÉ (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n^2-dub-la. See CONDUPLICATE.

CONDRILLA (Lat.), CONDRILLON (Lat.), n's f. and n. Ko^{2}n-dri^{2}l'la^3, -lo^{2}n. Fr., condrille, chondrille. 1. The gum-resin of Atractylis gummifera. 2. Of Pliny, Spanish succory. 3. See CHONDRILLA. [B, 114, 121 (α, 24).]

CONDRIS [Pliny] (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n'dri^{2}s. See CHONDRIS.

CONDUCTEUR (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n^2-du^{6}k-tu^{5}r. Conducting; as a n., see CONDUCTOR and DIRECTOR.—C. sonore. See CONDUCTOR sonorus.—C's pistillaires. Lat., chordæ pistillares, stylisci [Link]. Fr., raisseaux c. de l'aura seminalis [Mirbel]. Hollow filaments connecting the stigma to the ovule, through which it was at one time erroneously supposed that an aura seminis was conducted for the fertilization of the ovum. [B, 1, 19, 121 (α, 24).]

CONDUCTIBILITY, n. Ko^{2}n-du^{3}k-ti^2-bi^{2}l'i^{2}t-i^2. Fr., conductibilité. Ger., Leitungsfähigkeit. It., conductibilità. Sp., conductibilidad. Properly, capability of being conducted; as commonly used, conducting power (for which a better word is conductivity).—Centrifugal c. The property of conveying centrifugal impressions from the nervous centres to the periphery. [L, 13.]—Centripetal c. The property of conveying centripetal impressions from the periphery to the nervous centres. [L, 13.]

CONDUCTIO (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-du^{3}k(duk)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., conduction'is (from conducere, to conduct). 1. See CONDUCTION. 2. A convulsion. [C. Aurelianus (L, 132).]

CONDUCTION, n. Ko^{2}n-du^{3}k'shu^{3}n. Gr., συναγωγή. Lat., conductio. Fr., c. Ger., Leitung. It., conduzione. Sp., conducción. The property or process of giving passage to anything (especially heat, sound, and electricity).—Aerial c., Air c. Fr., c. aérienne. Ger., Luftleitung. C., as of sound to the ear through air.—Bone c. Fr., c. des os du crâne. Ger., Knochenleitung. It., conduzione delle ossa craniche. Sp., conducción de los huesos del craneo. The c. of sound to the ear through the bones of the skull. [F.]—Double c. Ger., doppelte Leitung. The transmission of an impulse in two directions (both to and from the nerve-centre) when a stimulus is applied to the middle portion of a pure sensory or motor nerve. [Landois (K).]

CONDUCTIVITY, n. Ko^{2}n-du^{3}k-ti^{2}v'i^{2}t-i^2. Ger., Leitungsfähigkeit. Conducting power. Cf. CONDUCTIBILITY.—Coefficient of c. of electricity. A number expressing the electrical c. of a body, estimated in a manner similar to that of the coefficient of c. of heat. [B.]—Coefficient of c. of heat. A number expressing the absolute or relative quantity of heat which passes in a unit of time through a plate of that substance of unit thickness and unit area whose surfaces are maintained in constant temperatures differing from one another by one degree. This applies equally to the c. of electricity. [B, 2, 77 (α, 24).]—Specific c. Ger., specifische Leitungsfähigkeit. The relative capacity which some special substance exhibits for the transmission of heat, electricity, or nerve force. [α, 24.]

CONDUCTOR (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}n-du^{3}k(duk)'to^{2}r. Gen., conductor'is. Gr., ἀγωγός. Fr., conducteur. Ger., Führer, Leiter, Konduktor. It., conduttore. Sp., c. 1. Any medium of conduction. 2. A lithotomy staff. [A, 322.]—C. sonorus [Bergmann]. Fr., conducteur sonore. Ger., unbeständige Trigeminus-Wurzel. A term for certain nerve-fibers in the floor of the fourth ventricle which interlace with the striæ acusticæ (medullary striæ). [I, 39.]—Paladino's sound-c. Fr., phonifère. Ger., Schallleiter. It., Sp., fonifero. An instrument consisting of a straight, flexible, or firm rod, one half to two thirds of a metre long, to one end of which is fixed a thin, small, circular band of metal, while the other end bears a small, slightly concave metal plate. The metal arc is placed on the larynx of the party speaking, and the small metal plate on the teeth or ear of the deaf person, so that speech is immediately transmitted by the rod to the bones of the head, and thence to the labyrinth. [F, 32.]—Pin-c. An instrument for guiding a long, slender pin through thick, tough tissues. Buck's pin-c. resembles a shoemaker's awl in general shape, but is channeled for a short distance from the point. It is carried through the course that the pin is designed to take, the point of the pin is engaged in its channeled portion, the pin-c. is then withdrawn, and the pin goes along with it.—Prime c. That part of a frictional electrical machine which receives, and by its insulation retains, the electricity developed. It is generally a metallic cylinder, but often of other and various forms. [B, 77 (α, 24).]

CONDU-MUNNIE (Tamil), n. The Abrus precatorius. [B, 172.]

CONDUPLICABLE (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n^2-du^6-ple-ka^3-b'l. Capable of being folded on itself (said of a vegetable organ, such as a leaflet or a petiole). [a, 24.]

CONDUPLICANT, adj. Ko^{2}n-du^{2}p'li^{2}k-a^{2}nt. Doubling up, as when the leaflets of a compound leaf rise and apply themselves to each other. [B, 19 (a, 24).]

CONDUPLICATE, adj. Ko^{2}n-du^{2}p'li^{2}k-at. Lat., conduplicatus (from con, together, and duplicare, to double). Fr., conduplique, conduplicatif. Ger., zusammengeschlagen. Doubled together (said of prefoliations in which an organ is folded in its length and lying by the side of others, without inclosing them, as in the bud of the oak or the cotyledons of certain plants. [B, 1, 19, 121 (a, 24).]

CONDURANGO [Michaux], n. Kon-dur-a^{3}n'go. From the native name, cundur-angu. Lit., condor-vine; a vine growing in Colombia, in South America, of the tribe Gonolobeæ, of the order Asclepitiadeæ, of which, according to Baillon, there are two varieties —the yellow and the white—though, according to J. G. Ayres (1873), there are at least ten different vines of this name in Colombia. [B, 5, 42, 121 (a, 24).]—C.-bark. Lat., cortex c. [Ger. Ph.]. Fr., c. Ger., C'rinde. It., corteccia di c. Sp., corteza de c. The bark of C. blanco. It was introduced into Europe in 1871 as a remedy for cancer, and attained some reputation as such in the United States, but has now fallen into disuse. It is still largely used in South America in chronic syphilis. The bark is from $\frac{1}{16}$ to $\frac{1}{4}$ of an inch thick, smooth, of an ashy-gray color, and, according to Merck, contains a glucoside, condurangin. [B, 5 (a, 24).]—C. blanco (Sp.). The Conglobus c. of Triana (Maradenia c. of Reichenbach); a species, the source of c. bark. [B, 5, 270 (a, 24).]—C. de paloma. A product of the Gonolobus tetragonus. [B, 81.]

CONDURDUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}n-du^{3}r(dur)'du^{3}m(du^{4}m). See CONDURNUM.

CONDURI (Malay), n. The Abrus precatorius. [B, 124 (a, 24).]

CONDURNUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}n-du^{3}rn(durn)'u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Of Pliny, the Saponaria vaccaria, according to Sprengel; others suppose it to have been the Valeriana rubra or the Centaurea solstitialis. [B, 114, 121 (a, 24).]

CONDURU, n. In Brazil, the Brosimum condura. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONDYLAR, adj. Ko^{2}n'di^{2}l-a^{3}r. Lat., condylius. Fr., condylien. Ger., condylär. Pertaining to a condyle. [E.]

CONDYLARTHROSIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}l(du^{6}l)-a^{3}r-thros'-i^{2}s. Gen., condylarthros'eos (-is). From κόνδυλος, a condyle, and ἀρθροῦν, to articulate. Ger., Condylarthrose, Ellipsoidalgelenk, Walzengelenk. A variety of diarthrosis in which a condyle moves in a shallow elliptical articular cavity, allowing of angular movements and circumduction. [L, 31, 142, 332.]

CONDYLE, n. Ko^{2}n'dil. Gr., κόνδυλος. Lat., condylus. Fr., c. Ger., C., Condylus, Knopf, Gelenkknorren, Gelenkkopf. It., condilo. Sp., cóndilo. 1. A rounded protuberance or eminence upon a bone for articulation with an articular surface of another bone. 2. Loosely, any eminence on a bone. [C; L.]—C. of the inferior maxilla. Lat., condylus maxillæ inferioris. Fr., c. de la mâchoire inférieure. Ger., Condylus des Unterkiefers. It., condilo della mascella inferiore. Sp., cóndilo del maxilar inferior. A process which projects upward from the posterior portion of each ramus of the inferior maxilla to articulate with the anterior portion of the glenoid fossa of the temporal bone. [L, 142.]—External c. of the femur. Lat., condylus externus femoris. Fr., c. externe du fémur. Ger., äusserer Condylus des Oberschenkelbeins. It., condilo esterno del femore. Sp., cóndilo externo del fémur. A rounded eminence on the outer side of the lower extremity of the femur. It is united anteriorly with the internal c., but posteriorly it is separated by the intercondylar fossa. Its inferior surface is convex and covered with cartilage, and articulates with the external condylar surface of the tibia. On its outer surface, a little behind the centre, is the external tuberosity. [L, 31, 142, 332.]—External c. of the humerus. Lat., condylus externus humeri. Fr., c. externe de l'humérus. Ger., äusserer Condylus des Oberarmbeins. It., condilo esterno dell' omero. Sp., cóndilo externo del húmero. The epicondyle of Chaussier; the tubercular eminence on the outer side of the lower end of the humerus. It is somewhat smaller than the internal c., is curved forward, and furnishes attachment to the external lateral ligament and to a tendon of origin of certain of the extensor and of the supinator muscles of the forearm. [L, 31, 142, 332.]—Internal c. of the femur. Lat., condylus internus femoris. Fr., c. interne du fémur. Ger., innerer Condylus des Oberschenkelbeins. It., condilo interno del femore. Sp., cóndilo interno del fémur. A rounded eminence upon the inner side of the lower extremity of the femur. It is united anteriorly with the external c., but posteriorly is separated by the intercondylar fossa. Its inferior surface is smaller than that of the external c., convex, and covered with cartilage, and articulates with the internal surface of the tibia. Upon its inner surface is the internal tuberosity. [L, 31, 142, 332.]—Internal c. of the humerus. Lat., condylus internus humeri. Fr., c. interne de l'humérus. Ger., innerer Condylus des Oberarmbeins. It., condilo interno dell' omero. Sp., cóndilo interno del húmero. A tubercular eminence upon the inner side of the lower extremity of the humerus. It is directed backward, and furnishes attachment to the internal lateral ligament and to a tendon from which certain of the flexor muscles of the forearm arise. [L, 31, 142, 332.]—Occipital c's. Lat., condyli occipitales. Fr., c's occipitaux. Ger., Condylen des Hinterkopf's. It., condili dell' occipitale. Sp., cóndilos del occipucio. The two articular processes, one on each side of the occipital bone. They are elliptical, and convex laterally and longitudinally, and their long axes converge somewhat forward; they lie close to the anterior half of the foramen magnum, and articulate with the atlas. [L, 31, 142, 332.] Cf. Exoccipital BONES.

CONDYLIE (Fr.), n. Ko^{3}n^2-del-e. See CONDYLIUM.

CONDYLIEN (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n-del-e-a^{3}n^2. See CONDYLAR.

CONDYLIUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}l(du^{6}l)'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Fr., condylie. The antheridium of a Chara. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONDYLIUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}l(du^{6}l)'i^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CONDYLAR.

CONDYLOCARPUS (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}l(du^{6}l)-o(o^3)-ka^{3}rp'-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κόνδυλος, a knuckle, and καρπός, a fruit. Of Hoffmann, a genus of the Umbelliferæ closely allied to the Tordylium of Linnæus. [B, 42, 121 (a, 24).]—C. apulus. A species growing in southern Europe and having the same properties as the Tordylium officinale of Linnæus. Dioscorides included, possibly, both species under his τορδύλιον. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. officinalis [Kock]. Ger., gebräuchlicher Zirmet, Drehkraut, Bergkümmel. 1. Hartwort; a species indigenous to southern Europe and the East, and cultivated in England. Its root was formerly official as radix tordylii (minoris), and its yellow-white, mildly aromatic fruit as semen tordylii; both were formerly used in renal and menstrual disorders, and the latter in bladder complaints also, but are now out of use. 2. The Taxodium of Richard. [B, 121, 180 (a, 24).]

CONDYLO-CORONOÏDIEN (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n^2-del-o-ko^{2}r-o-no-ed-e-a^{3}n^2. Pertaining to the condyle and coronoid process of the inferior maxilla. [L.]

CONDYLOID, adj. Ko^{2}n'di^{2}l-oid. Gr., κονδυλώδης (from κόνδυλος, a condyle, and εἶδος, resemblance). Lat., condylodes, condyloides, condyloideus. Fr., condyloïde. Ger., knopfförmig. It., condiloideo. Sp., condiloideo. Shaped like a condyle; also, as sometimes used, pertaining to or supporting a condyle (see CONDYLAR). [C.]

CONDYLOIDEO-CORACOIDEUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}l(du^{6}l)-o(o^3)-i^{2}d(ed)'e^2-o(o^3)-ko^{2}r-a^{2}k(a^{3}k)-o(o^3)-i^{2}d(ed)'e^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Pertaining to the coracoid process and the head of the scapula. [L, 31.]

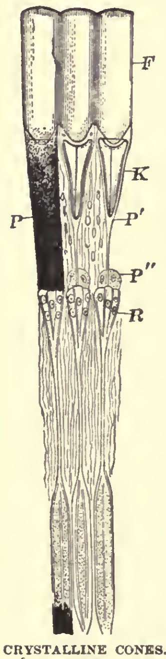
CONDYLOMA (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}l(du^{6}l)-om'a^3. Gen., condylom'atos (-is). Gr., κονδύλωμα (from κονδυλοῦσθαι, to swell up). Fr., condylome, végétation, végétation dermique, choux-fleur, crête de coq, poireau, syphilis végétante framboisée. Ger., Condylom, Fleischauswuchs, Feuchtwarze, Feigwarze, Schwammwarze. It., condiloma, cresta di gallo, fico, fragola, lampone, vegetazione, porrofico, cavolfiore, verruca francesa (o venerea). Sp., condiloma. Originally, a hard or bony protuberance, especially about a joint; afterward applied to certain fleshy or wart-like excrescences, hard, but softer than bone, more particularly when occurring in the region of the anus or the external genitals. As now employed, two different affections are comprehended under the term, one occurring as a manifestation of syphilis (see C. latum), and the other irrespective of that disease (see C. acuminatum). By some the term is reserved for the latter affection, the former receiving other designations. [G.] Cf. Papillary TUMOR.—Broad c. See C. latum.—C. acuminatum. Fr., végétation acuminé. Ger., spitzes Condylom, Papillarcondylom. It., condiloma acuminato. Sp., condiloma acuminoso. A fleshy excrescence from the skin or mucous membrane, usually in the region of the anus or genitals, having the character of a papilloma, and most commonly caused by exposure of the part to irritation from gonorrhœal or other acrid discharges. The growth is usually highly vascular, and either of a pinkish hue or differing little in color from the surrounding surface. It may appear either in the form of flat or long, narrow, isolated projections; or as soft, exuberent masses of a tufted or filiform character; or as a fringe or crest along the folds of skin or mucous membrane (Fr., crêtes de coq). [G.]—C. clavus. See CLAVUS.—C. elevatum. See C. acuminatum.—C. endocysticum, C. endofolliculare. Ger., endocystisches Condylom. See MOLLUSCUM contagiosum.—C. iridis. Fr., condylome de l'iris. Ger., Regenbogenhautkondylom. It., condiloma dell' iride. Sp., condiloma del iris. See IRITIS gummosa.—C. latum. Fr., condylome plat, papule végétante, plaque muqueuse (ou syphilitique hypertrophique), végétante (ou papuleuse) humide, tubercule muqueux. Ger., breites Condylom, breite Feigwarze. It., condiloma piatto, placca mucosa. Sp., condiloma plano. Broad or flat c.; a name given to a special syphilitic manifestation upon the skin or mucous membrane, occurring particularly in regions where two surfaces lie habitually in contact with each other, characterized by a circumscribed, grayish, usually smooth, moist elevation, and due to syphilitic infiltration of the corium, together with hyperplasia of the papillæ and epidermis. [G.] Cf. Mucous PATCH.—C. of the iris. See IRITIS gummosa.—C. porcelaneum, C. subcutaneum. Ger., subcutanes Condylom. See MOLLUSCUM contagiosum.—C. syphiliticum. See C. latum.—C. tylus. Callosity of the hands or feet due to friction, hard labor, etc. [L, 132.]—Flat c. See C. latum.—Syphilitic c. See C. latum.

CONDYLOME (Fr.), n. Ko^{3}n^2-del-om. See CONDYLOMA.—C. de l'iris. See IRITIS gummosa.—C. plat. See CONDYLOMA latum.—C. thymique. A condyloma acuminatum or condyloma latum that assumes the form of a papilloma; so called because of its resemblance to the flowers of thyme. [G.]

CONDYLOPA (Lat.), CONDYLOPODA (Lat.), n's n. pl. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}l(du^{6}l)'o(o^2)-pa^3, -di^{2}l(du^{6}l)-o^{2}p'o^{3}d-a^3. Fr., condylopes, condylopodes. From κόνδυλος, a knuckle, and πούς, a foot. See ARTHROPODA.



CONDYLOPUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}l(du^{6}l)′o(o^2)-pu^{3}s(pus). Fr., condylope. Ger., knopffüssig. It., condilopeo. Sp., condilópeo. Having articulated feet. [L, 180.]

CONDYLOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}l(du^{6}l)-os′i^{2}s. Gen., condylos′eos (-is). Gr., κονδύλωσις. Properly, the formation of condylomata; as commonly used, a condyloma. [A, 322; G, 16.]

CONDYLOTOMY, n. Ko^{2}n-di^{2}l-o^{2}t′o-mi^2. From κόνδυλος (see CONDYLE), and τέμνειν, to cut. Fr., condylotomie. An osteotomy of one or both of the condyles of the femur. See Annandale's, Ogston's, and Reeves's OSTEOTOMY.

CONE, n. Kon. Gr., κῶνος. Lat., conus. Fr., cône. Ger., Zapfen. It., Sp., cono. 1. A pyramid with a circular base. [A, 301.] 2. An aggregated fruit composed of a conical or oval mass of imbricated scales, as in the pine and in gymnosperms generally. 3. The syncarpium of the Magnolia tribe; it is a mass of confluent, closed pericarps on a lengthened torus. [B, 34 (a, 24).]—C. body. Ger., Zapfenkörper, Zapfeninnenglied. The inner segment of a retinal c. [L, 332.]—C. fibres. Ger., Zapfenfasern. The prolongations outward (toward the sclerotic) of the retinal c's. They enlarge to form the c. granules, and terminate, in pyramidal bases, upon the surface of the outer molecular layer of the retina, from the edges of which are given off fine processes. [L, 31, 318, 332.]—C.-flower. See the major list.—C. granules. Ger., Zapfenkörner. Nucleated enlargements of the c. fibres situated between the membrana externa limitans and the intergranular layer of the retina. Sometimes they are closely connected with the base of the cones, and are never at any great distance from them. By many they are regarded as being bipolar nerve cells. [L, 31, 318, 332.]—C.-head. The genus Strobilanthes. [B, 19, 121, 275 (a, 24).]—C. of attraction. Fr., cône d'attraction. An elevation of the outer layers of the vitelline membrane at the place where the spermatozooids are to enter it.—C's of the retina. See Retinal c's.—C. rod [H. Müller], C. style. Ger., Zapfenstäbchen, Zapfenaussenglied. The outer segment of a retinal c. [L, 332.]—Crystalline c's. Fr., cônes cristallines. In compound eyes, transparent c's which lie between the corneal lenses and the retinulæ, one for each lens. [L, 201.]—Doyere's c., Nerve c. See Nerve-EMINENCE.—Endostylic c. An endodermal process of the endostyle found in the stolon of certain ascidians. [L, 353.]—Fibrous c. [Mayo]. See CORONA radiata.—Olfactory c's. Conical projections on the antennæ of crustaceans, regarded as having olfactory functions. [L, 353.]—Oral c. In the Hydrozoa, the conical enlargement at the oral pole, in the centre of which is the mouth. [L, 121.]—Primitive c's. Ger., Primitivkegel. The c.-like appearances formed by the collecting tubules arising from single principal tubes in the medulla of the kidney, extending to the surface of the cortex in the same medullary radius, and there dividing into numerous uriniferous tubules. [J, 35.]—Retinal c's. Lat., coni retinæ. Fr., cônes retiniens. Ger., Netzhautzapfen. Bulbous bodies in the layer of rods and cones of the retina. They are divided into two segments, an inner (the c. body), and an outer (the c. rod), which is usually shorter. The inner is bottle-shaped, consists internally of homogeneous or finely granular matter, externally of fine fibrils, is simply refracting, is stained by carmin, and is continuous with a c. fibre. The outer segment is finely tapering, doubly refracting, is uncolored by carmin, but deeply stained by osmic acid, and is believed to be made up of superimposed discs.

CRYSTALLINE CONES. [FROM MILLS, AFTER GRENACHER.]

Three facets with retinulæ from the compound eye of the cockchafer. The pigment has been dissolved away from two of the facets. F, corneal facet; K, crystalline cone; P, pigment-sheath; P′, chief pigment-cell; P″, pigment-cells of the second order; R, retinulæ.

By some they are regarded as being the peripheric process of the c. granules (bipolar ganglion cells), and as being more largely concerned in the perception of color than the rods. In animals of nocturnal habits they are much diminished in number, or are absent. They are usually fewer in number than the rods, except at the macula lutea, where they exceed the rods in number. They are perpendicular to the retina except at the macula, where they are somewhat oblique. [L, 31, 318, 332.]—Sensory c's. See Olfactory c's.—Steinheil's c. Fr., cône de Steinheil. Ger., Steinheil'sche Kegel. It., cono di Steinheil. Sp., cono de Steinheil. A small cone of solid glass, the base of which is convex and the opposite surface concave. It is about an inch in length and acts like a Galilean telescope; occasionally used in very high degrees of myopia. [F.]—Twin c's. Ger., Doppelzapfen. In comparative anatomy, retinal c's which are united by their lateral surfaces, the rods and fibres being separate. [L, 318, 332.]

THE RODS AND CONES OF THE RETINA. [FROM MILLS, AFTER H. MÜLLER.]

1, layer of rods and cones; 2, rods; 3, cones; 4, 5, 6, external granule layer; 7, internal granule layer; 9, 10, finely granular gray layer; 11, layer of nerve-cells; 12, 14, fibres of the optic nerve; 13, membrana limitans.

CÔNE (Fr.), n. Kon. See CONE.—C. d'attraction. See CONE of attraction.—C's de la rétine. See Retinal CONES.—C. d'exsudation [Fol]. CONFERVIFORMIS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-fu^{5}r(fe^{2}r)-vi^2(wi^2)-fo^{2}rm′i^{2}s. From Conferva (q. v.), and forma, form. Resembling the Confervea. [L, 41.]

CONFERVINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-fu^{5}r-vi(we)′ne(na^3-e^2). 1. Of Sprengel (1827), a family of Algæ, including Cladostephus, Ectocarpus, Polysiphonia, Champia, Griffithia, Ceramium, Bulbochæte, Conferva, Zygnema, Hydrodictyon, and Nodularia; in 1831 he excluded Nodularia and added Sphacelaria, Dasia, and Chrovolepus. 2. Of Kützing (1845), a division of Tiloblasteæ (previously termed by him Dermastosipheæ) including the families Hormidieæ, Ulothricheæ, Conferveæ, Zygnemaceæ, Hydrodictyeæ, Protonemeæ, Chantransieæ, Draparnaldieæ, Ectocarpeæ, and Sphacelarieæ. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CONFERVOID, adj. Ko^{2}n-fu^{5}r′void. From conferva (q. v.), and εἶδος, resemblance. Fr., confervoïde. Resembling a conferva; having filaments like the Conferva. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONFERVOIDEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-fu^{5}r(fe^{2}r)-vo(wo^2)-i^{2}d(ed)′e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Agardh and succeeding authors, an order of Algæ; by some made co-extensive with the Confervaceæ (q. v.), by others regarded as a division of the latter. S. H. Vines, who adopts the former view, makes the C. the 5th or er of the 2d subclass (Chlorophyceæ) of Algæ, and defines them as septate multicellular plants, with uninucleate or multinucleate cells, and a filamentous body, branched or unbranched, sometimes differentiated into root and stem, in which case it is attached by the root, or by a flat, or by a cellular tube. The sexual process is either isogamous, the gametes then being non-ciliated and fixed (Conjugatæ) or free-swimming and ciliated (Ulothricaceæ, Cladophoreæ, Chætophoreæ, and Ulvaceæ); or it is oogamous, the sexual organs then being either undifferentiated (in the Sphæropleæ), or differentiated (in the Œdogonieæ and Coleochæteæ). [B, 77, 170 (α, 24).]

and fœtid serous exudation. [A, 326.]—C. escharotica. Frost-bite with gangrene. [A, 326.]

CONGELATION, n. Ko^{2}n-je^{2}l-a′shu^{3}n. Gr., σύμπηξις. Lat., congelatio (from congelare, to congeal). Fr., congélation. Ger., Gefrieren. It., congelazione. Sp., congelamiento, congelación. 1. Freezing, the solidification of a liquid in consequence of a reduction of temperature; as sometimes used, coagulation. 2. Frost-bite, the effects of intense cold on living animal tissues (induration, pallor, and loss of sensibility, followed by hyperæmia and, if the exposure is prolonged or the part improperly treated, by vesication, ulceration, or gangrene). C. of the first degree is followed by simple hyperæmia of the skin; that of the second degree by more decided cutaneous lesions, such as vesication and superficial ulceration; that of the third degree by deep-seated gangrene. 3. The effects of intense cold on the organism at large, characterized mainly by irresistible drowsiness and repugnance to exertion, followed by sleep and death. [A, 301; L, 87.] 4. Of the ancients, the stupor of certain diseases, such as catalepsy. [A, 325.]

CONGELATIVUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-je^{2}l(ge^{2}l)-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-i(e)′vu^{3}s-(wu^{4}s). See CONGELANS.

CONGELATUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-je^{2}l(ge^{2}l)-a(a^3)′tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). Fr., congelé. Ger., gefroren. It., congelato. Sp., congelado. 1. Frozen. [L, 43.] 2. See CONGELATICUS.

CONGENER (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n′je^{2}n(ge^{2}n)-u^{5}r(e^{2}r). Gen., congen′eris. From con, together with, and genus, kind. Fr., congénère. Ger., congenerisch, verwandt, gleichartig It., congenere. Sp., congénero. Congeneric (q. v.); as a n., anything of like origin or nature with another or belonging to the same or an allied genus. [L.]

CONGENERIC, adj. Ko^{2}n-je^{2}n-e^{2}r′i^{2}k. Gr., συγγενής, ὁμογενής. Lat., congener. Fr., congénère. 1. Belonging to the same genus. 2. Of the same nature or having the same functions. [L, 41, 121.]

CONGÉNIAL (Fr.). adj. Ko^{3}n^2-zhan-e-a^{3}l. See CONGENITAL.

CONGENITAL, adj. Ko^{2}n-je^{2}n′i^{2}t-a^{2}l. Lat., congenitus (from con, together with, and genitus, engendered). Fr., congénital. Ger., angeboren, mitgeboren. It., congenito. Sp., congénito. Syn.: connate. Existing at the time of birth.

CONGERIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-je^{2}r(ge^{2}r)′i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A family of the Phaneromycteres. [L, 281.]

CONGERIES (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-je(ge^2)′ri^2-ez(as). Gen., congerie′i. From congerere, to accumulate. Gr., συμφόρημα. Fr., amas. Ger., Gemengsel. It., ammasso. Sp., congerie. A collection, a mass. [L, 56, 102.]

CONGESTED, adj. Ko^{2}n-je^{2}st′e^{2}d. Lat., congestus. Fr., congestionné. 1. In a state of congestion. 2. In botany, of the prefoliation, having the discs of leaves irregularly crowded on each other. [B, 1, 19 (a, 24)]

CONGESTIBLE, adj. Ko^{2}n-je^{2}st′i^2-b′l. Fr., c. Susceptible of congestion. [A, 301.]

CONGESTION, n. Ko^{2}n-je^{2}st′yu^{3}n. Gr., συμφόρησις. Lat., congestio (from congerere, to accumulate). Fr., c. Ger., C., Andraung, Ansammlung. It., congestione. Sp., congestión. 1. An abnormal accumulation of blood in a part; hyperæmia (to be distinguished from inflammation, fluxion, and engorgement [q. v.]). 2. A like accumulation of any of the juices. 3. The wandering of pus to a part remote from the seat of its formation (Fr., abcès par c.). [A, 301.]—Active c. Fr., c. active (ou de force). A state of hyperæmia in which too much blood is propelled into the affected part. It often constitutes the first manifestation of inflammation. [L.]—Asthenic c. Fr., c. asthénique. See Passive c.—Atonic c. Ger., atonische C. C. due to weakness of the muscular fibres of the blood-vessels independently of nervous influence. [Samuel (A, 319).]—Cerebral c. C. of the brain; described as occurring under three forms—the light, the severe, and the apoplectic. The light form is gradual in onset. There is dull headache, with alternate lancinating pains, tinnitus aurium, flashes of light before the eyes, uneasy sleep, bad dreams, vertigo, muscular fatigue, disordered sensations, deranged stomach, nausea, and irritable heart. The severe may develop out of the light form, or it may come on without prodromes. The symptoms of this form are those of the light form exaggerated in intensity. If not relieved, the patient may pass from a state of exalted activity to one of depression or coma. In children, convulsions are not infrequent. The third, or apoplectic form, is of sudden onset, simulating apoplexy closely. The reflexes are not in abeyance. In venous or passive cerebral c. there are headache, swelling of the eyelids, fullness of the superficial veins, singing in the ears, and impairment of the hearing. The vision is obscured and the mind confused. [a, 25.]—Collateral c. Ger., collaterale C. An increase of the amount of blood flowing through the vessels directly connected with a vessel that is obstructed. [Samuel (A, 319).] Cf. Collateral CIRCULATION.—C. asthénique, C. de faiblesse (Fr.). See Passive c.—C. de force. See Active c.—C. par accommodation (Fr.). See Active c.—C. par paralysie (Fr.). See Neuro-paralytic c.—C. par rétention (Fr.), C. passive (Fr.). See Passive c.—C'sabscess (Ger.). See Congestive ABSCESS.—C. sthénique. See Active c.—C's utérines. Mme. Lachapelle's term for a form of secondary puerperal hæmorrhage supposed by her to depend upon a special "molimen hæmorrhagicum." [A, 96.]—Entzündliche C. (Ger.). See Inflammatory c.—Fluxionary c. Fr., c. fluxionnaire. Ger., fluxionäre C. C. due to increased force of the general circulation. [Samuel (A, 319).]—Functional c. Ger., functionelle C. C. of an organ in consequence of its functional activity (e. g., of the retina when the eye is in use). [Samuel (A, 319).]—General venous c. Fr., c. veineuse générale. Overloading of the veins of the systemic circulation, as in certain forms of valvular disease of the heart. [D, 1.]—Hepatic c. C. of the liver; an increase in the amount of blood in the liver. The condition may be active, such as is induced by excesses in eating or malarial disease and in typhus or typhoid fever. Passive hepatic c. may arise in the course of any disorder disturbing the systemic circulation. If the venous stasis persists, atrophy of the organ will ensue. [Strümpell (a, 25).]—Hypostatic c. Fr., c. hypostatique. Ger., hypostatische C. Gravitation of blood to the lower parts of the body or of certain organs, as in the dead body and in persons with an enfeebled heart. [D, 25.]—Idiopathic c. Fr., c. idiopathique. Ger., idiopathische C. C. occurring by itself, not as an expression of some other morbid condition. [L, 135.]—Inflammatory c. Fr., c. inflammatoire. Ger., entzündliche C. The c. of inflammation. [Samuel (A, 319).]—Mechanical c. Fr., c. mécanique. Ger., mechanische C. Passive c. due to any mechanical cause, such as an impediment to the venous circulation.—Nervous c. Fr., c. nerveuse. Ger., nervöse C. C. due to nervous influence. [Samuel (A, 319).]—Neural c. C. of a nerve; a morbid condition prone to follow exposure of nerves to intense cold; due, according to S. W. Mitchell, to paralysis. According to W. A. Hammond, it is probably present in many cases of neuralgia. [D, 34.]—Neuro-paralytic c. Fr., c. neuro-paralytique. C. due to paralysis of the motor nerves of the capillaries. [" Rev. des sci. méd.," Apr., 1889, p. 583 (a, 18).]—Passive c. Fr., c. passive, stagnation sanguine. A general term for all forms of c. that do not depend on an increase in the amount of blood sent to the part by the heart.—Plethoric c. Ger., plethorische C. See PLETHORA.—Pulmonary c. C. of the lungs; active pulmonary c. is associated with dilated capillaries, an increased supply of blood to the part, and an accelerated current. In passive pulmonary c. the blood current is slow. [a, 25.]—Renal c. C. of the kidneys. In active renal c. the symptoms are pain, frequent and urgent desire to micturate, hæmaturia, and renal casts. The urine is voided in small quantities only. The symptoms of passive renal c. are usually masked for a considerable time by those of the exciting cause. The urine decreases in quantity, and is acid in reaction and dark in color. It contains albumin and casts, and the specific gravity is increased. [Bartholow, Strümpell (a, 25).]—Spinal c. An acute or chronic condition appertaining to the spinal cord, in which the characteristic symptoms are pain of an aching variety, and palsy. The pain is usually in the lumbar and sacral regions; the palsy is incomplete, being preceded by numbness, extending from below upward, and being rarely combined with paralysis of the sphincters. According to Da Costa, the trouble is often traceable to disturbance in the circulation or to alteration in the composition of the blood. [D, 25, 34.]—Splenic c. C. of the spleen. It is to be distinguished from the structural enlargement to which its continuance gives rise. [a, 25.]—Systemic c. C., or overloading of the systemic circulation.—Venous c. Fr., c. veineuse. Engorgement of the veins from any cause which interferes with the freedom of the circulation. [D, 1.] See also Passive HYPERÆMIA.—Wachsthumsc' (Ger.). C. due to increased growth of a part, as of an organ when its fellow has been incapacitated. [Samuel (A, 319).]

CONGESTIONNÉ (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n^2-zhe^{2}st-e-o^{3}n-na. Congested. [L, 41.]

CONGESTIVE, adj. Ko^{2}n-je^{2}st′i^{2}v. Lat., congestivus. Fr., congestif, congestionnel. Ger., congestiv. It., congestivo, congestionale. Sp., congestivo. Pertaining to, of the nature of, or due to, congestion. [D.] See CONGESTED.

CONGESTUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-je^{2}st(ge^{2}st)′u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CONGESTED.

CONGHAS, n. In Ceylon, the Melicocca trijuga of Jacquin. [B, 121 (a, 24); L, 41.]

CONGIALIS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-ji^2(gi^2)-a(a^3)′li^{2}s. Holding a gallon. [A, 318.]

CONGIARIUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}n-ji^2(gi^2)-a(a^3)′ri^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). A vessel holding a gallon. [L, 30 (a, 21).]

CONGIARIUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-ji^2(gi^2)-a(a^3)′ri^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CONGIALIS.

CONGIUS (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}n′ji^2(gi^2)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). A gallon. [L, 30.]

CONGLACIATION, n. Ko^{2}n-gla-si^2-a′shu^{3}n. Lat., conglaciatio. See CONGELATION.

CONGLOBATE, adj. Ko^{2}n-glob′at. Lat., conglobatus (from conglobare, to collect into a ball). Fr., conglobé. Ger., conglobirt, geballt, zusammgeballt. It., conglobato. Sp., conglobado. 1. Collected into a ball (said of flowers and leaves, also of the lymphatic glands). [B, 1 (a, 24); J; L, 14.]

CONGLOBATION, n. Ko^{2}n-glob-a′shu^{3}n. Lat., conglobatio. Fr., c. Ger., Zusammenballung. It., conglobazione. Sp., conglobación. The state of being or process of becoming conglobate.

CONGLOMERATE, adj. Ko^{2}n-glo^{2}m′e^{2}r-at. Lat., conglomeratus (from conglomerare, to heap up). Fr., congloméré. Ger., zusammengehäuft. It., conglomerato. Sp., conglomerado. In anatomy, composed of lobes or lobules contained in a single investment; in botany, united into a mass or cluster. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24); L, 41.]

CONGLOMERATION, n. Kon-glo^{2}m-e^{2}r-a′shu^{3}n. Lat., conglomeratio. Fr., conglomération. Ger., Zusammenhäufung. It., conglomerazione. Sp., conglomeración. The state of being or process of becoming conglomerate.

CONGLUTIN, n. Ko^{2}n-glu^{2}t′i^{2}n. The alkali albuminate obtained from almonds, the kernels of stone-fruit, and lupins. It is prepared like legumin, from which it differs only in elementary composition. It is, like the other substances, obtained from the casein of plants, precipitated by dilute acids and rennet, which precipitate dissolves readily in basic potassic phosphate. [B, 4, 229 (a, 24).]

CONGLUTINANT, adj. Ko^{2}n-glu^{2}t′i^{2}n-a^{2}nt. Lat., conglutinans. Fr., c. Ger., zusammenklebend. It., Sp., conglutinante. Joining, causing adhesion. [L, 41, 49.]

CONGLUTINATE, adj. Ko^{2}n-glu^{2}t′i^{2}n-at. Lat., conglutinatus. Fr., conglutiné. Glued together, not organically united. [B, 19 (a, 24).]

CONGLUTINATION, n. Ko^{2}n-glu^{2}t-i^{2}n-a'shu^{3}n. Gr., συγκόλλυσις. Lat., conglutinatio. Fr., c. The union of two contiguous bodies by the interposition of a third, as of two fingers each deprived of its integuments, or of the pleuræ to the lungs by effused matter. [L, 97.] See AGGLUTINATION.

CONGO, n. In China, a commercial term for a certain quality (not species in the botanical sense) of black tea. [B, 77 (a, 24); L, 56.]

CONGO-MAHOE, n. In Jamaica, the negro name of the Hibiscus clypeatus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONGON, n. See CONGO.

CONGONA, n. In Peru, the Peperomia inæqualifolia [Ruiz and Pavón] and the Piper trifolium. [B, 88, 121 (a, 24).]

CONGONITA, CONGONO, n's. See CONGONA.

CONGOPAPIER (Ger.), n. Kon^2'go-pa^3-per. See Congo PAPER.

CONGO-ROOT, n. Ko^{2}n^2'go-ru^{4}t. See PSORALEA eglandulosa.

CONGOROTH (Ger.), n. Kon^2'go-rot. See Congo RED.

CONGO-THEE (Ger.), n. Kon^2'go-ta. Congo tea, a variety of black tea. [B, 180 (a, 24).] See CONGO.

CONGOURDE (Fr.), n. Ko^{3}n^2-gurd. The Cucurbita lagenaria. [B, 173 (a, 24).]

CONGOURDELLE (Fr.), n. Ko^{3}n^2-gurd-e^{2}l. The Cucurbita pyriformis. [B, 121, 173 (a, 24).]

CONGOXA (Port.), n. Ko^{2}n-go'sha^3. The Vinca major. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONGREGATÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n^2-gre^{2}g-a(a^3)'te(ta^3-e^2). Fr., congrégatés. Of Batsch, a group of rubiaceous plants, comprising Mitchellia, Canephora, Cephælis, Callicocca, Morinda, Opercularia, and Nauclea. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONGRÈS (Fr.), n. Ko^{3}n^2-gre^2. Sexual intercourse; formerly the ocular test (Fr., épreuve de c.; Ger., Eheprobe) ordered by the French courts in divorce cases, etc., of the capability or incapability of coition, in the presence of physicians and matrons. The practice was abolished in 1667. [L, 41, 43.]

CONGRESS, n. Ko^{2}n^2'gre^{2}s. Lat., congressus (from congredi, to come together). Fr., congrès. Ger., Kongress. An assembling. —Sexual c. Fr., congrès sexuel. Coition. [L.]

CONGRESS SPRING, n. Ko^{2}n^2'gre^{2}s spri^{2}ng. See SARATOGA SPRINGS.

CONGRESS SPRINGS, n. A place in Santa Clara County, California, where there are springs containing sodium, iron and calcium carbonates, sodium chloride and sulphate, silica, alumina, and traces of magnesia. [A, 363.]

CONGRESSUS (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}n^2-gre^{2}s'su^{3}s(su^{4}s). See CONGRESS.—C. interruptus. Onanism.

CONGROGADINA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Ko^{2}n^2-gro(gro^2)-ga^{2}d(ga^{3}d)-i(e)'na^3. A group of the Ophidiidæ. [L, 207, 280.]

CONGUIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n^2'gu^2(gu^4)-i^{2}s. See CALCAR avis.

CONHAMETRA (Port.), n. Kon-ya^3-ma^{2}t'ra^3. The mallow. —C. brava. The Malva alcea of Linnæus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONHYDRINE, n. Ko^{2}n-hid'ren. Fr., c. Ger., Conydrin. It., Sp., conidrina. A natural alkaloid, found in the Conium maculatum. It is crystallizable, fusible below 100° C., and volatilizes at a higher heat; partially soluble in water, and freely soluble in ether and alcohol. The formula given by Wertheim is $C_8H_{17}NO$. [B, 5 (a, 24); "Ann. di chim. medico-farm. e di farmacol.," June, 1885, p. 356.]

CONIA (Lat.), n. f. Kon(ko^{2}n)'i^2-a^3. Gen., con'ias. Gr., κονία. 1. Lime. 2. Lime impregnated with flr. 3. Of Ventenat, a genus of Algæ separated by him from the Byssus. [B, 121 (a, 24); L, 94 (a, 21).]

CONIA (Lat.), n. f. Kon-i(e)'a^3. See CONIINE.

CONIANDREÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon-i^2-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)'dre^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., coniandrées. 1. Of Endlicher, a division of the Cucurbitaceæ comprising the genera Coniandra and Cyrtonema. 2. Of Reichenbach, a section of the Cucurbiteæ genuinæ, comprising the same genera. 3. Of Römer, a tribe of the Cucurbiteæ, comprising the same genera. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CONIASE (Fr.), n. Kon-e-a^{3}z. See CONIASIS.—C. biliaire. Biliary lithiasis. [Merle, "Bull. de l'acad. de méd.," 2me sér., xiv, No. 26, p. 885.]

CONIASIS (Lat.), n. f. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-a(a^3)'si^{2}s. Gen., conias'eos (-is). Gr., κονίασις (from κονία, mortar). Fr., coniase. Incrustation.

CONIC ACID, n. Kon'i^{2}k. See CONIIC ACID.

CONICAL, adj. Ko^{2}n'i^{2}k-a^{2}l. Lat., conicus. Fr., conique. Ger., konisch, kegelförmig. It., conico. Sp., cónico. Having the form of a cone. [B, 1 (a, 24).]

CONICIC ACID, n. Kon-i^{2}s'i^{2}k. See CONIIC ACID.

CONICINE, n. Kon'i^2-sen. Lat., conicina. Fr., c. See CONIINE. —Collyre de c. (Fr.), C. collyrium. Of Mauthner, a preparation containing from 1 to 3 drops of c., 25 grammes of distilled water, and 8 grammes of quince mucilage, used in cases of scrofulous ophthalmia. [Gobley (L, 87 [a, 21]).]—Liniment de c. (Fr.). C. liniment. Of Mauthner, a preparation containing 1 drop of c. and 4 grammes of sweet-almond oil. It is applied with a brush to the eyelids in cases of spasmodic contraction of the eyelids of scrofulous children. [Gobley (L, 87 [a, 21]).]—Mixture de c. (Fr.). C. mixture. Of Fronmüller, a preparation containing 3 drops of c., 1 gramme of alcohol, and 20 grammes of distilled water. Used in whooping-cough. [Gobley (L, 87 [a, 21]).]—Solution de c. pour injection (Fr.). Solution of c. for injection; a preparation containing 1 part of tincture of quince-seed and 9 parts of lime-water. [Gobley (L, 87 [a, 21]).]

CONICITY, n. Kon-i^{2}s'i^{2}t-i^2. Fr., conicité. The state of being conical.

CONICO-CYLINDRICAL, adj. Ko^{2}n''i^2-ko-si^{2}l-i^{2}n'dri^2-ka^{2}l. Conical and cylindrical at the same time. [L, 41.]

CONICO-INCURVIROSTRIS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n(kon)''i^{2}k-o(o^2)-i^{2}n-ku^{6}r(ku^{4}r)-vi^2(wi^2)-ro^{2}st'ri^{2}s. Fr., conico-incurvirostre. Having the beak hooked and conical. [L, 41, 180.]

CONICO-PROTENSIROSTRIS [Shäffer] (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-(kon)''i^{2}k-o(o^2)-prot-e^{2}ns-i^2-ro^{2}st'ri^{2}s. Fr., conico-protensirostre. Having a long conical beak. [L, 41, 180.]

CONICO-SUBULATE, adj. Ko^{2}n''i^{2}k-o-su^{3}b'u^{2}l-at. Conical (at the base) and awl-shaped (toward the point). [a, 22.]

CONICO-SUBULIROSTRIS [Shäffer] (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n(kon)''-i^{2}k-o(o^2)-su^{2}b(su^{3}b)-u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-i^2-ro^{2}st'ri^{2}s. Having a conical and subulate beak. [L, 41, 180.]

CONICO-TENUIROSTRIS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n(kon)''i^{2}k-o(o^2)-te^{2}n-u^2(u^4)-i^2-ro^{2}st'ri^{2}s. Fr., conico-tenuirostre. Having a slender conical beak. [L, 41.]

CONICOXÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon-i^2-ko^{2}x'e(a^3-e^2). A division of the Heteromera. [L, 121.]

CONICUS (Lat.), adj. Kon'i^{2}k-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CONICAL.

CONIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). Ger., Kegelschnecken. A family of the Tænioglossa. [L, 121, 147.]

CONIDE (Fr.), n. Kon-ed. See CONIDIUM.

CONIDIACÉS (Fr.), n. pl. Kon-ed-e-a^3-sa. A division of Fungi made by Bertillon, corresponding in part to the Coniomycetes of Nees and Fries; characterized by being without a distinct perithecium, the spores lying directly on the mycelium. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONIDIENTRÄGER (Ger.), n. Kon-ed'i^2-e^{2}n-trag-e^{2}r. See CONIDIOPHORE.

CONIDIOPHORE, n. Ko^{2}n-i^{2}d'i^2-o-for. From κονίδιον, a particle of dust, and φορεῖν, to bear. Fr., c. Ger., Conidiophor, Conidienträger. A column bearing the spores or conidia in the Conidiomycetes and in the plasmodium formed by certain of the Protozoa and Mycetozoa. [B, 77; L, 121.]

CONIDIOPHOROUS (Lat.), adj. Kon-i^{2}d-i^2-o^{2}f'o^{2}r-u^{3}s. Fr., conidiophore. Having or bearing conidia. [B, 93.]

CONIDIS, n. In Sicily, the Plantago psyllium. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONIDIUM (Lat.), n. n. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^{2}d'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Gr., κονίδιον (dim. of κόνις, dust). Fr., conide, conidie. Ger., C., Konidie. A small rounded, dust-like spore constituting the reproductive organ in certain Fungi, especially the Conidiomycetes; also the gonidium of lichens. [B.]

CONIFERÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon-i^{2}f'e^{2}r-e(a^3-e^2). From conus, a cone, and ferre, to bear. Fr., conifères, bois à aiguilles. Ger., zapfentragende Bäume, Zapfenbäume, Nadelholzer. It., coniferos. Sp., coniferos. Syn.: Strobilaceæ [Reichenbach]. A large family of gymnosperms, characterized by a much-branched stem, numerous small unbranched leaves, and cone-like staminal flowers. They comprise 32 genera and 300 species, and are to be found dispersed throughout the temperate and northern regions of the globe. Richard regards it as a family divided into 3 orders: 1st division, the Taxineæ, having their female flowers distinct, and comprising the genera Podocarpus, Dacridium, Taxus, Salisburia, Phyllocladus, and Ephedra; 2d division, Cupressineæ, having female flowers erect, comprising the genera Juniperus, Thuja, Callitris, Cupressus, and Taxodium; 3d division, Abietineæ, with fruit constituting a cone, formed of imbricated scales, at the axils of which are found the female flowers—this division comprises the genera Pinus, Larix, Cedrus, Abies, Cunninghamia, Agathis, and Araucaria. Bentham and Hooker regard it as an order comprising the tribes Cupressineæ, Taxodieæ, Taxeæ, Podocarpeæ, Araucarieæ, and Abietineæ. Vines regards it as an order with 2 divisions: 1st, Pinoideæ, with capillary flowers in cones, and comprising the families Abietineæ, Araucarieæ, Cupressineæ, and Taxoidineæ; and the 2d division, Taxoideæ, with flowers not cones, and comprising the families Taxineæ and Podocarpeæ. CONIFÈRE (Fr.), adj. Kon-e-fe^{2}r. See CONIFEROUS.

CONIFERIN, n. Kon-i^{2}f'e^{2}r-i^{2}n. Fr., coniférine. Ger., C. A glucoside, $C_{16}H_{22}O_8$, obtained from the cambium of coniferous woods. It crystallizes in stellate prisms and melts at 185° C. [B, 4 (a, 24).]

CONIFERINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon-i^2-fe^{2}r-i(e)'ne(na^3-e^2). A class of gymnosperms, consisting of the single order Coniferæ. [B, 245.]

CONIFERITES, n. pl. Kon-i^{2}f'e^{2}r-itz. An order of fossil plants, comprising Pinites, Steinhauera, Cunninghamites, Dammarites, Araucarites, and Taxodites. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONIFEROUS, adj. Kon-i^{2}f'e^{2}r-u^{3}s. Lat., coniferus. Fr., conifère. Ger., zapfentragend. It., conifero. Sp., conifero. Having or bearing cones. [L, 43.]

CONIFERYL ALCOHOL, n. Kon-i^{2}f'e^{2}r-i^{2}l. An alcohol obtained from an aqueous solution of coniferin by emulsion, and having the formula $C_{10}H_{12}O_3$. It melts at 74° C. It is an ethyl derivative of vanillin. [B, 4 (a, 24).]

CONIFLORUS (Lat.), adj. Kon-i^2-flor'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From conus, a cone, and flos, a flower. Fr., coniflore. Ger., kegelblümig. Sp., conifloro. Having flowers disposed in cones. [L, 41.]

CONIFORM, adj. Kon'i^2-fo^{2}rm. Lat., coniformis (from conus, a cone, and forma, form). Fr., It., Sp., coniforme. Ger., kegelförmig. Cone-shaped. [L, 41.]

CONIGENUS (Lat.), adj. Kon-i^{2}j(i^{2}g)'e^{2}n-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κῶνος, a cone, and γεννᾶν, to engender. Fr., conigène. Growing on cones (e. g., the Agaricus). [L, 41.]

CONIIC ACID, n. Kon-i'i^{2}k. Fr., acide conicique. Ger., Conicinsäure. It., acido conico. Sp., ácido conícico. An acid existing in conium along with coniine; said by Peschier to be an independent acid, but considered by others to be malic acid. [B, 5 (α, 24).]

CONIIN (Ger.), n. Kon-i^2-en'. See CONIINE.—Aethylc'. See *Ethyl*CONIINE.—BromwasserstoffsauresC. Coniine hydrobromide. [B.]—C'artig. Resembling conine. [B.]

CONIINE, n. Kon-i'en. Lat., coniina, conina [Swed. Ph.], coniinum [Ger. Ph., 1st ed., Swiss Ph., Netherl. Ph., Russ. Ph.], conia. Fr., c., conéine, cicutine, conicine [Fr. Cod.]. Ger., Coniin. It., conicina, cicutina, conina. Sp., cicutina [Sp. Ph.]. Syn.: conine, cicutine, conicine. An alkaloid, $C_8H_{17}N = C_8H_{16}(NH)$, homologous with piperidine, obtained from Conium maculatum; a colorless oily liquid of a penetrating odor and acrid taste, readily soluble in alcohol, ether, oils, and almost insoluble in water. It has a decidedly alkaline reaction, and its salts are crystallizable. It is a powerful poison, and is but little used except in a dilute form, as a collyrium in scrofulous ophthalmia. It has been used as a local anodyne in ovarian pain. Ladenburg (1886) has made c. synthetically from allylpyridine and identified it with normal propylpiperidine. [H. Schulz (A, 319); A. Meadows, "Brit. Gynaec. Jour.," Apr., 1885; "N. Y. Med. Jour.," June 27, 1885; B, 4, 5, 95, 173 (α, 24).]—C. hydrobromate, C. hydrobromide. Lat., conicinæ hydrobromas, coniium hydrobromatum (seu hydrobromicum), bromhydras cicutinus [Fr. Cod.]. Fr., bromhydrate de cicutine [Fr. Cod.]. Ger., bromwasserstoffsaures Coniin. It., bromidrato di coniina. Sp., bromohidrato de conicina. Syn.: bromhydrate of c., hydrobromide of c. A salt of the constitution $C_8H_{17}NHBr$, forming rhomboidal crystals soluble in 2 parts of water and the same quantity of alcohol. Its solutions are dextrorotatory. It has been used as a substitute for curare in convulsive cases. [H. Schulz and E. Peiper, "Arch. f. exp. Path. u. Pharm.," x, p. 147; "Centb. f. klin. Med.," Apr. 10, 1886, p. 263 (B).]—C. hydrochlorate, C. hydrochloride. A crystallizable salt [Wertheim] having the composition $C_8H_{17}NH_2Cl$. It is preferable to the uncombined alkaloid for medical use. [B, 4, 5 (α, 24); "N. Y. Med. Jour.," Sept. 11, 1886, p. 284.]—Ethylc'. Ger., Aethylconiin. An ethyl substitution compound of c.; a volatile, almost colorless oil. [H. Schulz (A, 319); B, 2 (α, 24).]—Methylc'. A methyl substitution compound of c., $C_8H_{14}CH_3N$. [H. Schulz (A, 319).]—Parac'. Ger., Paraconiin. An isomer of c., obtained by Schiff from butyric aldehyde. [H. Schulz (A, 319).]

CONILA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-i(e)'la^3. Gr., κονίλη. Syn.: conula, conyla. An ancient name used by Apuleius for different species of the Labiatæ (Origanum, Satureira, etc.). [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIMA, n. Gum hyawa, obtained from the Icica heptaphylla of Guiana. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONINE, n. Kon'en. See CONIINE.

CONIOCARPEÆ [Arndt] (Lat.), CONIOCARPI [Fries] (Lat.), n's f. pl. and m. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^2)-ka^{3}rp'e^2-e(a^3-e^2), -i(e). From κόνις, dust, and καρπός, a fruit. Fr., coniocarpées. Ger., Staubfruchtflechten [Meyer]. An order of lichens corresponding to the first series Epiconiodei [Nylander] of the family Lichenacei, and characterized by having apothecia with the spores usually naked and pulverent on the surface of the fructification. [B, 77, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIOCARPICÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^2)-ka^{3}rp'i^2-se(ka^3-e^2). 1. Of Reichenbach (1828), a family of the Blastosporeæ, comprising Coniocarpon, Trachylium, Arthronaria, Incillaria, and Nævia. 2. Of Reichenbach (1841), a family of the Crateropsoræ, including the genera Spiloma, Lecanactis, and Coniocarpon. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIOCARPON [De Candolle] (Lat.), n. n. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^2)-ka^{3}rp'o^{2}n. The Arthronia cinnabarina. [B, 121 (α, 24).]—C. myriadum [Fée]. Ger., vielfrüchtige Tellerflechte. The Lecidea myriadea. [B, 180 (α, 24).]

CONIOCYBEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^3)-si^{2}b(ku^{6}b)'-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). A tribe of the family Caliaceæ, comprising the single genus Coniocybe. [B, 170.]

CONIOCYMATII (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^3)-sim(ku^{6}m)-a(a^3)'shi^2(ti^2)-i(e). Fr., coniocymatiées. Of Wallroth, an order of lichens corresponding to the Epiconioidei of Nylander. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIOCYST, n. Kon'i^2-o-si^{2}st. Lat., coniocystis (from κόνις, dust, and κύστις, a bladder). Fr., coniocyste. Of Agardh, the closed sporangeium containing the spores in ferns. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIODÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-od'e(a^3-e^2). Fr., coniodés. The Coniomycetes. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIODES (Lat.), adj. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-od'ez(as). From κόνις, dust, and εἶδος, resemblance. Containing lime, resembling lye (said of the urine). [L, 116.]

CONIOGASTERES (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^2)-ga^{2}st-(ga^{3}st)-e(a)'rez(re^{2}s). Of Corda, a family of hyphomycetous Fungi. [B, 170.]

CONIOMYCETES (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^2)-mi(mu^6)-set(kat)'eez(e^{2}s). From κόνις, dust, and μύκης, a mushroom. Fr., coniomycées, coniomycètes. Ger., Staubpilze. Sp., coniomycetos. Of Fries, an order or class of Fungi, distinguished by the predominance of the spores over the receptacle. It forms the chief subdivision of the Pucciniœi, which includes the Ustilagineæ and Uredineæ. [B, 19, 75, 121, 180 (α, 24).]

CONION (Lat.), n. n. Kon-i(e)'o^{2}n. Of Dioscorides, probably the Conium maculatum. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIONTIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon-i^2(e)-o^{2}nt'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A family of the Coleoptera. [L, 267.]

CONIOPAGÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon-i^2(e)-o^{2}p'a^2(a^3)-je(ga^3-e^2). Ger., Koniopagen. Of Sprengel, an order of the Orchideæ. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIOPHOREÆ (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^2)-for(fo^{2}r)'-e^2. From κόνις, dust, and φορεῖν, to bear. Of Nylander, a series of lichens, called by him subsequently Epiconiodei, which are distinguished by having apothecia with naked spores. It embraces the tribes Calicioideæ and Shærophoreæ. [B, 170.]

CONIOPSÆREÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o^{2}ps-e'(a^3'e^2)-re(ra^3-e^2). Of Reichenbach, an order of lichens, comprising the Leprariaceæ, Variolariaceæ, and Arthoniaceæ. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIOPSIDAL, adj. Kon-i^2-o^{2}p'si^{2}d-a^{2}l. Ground for the purpose of correcting all spherical aberration (said of lenses). [F.]

CONIOPSIDEI (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o^{2}ps-i^{2}d'e^2-i(e). Fr., coniopsides. Of Léveillé, a tribe of the Clinosporés, comprising the Uredineæ, Ustilaginei, and Phragmidei. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIOPTERYGIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o^{2}p-te^{2}r-i^{2}j(u^{6}g)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A group of the Megaloptera. [L, 121.]

CONIOPYCNIS (Lat.), n. f. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^2)-pi^{2}k(pu^{6}k)'ni^{2}s. Fr., coniopycnide [Nylander]. Ger., Coniopyc'nidis. A conceptacle in which the spores are detached from the base by transverse segmentation. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIORCHIDEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o^{2}r-ki^{2}d-(ch^{2}i^{2}d)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Reichenbach, a subtribe of orchids, including the Neottieæ, Arethuseæ, and Vanillinaceæ. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIOSELINUM (Lat.), n. n. Kon-i(e)-o(o^2)-se^{2}l-i(e)'nu^{3}m-(nu^{4}m). From κώνειον, hemlock, and σέλινον, parsley. Fr., coniosélin. Of Fischer, a genus of Umbelliferæ nearly allied to the Ligusticum of Linnæus. [B, 19, 34, 42, 121 (α, 24).]—C. canadense [Torrey and Gray]. Hemlock parsley, found in woods from Maine to Wisconsin; used sometimes in dysentery. [B, 5, 19, 34, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIOSPORIUM (Lat.), n. n Kon-i^2-o(o^2)-spor(spo^{2}r)'i^2-u^{3}m-(u^{3}m). From κῶνος, a cone, and σπορά, a seed. Fr., coniospore. It., coniosporo. Sp., conióporo. 1. Of Link, a genus of Fungi epiphytic on maritime pines. 2. Of Nylander, the conoidal fructification of Fungi as it appears in the sphacelium of ergot. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIOTHALAMEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^2)-tha^{2}l-(tha^{3}l)-a^{2}m(a^{3}m)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). From κόνις, dust, and θάλαμος, a bed. Fr., coniothalamées. Of Lindley, a division of lichens, comprising the Pulveraridæ and Calycidæ. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIOTHALAMI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^2)-tha^{2}l-(tha^{3}l)'a^{2}m(a^{3}m)-i(e). Fr., coniothalames. Of Fries, an order of lichens having naked reproductive corpuscles, without a distinct receptacle, and comprising the series Leprariæ and Variolariæ. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CONIOTHECA (Lat.), n. f. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^2) the(tha)'ka^3. From κόνις, dust, and θήκη, a case. Fr., coniothèque. One of the cells of an anther. [B, 19, 121 (α, 24).]

CONIOTHECIUM (Lat.), n. n. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^2-o(o^2)-the(tha)'si^2-(ki^2)-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Of Corda, a genus of brown-spored Fungi, enveloped in a mucilaginous substance and forming dark spots on the branches of many trees. [B, 121 (α, 24).]—C. stilesianum. A fungus obtained by cultivating a microbe found by Stiles in the blood of cattle dead of Texas fever and named after the discoverer. [α, 24.]

CONIROSTRAL, CONIROSTRATE, adj's. Kon-i^2-ro^{2}st'-ra^{2}l, -rat. From conus, a cone, and rostrum, a beak. Fr., conirostre. Ger., Kegelschnabelig. Sp., conirostro. Having a conical bill, like a sparrow's. [L, 343.]

CONIROSTRES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kon-i^2-ro^{2}st'rez(ras). Of Sclater and Sundevall, a family or cohort of the Laminiplantares. Of Cuvier, De Blainville, et al., a section or suborder of the Insessores, or a family of the Cantores, comprising those which have a thick, stout, or conical beak. [L, 14, 87, 121, 147.]

CONIS (Lat.), n. f. Kon(ko^{2}n)'i^{2}s. Gen., con'ios (-eos, -is). Gr., κόνις. An old term for dust, especially that of lime or plaster, also for ashes. [A, 387: L, 94, 104.]

CONIS (Lat.), n. f. Kon(ko^{2}n)'i^{2}s. Gen., con'idos (-is). Gr., κόνις, a nit. [A, 387.] See CONIOSPORIUM. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONISTERIUM (Lat.), n. n. Kon(ko^{2}n)-i^{2}st-e(a)'ri^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Gr., κονιστήριον. See APODYTERIUM.

CONITES, n. pl. Kon'its. Fossil pine-cones found in anthracite and peat. [B, 121 (α, 24); L, 30, 41.]

CONIUM (Lat.), n. n. Kon-i(e)'u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Gr., κώνειον, κώνιον. Fr., c., ciguë. Ger., Schierling. It., cicuta. Sp., cicuta. 1. Poison hemlock; a genus of the Umbelliferæ. 2. Of the U. S. Ph. and Br. Ph., the full-grown fruit of C. maculatum gathered while yet green, and carefully dried. [B, 19, 34, 42 (α, 24).]—Abstract of c., Abstractum conii. Fr., abstrait de ciguë. Ger., Schierlingabstrakt. A preparation made by exhausting 200 parts of c.-fruit, in No. 40 powder, with 6 parts of diluted hydrochloric acid, and a sufficient quantity each of finely powdered sugar of milk, recently dried, and alcohol, the finished abstract weighing 100 parts. [B, 81 (α, 21).]—Alcoholic extract of c. See Extractum conii alcoholicum.—Cataplasma conii. Fr., cataplasme de ciguë. Ger., Schierlingumschlag. It., cataplasma di cicuta. Sp., cataplasma de cicuta. Hemlock poultice, made by adding 10 fl. oz. of boiling water to 1 oz. (av.) of the leaves of C. maculatum in powder, mixed with 3 oz. (av.) of linseed meal. Extract of c. may be substituted for the leaves. [B, 81 (α, 21).]—Ceratum conii. Syn.: ceratum cicutæ. A cerate made of 2 parts of spermaceti, 8 of white wax, and 12 of hemlock ointment. [L, 120 (α, 21).]—Conii extractum alcoholicum. Alcoholic extract of c.; made by exhausting 12 parts of powdered c.-leaves with 18 fl. oz. of alcohol, and sufficient diluted alcohol to obtain 18 fl. oz. of percolate, allowing to evaporate to 3 fl. oz., continuing the percolation with diluted alcohol to exhaustion, evaporating on a water-bath at a temperature of not more than 160° F., until reduced to a syrupy consistence, reducing the temperature to 120° F., adding the alcoholic solution, and evaporating to the proper consistence. ["Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," viii (α, 21).]—Conii folia [Br. Ph.]. The leaves of C. maculatum. [B, 5.]—Conii fructus [Br. Ph.], Conii semen. See C. (2d def.).—C. arracacia [Hooker]. See Arracacia esculenta.—C.-fruit. Lat. c. [U. S. Ph.], conii fructus [Br. Ph.]. Fr., fruit de ciguë officinale. Ger., Schierlingsfrüchte. It., frutti di cicuta. Sp., frutos de cicuta. See C. (2d def.).—C.-leaves. Lat., conii folia [Br. Ph.], herba conii [Ger. Ph.]. Fr., feuilles de ciguë officinale [Fr. Cod.]. It., foglie di cicuta. Sp., hojas de cicuta. The leaves of C maculatum. [B.]—C. maculé (Fr.), C. maculatum [Linnæus]. Lat., cicuta major. Fr., ciguë officinale, grande ciguë, ciguë d'Athèns. Ger., gefleckter Schierling, Tollkörbel Vogeltod. It., cicuta maggiore. Spotted hemlock, hemlock, humlock, humly, keck, kex, kelk, St. Bennet's herb, herb bennet, bennet, bad man's oatmeal, bunk, cambuck, caxes, heck-how, kous, keish, kewse, wodewhistle; a well-known species about 4 feet high, with a spotted purplish stem and small white flowers. This plant was formerly in high repute as a resolvent and anodyne, but most of its preparations are now thought to be inert, and its employment is considered most appropriate in affections characterized by exalted motor activity. [A, 286; B, 5, 34, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. moschatum [Humboldt and Kunth]. Fr., c. musqué. See Arracacia moschata.—C. Royeni [Linnæus]. Fr., caucalier à grandes fleurs. The Caucalis daucoide. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—Emplastrum conii [Dan. Ph., Finn. Ph., Ger. Ph. (1st ed.), Gr. Ph., Swiss Ph., Netherl. Ph., Russ. Ph., Swed. Ph.]. Fr., emplâtre de ciguë [Fr. Cod.], sparadrap de ciguë [Fr. Cod.]. It., empiastro di cicuta. Sp., emplasto de cicuta [Sp. Ph.]. Syn.: emplastrum cicutæ [Belg. Ph.]; emplastrum conii maculati [Austr. Ph., Hung. Ph.]; emplastrum cum conio maculato [Fr. Cod.]. 1. Of the Fr. Cod., see Emplâtre de ciguë. 2. Hemlock plaster; made by mixing 10 parts of finely powdered c.-leaves with 25 of melted hog's lard, 50 of yellow wax, and 5 of turpentine [Austr. Ph., Hung. Ph.]; 32 each of finely powdered c.-leaves and yellow wax, and 16 parts each of colophony and olive-oil [Dan. Ph., Gr. Ph.]; 24 of finely powdered c.-leaves, 48 of yellow wax, and 12 each of olive-oil and turpentine [Ger. Ph., 1st ed.]; 30 each of finely powdered c.-leaves and yellow wax, 9 of colophony, 15 of olive-oil, and 6 of Venetian turpentine [Swiss Ph.]; 28 each of finely powdered c.-leaves, yellow wax, and litharge plaster, and 14 of olive-oil [Netherl. Ph.]; 25 of finely powdered c.-leaves, 7½ of yellow wax, 2½ of colophony, 50 of litharge plaster, and 5 of olive-oil [Russ. Ph.]; 5 of thickened extract of c. (from the fresh leaves), 32 of Burgundy-pitch plaster, and 2 of olive-oil [Belg. Ph.]; 4 of thickened extract of c. (from the dried leaves), 6 of yellow wax, 24 of litharge plaster, and 1 part of yellow rosin [Finn. Ph.]: 4 of thickened extract of c. (from the dried leaves), 5 of yellow wax, 25 of litharge plaster, and 1 part of yellow rosin [Swed. Ph.]; straining, allowing to cool (to 60°-70° F. [Dan. Ph.]), and drying carefully [Austr. Ph., Dan. Ph., Hung. Ph., Netherl. Ph.]; by heating 66 parts of recently expressed juice of C. maculatum to a state of coagulation, straining through linen, preserving the residue, evaporating the colature to the consistence of a soft extract, then melting 12 parts of yellow wax, 26 of rosin, and 3 of olive-oil, straining, adding them to the extract and the residue, evaporating the whole to dryness, adding 8 parts of pulverized ammoniac, cooling, and making into rolls [Sp. Ph.]. [B, 95 (α, 21).]—Emplastrum conii ammoniacatum [Ger. Ph. (1st ed.)]. Ammoniated hemlock plaster, made by melting together on a gentle fire 2 parts of pulverized ammoniac and 2 of vinegar of squill, mixing with 9 parts of emplastrum conii, and making into rolls. [B, 95 (α, 21).]—Emplastrum conii cum plumbo jodato. Sp., emplasto de cicuta con yoduro plúmbico [Sp. Ph.]. Hemlock plaster with lead iodide; made by warming 8 parts of hemlock plaster on a gentle fire, mixing them with 1 part of lead iodide, and making into rolls. [B, 95 (α, 21).]—Emplastrum conii saponatum. Sp., emplasto de cicuta jabonoso [Sp. Ph.]. Saponaceous hemlock plaster; made by melting together on a gentle fire equal parts of emplastrum conii, emplastrum hydrargyri, emplastrum plumbi gummatum, and emplastrum saponatum, and making into rolls. [B, 95 (α, 21).]—Emplastrum conii theriacale. Sp., emplasto de cicuta teriacal [Sp. Ph.]. Theriacal hemlock plaster; made by melting 24 parts each of emplastrum conii and emplastrum plumbi gummatum, and carefully mixing with 1 part of flowers of sulphur, 3 of powdered camphor, and 16 of pulvis theriacalis. At the time of using, the plaster should be spread upon fine sheep-skin, and its surface covered with a mixture of 3 parts of antimony and potassium tartrate, 2 parts of powdered camphor, and 1 part of powdered sulphur. [B, 95 (α, 21).]—Emplastrum cum conio maculato [Fr. Cod.]. See Emplâtre de ciguë.—Emplastrum cum extracto conii maculati [Fr. Cod.]. See Emplâtre d'extrait de ciguë.—Extractum conii alcoholicum [U. S. Ph.]. Fr., extrait de ciguë (semences) [Fr. Cod.], extrait alcoolique de semence (fruit) de ciguë. Ger., spirituöses Schierlingsfruchtextrakt. Alcoholic extract of c., or alcoholic extract of hemlock-fruit; made by macerating 100 parts of c. (2d def.) in No. 40 powder, with diluted alcohol for 48 hours, adding diluted alcohol until 300 parts of tincture are obtained or until the c. is exhausted, reserving the first 90 parts of the percolate, adding 3 of hydrochloric acid to the remainder, evaporating it, at a temperature not exceeding 122° F., to a soft extract, mixing this with the reserved portion, evaporating at or below the above-mentioned temperature to a pilular consistence, weighing the extract, and incorporating with it while still warm 5 per cent. of glycerin. [B, 81 (α, 21).]—Extractum conii aquosum [Netherl. Ph.]. See Extractum conii (foliorum).—Extractum conii cum dextrino [Russ. Ph.]. Fr., extrait liquide de semence (fruit) de ciguë. Ger., flüssiges Schierlingsfruchtextrakt. The extractum conii fructus fluidum [U. S. Ph., 1870]. Fluid extract of c., fluid extract of hemlock-fruit, fluid extract of c.-seed; a preparation made by macerating for 48 hours 23 oz. (av.) of c., in No. 40 powder, with diluted alcohol, allowing the percolation to proceed gradually, adding diluted alcohol until the c. is exhausted, reserving the first 21¼ fl. oz. of the percolate, and, having added ¾ oz. (av.) to the remainder, evaporating it, at a temperature not exceeding 122° F., to a soft extract, dissolving this in the reserved portion, and adding diluted alcohol until 24 fl. oz. are obtained. [B, 81 (α, 21).]—Extractum conii (foliorum) [Br. Ph., Dan. Ph., Finn. Ph., Ger. Ph. (1st ed.), Swiss Ph., Russ. Ph., Swed. Ph.]. Fr., extrait de ciguë (feuilles) [Fr. Cod.]. (2d def.), in No. 30 powder, in 45 parts of diluted alcohol previously mixed with 4 parts of hydrochloric acid, adding diluted alcohol gradually, and allowing the percolation to proceed until 1,000 parts of the tincture are obtained. [B, 81 (α, 21).]

CONIVALVE (Fr.), adj. Kon-e-va³lv. Sp., conivalvo. Having a conical shell; as a n., in the m. pl., c's, a group of Gasteropoda, comprising those having the shell in the form of a flattened cone. [L, 41, 49.]

CONJÉE (Fr.), n. Ko³n²-zha. See Congee.

CONJOINED, CONJOINT, adj's. Ko²n-joind', -joint'. Fr., conjoint (1st and 3d def's), concomitant (2d def.). 1. Combined. 2. Concomitant (said of diseases). 3. In natural history, aggregated. [L, 41.]

CONJONCTIVITE (Fr.), n. Ko³n²-zho³n²k-te-vet. See Conjunctivitis.—C. blennorrhagique. Gonorrhœal conjunctivitis. [L, 41.]—C. morbilleuse. The conjunctivitis of measles. [L, 88.]—C. varioleuse. The conjunctivitis of small-pox. [L, 88.]

CONJONCTORION [Erhart] (Lat.), n. n. Co²n-jo²n²k(yo²n²k)-to(to²)'ri²-o²n. The operculum of mosses. [α, 24.]

CONJUGAISON (Fr.), n. Ko³n-zhu⁶-ge²z-o²n². See Conjugation.

CONJUGAL, adj. Ko²n'ju²-ga²l. Lat., conjugalis (from conjux, a spouse). Fr., c Pertaining to married life; in pathology, affecting both husband and wife or conveyed from the one to the other (see C. diabetes).

CONJUGALA (Lat.), n. f. Kon-ju²(yu⁴)-ga(ga²)'la³. The Myrtus communis. [B, 88.]

CONJUGATA (Lat.), n. f. Ko²n-ju²(yu⁴)-ga(ga²)'ta³. See Conjugate.—C. des Beckenausgangs. The distance between the apex of the coccyx and the lower edge of the symphysis pubis. [L, 31, 332.]—C. des Beckeneingangs (Ger.). The distance between the promontory of the sacrum and the upper edge of the pubic symphysis. [L, 31.]—C. lutescens [Vaucher]. The Conferva ægagropila. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C'neigung (Ger.). The angle which a diameter of the pelvis forms with the horizon or the sagittal axis of the pelvis. [L, 332.]—C. superior. See Anatomical conjugate.—C. vera inferior. The distance between the posterior or upper border of the symphysis pubis and the second or third sacral vertebra. [L, 332.]

CONJUGATÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-ju^2(yu^4)-ga(ga^3)'te(ta^3-e^2). Fr., conjugatées. A tribe of Algæ, by some referred to the Confervaceæ, by others separated from the latter, from which they are distinguished by the peculiar formation of their endochrome and the mode of development of their zygospores. According to Vines, they are a subdivision of the isogamous Confervoideæ, and comprise the Desmidieæ, Mesocarpeæ, and Zygnemeæ. [B, 19, 77.]

CONJUGATE, adj. Ko^{2}n'ju^2-gat. Lat., conjugatus (from conjugare, to yoke together). Fr., conjugué. 1. In chemistry, consisting of two or more acids united to form an acid (see C. ACID). 2. In botany, paired; having the leaflets disposed in a single pair on the opposite sides. [A, 301.] 3. As a n., of Röderer, the antero-posterior diameter of the brim of the pelvis, the plane of the brim being considered as an ellipse. [A, 24.]—Anatomical c. Lat., conjugata, conjugata anatomica. Fr., diamètre droit (ou anatomique). Ger., gerader Durchmesser. It., conjugata vera. The antero-posterior diameter of the pelvis. [L, 332.]—Diagonal c. Ger., Diagonal-conjugata. The distance between the ileo-pectineal eminence of one side and the sacro-iliac synchondrosis of the other; in obstetrics, the distance between the promontory of the sacrum and the ligamentum arcuatum of the pubic arch. [L, 332.] —External c. Lat., conjugata externa. Fr., conjugué externe, diamètre de Baudelocque. Baudelocque's diameter; the distance between the posterior surface of the upper part of the sacrum and the anterior surface of the symphysis pubis, with the overlying soft parts, as measured with Baudelocque's calipers.—Normal c. Fr., conjugué normal. Ger., Normalconjugata. According to H. Meyer, the distance between the upper border of the symphysis pubis and the middle of the third sacral vertebra, on the theory that the latter is the least variable point of the sacrum. [A, 24.]—Obstetrical c. Fr., conjugué obstétrical (ou vrai), diamètre antero-postérieur minimum (ou utile) du detroit supérieur, diamètre sacro-suspubien (ou sacro-pubien, ou droit), petit diamètre. Ger., gerader Durchmesser des Beckens. Syn.: true c. 1. That diameter of the pelvis which extends from the middle of the promontory of the sacrum to that point in the symphysis pubis at which, passing from above downward, it attains its greatest thickness; in other words, the shortest distance between the promontory and the symphysis. [A, 22.]

CONJUGATIDEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-ju^2(yu^4)-ga^{2}t(ga^{3}t)-i^{2}d'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). An old division of fresh-water Algæ, now assigned to the Zynemaceæ. The species it comprises belong to the group Synsporeæ established by Decaisne. [B. 121 (a, 24).]

CONJUGATIO (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-ju^2(yu^4)-ga(ga^3)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., conjugation'is. Of Galen, a cranial nerve. [L, 349.]—C. prima. See Optic NERVE.—C. quinta. Of Galen, the auditory nerve and the communicans facei regarded as one. [L, 349.]—C. secunda. Of Galen, the third cranial nerve. [L, 349.]—C. septema [Galen]. See Hypoglossal NERVE.—C. sexta [Galen]. See Pneumogastric NERVE.—C. tertia. Of Galen, the sixth cranial nerve and filaments of the second and third branches of the fifth cranial nerve. [L, 349.]

CONJUGATION, n. Ko^{2}n-ju^2-ga'sho^{2}n. Gr., συζυγία. Lat., conjugatio. Fr., conjugaison. Ger., C. It., conjugazione. Sp., conjugación. In biology, the union of two or more individuals into one; in botany, the union of certain cryptogamic zygospores for purposes of reproduction. [B, 27, 77 (a, 24).]—Multiple c. The coalescence of a number (more than two) of similar cells. [L, 121.]

CONJUGATO-PALMATE, adj. Ko^{2}n-ju^2-ga''to-pa^{2}l'mat. Divided into two palmate arms (said of leaves). [B, 19 (a, 24).]

CONJUGATO-PINNATE, adj. Ko^{2}n-ju^2-ga''to-pi^{2}n'at. Lat., conjugatopinnatus. Fr., conjugué-penné. Ger., verbundengefiedert. Divided into two pinnate branches (said of leaves). [B, 19 (a, 24).]

CONJUGIUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}n-ju^2(yu^4)'ji^2(gi^2)-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). See CONJUGATION and COITION.

CONJUGO-PINNATE, adj. Ko^{2}n''ju^2-go-pi^{2}n'at. See CONJUGATO-PINNATE.

CONJUNCTIO (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-ju^{3}n^{2}k(yu^{4}n^{2}k)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., conjunction'is. From conjungere, to join together. Fr., conjonction. Ger., Verbindung. It., congiungimento. Sp., conjunción. See ARTICULATION.—C. vasorum [Bartholini]. See ANASTOMOSIS.

CONJUNCTIVA (Lat.), n., f. of adj. conjunctivus (tunica understood). Ko^{2}n-ju^{3}n^{2}k(yu^{4}n^{2}k)-ti(te)'va^3(wa^3). Fr., conjonctive. Ger., Bindehaut. It., congiuntiva. Sp., conjuntiva. The thin mucous membrane covering the inner surface of the eyelids and a portion of the sclera. [L.] Cf. C. bulbi and C. palpebrarum.—C. adnata (oculi). See Bulbar c.—C. arida [Mackenzie]. Xerosis of the conjunctiva. [F.]—Bulbar c., C. bulbi. Fr., conjonctive du globe oculaire. Ger., Bindehaut des Augapfels. It., congiuntiva del bulbo dell' occhio. Sp., conjunctiva de la niua del ojo. The mucous membrane covering the anterior third of the eyeball, from the fold of transmission or retrotarsal fold to the corneal margin. It is loosely connected with the sclerotic, is much thinner than the conjunctiva covering the retrotarsal fold, and loses its papillary structure. The epithelium of the ocular conjunctiva is continuous with the anterior corneal epithelium. [F; L, 115.]—C. corneæ. Fr., conjonctive cornéene. The layer of epithelial cells covering the anterior surface of the cornea. [L, 7.]—C. palpebræ, C. palpebrarum. See Palpebral c.—C. scleræ, C. scleroticæ. See Bulbar c.—C. tarsi. Fr., conjonctive tarsale. Ger., Tarsalbindehaut. [L, 7.]—Cuticular c. Fr., conjonctive cuticulaire. Ger., häutige Bindehaut. It., congiuntiva cuticulare. Sp., conjunctiva cuticular. Xerosis of the c. [F.].—Granular c. Fr., conjonctive granulée (ou granuleuse). Ger., körnige Bindehaut. It., congiuntiva granulosa. Sp., conjunctiva granulosa. See TRACHOMA and Granular CONJUNCTIVITIS.—Ocular c. See Bulbar c.—Palpebral c., Tarsal c. Lat., c. palpebrarum. Fr., conjonctive palpébrale (ou des paupières). Ger., Augenlidbindehaut. It., congiuntiva palpebrale (o delle palpebre). Sp., conjuntiva palpebral (ó de los párpados). The mucous membrane lining the inner surface of the eyelids, which at the ciliary margin passes insensibly into the cutis of the eyelids. It extends as a lining membrane into the ducts of the Meibomian glands, the lacrymal canaliculi and sac. It is of varying thickness, highly vascular and closely attached to the tarsus of the lid, and contains various glandular structures known as Krause's and also papillæ, most marked in the upper lid. [L, 115.]

CONJUNCTIVAL, adj. Ko^{2}n-ju^{3}n^{2}k-ti'va^{2}l. Lat., conjunctivalis. Fr., conjonctival. Pertaining to the conjunctiva.

CONJUNCTIVE, adj. Ko^{2}n-ju^{3}n^{2}k'ti^{2}v. Lat., conjunctivus. Fr., conjonctif. Ger., conjunctiv. See CONNECTIVE.

CONJUNCTIVITIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-ju^{3}n^{2}k(yu^{4}n^{2}k)-ti^2-vi-(we)'ti^{2}s. Gen., conjunctivit'idis. For deriv., see CONJUNCTIVA and *-itis. Fr., conjonctivite. Ger., Bindehautentzündung. It., congiuntivite. Sp., conjuntivitis. Inflammation of the conjunctival mucous membrane. [F.] The obsolete word syndesmitis was better formed.—Aphthous c. Lat., c. aphthosa. Fr., conjonctivite aphtheuse. Ger., aphthöse Bindehautentzündung. See Pustular OPHTHALMIA.—Atropine c. A reddened, thickened, and granular condition of the conjunctiva, produced by the local instillation of atropine. It occurs sometimes after long-continued use, especially in old people; but some persons have an idiosyncrasy against atropine, and in these it can not be used without occasioning the above symptoms. [F.]—Autumnal c. Fr., conjonctivite automnale. Ger., herbstliche Bindehautentzündung. It., congiuntivite autumnale. Sp., conjuntivitis otoñal (ó autumnal). An aggravated type of catarrhal c. coming during the middle or latter part of August. All the symptoms of a catarrhal c. are exceedingly pronounced. As a rule, there is more or less nasal catarrh associated with it. [F.]—Blepharo-c. See Palpebral c. —Blennorrhagic c., Blennorrhœal c. Lat., c. blennorrhagica (seu blennorrhoica). Fr., conjonctivite blennorrhagique. Ger., blennorrhoïsche Bindehautentzündung. See Purulent c.—Catarrhal c. Lat., c. catarrhalis. Fr., conjonctivite catarrhale. Ger., Bindehautkatarrh, Bindehautcatarrh. It., congiuntivite catarrale. Sp., conjunctivitis cataral. A catarrhal or simple c., with a more or less free discharge of mucus or muco-pus, redness and swelling of the palpebral and occasionally of the ocular conjunctiva, some swelling of the lids, and a burning, smarting pain. [F.] —C. ægyptiaca. Fr., conjonctivite ægyptienne. A purulent c.; so called because of its prevalence in Egypt and northern Africa. [F.]—C. aphthosa. See Pustular OPHTHALMIA.—C. blennorrhagica. See Purulent c.—C. blennorrhoica neonatorum. See OPHTHALMIA neonatorum.—C. bulbi. See Ocular c.—C. catarrhalis. See Catarrhal c.—C. crouposa. See Croupous c.—C. diphtheritica. See Diphtheritic c.—C. erysipelatosa. See Erysipelatous c.—C. exanthematica. See Exanthematous c.—C. follicularis. See Follicular c.—C. gonorrhoica. See Gonorrhœal c.—C. granulosa. See Granular c.—C. gummatosa, C. gummosa. See Gummatous c.—C. hypertrophica. See Hypertrophic c.—C. jequiritica. See Jequirity OPHTHALMIA.—C. lymphatica. See Lymphatic c.—C. membranacea, C. membranosa. See Croupous c.—C. palpebrarum. See Palpebral c. —C. phlyctænulosa. Fr., conjonctivite phlycténulaire. Ger., phlyctänuläre Bindehautentzündung. It., congiuntivite flittenulare (o flittenoide). Sp., conjuntivitis flictenular (ó flictenöides). A c. characterized by the appearance of one or more bladder-like, vesicular elevations in the conjunctiva, usually near the corneal margin, though they may occur at any point on the ocular conjunctiva, the conjunctiva in this neighborhood being injected and infiltrated from the corneal margin as far as the cul-de-sac. There is usually some catarrhal c. present in these cases, with the usual symptoms of injection and a mucous discharge. [F.]—C. phlyctænulosa maligna. Fr., conjonctivite phlycténulaire maligne. Ger., bösartige phlyctänuläre Bindehautentzündung. It., congiuntivite flittenulare maligna. Sp., conjuntivitis flictenular maligna. A form of c. in which the vesicles are distinctly larger than in the simple form of the disease, and involve the cornea from the start. All the subjective and objective symptoms are more marked, and there is an abundant secretion of muco-pus, and even of flocculent membrane. The vesicles are really pustules. [F.]—C. phlyctænulosa miliaris. Fr., conjonctivite phlycténulaire miliaire. Ger., miliare phlyctänuläre Bindehautentzündung. It., congiuntivite flittenulare migliare. Sp., conjuntivitis flictenular miliar. A form of c. in which the vesicles are multiple and very small, like little sandy prominences, extending all round the corneal margin, and even upon the cornea itself. The subjective sensations are the same as in the simple form, though they may be marked, and there may be more or less blepharospasm. [F.]—C. phlyctænulosa pustulosa. See C. phlyctænulosa maligna.—C. phlyctænulosa simplex. Fr., conjonctivite phlycténulaire simple. Ger., einfache phlyctänuläre Bindehautentzündung. It., congiuntivite flittenulare semplice. Sp., conjuntivitis flictenular simple. A form of c. characterized by the presence of several small vesicles on or near the corneal margin, generally below the horizontal diameter. The swelling and infiltration of the conjunctiva is moderate; but there are usually considerable lacrymation and photophobia, and some little mucous secretion. [F.]—C. puromucosa catarrhalis. See Catarrhal c.—C. puro-mucosa contagiosa (seu ægyptiaca), C. purulenta. See Purulent c.—C. pustulosa. See C. phlyctænulosa maligna. —C. scrofulosa. See Scrofulous c. —C. simplex. See Catarrhal c. —C. strumosa. See Scrofulous c.—C. suppurativa. See Purulent c. —C. tarsalis. See Palpebral c.—C. trachomatosa. See Granular c.—C. variolosa. Ger., Blatternaugenentzündung. A form of c. occurring in connection with variola.—Croupous c. Lat., c. crouposa. Fr., conjonctivite croupeuse. Ger., croupöse Bindehautentzündung. It., congiuntivite gropposa. Sp., conjuntivitis membranosa. That variety of c. which is characterized by the formation of a more or less extensive membrane upon the surface of the conjunctiva of the lids. The intensity of the inflammatory process varies. In some cases the membrane is very thin and gelatinous, and comes away in threads, while in others it is dense, thick, and yellowish-white, and comes away in large pieces, or entire. When removed, it leaves a bleeding surface beneath. Here the conjunctival inflammation is probably of the same nature as the purulent form of c., but the exudation is of a higher organization. [F.]—Diphtheritic c. Lat., c. diphtheritica. Fr., conjonctivite diphthérique. Ger., diphtheritische Bindehautentzündung. It., congiuntivite difteritica. Sp., conjuntivitis difteritica. A disease characterized by a rapid and very marked swelling of the lids, due to a more or less extensive infiltration, not only of the conjunctiva, but also of the other tissues of the lids (sometimes even including the integument) by an inflammatory product of marked coagulability. This infiltration is into the tissue of the conjunctiva; there is no exudation upon its surface. It is very dense and often drives all the blood out of the lids, thus interfering with the nutrition of the parts. The conjunctiva is frequently changed into a necrotic mass, and cast off as a slough. There is a slight exudation from the surface of the conjunctiva of a thin ichorous fluid, but in the second stage of the disease it assumes a puriform character. The great danger is sloughing of the cornea from extension of the disease to the ocular conjunctiva and interference with its blood-supply. The local heat of the parts is very pronounced. The disease is rapid in its progress. The ocular conjunctiva becomes densely infiltrated, and surrounds the cornea like a hard, unyielding wall. After the disease has lasted from 5 to 8 days, the hard, board-like condition of the lids diminishes, the conjunctiva becomes loose, red, and bleeding, and appears like a granulating surface; and the ocular conjunctiva takes on the same change. The lids can now be everted and the secretion becomes purulent. In the third or cicatricial stage the depth and extent of the disease depend upon the amount of destruction by necrosis following the infiltration. [F.]—Eczematous c. C. with lesions resembling those of eczema or due to an extension of eczema to the eye. [Reuss (A, 319).]—Erysipelatous c. Ger., Augenrose. The inflammation of the palpebral and sometimes of the ocular conjunctiva which accompanies erysipelas of the face. [F.]—Exanthematous c. Lat., c. exanthematica. C. occurring in the course of an exanthematous fever or accompanied by an eruption about the eye (e. g., zoster or eczema). [Reuss (A, 319).]—Follicular c. Lat., c. follicularis. Fr., conjonctivite folliculaire. Ger., folliculäre Bindehautentzündung. It., congiuntivite follicolare. Sp., conjuntivitis folicular. A form of c. in which the ordinary inflammatory catarrhal changes are accompanied by the development of round, pale-red, hemispherical structures which project above the level of this membrane, and subsequently disappear without leaving a trace behind. [F; "N. Y. Med. Jour.," Aug. 11, 1888, p. 163.]—Glandular c. Syn.: Adenologaditis. A term originally employed to designate inflammation of the lining membrane of the Meibomian ducts in the eyelids; and since erroneously applied to any glandular inflammation of the lids. [F.]—Gonorrhœal c. Lat., c. gonorrhoica. Fr., conjonctivite gonorrhéique. Ger., gonorrhoïsche Bindehautentzündung. It., congiuntivite gonorroica. Sp., conjuntivite gonorréica. A purulent c. presumably of a specific character and due to contact of the purulent discharge from a specific urethritis. [F.]—Granular c. Lat., c. granulosa. Fr., conjonctivite granuleuse. Ger., granulöse Bindehautentzündung. It., congiuntivite granulata. Sp., conjuntivitis granulada. 1. An acute c. characterized by hyperæmia, serous infiltration, swelling of the papillary portion, increased secretion, and the development of round, grayish-red, prominent structures, especially in the region of the retrotarsal fold and neighboring part of the palpebral conjunctiva. These undergo definite changes, and frequently lead to secondary changes in the cornea and deeper parts of the lids. 2. A chronic c. of the eyelids in which the inflammatory symptoms are relatively much less pronounced in proportion to the development of the granulations than in the acute form. The secretion and swelling are less, and the vicinity of the granulations presents a velvet-like appearance. The symptoms and appearances are always more marked in the upper lid than in the lower. [F.] See also Trachoma.—Gummatous c. Lat., c. gummatosa. Fr., conjonctivite gommeuse, gomme de la conjonctive. Ger., gummöse Bindehautentzündung, Gummigeschwulst der Bindehaut. It., congiuntiva gummosa. Sp., goma de la conjuntiva. A localized c. of plastic type, occasioned by the development of a gummy tumor in the conjunctiva or subconjunctival tissue. These gummy deposits usually occur in the course of the external rectus muscle or between the latter and the superior rectus. [F.]—Hypertrophic c. Lat., c. hypertrophica. Chronic catarrhal c. with hypertrophy of the conjunctival papillæ. [Reuss (A, 319).]—Lacrymal c. A term employed by Galezowski to designate those cases of catarrhal c. which are either caused or prolonged by the retention of the tears in the cul-de-sac and on the conjunctiva. [F.]—Lymphatic c. Syn.: c. lymphatica. A form of c. considered by some authors identical with phlyctænular c.; by Herz, as a herpes ciliaris very often caused by reflex irritation of pediculi capitis through the branches of the fifth nerve supplying the conjunctiva. [F.]—Membranous c. See Croupous c.—Ocular c. Lat., c. bulbi. C. confined to the ocular conjunctiva. [Reuss (A, 319).]—Palpebral c. Lat., c. palpebrarum. Fr., conjonctivite palpébrale. C. confined to the palpebral conjunctiva. [Reuss (A, 319).]—Phlyctænular c. See C. phlyctænulosa.—Purulent c. Lat., c. purulenta. Fr., conjonctivite purulente (ou suppurative). A portion of the c. urethræ muscle arising from the connective tissue of and walls of the vessels of the plexus pubicus impar which Lesshaft regarded as being identical with Guthrie's muscle. [L, 31.] 2. See C. urethræ.—C. vaginæ. Fr., constricteur du vagin. See C. cunni.—C. vesicæ urinariæ. Fr., constricteur de la vessie. Ger., Harnblasenschnürer. See DETRUSOR urinæ.—C. vestibuli, C. vestibuli vaginæ. See C. cunni profundus.—C. vulvæ. See C. cunni.—First middle c. See HYO-PHARYNGEUS.—Inferior c. of the pharynx. Lat., c. pharyngis inferior. Fr., constricteur inférieure du pharynx. Ger., unterer Schlundkopfschnürer. The most superficial of the c's of the pharynx, which has its origin in three slips. The lowest (the crico-pharyngeus) arises from the outer surface of the cricoid cartilage and the inferior cornu of the thyreoid cartilage, the middle (the thyreo-pharyngeus) from the posterior part and occasionally from the outer surface of the ala of the thyreoid cartilage, and the uppermost (the syndesmo-pharyngeus) from the superior cornu of the thyreoid cartilage. These unite and curve backward and inward to unite in the posterior median line of the pharynx with their fellows of the opposite side. [L, 31, 142, 332.]—Middle c. of the pharynx. Lat., c. pharyngis medius. Fr., constricteur median du pharynx. Ger., mittlerer Schlundkopfschnürer. A muscle of deglutition the lower portion of which is covered by the inferior c. and covering above a portion of the superior c. It arises by two slips, the lowermost of which (the cerato-pharyngeus) springs from the greater cornu of the hyoid bone, and the uppermost (the chondro-pharyngeus) from the lesser cornu. It radiates downward, horizontally, and upward, and unites with its fellow of the opposite side in the posterior median line of the pharynx. [L, 31, 142, 332.]—Posterior c. of the vulva. Fr., constricteur postérieur de la vulve. Ger., hinterer Schamschnürer. The analogue of the c. vaginæ of women, found in the lower animals.—Second middle c. See THYREO-PHARYNGEUS.—Speir's artery c. An instrument for the closure of arteries without the use of ligatures or other foreign bodies to be left in the wound. It consists of a flattened metal tube, six inches long, with a sliding steel tongue running its entire length and having a screw arrangement at the upper end by which the tongue may be protruded from or retracted within the sheath. The lower end of the tongue is hook-shaped to fit around the artery to be constricted. [E.]—Superior c. of the pharynx. Lat., c. pharyngis superior. Fr., constricteur pharyngis supérieure. Ger., oberer Schlundkopfschnürer. The uppermost and most deeply seated of the c. muscles of the pharynx, which is covered in a large part by the middle c. It arises from the side of the tongue in connection with the fibres of the genio-hyoglossus (the glosso-pharyngeus), from the posterior extremity of the mylo-hyoid ridge of the inferior maxilla (the mylo-pharyngeus), from the bucco-pharyngeal fascia (the bucco-pharyngeus), and from the hamular process and the lower third of the posterior edge of the internal pterygoid plate (the pterygo-pharyngeus). Its fibres curve backward to unite with its fellow of the opposite side and with the cephalo-pharyngeal fascia. [L, 31, 142, 332.]

CONSUMPTIVE, adj. Ko²n-su³mp'ti²v. Lat., consumptivus. Fr., consomptif, phthisique. Ger., schwindsüchtig. It., tisico. Sp., tísico, ético. Pertaining to, of the nature of, or affected with consumption, especially pulmonary consumption; as a n., an individual having that disease.

CONSYRE (Fr.), n. Ko³n²-ser. See CONSOLIDA and SYMPHYTUM officinale.

CONTABESCENCE, n. Ko²n-ta²b-e²s-e²ns. Lat., contabescentia (from contabescere, to waste away). Fr., c. Emaciation, marasmus. [A, 325.]

CONTABESCENT, adj. Ko²n-ta²b-e²s'e²nt. Lat., contabescens. Fr., c. Wasting, consumptive. [L, 41.]

CONTACT, n. Ko²n'ta²kt. Gr., ψαῦσις. Lat., contactus (from con, together, and tangere, to touch). Fr., c. Ger., Berührung, C. It., contatto. Sp., contacto. The state in which two or more bodies touch each other; a close association between two or more individuals.—C. action. See CATALYSIS.—C. substance. See CATALYST.—Direct c., Immediate c. Fr., c. immédiat. The c. of objects or individuals with each other without the intervention of another object or individual. [A, 301.]—Indirect c., Mediate c. Fr., c. médiat. The c. of a person with another or with anything by the intervention of some one or something. [L, 41.] C. by means of an interposed substance; in pathology, see Mediate CONTAGION.—Optical c. A c. between two transparent surfaces (as when two varieties of glass are united to form a single lens), so that there is no change in the direction of rays of light passing through the two media; also the c. of pigments with glass, so that there is no reflection from the painted side. [L.]

CONTACTILE, CONTACTUAL, adj's. Ko²n-ta²kt'i²l, -u²-a²l. See TACTILE.

CONTACTUOUS, adj. Ko²n-ta²kt'u²-u³s. Contagious. ["Pop. Sci. Month.," Feb., 1880, p. 461 (B).]

CONTAGE (Fr.), n. f. Kon³-ta²zh. See CONTAGION.

CONTAGES (Lat.), n. f. Ko²n-ta(ta³)'jez(gas). Gen., contag'is. From contingere, to touch. See CONTACT and CONTAGION.

CONTAGIÉ (Fr.), n. Ko³n²-ta³-zhe-a. A person to whom a contagion has been communicated. [L, 41.]

CONTAGIFÈRE (Fr.), adj. Ko³n-ta³-zhe-fe²r. From contages, contagion, and ferre, to bear. Carrying contagious virus; acting as the vehicle of contagion. [L, 41.]

CONTAGIO-MIASMATIC, adj. Ko²n-ta″ji²-o-mi-a²z-ma²t'-i²k. Contagious and miasmatic. [D, 3.]

CONTAGION, n. Ko²n-taj'yu³n. Lat., contages, contagio, contagium (from contingere, to touch). Fr., contage, c. Ger., Ansteckung (1st def.), Ansteckungsstoff (2d def.). It., contagione. Sp., contagio. 1. The communication of disease from one individual to another by means of direct or mediate contact or, as used by some writers (in the sense of infection), by effluvia, etc. 2. The material cause or virus of a contagious disease. [A, 301, 322.]—C. miasmatique (Fr.). C. propagated by a miasm. [L, 41.]—C. morte (Fr.). See Mediate c.—C. nerveuse (Fr.), C. névrosique (Fr.). The occurrence or causation in neurotic persons of symptoms like those manifested by other persons with whom they are associated; neurotic mimicry. [A, 385; L, 41.]—C. parasitaire (Fr.). C. by means of a living organism. [L, 41.]—C. purulente (Fr.). C. by contact with pus (as in gonorrhœa). [L, 41.]—C. virulente (Fr.). C. by the means of a virus. [L, 41.]—C. vive (Fr.). See Immediate c. and CONTAGIUM vivum.—Direct c. Contact of the living body with any specific morbid material capable of development within or upon that body, and by which disease, similar to that of which the materies morbi formed a part, is reproduced. [α, 25.]—Immediate c. Fr., c. immédiate, c. vive. Ger., unmittelbare Ansteckung. It., contagione immediata. Sp., contagio directo. C. due to actual contact with an affected person. [L, 41.]—Mediate c. Fr., c. médiate, c. morte. Ger., mittelbare Ansteckung. It., contagione mediata. Sp., contagio indirecto. The acquisition of a contagious disease from an intermediary person rather than directly from one affected with it. [J.]

CONTAGIONIST, n. Ko²n-taj'yu²n-i²st. Fr., contagionniste, contagionnaire. A believer in the contagious origin of a given disease. [A, 108.]

CONTAGIONNISME (Fr.), n. Kon³-ta³-zhe-on-nezm. The doctrine which recognizes certain diseases as contagious. [L, 41.]

CONTAGIOSI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Ko²n-ta(ta³)-ji²(gi²)-os'i(e). Contagious diseases. [L, 97.]

CONTAGIOSITY, n. Ko²n-taj-i²-o²s'i²t-i². Fr., contagiosité. Ger., Ansteckbarkeit, Contagiosität. The property of being contagious, also the degree of contagiousness of a given disease. [A, 301; L, 41.]

CONTAGIOUS, adj. Ko²n-taj'yu³s. Lat., contagiosus. Fr., contagieux. Ger., ansteckend, contagiös. It., Sp., contagioso. Susceptible of communication by contagion. [A, 301.]

CONTAGIOUSNESS, n. Ko²n-taj'yu³s-ne²s. Fr., contagiosité. Ger., Contagiösität, Ansteckungsfähigkeit. It., contagiosità. Sp., contagiosidad. The quality of being contagious.

CONTAGIUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko²n-ta(ta³)'ji²(gi²)-u³m(u⁴m). Fr., contage c. Ger., C., Ansteckungsstoff. It., Sp., contagio. A virus or material having contagious properties. [D, 1.]—C. animatum. See C. vivum.—C. febrile. See C. halituosum.—C. fixum. A non-volatile medium of contagion. [D, 3.]—C. halituosum. A contagious exhalation from a patient, especially the breath. [D, 3.]—C. pellis. An obsolete name for scabies. [G.]—C. per contactum. See Direct CONTAGION.—C. vivum. Any living organism, animal or vegetable, that is the essential cause of a contagious disease.—Nervous c. A hypothetical medium of the spread of certain diseases of the nervous system. [Remak, "Med. Central.-Ztg.," 1864, No. 87 (D).]

CONTAMINATION, n. Ko²n-ta²m-i²n-a'shu³n. Lat., contaminatio (from contaminare, to pollute, corrupt), contamen. Fr., c. Ger., C. The state of being corrupted by some extrinsic influence.

CONTAMINATUS (Lat.), adj. Ko²n-ta²m(ta³m)-i²n-a(a³)'tu³s-(tu⁴s). Fr., contaminé (1st def.), taché (2d def.). Ger., gefleckt (2d def.). 1. Contaminated. 2. As a species name, spotted. [L, 180.]

CONTEMELLE (Fr.), n. Ko³nt'me²l. The Agaricus procerus. [L, 105.]

CONTEMPLABILIS (Lat.), adj. Ko²n-te²mp-la²b(la³b)'i²l-i²s. From contemplare, to watch closely. Requiring special watchfulness (said anciently of certain supposed critical days of a disease). [A, 325.]

CONTENANT (Fr.), adj. Ko³nt'na³n². 1. Containing, retentive. 2. Continent. [L, 41.]

CONTENTBLÄTTER (Ger.), n. pl. Ko²n-te²nt'blat-te²r. The Prunus lauro-cerasus. [B, 180 (α, 24).]

CONTENTIF (Fr.), adj. Ko³n-ta³n²-tef. See RETENTIVE.

CONTENTION (Fr.), n. Ko³n-ta³n²-se-o³n². Lat., contentio. See RETENTION.

CONTENU (Fr.), n. Ko³n²t'nu⁶. The contents of anything.—C. cellulaire. See CELL-contents.

CONTEXTUS (Lat.), n. m. Ko²n-te²xt'u³s(u⁴s). Gen., c. From contexere, to weave, to construct. A tissue.—C. cellulosus. Cellular tissue. [L, 180.]

CONTEXTURE (Fr.), n. Ko²n-te²xt-u⁶r. See TEXTURE.

CONTIA (Lat.), n. f. Ko²n'shi²(ti²)-a³. Of Pliny, a variety of the olive. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONTIGUITÄT (Ger.), n. Ko²n-ti²-gu-e-tat'. See CONTIGUITY.—C'sveränderung. See ECTOPIA.

CONTIGUITY, n. Ko²n-ti²-gu²'i²t-i². Fr., contiguité. Ger., Contiguität. The state of being contiguous; of a limb, a joint as opposed to the continuity of the bones.

CONTIGUOUS, adj. Co²n-ti²g'u²-u³s. Gr., συναφής. Lat., contiguus (from contingere, to touch). Fr., contigu. Ger., contiguös. It., Sp., contiguo. Literally, touching; in contact or nearly in contact, adjacent, neighboring. [B, 1 (α, 24).]

CONTINENCE, CONTINENCY, n's. Ko²n'ti²n-e²ns, -e²ns-i². Lat., continentia (from continens, temperate). Fr., c. Ger., Enthaltsamkeit. It., continenza. Sp., continencia. Self-restraint, especially abstinence from sexual indulgence.

CONTINUA (Lat.), n., f. of adj. continuus. Ko²n-ti²n'u²(u⁴)-a³. See Continued FEVER.

CONTINUED, adj. Ko²n-ti²n'u²d. Lat., continuus (from continere, to hang together). Fr., continu. Ger., beständig, fortlaufend, ununterbrochen, anhaltend. It., continuo. Sp., continuo. Uninterrupted; of a fever, without intermissions; of a morbific cause, existing throughout the continuance of a disease; of a stem, peduncle, or fruit, not jointed. [B, 121 (α, 24); L.]

CONTINUITAS (Lat.), n. f. Ko²n-ti²n-u²(u⁴)'i²t-a²s(a³s). Gen., continuitat'is. 1. See CONTINUITY. 2. A connected series, a continuation.—C. nervorum opticorum. See Optic CHIASM.

CONTINUITÄT (Ger.), n. Ko²n-tin-u-i²t-at'. See CONTINUITY.—C'sstörung. See SOLUTION of continuity.

CONTINUITY, n. Ko²n-ti²n-u²'i²t-i². Lat., continuitas. Fr., continuité. Ger., Continuität, Zusammenhang. It., continuità. Sp., continuidad. The state of being continuous, unbroken, uninterrupted.

CONTONDANT (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n-to^{3}n^{2}d-a^{3}n^2. Contusing. [L, 41, 109.]

CONTORSILE, adj. Ko^{2}n-to^{2}rs'i^{2}l. From contorquere, to turn, to twist. Capable of torsion (said of leaves, etc.). [a, 24.]

CONTORSIO (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-to^{2}r'shi^2(si^2)-o. See CONTORTION.

CONTORTÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-to^{2}rt'e(a^3-e^2). From contortus, twisted. Fr., contortées. A group of plants comprising the Gentianaceæ, Apocynaceæ, Asclepiadaceæ, Oleaceæ, etc., characterized by a gamopetalous corolla which in prefoliation is twisted or turned on itself. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONTORTED, adj. Ko^{2}n-to^{2}rt'e^{2}d. Lat., contortus. Fr., contourné. Ger., gedreht. Twisted. See C. ÆSTIVATION.

CONTORTI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Ko^{2}n-to^{2}rt'i(e). See CONTORTÆ.

CONTORTION, n. Ko^{2}n-to^{2}r'shu^{3}n. Lat., contortio (from contorquere, to twist). Fr., contorsion. Ger., Verdrehung, Verrenkung. A twisting or writhing of the body or of a part; also an old name for a sprain, ileus, lateral curvature of the spine, and wry-neck. [L, 94.]

CONTORTIPLICATE, adj. Ko^{2}n-to^{2}rt-i^{2}p'li^2-kat. Lat., contortiplicatus (from contortus, twisted, and plicatus, folded). Twisted and folded on itself. [L, 81.]

CONTORTIVE, adj. Ko^{2}n-to^{2}rt'i^{2}v. Twisted. [B, 77.]

CONTORTO-CONVOLUTIF (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n-to^{3}rt-o-ko^{3}n^2-vol-u^6-tef. From contortus, twisted, and convolutus, convoluted. Twisted and convoluted. [L, 41.] See Corrugated ÆSTIVATION.

CONTORTUPLICATUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-to^{2}rt-u^2(u^4)-pli^2-kat-(ka^{3}t)'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CONTORTIPLICATE.

CONTORTUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-to^{2}rt'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CONTORTED.

CONTOURNÉ (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n^2-turn-a. Contorted, twisted; of limbs, deformed; of a shell, spirally shaped. [L, 41.]

CONTRA-APERTURA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-tra^3-a^{2}p(a^{3}p)-u^{5}r-(e^{2}r)-tu^{2}r(tu^{4}r)'a^3. From contra, opposite to, and aperire, to open. Fr., contre-ouverture. Ger., Gegenöffnung. It., contrapertura. Sp., contra-abertura. A counter-opening. [L, 81.]

CONTRACAPITANA, n. At Carthagena, the Aristolochia anguicida. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONTRA-COULEVRA, n. In South America, the Ægrophila salutaris. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONTRACTED, adj. Ko^{2}n-tra^{2}kt'e^{2}d. Lat., contractus (from contrahere, to draw together). Fr., contracté. Ger., zusammengezogen. It., contratto. Sp., contraido. Drawn together upon itself, narrowed, shortened; lessened in size; of a muscle, in a state of active contraction. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONTRACTILE, adj. Ko^{2}n-tra^{2}kt'i^{2}l. Lat., contractilis. Fr., c. Ger., contractil, zusammenziehbar. It., contrattile. Sp., contráctil. Capable of contracting; tending to contract. [L, 56, 109.]

CONTRACTILITAS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-tra^{2}k-ti^{2}l'i^{2}t-a^{2}s(a^{3}s). Gen., contractilitat'is. See CONTRACTILITY.

CONTRACTILITÉ (Fr.), n. Ko^{2}n-tra^{3}k-tel-e-ta. Contractility. [K.]—C. animale [Bichat]. See Voluntary CONTRACTILITY.—C. organique [Bichat]. See Involuntary CONTRACTILITY.

CONTRACTILITY, n. Ko^{2}n-tra^{2}k-ti^{2}l'i^2-ti^2. Lat., contractilitas. Fr., contractilité. Ger., Contractilität, Contractionsvermögen, Zusammenziehbarkeit. It., contrattilità. Sp., contractilidad. Capacity for or tendency to contraction; especially capacity for responding to stimulation by movements. [K; L, 135.]—Amœboid c. See Cellular c.—Animal c. See Voluntary c.—Cellular c. Fr., contractilité cellulaire. The c. of masses of protoplasm. [L, 44 (a, 14).]—Ciliary c. Fr., contractilité ciliaire. Protoplasmatic movement originating in the substance of the ciliary cellules, and without influence from the nerve-centres; divided by Valentin into imbatiform, undulatory, oscillatory, and uncinate. [L, 41, 44.]—Electrical c. Fr., contractilité électrique. The c. of a muscle on electrical stimulation.—Faradaic c. Fr., contractilité faradique. The c. of a muscle on stimulation with a faradaic current.—Galvanic c. Fr., contractilité galvanique. The c. of a muscle on galvanic stimulation.—Involuntary c. Fr., c. organique [Bichat]. Capacity for movements (such as those in smooth or unstriped muscular fibre) which are not dependent upon or governed by the will. [K.]—Muscular c. Fr., contractilité musculaire. Ger., muskuläre Contractilität. The contractile power of a muscle.—Organic c. Fr., contractilité organique [Bichat]. See Involuntary c.—Organic insensible c. Fr., contractilité organique insensible [Bichat]. The contractility of the smooth muscle-fibres of glands, ducts, and capillaries; manifested by contractions so limited in extent as to escape notice, except on minute observation. [K; L, 41.]—Organic sensible c. Fr., contractilité organique sensible [Bichat]. See Involuntary CONTRACTILITY.—Voluntary c. C. (such as that in striped muscular fibre) which depends upon or is governed by the will of the individual. [K.]

CONTRACTION, n. Ko^{2}n-tra^{2}k'shu^{3}n. Gr., συστολή (from συστέλλεσθαι, to contract). Lat., contractio (from contrahere, to contract), systole. Fr., c. Ger., Zusammenziehung, Zuckung, C., Kontraction, Verengerung (constriction), Verkürzung (shortening). It., contrazione, ristrettezza (narrowing). Sp., contracción. 1. The act of contracting. 2. The state of being contracted. 3. In physiology, the sum of the phenomena which accompany a single muscular movement. [K.]—Anodal-closure c. See ANODAL-closure c.—Anodal-opening c. See ANODAL-opening c.—Breaking c. Ger., Oeffnungszuckung. The contraction which takes place in a muscle, through which a galvanic current is passing, at the moment of breaking the circuit. [B, 12.]—Cathodal-closure c. See Cathodal-closure CLONUS.—Cathodal-duration c. A contraction occurring at the cathode and persisting during the entire time of closure of the circuit. The same as cathodal-closure tetanus. [B, 21.]—Cathodal-opening c. See Cathodal-opening CLONUS.—Cicatricial c. Fr., rétraction cicatricielle. The gradual c. of a scar.—C. en sablier, C. en verre (Fr.). See Hour-glass c.—C. musculaire dynamique (Fr.). Muscular c. accompanied by well-marked calorific phenomena. [K, 31.] Cf. C. musculaire statique.—C. musculaire statique [Béclard] (Fr.). Muscular c. unaccompanied by external phenomena, such as the development of heat. [K, 31.]—C's mittel (Ger.). An astringent.—C'sring (Ger.). See C. RING.—Dupuytren's (finger) c. A contracture of the palmar fascia, producing permanent flexion of the fingers. [Keen, "Phila. Med. Times," March 11, 1882; "Med. News," April 8, 1882.]—Fibrillar c's, Fibrillary c's. Fr., c's fibrillaires. Ger., fibrilläre Zuckungen. Phenomena sometimes observed in muscles after section of the main trunks of their motor nerves (especially the facial). They consist of alternate c's of the separate bundles of fibres. The cause is probably intrinsic in the muscles, rather than central. It may be due to disease. [Landois (K); "N. Y. Med. Jour.," May 19, 1888, p. 533.]—Front-tap c. A modification of the ankle-clonus described by Gowers. It is a reflex extension movement of the foot elicited by tapping the muscles on the front of the leg. [Landois (K).]—Hour-glass c. Fr., c. en sablier, c. en verre de montre. Ger., stundenglasförmige (oder sanduhrförmige) C., partieller Uteruskrampf in der Nachgeburtszeit, spastischer Strictur des Uterus. A form of irregular c. of the uterus in which it is constricted in its meridional zone so as to resemble an hour-glass.—Idio-muscular c. Fr., c. idio-musculaire. Ger., idiomuskuläre Kontraction. 1. A localized c. observed in a fatigued muscle when struck violently with a percussion-hammer; described by Schiff. [Landois (K).] 2. See MYO-ŒDEMA.—Idiopathic c. with rigidity. See CONTRACTURE.—Independent (or Inherent) c's of the uterus [Bedford]. The ante-partum c's of the uterus commonly termed "painless." [A, 95.]—Initial c. Ger., anfängliche Zuckung. 1. The first c. observed in a muscle on the application of a series of rapid induction shocks, before the occurrence of tetanus. 2. A c. occurring in a rheoscopic limb when its nerve is applied to a muscle tetanized with strychnine. [Landois (K); K, 19.]—Irregular c. of the uterus. Fr., rétraction spasmodique, stricture (ou étranglement) de l'utérus. Ger., partieller Uteruskrampf, spastische Strictur der Gebärmutter. It., contrazione spasmodica dell' utero. Sp., contracción espasmódica de la matriz. C. of certain zones of the uterus of a spasmodic sort, so as to impede the expulsion of its contents or the introduction of the hand into its cavity. Cf. Hour-glass c.—Making c. Ger., Schliessungszuckung. The c. which takes place in a muscle, through which the galvanic current is passing, at the moment of making the circuit. [B, 12.]—Muscular c. Fr., c. musculaire. Ger., muskuläre C., Muskelc'. C. due to muscular action; the c. of a muscle when it is called into action.—Over-maximal c. Ger., übermaximale Zuckung. A further c. (exceeding the previous maximum) which takes place when the strength of a stimulus applied to a muscle is gradually increased until a maximum of c. is obtained, and then, after a short interval, is increased still further; first observed by Fick. [Landois (K).]—Paradoxical c. Fr., c. paradoxale. Ger., paradoxische Zuckung. 1. A c. of the muscles supplied by both branches of a large nerve (like the sciatic in the frog) observed when an electrical current is applied to one of its two primary divisions. [Landois (K).] 2. Of Westphal, the c. of a muscle when its points of origin and insertion are suddenly approximated (i. e., when the muscle is suddenly relaxed); usually associated with paresis of the lower extremities. [D, 35.]—Pelvic c. Fr., rétrécissement du bassin (ou pelvien), angustie pelvienne. Ger., Beckenverengerung. It., contrazione della pelvi. Sp., contracción de la pelvis. Syn.: confinement of the pelvis. Narrowing of the pelvis in any of its diameters.—Peristaltic c. Fr., c. péristaltique. Ger., peristaltische fortschreitende C. The undulatory c. of the muscular coat of the intestines by which their contents are propelled downward.—Permanent c. See CONTRACTURE.—Perverted uterine c. Fr., c. utérine pervertie. A general term for irregular and spastic uterine c. [A, 15.]—Pulsatile c's. Fr., c's pulsatiles. Ger., pulsirende Zusammenziehungen. Certain c's of the orbicularis palpebrarum muscles which are synchronous with the pulse. [K, 16.]—Residual c. [Hermann]. Ger., residuale (oder bleibende) Zuckung. See Elastic after-VIBRATION.—Rhythmical c. A c. (such as that of the heart) which recurs at regular intervals. [K.]—Sanduhrförmige C. (Ger.). See Hour-glass c.—Secondary c. Ger., secondäre Zuckung. A muscular c. corresponding to the cardiac systole observed when the nerve of a muscle-nerve preparation is laid upon a living heart; described by Matteucci in 1842. [Landois (K).]—Spastic c. Fr., c. spastique. Ger., spastische C. Convulsive muscular c. without intervals of relaxation, as in tetanus.—Stundenglasförmige C. (Ger.). See Hour-glass c.—Tetanic c. Lat., contractio tetanica. Fr., c. tétanique. Ger., starrkrampfartige Zuckung. It., contrazione tetanica. Sp., contracción tetánica. Firm and prolonged muscular c. such as occurs in tetanus or when rapidly repeated induction shocks are passed through a muscle. [K; D.]—Unipolar induced c. Ger., unipolare induzirte Zuckung. A c. such as is produced in a frog's muscle (not entirely insulated) when a single electrode is applied to it, the other end of the circuit being connected with the ground. [Landois (K).]—Vermicular c. See Peristaltic c.

CONTRACTOR (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}n-tra^{2}k(tra^{3}k)'to^{2}r. Gen., contractor'is. A muscle the action of which is to render a part tense; a tensor.—C. chordæ [Oehl]. A bundle of muscular fibres extending between the left auriculo-ventricular valve and the wall of the ventricle, lying in certain of the chordæ tendineæ. [A, 262; L, 31.]

CONTRACTUR (Ger.), n. Ko^{2}n-tra^{3}k-tur'. See CONTRACTURE.—Biegsame C. See CONTRACTURE souple.—Idiopathische C. See Neuropathic CONTRACTURE and TETANY.—Secondäre C. See Paralytic CONTRACTURE.

CONTRACTURA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-tra^{2}k(tra^{3}k)-tu^{2}r(tur)'a^3. See CONTRACTURE.—C. ab acrimonia irritante. Contracture re-

CONTRACTURE, n. Lat., contractura. Fr., c. Ger., Contractur. It., contrattura. Sp., contractura. 1. Permanent contraction of a soft structure, especially a muscle, with rigidity. 2. In physiology, the condition of permanent contraction assumed by a muscle after prolonged and excessive stimulation. 3. In orthopedic surgery, a muscle spasmodically contracted. [D, 35; K, 16.] —Active myopathic c. Fr., c. myopathique active. A form of myopathic c. due to long-continued or excessive use of the affected muscles, to myositis, the effect of cold, etc. [L, 87.]—C. par appréhension [Dally] (Fr.). A voluntary c. of the muscles about a diseased part when manipulation is attempted and is painful. [L, 87.]—C. par distension des antagonistes (Fr.). A term suggested by Eilenmeyer to replace paradoxical contraction. In his account, however, only hysterical subjects are referred to, while in Westphal's no such discrimination is made [C. CONVALESCENT, adj. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l-e^{2}s'e^{2}nt. Gr., ὑγιαίνων. Lat., convalescens. Fr., c. Ger., c., genesend. It., convalescente. Sp., convaleciente. In a state of convalescence.

CONVALLAIRE (Fr.), n. Ko^{3}n^2-va^{3}l-a^{2}r. See CONVALLARIA.

CONVALLALARINE (Fr.), n. Ko^{3}n^2-va^{3}l-a^{3}l-a^{3}r-en. A principle extracted by water from Convallaria maialis; said to be more active than convallarin. [L, 87; "Prog. méd.," July 8, 1882, p. 528.]

CONVALLAMARETIN, CONVALLAMARHETIN, n's. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l-a^{2}m-a^{2}r-et′i^{2}n. From convallaria (q. v.), and ῥητίνη, resin. Fr., convallamarétine. A product, $C_{20}H_{36}O_8$, obtained from the action of sulphuric acid on convallamarin. [B, 14 (a, 24).]

CONVALLAMARIN, n. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l-a^{2}m′a^{2}r-i^{2}n. From convallaria (q. v.), and amarus, bitter. Fr., convallamarine. Ger., C. A glucoside, $C_{23}H_{44}O_{12}$, found by Walz in Convallaria maialis; white powder, soluble in water, in ethyl alcohol, and in methyl alcohol, but insoluble in ether, in chloroform, and in amyl alcohol. In small doses, it is an active emetic. It acts on the heart, through the vagi nerves, slowing its action, and increasing the blood pressure; used in cardiac dropsy; its effects are not so cumulative as those of digitalis. [B, 5 (a, 24); Tanret, "Bull. gén. de thérap.," Aug. 30, 1882, p. 179.]

CONVALLARETIN, n. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l-a^{2}r-et′i^{2}n. See CONVALLARRHETIN.

CONVALLARIA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l(wa^{3}l)-la(la^3)′ri^2-a^3. Fr., convallaire, nuguet. Ger., Maiblume. 1. May lily, lily of the valley; of Linnæus, a genus of the Liliaceæ, tribe Convallarieæ, with a subglobose, campanulate perianth, of 6 lobes; stamens 6; ovary 2- (rarely 3-) celled; berry blue, 2-celled, and from 2- to 10-seeded; leaves radical; and scape bearing an umbel. 2. The genus Streptopus. 3. The genus Dichorisandra. [B, 34, 42, 121 (a, 24).]—Conserve of c. See Conserva florum LILII convallium.—C. angulosa [Lamarck]. CONVALLARIA MAIALIS. [A, 327.]

CONVALLARIACEÆ [Link] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l(wa^{3}l)-la(la^3)-ri^2-a(a^3)′se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., convallariacées. A suborder of the Liliaceæ, comprising Convallaria, Polygonatum, Maianthemum, Smilacina, Dianella, and Streptopus. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CONVALLARIÆ [Reichenbach] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l(wa^{3}l)-la(la^3)′ri^2-e(a^3-e^2). A subdivision of the Smilacinæ. [B, 170.]

CONVALLARIÉ (Fr.), adj. Ko^{2}n^2-va^{2}l-a^{2}r-e-a. Resembling the Convallaria; as a n. in the f. pl., c'es, a section of the order Asparagineæ, family Liliaceæ. [L, 41.]

CONVALLARIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l(wa^{3}l)-la^2(la^3)-ri(ri^2)′e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., convallariées. 1. Of Bentham and Hooker, a tribe of the Liliaceæ, comprising Convallaria, Theropogon, Speirantha, and Reineckea. 2. Of Endlicher, a tribe of the Smilaceæ, comprising Drymophila, Streptopus, Polygonatum, Convallaria, Smilacina, Smilax, Ripogonum, Luzuriaga, Callixene, Ruscus, and Prosartes. 3. Of Reichenbach, a subdivision of the Smilacinæ, comprising the same genera as Endlicher's, and in addition Danaida and the divisions Herrerieæ, Eriospermeæ, Roxburghieæ, and Philesieæ. [B, 42, 170, (a, 24).]

CONVALLARIN, n. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l′a^{2}r-i^{2}n. A glucoside, $C_{34}H_{62}O_{41}$, obtained from Convallaria maialis; it occurs in colorless prisms, of acrid taste, scarcely soluble in water, but readily so in alcohol and in ammonia, and insoluble in ether. It is a purgative, though great discrepancy exists as to its therapeutic effects, owing, it is supposed, to the impurity of the drug. [B. 5, 14 (a, 24).]

CONVALLARINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l(wa^{3}l)-a^{2}r(a^{3}r)-in(en)′e(a^3-e^2). Of Reichenbach, a division of the Sarmentaceæ, comprising Convallaria and Streptopus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONVALLARRHETIN, n. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l-a^{2}r-et′i^{2}n. From convallaria (q. v.), and ῥητίνη, resin. Fr., convallarrhétine. A poisonous, emetic substance, $C_{28}H_{52}O_6$, resulting, in conjunction with sugar, from the action of acids on convallarin. [A, 385; B, 5, 14 (a, 24).]

CONVALLIA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l(wa^{3}l)′li^2-a^3. See CONVALLARIA.—Flores convalliæ. The flowers of Convallaria maialis. [B, 180 (a, 24).]

CONVALLIUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}n-va^{2}l(wa^{3}l)′li^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Of Reichenbach, a section of the genus Convallaria of Adanson. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CONVAL LILY, n. Ko^{2}n′va^{2}l li^{2}l′i^2. The Convallaria maialis. [A, 505.]

CONVELLENS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-ve^{2}l(we^{2}l)′le^{2}nz(lans). See CONVULSIVE.

CONVENTIO (Lat.), CONVENTUS (Lat.), n's f. and m. Ko^{2}n-ve^{2}n(we^{2}n)′shi^2(ti^2)-o, -u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gen., convention'is, -vent'us. From convenire, to come together. See COITUS.

CONVERGENCE, n. Ko^{2}n-vu^{5}rj′e^{2}ns. Lat., convergentia. Fr., c. Ger., Zusammenlaufen, Näherung. It., convergenza. Sp., convergencia. The state of being convergent; also the power of converging or bringing together (said especially of the eyes). [B.]

CONVERGENT, adj. Ko^{2}n-vu^{5}rj′e^{2}nt. Lat., convergens (from con, together, and vergere, to incline). Fr., c., convergeant, converginé. Ger., convergirend, zusammenlaufend. It., Sp., convergente. Inclining toward each other, coming together at a common point; in botany, nearly synonymous with connivent. [B, 121 (a, 24).] See also C. STRABISMUS.

CONVERGENTI-NERVOSE, adj. Ko^{2}n-vu^{5}rj-e^{2}nt″i^2-nu^{5}rv′-os. Lat., convergentinervis (from convergens, convergent, and nervus, a nerve). Fr., convergineré. Having veins which diverge from the midrib and converge toward the margin (said of leaves). [B, 19 (a, 24).]

CONVERGINÉ (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n^2-ve^{2}r-zhen-a. See CONVERGENT.

CONVERGINERVED, adj. Ko^{2}n-vu^{5}rj′i^2-nu^{5}rvd. Lat., convergineruius. Fr., converginervé. See CONVERGENTI-NERVOSE.

CONVERGING, adj. Ko^{2}n-vu^{5}rj′i^{2}n^{2}g. See CONVERGENT.

CONVERSION, n. Ko^{2}n-vu^{5}r′zhu^{3}n. Lat., conversio (from convertere, to transform, change over). Fr., c. Ger., Wechsel, C. It., conversione. Sp., conversión. A changing (of form or material features).

CONVEX, adj. Ko^{2}n-ve^{2}x′. Lat., convexus. Fr., convexe. Ger., c., gewölbt. It., convesso. Sp., convexo. Having a curved surface the centre of which is more elevated than the borders. [L, 81.]

CONVEXIROSTRE (Fr.), adj. Ko^{3}n^2-ve^{2}x-e-ro^{3}s-t′r, -ve^2-xe-ro^{3}s-tr. From convexus, convex, and rostrum, a beak. Having a convex beak. [L, 41.]

CONVEXITY, n. Ko^{2}n-ve^{2}x′i^{2}t-i^2. Lat., convexitas. Fr., convexité. Ger., Wölbung, Convexität. It., convessità. Sp., convexidad. A convex surface (as of the cerebral hemispheres). [I, 23.]

CONVEXO-CONCAVE, adj. Ko^{2}n-ve^{2}x″o-ko^{2}n-kav′. Lat., convexoconcavus. Ger., hohlgewölbt, convex-concav. It., convesso-concavo. Sp., convexo-cóncavo. See CONCAVO-CONVEX.

CONVEXO-CONVEX, adj. Ko^{2}n-ve^{2}x″o-ko^{2}n-ve^{2}x′. Lat., convexoconvexus. Fr., convexo-convexe. Ger., doppelt-convex, doppelt gewölbt. It., convesso-convesso. Sp., bi-convexo, convexo doble. See BICONVEX.

CONVEXULUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-ve^{2}x(we^{2}x)′u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Dim. of convexus. Fr., convexule. Very slightly convex. [L, 180.]

CONVOLUTE, CONVOLUTED, adj's. Ko^{2}n-vol-u^{2}t′, -u^{2}t′e^{2}d. Lat., convolutus (from convolvere, to roll together). Fr., convoluté, convolutif. Ger., aufgerollt, tutenförmig. It., ritorto. Sp., arrolado, envuelto. Rolled upon itself (said of leaves, such as those of the apricot [see C. ÆSTIVATION]); in entomology, infolding completely (said of wings enveloping the body and giving it a cylindrical appearance). [B, 19, 77 (a, 24); L.]

CONVOLUTIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-vol(wo^{3}l)-u^{2}t(ut)′i^{2}d-e-(a^3-e^2). Syn.: Acœla. A family of the Rhabdocœla. [L, 353.]

CONVOLUTION, n. Ko^{2}n-vol-u^2′shu^{2}n. Lat., convolutio (from convolvere, to wind together), gyrus (from γῦρος, a ring). Fr., circonvolution, pli, gyre (3d def.). Ger., Windung. It., convoluzione. Sp., convolución, circunvolución. 1. The process of winding spirally or irregularly. 2. A coil of intestine, also a raised portion of similar appearance on the surface of the brain. 3. A depression on the inner surface of the skull, corresponding to a cerebral c. 4. The phase or condition of a nucleus in indirect or caryocinetic division in which the nuclear fibrils become sharply defined, twisted, and convoluted, so as to give somewhat the appearance of an irregularly wound ball of twine. [J, 32; L, 31.]—Angular c. Lat., gyrus angu- laris, gyrus parietalis secundus. Fr., pli courbe [Gratiolet], circonvolution angulaire. It., circonvoluzione angolare. Sp., circunvolución angular. A gyrus, sometimes extremely complex, which forms the posterior portion of the inferior parietal lobule. It is continuous in front with the supramarginal c., and descends behind the parallel fissure to unite with the middle temporo-sphenoidal c. It is connected with the occipital lobe by annectant gyri. [I, 1.]—Annectant c's. Lat., gyri annectantes. Fr., plis de passage. Ger., Uebergangsbrücken, Uebergangswindungen. It., pieghe de passagio. Sp., pliegues de pasage. The four gyri which connect the c's on the upper surface of the occipital lobe with the parietal and temporo-sphenoidal lobes. [I, 15.]—Anterior central c. See Ascending frontal c.—Anterior orbital c. Lat., gyrus orbitalis anterior. Fr., pli orbitaire antérieure. Ger., vordere Orbitatwindung. It., circonvoluzione orbitale anteriore. Sp., circunvolución orbital anterior. A c. which lies in front of the orbital sulcus, and is continuous with the middle frontal c. [I, 15.]—Antero-temporal c. See First temporal c.—Ascending frontal c. Lat., gyrus præcentralis (seu centralis anterior). Fr., circonvolution prérolandique, premier pli ascendant, pli frontal ascendant, circonvolution frontale ascendante. Ger., vordere Centralwindung. It., circonvoluzione parietale anteriore (o frontale ascendente), processo enteroides verticale di mezzo (anteriore). Sp., circunvolución parietal anterior (ó frontal ascendente). Syn.: transverse c., anterior central c., antero-parietal gyrus. A gyrus forming the anterior boundary of the fissure of Rolando, with which it is parallel. It extends from a point just behind the bifurcation of the Sylvian fissure to the edge of the great longitudinal fissure. It is generally continuous with the ascending parietal c., both above and below. [I, 1.]—Ascending parietal c. Lat., gyrus centralis posterior. Fr., deuxième pli ascendant, circonvolution pariétale ascendante (ou postrolandique, ou transverse médio-pariétale). Ger., hintere Centralwindung. It., processo enteroides verticale di mezzo (posterior), circonvoluzione parietale posteriore lunga. Sp., circunvolución parietal posterior. Syn.: postero-parietal gyrus, posterior central c. A c. which runs parallel with the ascending frontal c., from which it is separated by the fissure of Rolando, except at its superior and inferior extremities, where the two are generally united. It is continuous above with the superior parietal gyrus. [I, 1.]—Bridging c's. See Annectant c's.—Broca's c. Fr., circonvolution de Broca. Ger., Broca'sche Windung. It., circonvoluzione cerebrale di Broca. Sp., circunvolución cerebral de Broca. A term sometimes applied to the operculum, but more properly by Ferrier to the inferior (or third) frontal c. [I.]—Callosal c., Calloso-marginal c. See Gyrus fornicatus.—Cerebral c's. Fr.,

It is broken up into numerous secondary c's. [I, 47.]—Dentate c. Lat., gyrus dentatus, fascia dentata Tarini. Fr., corps godronné. It., convoluzione cristata. A small notched gyrus, rudimentary in man, which is situated in the dentate fissure below the tænia hippocampi. It terminates in the notch of the uncinate gyrus. [I, 15.]—Entorbital c. A c. on the orbital surface of the frontal lobe of the orang-outang, lying parallel with and just exterior to the olfactory lobe. [a, 18.]—External c's. Fr., circonvolutions externes. A term applied by Leuret to the four c's on the convexity of each cerebral hemisphere of the dog. This author numbered them from below upward, calling the lowest the first c., but Ferrier reverses this order, calling the highest the first, because they have their homologues in the human and the simian brain. [Ferrier (a, 18).]—External olfactory c. Lat., gyrus olfactorius externus. Fr., circonvolution olfactive externe. Ger., äusere Riechwindung. It., circonvoluzione olfattoria esterna. Sp., circunvolución olfatoria externa. The small projection forming the outer boundary of the GYRUS.—Inferior frontal c. Lat., gyrus frontalis tertius (seu inferior). Fr., pli frontal, circonvolution inférieure, troisième circonvolution frontale. Ger., dritte Stirnwindungsgruppe, dritte (oder untere) Stirnwindung, unterer Gyrus frontalis. It., circonvoluzione frontale inferiore. Sp., circunvolución frontal inferior (ó terza frontale). The lower and outer part of the frontal lobe. It is continuous posteriorly with the ascending frontal c.: anteriorly it curves around the anterior extremity of the lobe, and appears on its under surface as the posterior orbital gyrus ; it is of importance (on the left side) as forming an essential part of Broca's "speech-centre." [I, 1.]—Inferior occipital c. Lat., gyrus occipitalis inferior. Fr., pli occipital inférieure. Ger., dritte untere Hinterlappenwindung. It., circonvoluzione occipitale inferiore. Sp., circunvolución occipital inferior. A small c. which lies between the middle and inferior occipital fissures. It is directly continuous anteriorly with the middle temporo-sphenoidal c., and is connected with the inferior by a bridging gyrus. [I, 29.]—Inferior temporal (or temporo-sphenoidal) c. Lat., gyrus temporalis (lateralis) inferior. Fr., circonvolution temporale inférieure, pli temporal inférieur. Ger., dritte (oder untere) Schläfenwindung. It., terza circonvoluzione sfenotemporale, circonvoluzione temporale inferiore. Sp., circunvolución temporal inferior. The lowest of the three temporo-sphenoidal c's, connected posteriorly with the third occipital c. [I, 23.]—Infra-marginal c. Lat., gyrus inframarginalis. Fr., circonvolution temporale supérieure, pli temporal supérieur. Ger., erste Schläfenwindung. The superior temporo-sphenoidal c., so called because it forms the lower edge of the posterior limb of the Sylvian fissure. [I, 1.] See Superior temporo-sphenoidal c.—Insular c. Lat., circonvolutio (seu gyrus) insulæ. Fr., circonvolution de l'insula. Ger., Inselwindung. It., circonvoluzione dell' insola. Sp., circunvolución de la isla. One of a group of small c's which form the island of Reil, and are concealed by the operculum. They are separated from the lenticular nucleus by a thin layer of white matter (the claustrum). [I, 23.]—Internal c. See GYRUS fornicatus.—Internal olfactory c. Lat., gyrus olfactorius internus. Fr., pli (ou circonvolution) olfactif interne. Ger., innere Riechwindung. It., circonvoluzione olfattoria interna. Sp., circunvolución olfatoria interna. The ridge along the inner side of the olfactory groove. [I, 31.]—Internal orbital c. The gyrus next outside of the gyrus rectus. [a, 18.]—Internal temporo-occipital c. Fr., circonvolution occipitale latérale. See GYRUS fusiformis.—Intestinal c's. Fr., anses des intestins. Ger., Darmwindungen. The coils of the intestines.—Lateral occipito-temporal c. Lat., gyrus occipito-temporalis lateralis. Fr., quatrième circonvolution temporale. Ger., Spindelwindung, unterer äusserer Hinterhauptwindungszug. It., processo fondamentale posteriore. Sp., circunvolución temporal posterior. A term for the fusiform lobules (q. v.), so called because they connect the occipital and temporal lobes. [I, 23.]—Marginal c. Lat., gyrus marginalis. Fr., face interne de la première circonvolution frontale. Ger., Gyrus frontalis superior, mediale Fläche. It., cintura periferica, circonvoluzione marginale. Sp., circunvolución marginal. A c. which begins in front of the locus perforatus anterior, and bounds the longitudinal fissure on the mesial aspect of the hemisphere, being separated below from the gyrus fornicatus by the calloso-marginal fissure, which, together with the upper end of the fissure of Rolando, also separates it posteriorly from the quadrate lobule. [I, 1.]—Middle frontal c. Lat., gyrus frontalis medius. Fr., deuxième circonvolution frontale, pli (étage) frontal moyen. Ger., mittlere Stirnwindung. It., circonvolucion frontale media. A c. which is continuous posteriorly with the ascending frontal c., and extends forward over the anterior end of the hemisphere to its orbital surface, where it is continuous with its middle orbital c. It is more or less separated from the superior frontal c. by short irregular sulci. [I, 15.]—Middle occipital c. Fr., deuxième circonvolution occipitale. Ger., zweite Hinterhauptswindung. A c. situated between the first and third occipital c's. It is limited superiorly by the sulcus occipitalis transversus, inferiorly by the sulcus occipitalis longitudinalis inferior, and internally by the median longitudinal fissure. Externally or anteriorly it runs into the angular gyrus. [Ferrier (a, 18).]—Middle occipito-temporal c. Lat., gyrus occipito-temporalis medialis, lobulus lingualis. Fr., cinquième circonvolution temporale. Ger., Zungenwindung, Zungenläppchen. It., circonvoluzione lingueforme. Sp., circunvolución lingual. See Lingual LOBULE.—Middle orbital c. Fr., circonvolution orbitaire moyenne. The longitudinal gyrus next external to the internal orbital c. [a, 18.]—Middle temporo-occipital c. Fr., circonvolution temporo-occipitale moyenne. See GYRUS lingualis.—Middle temporo-sphenoidal c. Lat., gyrus temporalis medius. Fr., deuxième circonvolution temporale. Ger., zweite Schläfenwindung. It., seconda circonvoluzione temporale (o temporo-sfenoidale). Sp., circunvolución temporal media. A small gyrus, continuous with the middle occipital or angular gyrus. It occupies the middle of the temporo-sphenoidal lobe, and has a general horizontal direction. [I, 29.]—Occipito-temporal c. Lat., gyrus occipito-temporalis. Fr., pli occipito-temporal. Ger., Hinterhauptswindung. It., circonvoluzione occipito temporale. Sp., circunvolución occipito-temporal. Two small c's on the lower surface of the temporo-sphenoidal lobe. The collateral fissure extends between them. The name is sometimes given to the fusiform lobule alone. [I, 15.] See Fusiform, and Lingual LOBULE.—Olfactory c. Lat., gyrus olfactorius. Fr., circonvolution olfactive. Ger., Riechwindung. It., circonvoluzione olfattoria. Sp., circunvolución olfatoria. See Olfactory LOBE.—Orbital c's. Lat., gyri orbitales. Fr., circonvolutions orbitaires. Ger., Orbitalwindungen. It., circonvoluzioni orbitali. Sp., circunvoluciones orbitales. The small gyri on the orbital surface of the frontal lobe. [I, 1.]—Parietal c's. See Ascending parietal c. and Superior parietal c.—Posterior central c. See Ascending parietal c.—Posterior orbital c. Lat., gyrus orbitalis posterior. Fr., pli orbitaire postérieur. Ger., hintere Orbitalwindung. It., circonvoluzione orbitale posteriore. Sp., circunvolución orbital posterior. A small c. situated on the posterior and outer side of the orbital sulcus, and continuous with the inferior frontal c. [I, 15.]—Posterior parietal c. See Ascending parietal c.—Precentral c. See Ascending frontal c.—Sagittal c. Fr., circonvolution sagittale [Broca]. In the brain of Edentata, the longitudinal gyrus lying next to the great interhemispheric fissure, being the most internal of the longitudinal c's. [a, 18.]—Secondary c. 1. As opposed to "primitive" c., an elevation of the superficial portion of the cerebral cortex. 2. Of Owen (after Foville), one of the smaller gyri which may be identified in the principal c's. [I, 14, 15.]—Second (or middle) frontal c. Lat., gyrus frontalis secundus (seu medius). Fr., deuxième circonvolution frontale. Ger., zweite (oder mittlere) Stirnwindung. It., circonvoluzione frontale media. Sp., circunvolución frontal media. A c. which is continuous posteriorly with the ascending frontal c., runs forward along the medial surface of the lobe, and, curving around its anterior extremity, becomes continuous with the middle orbital gyrus on the inferior surface. It lies between the superior and inferior frontal c's, from which it is separated by fissures. [I, 1.]—Second occipital c. See Middle occipital c.—Superior c. See Superior temporo-sphenoidal c.—Superior frontal c. Lat., gyrus frontalis superior. Fr., étage frontal supérieur, première circonvolution frontale. Ger., erste (oder obere) Stirnwindung. It., circonvoluzione frontale superiore. Sp., circunvolución frontal superior. A c. which bounds the great longitudinal fissure, arising posteriorly from the upper end of the ascending frontal c., and turning around the anterior extremity of the frontal lobe to appear on its under surface as the internal orbital c. The mesial surface of this superior frontal c. is described as a separate gyrus (the marginal). [I, 1, 15.]—Superior occipital c. Lat., gyrus occipitalis superior. Fr., pli (ou circonvolution) occipital supérieur. It., circonvoluzione occipitale superiore. Sp., circunvolución occipital superior. The upper of the three c's on the superior surface of the occipital lobe. It is connected by an annectant gyrus with the superior parietal lobule. [I, 15.]—Superior occipito-temporal c. See Fusiform LOBULE.—Superior parietal c. Lat., gyrus parietalis superior. Fr., première circonvolution pariétale. Ger., obere Scheitelwindung. It., circonvoluzione parietale superiore. Sp., circunvolución parietal superior. The portion of the parietal lobe which is limited anteriorly by the upper part of the fissure of Rolando, posteriorly by the external parieto-occipital fissure, and inferiorly by the intraparietal sulcus. It is generally continuous with the ascending frontal c. [I, 15.]—Superior temporo-sphenoidal c. Lat., gyrus temporalis superior (seu primus). Fr., pli temporal supérieur, première circonvolution temporo-sphenoïdale. Ger., erste obere Schläfenwindung. It., prima circonvoluzione temporale (o temporo-sfenoidale). Sp., circunvolución temporal superior. The upper of the three c's forming the temporo-sphenoidal lobe. It lies just below and is parallel with the Sylvian fissure. [I, 4.]—Supplementary c. See Secondary c.—Supra-marginal c. Lat., lobulus supramarginalis (seu tuberis). Fr., pli (ou lobule du pli) marginal supérieur, circonvolution supramarginale. Ger., dritte Scheitellappenwindung, unterer Zug aus der hintern Centralwindung, Scheitelhöckerläppchen, erste (oder vordere) Scheitelbogenwindung. It., circonvoluzione sopra-marginale. Sp., circunvolución supra-marginal. The anterior portion of the inferior parietal lobule, situated behind the inferior extremity of the intraparietal fissure (sulcus), below which it joins the ascending parietal c. It curves around the upper end of the posterior (ascending) limb of the Sylvian fissure to be continuous below with the superior temporo-sphenoidal and ascending parietal fissures. [I, 1, 15.]—Supra-orbital c. [Leuret]. Lat., gyrus supraorbitalis. Fr., pli supraorbitaire, circonvolution sus-orbitaire. Ger., Supraorbitalwindung. It., circonvoluzione sopra-orbitale. Sp., circunvolución supra-orbital. See Inferior frontal c.—Supra-Sylvian c. The third external c. of the dog. [Ferrier (a, 18).]—Sylvian c. [Owen]. Fr., circonvolution sylvienne. That portion of the brain of marsupials which surrounds the Sylvian fissure. [I, 14.]—Third frontal c. See Inferior frontal c.—Third occipital c. See Inferior occipital c.—Transitive c's. Fr., plis de passage. C's that form communications between the different lobes of the brain. [L, 149 (a, 18).]—Transverse medio-parietal c. Leuret's name for the ascending parietal c. [a, 18.]—Transverse orbital c. Fr., circonvolution orbitaire transverse. The gyrus occupying the posterior portion of the inferior surface of the frontal lobe, at the anterior extremity of the fissure of Sylvius. Its general direction is transverse. ["Rev. d'anthropol.," 1876, p. 33 (a, 18).]—Troisième c. frontale. See Inferior frontal c.—Uncinate c. Lat., gyrus uncinatus. Fr., cinquième circonvolution temporale. Ger., Hakenwindung. It., circonvoluzione unciforme. A c. extending from near the posterior extremity of the occipital lobe to the apex of the temporo-sphenoidal ; so called from its peculiar hooked anterior end. [I, 15.]—Upper parietal c. See Superior parietal c.—Vaulted c. Lat., subiculum cornu Ammonis. Fr., circonvolution arquée. Ger., Bogenwindung. It., circonvoluzione del corno di ammone. Sp., circunvolución arqueada. See GYRUS fornicatus.

CONVOLUTUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-vol(wo^{2}l)-u^{2}t(ut)'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CONVOLUTE.

CONVOLVULACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}l(wo^{2}l)-vu^{2}l-(wu^{4}l)-a(a^3)'se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., convolvulacées. Ger., Convolvulaceen. It., convolvulacee. Sp., convolvulaceas. 1. Bind-weeds ; of Ventenat and succeeding authors, an order of gamopetalous dicotyledons, included in Lindley's solanal alliance. They are chiefly twining herbs, sometimes shrubby, with milky juice, and include many valuable medicinal plants ; divided into the tribes Convolvuleæ, Dichondreæ, Nolaneæ, Cresseæ, and Cuscuteæ. They are most abundant in tropical climes. 2. Of Endlicher, a family (order) of the class Tubifloræ. [B, 19, 34, 42, 121, 180 (a, 24).]

CONVOLVULACEOUS, adj. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}lv-u^{2}l-a'shu^{3}s. Lat., convolvulaceus. Fr., convolvulacé, convolvulé. Resembling Convolvulus, belonging to the Convolvulaceæ. [a, 24.]

CONVOLVULEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}l(wo^{2}l)-vu^{2}l(wu^{4}l)'-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., convolvulées. 1. Of Necker, St.-Hilaire, and others, an order of plants corresponding to the Convolvulaceæ. 2. Of Endlicher and others, a suborder or tribe of the Convolvulaceæ. [B, 170.]

CONVOLVULI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}l(wo^{2}l)'vu^{2}l(wu^{4}l)-i(e). 1. Of B. Jussieu (1759), an order of plants, comprising Convolvulus, Ipomœa, Evolvulus, Polemonium, Phlox, Diapensia, Lösela, and Pinœa—e. g., genera since distributed among the Convolvulaceæ and Polemoniaceæ. In a later classification the order was restricted so as to resemble the Convolvulaceæ. 2. Of Gray, a section of the Convolvulaceæ, including Calystegia and Convolvulus. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CONVOLVULIC ACID, n. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}lv'u^{2}l-i^{2}k. Fr., acide convolvulique. Ger., Convolvulinsäure. It., acido convolvulinico. An acid, $C_{31}H_{52}O_{17}$ (or $C_{31}H_{60}O_{16}$), obtained by boiling convolvulin with baryta-water, precipitating with sulphuric acid, and evaporating. It melts at a little above 100° C. [B, 5, 41, 141 (α, 24).]

CONVOLVULICOLUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}l(wo^{2}l)-vu^{2}l(wu^{4}l)-i^{2}k'ol(o^{2}l)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From convolvulus (q. v.), and colere, to inhabit. Fr., convolvulicole. Living and growing upon the Convolvulus. [L, 109, 180.]

CONVOLVULIFOLIÉ (Fr.), adj. Ko^{2}n^2-vo^{2}l-vu^{6}l-e-fol-e-a. From convolvulus (q. v.), and folium, a leaf. Having convolvulaceous leaves. [α, 24.]

CONVOLVULIFORM, adj. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}lv-u^{2}l'i^2-fo^{2}rm. From convolvulus (q. v.), and forma, form. Resembling the genus Convolvulus. [A, 385.]

CONVOLVULIN, n. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}lv'u^{2}l-i^{2}n. Fr., convolvuline. Ger., C. It., convolvolina. Sp., convolvulina. One of the active principles, a glucoside, $C_{31}H_{50}O_{16}$, obtained from the root of Ipomœa jalapa. It is an amorphous, colorless, and tasteless substance, fusing at 150° C., slightly soluble in water, freely so in alcohol and in dilute acid, and insoluble in ether. It is a powerful purgative. [B, 4, 5 (α, 24).]

CONVOLVULINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}l(wo^{2}l)-vu^{2}l(wu^{4}l)-i(e)'ne(na^3-e^2). Fr., convolvulinées. Of Miquel, a tribe of the Convolvulaceæ. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONVOLVULINEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}l(wo^{2}l)-vu^2(wu^4)-li^{2}n'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Brongniart, a class of the Gamopetalæ, comprising the families Polemoniaceæ, Nolaneæ, and Convolvulaceæ. [B, 170.]

CONVOLVULINOL, n. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}lv-u^{2}l'i^{2}n-o^{2}l. Fr., c. Ger., C. The oily, crystallizing product, $2C_{13}H_{24}O_3H_2O$ (or $C_{26}H_{50}O_7$), obtained by treating convolvulin with aqueous solutions of the alkalies; soluble with difficulty in water, dissolving in alkalies, with the production of a salt of convolvulic acid. [B, 4 (α, 24).]

CONVOLVULINOLIC ACID, n. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}lv-u^{2}l-i^{2}n-o^{2}l'i^{2}k. Fr., acide convolvulinolique. Ger., Convolvulinolsäure. A product, $C_{13}H_{26}O_4$ (or $C_{26}H_{46}O_6$), obtained by treating convolvulin with solutions of alkalies. It is soluble with difficulty in water, precipitates in crystalline masses, and melts at 40° to 50° C. [B, 4, 14 (α, 24).]

CONVOLVULOIDES (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}l(wo^{2}l)-vu^{2}l(wu^{4}l)-o(o^2)-i(e)'dez(das). From convolvulus (q. v.), and εἶδος, resemblance. Of Mönch, the genus Pharbites. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CONVOLVULUS (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}n-vo^{2}l(wo^{2}l)'vu^{2}l(wu^{4}l)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From convolvere, to roll up. Fr., c., liseron. Ger., Winde (1st def.), Zusammenwindung (2d def.). It., convolvolo. Sp., convólvulo. 1. Bind-weed; a genus of the Convolvulaceæ; they are erect twining shrubs indigenous to the temperate and subtropical regions of the globe; many of the species are medicinally valuable. [B, 34, 42 (α, 24).] 2. Volvulus. [A, 322.]—C. acetosæfolius [Vahl]. The Ipomœa carnosa. [B, 212.]—C. africanus [Nicholson]. The Ipomœa cathartica of Poiret. [B, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. althæoides [Linnæus]. A species found in southern Europe, having a bitter and acid herb, which is used as a purgative. [B, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. americanus. The Ipomœa jalapa. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—C. anceps [Linnæus]. The Ipomœa turpethum. [B, 212.]—C. arenarius [Vahl]. The Ipomœa carnosa. [B, 212.]—C. argyreus [De Candolle]. Fr., liseron à feuilles de Guimare. See C. althæoides.—C. arvensis [Linnæus]. Fr., petit liseron, bedille. Ger., Ackerwinde, Kornwinde. Small bind-weed; a species having purgative properties, formerly official. [B, 173. 180 (α, 24).]—C. batatas [Linnæus]. The Ipomœa batatas. [B, 173 (α, 24), 212.]—C. batatas candida. Fr., liseron blanche. An esculent variety of C. batatas found in the Indies. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. batatas lutea. Fr., liseron jaune. An esculent variety of C. batatas. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. batatas rubra. Fr., liseron rouge. An esculent variety of C. batatas. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. batilla [Kunth]. A South American species resembling in properties and uses the Ipomœa batatas. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—C. bifidus [Vahl]. The Ipomœa bifida. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—C. bilobatus [Roxburgh]. The Ipomœa pes-capræ. [B, 172, 180 (α, 24).]—C. blandus [Roxburgh]. The Ipomœa cymosa. [B, 212.]—C. brasiliensis [Linnæus]. The Ipomœa maritima. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—C. bryonlæfolius. A species closely related to the C. althœoides. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—C. cantabrica. Cantabrian (or lavender-leaved) bind-weed; a species considered anthelminthic and actively cathartic. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—C. carnosus [Sprengel]. The Ipomœa carnosa. [B, 212.]—C. chrysorrhizus [Solander]. Fr., patats douce de Tăiti. An edible species employed like the Ipomœa batatas, and cultivated in the Sandwich Islands. [B, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. cneorum. Shrubby bind-weed; a species having silvery-haired foliage and white flowers, and growing in southern Europe. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24).]—C. colubrinus. The Pareira brava. [L, 104.]—C. copticus [Linnæus]. Fr., liseron de la thebaïde. A species a decoction of which is used as a lotion for headaches. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. cymosus [Lamarck]. The Ipomœa cymosa. [B, 212.]—C. digitatus [Sprengel]. The Ipomœa digitata. [B, 212.]—C. discolor [Kunth]. A South American species an infusion of the leaves of which is used in gonorrhœa. [B, 173, 180 (α, 24).] Cf. C. turpethum.—C. dissectus. A species that contains hydrocyanic acid, and is one of the plants furnishing the liqueur noyau. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—C. edulis [Thunberg], C. esculentus [Salisbury]. The Ipomœa batatas. [B, 212.]—C. farinosus [Linnæus]. A species found in southern Europe and the East, regarded as one of the plants called σκαμμωνία by Dioscorides. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—C. flexuosus. See C. althæoides.—C. floridus [Linnæus]. Fr., liseron effilé, liseron à balais. A high shrub with abundant blossoms indigenous to the Canary Islands; it produces rosewood (lignum rhodium), and by distillation an oil (oil of rhodium) used in perfumery. The plant, powdered, is used as a sternutatory. [B, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. fœtidus. A plant growing in India and the Moluccas and cultivated in Europe. Its leaves, when pressed, give out a fœtid odor. [α, 24.]—C. formosus [Gmelin]. Fr, liseron remarquable. A species indigenous to Brazil but growing in Europe and India. The leaves are used in cataplasms in cutaneous diseases, and the root is purgative. [B, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. frutescens. The Ipomœa operculata. [α, 24.]—C. gemellus [Vahl]. The Ipomœa gemella. [B, 172, 180 (α, 24).]—C. guajanensis [Aublet]. A Guiana species which furnishes an odorous wood. [L, 30.]—C. grandiflorus [Römer and Schultes]. Fr., liseron à grandes fleurs. The Ipomœa grandiflora. [B, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. hastatus. See under Cali-valli.—C. indicus [Morison]. The Ipomœa batatas. [B, 212.]—C. insignis [Sprengel]. The Ipomœa digitata. [B, 212.]—C. italicus. A species closely related to C. althœoides. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—C. jalapa [Linnæus]. Fr., liane à medecine, jalap. Ger., Jalappa, purgirende Trichterwinde. It., jalappa. Sp., jalapa. The Ipomœa purga. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—C. linariæ folio. See C. cantabrica.—C. lineatus. Pigmy bind-weed; an ornamental species with narrow leaves and flesh-colored flowers. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—C. littoralis [Linnæus]. The Ipomœa carnosa. [B, 212.]—C. macrocarpus [Linnæus]. Fr., liseron à long fruit. A West Indian species; the root is purgative and feculent. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—C. macrorrhizus [Linnæus]. Fr., liane à minguet. Ger., grosswürzelige Trichterwinde. The Ipomœa macrorrhiza. [B, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. major (albus). See C. sepium.—C. malabaricus [Linnæus]. The Ipomœa malabarica.—C. mammosus [Loureiro]. A Cochin-China species used like C. chrysorrhizus.—C. marinus. See C. soldanella.—C. maritimus [Lamarck]. See Ipomœa pes-capræ.—C. mauritanicus. Blue rock bind-weed; an ornamental species with oval foliage and violet-colored flowers. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—C. mechoacanha [Linnæus], C. mechoacanna [Vittmann]. Fr., fleur de quatre heures, jalap blanc, bryone d'Amérique. Ger., weisse Jalappen-winde. It., gialappa Mechoacan. Sp., jalapa de Mechoacan. A Mexican species thought to be the Ipomœa macrorrhiza of Michaux. It has little or no purgative property, but has been used in dropsy, asthma, and rheumatism. [B, 5, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. medius. The Ipomœa filicaulis. [α, 24.]—C. megalorrhizus. See C. panduratus.—C. minimus spicæ foliis. See C. cantabrica.—C. minor. See C. arvensis.—C. nil [Linnæus]. [D, 35.]—Hydrophobic c. Fr., c. hydrophobique. Ger., hydrophobische C. A c. due to hydrophobia.—Hysterical c. Fr., c. hystérique. A c. due to hysteria, resembling that of epilepsy, but usually without unconsciousness. [L, 20.]—Hystero-epileptic c. Fr., c. hystéro-épileptique. Ger., hystero-epileptische C. 1. A c. that begins as an hysterical c. and becomes epileptoid. 2. An epileptic c. in an hysterical person. [R. Arndt (A, 319).] See *Hystero-*EPILEPSY.—Idiopathic c. Fr., c. idiopathique. Ger., idiopathische C. See Spontaneous c.—Infantile c's. Fr., c's de l'enfance (ou des enfants). Ger., Kinderkrämpfe. Eclamptic c's occurring in infancy.—Internal c's, Inward c's. Fr., c's internes (ou sourdes, ou imminentes). Ger., innere C'en. 1. Popular terms for slight convulsive movements limited to a portion of the body, without unconsciousness, but with the intellectual faculties suspended momentarily, and with the organic functions intact. At first the respiration is usually hastened and occasionally irregular, but it soon becomes suspended or imperceptible, with pallor of the face, a violaceous color of the lips, and fixity of the eyes. The whole attack lasts but a few seconds. [A, 301.] 2. Of some authors, c's chiefly affecting the muscles of respiration. [D, 40.]—Mimetic c., Mimic c. See Convulsive TIC.—Local c., Oertlicher C. (Ger.). See SPASM.—Oscillating c., Oscillatory c. Ger., oscillirender (oder oscillatorischer) Krampf. A c. in which the individual fibre-bundles of a muscle are affected, not simultaneously, but in succession. [R. Arndt (A, 319).]—Puerperal c's. Fr., c's puerpérales. Ger., Kindbettkrämpfe. It., convulsioni puerperali. Sp., convulsiónes de parto. Eclamptic c's occurring in pregnant, parturient, or lying-in women.—Reflex c. Fr., c. réflexe. Ger., reflectorische C. A c. due to some recognizable peripheral irritation. [R. Arndt (A, 319); D, 35.]—Respiratory c's. C's depending on discharging lesions in the lowest of the three levels or grades of motor centres recognized by Hughlings Jackson (i. e., those centres which represent the least complex muscular movements, are first to be evolved, and lowest in position, being situated in the anterior cornua of the spinal cord, the medulla oblongata, and pons Varolii, and including the centres that regulate nutrition, respiration, and vaso-motor action). The term includes laryngismus stridulus, spasmodic asthma, the paroxysms of whooping-cough, etc. ["Brit. Med. Jour.," June 18, 1887, p. 1326 (a, 17).]—Salaam c's. Lat., eclampsia nutans. Fr., tic de salaam, salutation convulsive. A disease of the mixed cranial nerves, of the bilateral clonic variety, and mostly confined to children between the periods of first dentition and puberty. It occurs in paroxysms, lasting from a few seconds to several minutes, and of varying frequency (e. g., once in several days or several times in an hour), which are characterized by a bowing of the body and head many times during an attack, with more or less bewilderment at the time, and, possibly, facial spasm, blepharospasm, strabismus, or convulsive action of one or another of the extremities. [D, 35.]—Spontaneous c. Fr., c. spontanée. Ger., spontane C. A c. that is not called forth by any recognizable exciting cause, but depends wholly on an abnormity of the central nervous system. [R. Arndt (A, 319).]—Static c. Fr., c. statique (ou de la station). Ger., statische C. A paroxysm characterized by uncontrollable turning around, walking forward or backward, running in a circle, etc. [R. Arndt (A, 319).]—Suffocative c. Laryngismus stridulus. COPAIBA (Lat.), n. f. Ko-pa^3-e′ba^3. Lat., c. [U. S. Ph., Br. Ph.], balsamum copaiva [Dan. Ph., Norweg. Ph., Swed. Ph.] (seu copaivæ [Ger. Ph., Austr. Ph., Russ. Ph., Swiss Ph., Netherl. Ph., Hung. Ph.]), copaivæ balsamum [Gr. Ph.]. Fr., copahu [Fr. Cod.], baume de copahu (ou capivi). Ger., Copaïvabalsam, Kopaïva. It., copaibe, balsamo di copaibe. Sp., bálsamo de copaiba. Syn.: balsam of c., balsam c. The oleoresin of various species of Copaifera, especially that of Copaifera officinalis, Copaifera guianensis, Copaifera coriacea, and Copaifera Langsdorfii. It is obtained by making incisions in the trees, a single tree yielding 84 pints. As it flows from the tree it is clear, colorless, and thin, but soon becomes thicker and darker. Brazil furnishes the largest quantity. It is a light yellow, clear liquid, of an agreeable odor, having a specific gravity of from 0·920 to 1·000, and has a bitter, irritating taste. It is soluble in alcohol, ether, and the fixed and volatile oils, and makes an emulsion with the alkalies, on which it acts as an acid. Mixed with magnesia and set aside, it solidifies. Its essential constituents are volatile oil and resin. It has been in use as a stimulant of the mucous membranes for more than a century, and employed with benefit in gonorrhœa in the subacute stage, gleet, leucorrhœa, and chronic catarrhal affections of the bowels and lungs. [B, 2, 5 (a, 24).]—Alkaline tincture of balsam of c. See Essentia balsami COPAIVÆ kalica.—Alcoholic tincture of c. See Tinctura COPAIVÆ balsami.—Balsam of c., Balsamum de c. See C.—Brazilian c. The c. derived from many species of Copaifera; natives of Brazil are entitled to this name, but, according to Hayne, the Brazilian species from which most of the c. of commerces is derived is the Copaifera multijuga, growing in the province of Para. Others think it applies solely to the Copaifera officinalis (the Copaifera Jacquini of Desfontaines). [B, 5, 121, 173 (a. 24).]—C. camphor. Fr., camphre de copahu. A product of the action of hydrochloric acid on oil of c.: a crystallizable body, $C_{10}H_9Cl$. [A, 301.]—Copaibæ injectio. C. injection; containing 4 parts of balsam of c. and 1 part each of gum arabic and limewater; used as an astringent injection in gleet, gonorrhœa, and leucorrhœa. [L, 104 (a, 21).]—Enema of balsam of c. Fr., lavement au copahu. Ger., Copaïvabalsam-Klystier. An enema made of 25 grammes of c.-balsam, the yolk of 1 egg, 0·05 gramme of extract of opium, and 150 grammes of water. COPAL, n. Kop'a²l. Lat., gummi copalinum. Fr., c., copale. Ger., C., Kopal. It., Sp., c. Mex., copalli. Native African, sandarusiza, sandarusi. Syn.: copale. A resinous substance brought from the East Indies, South America, and the eastern and western coasts of Africa. It is the concrete juice of different trees—viz., the Vateria indica [Linnæus] (=the Elæocarpus copalliferus [Retzius]), different species of Hymenæa, the Trachylobium mozambicense, the Guibourtia copallifera, and others. It presents a variety of appearances, according to the source of supply, but is generally in roundish, irregular pieces, colorless or slightly yellowish, more or less transparent, very hard, with a shining conchoidal fracture, of a specific gravity of 1·045 to 1·139, soluble in alcohol, and partially so in ether and oil of turpentine. Some 5 different resins have been obtained from it: (1) A soft resin, $C_{40}H_{64}O$ (the kind generally used in varnishes), fusible on a water-bath, and soluble in 72-per-cent. alcohol and in oil of turpentine; (2) a resin, soft, fusible below 100° C., soluble in alcohol, ether, and in oil of turpentine, and isomeric with 1; (3) a resin, $C_{40}H_{62}O_3$, white, not readily fusible, soluble in alcohol and ether; (4) a resin, white, still less fusible, soluble in alcohol and solution of potassa, and insoluble in ether; (5) a resin, $C_{40}H_{62}O_3$, insoluble in all menstrua. Violette, however, states that even those copals insoluble in alcohol and other menstrua become soluble by heating in closed vessels to from 350° to 400° C. Aniline oil has also been found a good solvent of c. [B, 77 (a, 24).]—East African c. Syn.: Zanzibar c. C. obtained from (1) Hymenæa mozambicensis (Trachylobium mozambicense) and (2) from Trachylobium hornemannianum. [B, 5 (a, 24).]—False c. See American c.—Fossil c. Fr., c. fossile (ou résine de Highgate (2d def.). 1. The c. obtained from the earth on the east and west coasts of Africa. [B, 77 (a, 24).] 2. A resinous fossil found in blue clay near Highgate, London. It is called also copallite. [B, 38 (a, 24).]—Gomme c. dure (Fr.). See Oriental c.—Huile de c. (Fr.). See Oil of c.—Indian c. Piney varnish. A species of resin furnished by the Vateria malabarica of Blume, or white dammar-tree; an excellent varnish, resembling c. It is very hard, has a shining vitreous fracture and the appearance of amber, and is often confounded with the c. of the Vateria indica [Linnæus]. Like c., it is but slightly soluble in alcohol, but can be readily dissolved by the addition of camphor to the alcohol, and it is directly soluble in turpentine and oils, without preliminary destructive fusion, as in the case of c. [B, 172 (a, 24).]—Jackass c. A corruption by the Zanzibar traders of the word chakazi, the native word for raw c. (q. v.). [B, 77 (a, 24).]—Madagascar c. C. produced by the Hymenæa verrucosa (Trachylobium verrucosum). [B, 5, 19 (a, 24).]—Mexican c. C. obtained from some unidentified species of Hymenæa. [B, 19 (a, 24).]—Oil of c. Fr., huile de c. An oil obtained on distillation of c., having the composition $C_{10}H_{16}$, boiling at 160° to 165° C., and having a specific gravity of 0·965. [B, 5 (a, 24).]—Oriental c. Fr., gomme c. dure. Ger., orientalischer Kopal. Syn.: East Indian dammar. A c. obtained from the Vateria indica of Linnæus (the Elæocarpus copallifera [Koenig], and not to be confounded with the Vateria indica of Roxburgh). [B, 5, 172, 173, 180, 275 (a, 24).]—Raw c., Recent c. C. obtained direct from the trees, or found at their roots or near the surface of the ground, and considered inferior. [B, 77 (a, 24).]—Resina c. See C.—Ripe c. The fossil c. found imbedded in the earth along the coast of Zanzibar, and considered the best. [B, 77 (a, 24).]—Sierra Leone c. Ger., afrikanischer Kopal. A variety, according to Daniell, obtained from the Guibourtia copallifera [Bennet], a large tree in the mountainous regions of western Africa, to the coast of which the c. is washed down by the rains. Others, as Welwitsch, assert that this variety is furnished by the Adansonia digitata. In a fossil state, it is dug up from the earth, where it has been buried by the rains. Its surface is covered with a whitish earthy crust. [B, 5, 180 (a, 24).]—West African c. See Sierra Leone c.—West Indian c. Brazilian c. obtained from the Hymenæa martiana and other varieties. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—Zanzibar c. See East African c.

COPALCHE, n. See COPALCHI.—C.-bark. In Brazil, the bark of Strychnos pseudo-china; in Mexico, the bark of Croton pseudo-china. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]—C. plant. See CROTON pseudo-china and STRYCHNOS pseudo-china.—C'rinde (Ger.), Cortex c. See C.-bark.

[L, 132.]—C. critica, C. febrisequa. C. occurring at the crisis of disease, said to be a sign of recovery. [L, 132.]

COPHOTES (Lat.), n. f. Ko'fo^{2}t-ez(as). Gen., cophotet'os (-is). Gr., κωφότης. See COPHOSIS.

COPI COTTA, n. In Ceylon, coffee. [B, 88.]

COPIDOPTENUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}p-i^{2}d-o^{2}p-ten(tan)'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κοπίς, a sword, and πτηνός, winged. Fr., copidoptène. Ger., säbelflügelig. Having sword-shaped wings; as a n., in the m. pl., Copidopteni, of Ritgen, an order of birds having sword-shaped wings. [L, 180.]

COPIGUE, n. In Chili, the Lapageria rosea. [B, 19.]

COPIIBA, n. In Brazil, the genus Copaifera. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COPIOPIA (Lat.), n. f. Kop(ko^{2}p)-i^2-op'i^2-a^3. From the Gr., κόπος, a straining, and ὤψ, the eye. Fr., copiopie. Ger., Copiopie. See ASTHENOPIA.

COPISCUS (Lat.), n. m. Kop(ko^{2}p)-i^{2}sk'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κόπισκος. Fr., copisque. A kind of frankincense mentioned by Dioscorides. [L, 94 (a, 21).]

COPOPSIA (Lat.), n. f. Kop(ko^{2}p)-o^{2}ps'i^2-a^3. From κόπος, fatigue, and ὄψις, sight. A weariness or fatigue of the sight or power of acute vision. It was originally used to denote a fatigued or worn-out retina, and was often confounded with amblyopia. [F.]

COPOS (Lat.), n. m. Kop(ko^{2}p)'o^{2}s. Gr., κόπος. Fr., copose. Weariness, lassitude, resulting from disease; of some authors, severe cramp-like pain in the calves of the legs. [A, 322, 325; L, 41, 94.]

COPPAROSA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}p-pa^{2}r(pa^{3}r)-os'a. Copperas; green vitriol. [L, 94.]

COPPER, n. Ko^{2}p'u^{5}r. For deriv., see CUPRUM. Gr., χαλκός. Lat., cuprum [Br. Ph.] (æs cyprium). Fr., cuivre. Ger., Kupfer. It., rame. Sp., cobre. A metallic element known from very early times. It occurs widely diffused in nature, both uncombined and compounded in the form of various minerals. It usually occurs under the form of an amorphous, very tenacious, malleable, and ductile substance, of peculiar reddish color and metallic lustre. It may also be obtained in the form of octahedral crystals. It melts at 1,090° C. Sp. gr., 8·92 to 8·95. It is an excellent conductor of heat and electricity. In compounds it acts usually as a bivalent radicle (see CUPRIC), sometimes apparently as a univalent radicle (see CUPROUS), though the cuprous compounds may be supposed to be formed by the addition of copper to the cupric compounds, and the metal still to remain bivalent. Atomic weight, 63·1; symbol, Cu. [B, 3, 158 (a, 24).]—Acid sulphate of deutoxide of c. See C. sulphate.—Aluminated c. See CUPRUM aluminatum.—Ammoniacal c., Ammoniated c. See C. ammoniosulphate.—Ammoniated c. chloride. See C. and ammonium chloride.—Ammoniated c. sulphate. See C. ammoniosulphate.—Antimonial c. glance. A thioantimonite of c., $Cu_2(SbS_2)_2$. [B.]—Barilla c. Ger., Barillakupfer. Sp., cobre de barrillas. Native c. obtained from Peru and Chili. [B, 49.]—Basic c. acetate. See C. subacetate.—Basic c. carbonate. Fr., carbonate basique de cuivre. Ger., basisch kohlensaures Kupferoxyd. A compound of normal c. carbonate (not known as existing by itself), with an oxide or hydroxide of c. See C. carbonate. [B.]—Basic c. chloride. Fr., chlorure basique de cuivre. Ger., basisches Kupferchlorür. It., cloruro di rame basico. Sp., cloruro básico de cobre. See C. oxychloride.—Basic c. sulphate. Fr., sulfate basique de cuivre. Ger., basisches schwefelsaures Kupferoxyd. It., sulfato di rame basico. Sp., sulfato básico de cobre. A compound of c. sulphate with an oxide or hydrate of c.; several basic sulphates, varying in composition, are known. S. Ph.], cuprum aceticum. Fr., acétate de cuivre. Ger., essigsaures Kupfer (oder Kupferoxyd), Kupferacetat. It., acetato di rame. Sp., acetato de cobre. A compound of c. and acetic acid. Normal cupric acetate, the cupri acetas of the U. S. Ph., $Cu(C_2H_3O_2)_2 + H_2O$, forms efflorescent green prismatic crystals of a disagreeable metallic taste, moderately soluble in water, soluble with difficulty in alcohol. It is employed medicinally like c. sulphide, but is not used internally. [B, 5.] See also C. subacetate.—C. acetoarsenite. A green substance, $3Cu.(AsO_2)_2, Cu(C_2H_3O_2)_2$, used as a pigment under the name of Schweinfurt green or imperial green, and often employed for tinting wall-paper. [B, 2.]—C. acetylide. Fr., acétylure de cuivre. Ger., Kupferacetylid. A compound, $C_2Cu_2 + H_2O$, of acetylene and c., forming a dark-red, amorphous powder exploding on percussion or heating. It has been found in copper gas-pipes. [B, 3.]—C. adipate. Fr., adipate de cuivre. Ger., adipinsaures Kupfer. A compound of c. and adipic acid, $Cu(C_3H_4O_2)_2$. [B. 2.]—C. albuminate. Fr., albuminate de cuivre. Ger., Kupferalbuminat. A compound of egg-albumin and copper; according to Harnack ["Ztschr. f. physiol. Chem.," v, p. 198], there are two such compounds, one containing 1·35 per cent. of the metal and having the composition $C_{204}H_{320}N_{52}O_{66}S_2Cu$, the other containing twice as much of the metal and having the composition $C_{204}H_{318}N_{52}O_{66}S_2Cu_2$. [a, 24.]—C. amalgam. Fr., amalgame cuivrique, mastic métallique, amalgame de cuivre. Ger., Kupferamalgam. It., amalgama di rame. Sp., amalgama de cobre. An alloy of c. with mercury; when containing 2 or 3 parts of mercury to 1 part of c., the amalgam becomes soft and plastic on heating to 100° C., and on cooling gradually changes into a hard substance of crystalline texture. [B, 3.]—C. ammoniochloride. See C. and ammonium chloride.—C. ammoniosulphate. Lat., cuprum sulfuricum ammoniatum [Ger. Ph.], sulfas cuproammonicus [Fr. Cod.]. Fr., sulfate de cuivre ammoniacal [Fr. Cod.]. Ger., Kupferammoniumsulphid. It., solfato di rame ammoniacale. Sp., sulfato de cobre amoniacal. Ammoniated c. sulphate, ammoniated copper; a compound of c. sulphate with ammonia. It varies in composition according to the mode of its preparation; as usually prepared, by evaporation of a solution of c. sulphate in ammonia-water [Fr. Cod.], it forms efflorescent blue crystals, $CuSO_4.4NH_3 + H_2O$. A similar compound was directed by the U. S. Ph. of 1870 to be made by rubbing together c. sulphate and ammonium carbonate. When heated to 150° C., this substance is converted into a green powder, $CuSO_4 + 2NH_3$, and on further heating to 200°, forms the substance $CuSO_4 - NH_3$. A blue powder having the composition $CuSO_4 - 5NH_3$ is formed by heating anhydrous c. sulphate with dry ammonia gas. [B, 3.]—C. ammoniosulphite. See C. and ammonium sulphite.—C. ammoniuret. See C. ammoniosulphate.—C. and ammonium chloride. C. ammoniochloride; a compound of cupric chloride with ammonia. Several such compounds are known, one forming a blue powder of the constitution $CuCl_2 + 6NH_3$; another, a blue crystalline substance, $CuCl_2 + 4NH_3 + H_2O$; and a third, a green powder of the composition $CuCl_2 + 6NH_3$. [B, 3.]—C. and ammonium sulphate. See C. ammoniosulphate.—C. and ammonium sulphite. Fr., sulfite de cuivre et d'ammonium. Ger., schwefligsaurer Kupferammoniak. It., solfito di rame e d'ammonio. Sp., sulfito de cobre y de amonio. C. ammoniosulphite; a compound of cuprous sulphite with sulphite of ammonium. Two such compounds are known, having respectively the constitution $(NH_4)_2SO_3.(Cu_2SO_3)$ and $(NH_4)_2SO_3.2(CuSO_3)$. Both form crystalline scales. [B, 3.]—C. and potassium cyanide. Fr., cyanure de cuivre et potassium. Ger., Kaliumkupfercyanür. It., cianuro di rame e potasio. Sp., cianuro potásico de cobre. A compound of c. and potassium and cyanogen, formed by the action of cuprous cyanide on aqueous potassic cyanide. Two such compounds, both crystalline, colorless bodies, are known: potassium cuprocyanide, $K_2Cu_2C_4N_4$, and potassium cupricyanide, $K_6Cu_2C_8N_8$. [B, 4 (a, 24).]—C. and potassium ferrocyanide. Ger., Ferrocyankupferkalium. A dark, reddish-brown powder, $K_2CuFe(C_3N_3)_2$, insoluble in water. [B.]—C. and sodium tartrate. Fr., tartrate de cuivre et de sodium. Ger., weinsaures Kupfernatron, Natriumkupfertartrat. It., tartrato di rame e di sodio. Sp., tarlrato de cobre y de sodio. A basic tartrate, occurring in Fehling's solution, having the composition $CH_2 = (O.Cu) < {CO,ONa \atop CO,ONa}$. [B, 4.]—C. and uranium arsenate. Cuprouranic arsenate; a green salt of the composition $(U_2O_2)_2Cu,(AsO_4)_2 + 8H_2O$. [B, 2.]—C. antimonate. Fr., antimoniate de cuivre. Ger., antimonsaures Kupfer. It., antimoniato di rame. Sp., antimoniato de cobre. A substance having the composition $Cu(SbO_3)_2$. [B, 2.]—C. arsenate. Lat., cuprum arsenicum (seu arsenicicum). Fr., arséniate de cuivre. Ger., arsensaures Kupferoxyd. It., arseniato di rame. Sp., arseniato de cobre. A compound of c. and arsenic acid; the normal orthoarsenate of c., cupric arsenate, is a blue amorphous substance, $Cu_3(A_3O_4)_2 + {}_2H_2O$. In addition, several basic arsenates of c. are known, some occurring native as minerals. [B, 3.]—C. arsenide. Fr., arséniure de cuivre. Ger., Kupferarsenid. It., arseniuro di rame. Sp., arseniuro de cobre. A compound of c. with arsenic. Various arsenides of c. are known, many occurring native. [B, 3 (a, 24).]—C. arsenite. Fr., arsenite de cuivre. Ger., arsenigsaures Kupfer. It., arsenito di rame. Sp., arsenito de cobre. A light-green, insoluble powder (Scheele's green), $CuHAsO_3$, prepared by treating a cupric salt with an alkaline arsenite. [B, 2, 158 (a, 24).]—C. ashes. See under ASH.—C. bichromate. See C. dichromate.—C. blue. Ger., Kupferblau. Azurite. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. bromide. Fr., bromure de cuivre. Ger., Bromkupfer. It., bromuro di rame. Sp., bromuro de cobre. A compound of c. and bromine. Two such compounds are known: 1. Cuprous bromide (Ger., Kupferbromür), a brownish crystalline substance, Cu_2Br_2. 2. Cupric bromide (Ger., Kupferbromid), forming dark-colored, deliquescent crystals of metallic lustre, and possessing the composition $CuBr_2$. [B, 3.]—C. carbonate. Fr., carbonate de cuivre. Ger., kohlensaures Kupferoxyd. It., carbonato di rame. Sp., carbonato de cobre. A compound of c. and carbonic acid. Basic carbonates of c. are known, occurring in nature as the minerals malachite ($CuCO_3 - CuO_2H_2$) and azurite ($2CuCO_3.CuO_2H_2$). Compounds of the same or similar composition may also be prepared artificially. One of these artificial basic carbonates, identical in composition with malachite, has been used in medicine in the Sardinian States under the title of carbonato di rame. [B, 3, 10, 158 (a, 24).]—C. chloride. Fr., chlorure de cuivre. Ger., Chlorkupfer. It., cloruro di rame. Sp., cloruro de cobre. A compound of c. and chlorine. Several such compounds are described: 1. Cuprous chloride (Ger., Kupferchlorür), a white crystalline, fusible substance, but little soluble in water, and prone to oxidation. It has the composition Cu_2Cl_2. 2. Cupric chloride (Ger., Kupferchlorid), forming green crystals, $CuCl_2 + 2H_2O$, which, when heated, parts readily with water of crystallization and becomes a yellowish-brown powder of the composition $CuCl_2$. 3. Basic chlorides of c. See C. oxychloride and C. ammoniochloride. [B, 3, 158 (a, 24).]—C. croconate. Ger., krokonsaures Kupfer. A crystalline body which appears deep blue by reflected light, dark orange by transmitted light, and bright yellow when reduced to powder. Formula, $C_5CuO_5 + 3H_2O$. [B, 3.]—C. cyanide. Fr., cyanure de cuivre. Ger., Cyankupfer. It., cianure di rame. Sp., cianuro de cobre. A compound of c. and cyanogen. The known c. cyanides are cupric cyanide, ${CuC_2N_2 \atop CuC_2N_2} > Cu + 5H_2O$, which occurs in greenish crystals, and cuprous cyanide (Ger., Kupfercyanür), $Cu_2C_2N_2 = CN-Cu-Cu-CN$, a white powder insoluble in water. [B, 4 (a, 24).]—C. dichromate. Fr., dichromate de cuivre. Ger., doppeltchromsaures Kupfer. It., bichromate di rame. Sp., bicromato de cobre. A substance, $CuCr_2O_7 + 2H_2O$, forming dark-brown deliquescent crystals. [B, 3.]—C. dioxide. Fr., dioxyde de cuivre. Ger., Kupferdioxyd. It., diossido di rame. Sp., dióxido de cobre. C. peroxide, cupric peroxide; a yellowish-brown substance, $CuO_2 + H_2O$, formed by the action of hydrogen dioxide on cupric hydroxide. [B, 3, 158 (a, 24).]—C. dipropargyl, C. dipropinyl. A yellow powder, $Cu_2C_6H_4 + 2H_2O$, explosive and inflammable, burning with a shower of sparks. [B, 3 (a, 24).]—C. ferricyanide. Fr., ferricyanure de cuivre. Ger., Ferridcyankupfer. It., ferricianuro di rame. Sp., ferricianuro de cobre. Cupric ferricyanide; a yellow powder, $Cu_3Fe_2(C_3N_3)_4$, insoluble in water and in dilute hydrochloric acid. [B, 4 (a, 24).]—C. fluoride. Fr., fluorure de cuivre. Ger., Fluorkupfer. It., fluoruro di rame. Sp., fluoruro de cobre. A compound of c. and fluorine. Two c. fluorides are known: Cuprous fluoride (Ger., Kupferfluorür), a red powder, Cu_2Fe_2, and cupric fluoride (Ger., Kupferfluorid), a blue crystalline substance, $CuFe_2 + 2H_2O$. [B, 3.]—C. formate. Fr., formiate de cuivre. Ger., ameisensaures Kupfer. It., formiato di rame. Sp., formiato de cobre. A body occurring as large blue, transparent crystals, soluble in water, and having the constitution $Cu(O.CHO)_2 + 4H_2O$. [B, 4 (a, 24).]—C. fulminate. Fr., fulminate de cuivre. Ger., Kupferfulminat. It., fulminato di rame. Sp., fulminato de cobre. Cupric fulminate, $C.Cu(NO_2)CN = CuC_2N_2O_2$, formed by the action of copper on a hot saturated solution of mercuric fulminate. [B, 4 (a, 24).]—C. glance. Native cuprous sulphide. [B, 158.]—C. hemioxide. Fr., protoxyde (ou oxydule) de cuivre. Ger., Kupferoxydul. It., ossidulo di rame. Sp., oxidulo de cobre. C. suboxide, cuprous oxide, red oxide of c., Cu_2O, occurring native as the minerals chalcotrichite and cuprite, often in transparent and ruby-red crystals, and obtained in the same state artificially. [B. 3, 158; Dana (a, 24).]—C. hydrate. Fr., hydrate de cuivre. Ger., Kupferhydrat. It., idrato di rame. Sp., hidrato de cobre. See C. hydroxide.—C. hydride. Fr., hydrure de cuivre. Ger., Kupferhydrür. It., idruro di rame. Sp., hidruro de cobre. A yellowish or dark-red substance, Cu_2H_2. [B, 3, 158 (a, 24).]—C. hydrocarbonate. Fr., hydrocarbonate de cuivre. Ger., kohlensaures Kupferhydrat. It., idrocarbonato di rame. Sp., hidrocarbonato de cobre. Basic c. carbonate. [a, 24.] See C. carbonate.—C. hydroxide. Fr., hydroxyde de cuivre. Ger., Kupferhydroxyd. It., idrossido di rame. Sp., hidróxido de cobre. A compound of c. and hydroxyl. Two such compounds are known: 1. Cuprous hydroxide, a bright-yellow substance, $Cu_8O_3(OH)_2$. 2. Cupric hydroxide, a light-blue substance, $Cu(OH)_2$. Both dissolve readily in an aqueous solution of ammonia. [B, 3 (a, 24).]—C. iodide. Fr., iodure de cuivre. Ger., Kupferjodür. It., ioduro di rame. Sp., ioduro de cobre. Cuprous iodide; a white crystalline powder, Cu_2I_2. [B, 3.]—C. methyl-amidovalerianate. A substance, $Cu(C_6H_3NO_2)_2 + 2H_2O$, forming blue, prismatic crystals. [A. Menozzi and C. Belloni, "Ann. di chim. e di farmacol.," Aug., 1886, p. 108 (B).]—C. monoxide. Fr., monoxyde de cuivre. Ger., Kupferoxyd. It., monossido di rame. Sp., monóxido de cobre. Cupric oxide, black oxide of c.; a substance, CuO, occurring native as melaconite, and obtainable artificially in the form of an amorphous, black, hygroscopic powder, which may by heating be converted into the crystalline state. It has been used as an external application for the removal of chronic indurations of the glands. [B, 3, 5, 158 (a, 24).]—C. nitrate. Fr., azotate de cuivre. Ger., salpetersaures Kupferoxyd. It., nitrato di rame. Sp., nitrato de cobre. Cupric nitrate; a substance, $Cu(NO_3)_2 + 3H_2O$, forming blue, deliquescent, prismatic crystals, readily soluble in water, and possessing caustic properties. There is also an insoluble basic nitrate, of a greenish color. [B, 3, 158 (a, 24).]—C. nitride. Fr., azoture de cuivre. Ger., Kupfernitrür. A dark-green substance, Cu_6N_2. [B, 3 (a, 24).]—C. nitroacetonitrile. See C. fulminate.—C. orthoarsenate. See C. arsenate.—C. orthophosphate. See C. phosphate.—C. oxide. Fr., oxyde de cuivre. Ger., Kupferoxyd, Kupferoxydul. It., ossido di rame. Sp., óxido de cobre. A compound of oxygen and c. [a, 24.] See C. tetrantoxide, C. hemioxide. C. monoxide, and C. dioxide.—C. oxyacetate. See C. subacetate.—C. oxychloride. Fr., oxychlorure de cuivre. Ger., basisches Kupferchlorid, braunschweiger Grün. It., ossicloruro di rame. Sp., oxicloruro de cobre. Basic cupric chloride; a compound of cupric oxide and cupric chloride. Several such compounds are known; among them are a blue substance, $(CuO)_2,CuCl_2 + 4H_2O$, and a green compound, $(CuO)_3,CuCl_2$, which occurs in the commercial Brunswick green. [B, 3.]—C. pentasulphide. A dark-brownish substance, CuS_5, formed by mixing solutions of c. sulphate and potassium pentasulphide. [B, 16.]—C. peroxide. Fr., peroxyde de cuivre. Ger., Kupferperoxyd. It., perossido di rame. Sp., peróxido de cobre. See C. dioxide.—C. phosphate. Fr., phosphate de cuivre. Ger., phosphorsaures Kupfer (oder Kupferoxyd). It., fosfato di rame. Sp., fosfato de cobre. A compound of c. and phosphoric acid. The normal orthophosphate of c. is a blue, crystalline substance, $Cu_3(PO_4)_2 + 3H_2O$. Several basic orthophosphates of c. are known, some occurring native as minerals, while others may be prepared artificially. [B, 3, 158 (a, 24).]—C. phosphide. Fr., phosphure de cuivre. Ger., Kupferphosphür. It., fosfuro di rame. Sp., fosfuro de cobre. A compound of c. and phosphorus. The c. phosphides are: 1. Cuprous phosphide (Ger., Kupferphosphür), Cu_6P_2, a brittle substance varying in color from black or gray to a silvery white, depending upon the temperature at which it is formed. 2. Cupric phosphide (Ger., Kupferphosphid), Cu_3P_2, a black powder, or a dark-green mass of metallic appearance. [B, 3.]—C. pyrothioarsenate. C. sulpharsenate; a dark-brown substance, $Cu_2As_2S_7$. [B, 2.]—C. pyrites. A double sulphide of c. and iron, found native. [B, 8.]—C. quadrantoxide. See C. tetranoxide.—C. salicylate. Fr., salicylate de cuivre. Ger., salicylsaures Kupferoxyd. It., solicilato di rame. Sp., salicilato de cobre. Normal c. salicylate, $Cu(C_7H_5O_3)_2 + 4H_2O$. It forms bluish-green acicular crystals, and, on heating, is converted into the dibasic c. salicylate. [B.]—C. silicate. Fr., silicate de cuivre. Ger., kieselsaures Kupfer. It., silicato di rame. Sp., silicato de cobre. A compound of c. and silicic acid. C. silicates of different composition are known, forming various minerals. [B, 3; Dana (a, 24).]—C. subacetate. Lat., cupri subacetas. Fr., sousacétate de cuivre [Fr. Cod.]. Ger., essigsaures Kupferoxydul. It., sottoacetato di rame. Sp., sub-acetato de cobre. Basic c. acetate; a compound of c. and acetic acid with c. oxide or hydroxide. As commonly used, verdigris; a mixture of the basic c. acetates in varying proportions, formerly official as cupric subacetate or ærugo. It is employed medicinally like c. sulphate. [B, 3, 5 (a, 24).]—C. suboxide. Fr., sous-oxyde de cuivre. Ger., Kupfersuboxyd. It., sottoossido di rame. Sp., sub-óxido de cobre. See C. hemioxide.—C. sulphantimonate. See C. thioantimonate.—C. sulpharsenate. See C. pyrothioarsenate.—C. sulpharsenite. See C. thioarsenite.—C. sulphate. Lat., cupri sulphas [U. S. Ph., Br. Ph.], cuprum sulphuricum [Ger. Ph.], sulfas cupricus [Fr. Cod.], cuprum vitriolatum. Fr., sulfate de cuivre. Ger., schwefelsaures Kupfer, Kupfersulfat. It., solfato di rame. Sp., sulfato de cobre. Blue vitriol, blue stone, cupric sulphate; a substance, $CuSO_4 + 5H_2O$, forming transparent, azure-blue triclinic crystals, of a disagreeable metallic taste; moderately soluble in water and insoluble in alcohol. When heated to 100° C., it loses 4 molecules of water of crystallization and forms a bluish-white powder, and, when heated to from 220° to 248° C., it loses all its water of crystallization and forms a very hygroscopic, white mass (anhydrous sulphate of c., dried sulphate of c.). The latter substance may also be obtained in the crystalline form by treating c. with concentrated sulphuric acid in the absence of atmospheric moisture. C. sulphate is irritant or somewhat escharotic, and, in dilute solution, stimulant and astringent. It is used internally in chronic dysentery and diarrhœa for its influence upon the gastro-intestinal mucous membrane, and is also given as an emetic in narcotic poisoning or to remove false membrane or foreign bodies from the larynx and œsophagus. Only small doses should be given internally, as it is an active poison. Externally it is used in ophthalmic inflammation, and is applied as an escharotic for destroying warts, etc., and to promote the cicatrization of ulcers. It is also used as an injection in gonorrhœa and leucorrhœa. [B, 3, 5, 158 (a, 24).)—C. sulphide. Fr., sulfure de cuivre. Ger., Schwefelkupfer. It., solfuro di rame. Sp., sulfuro de cobre. Cuprous sulphide ; a compound of c. and sulphur. There are known : 1. Cuprous sulphide (Ger., Kupfersulfür). Cu_2S, a substance occurring in nature under the form of tabular or prismatic crystals of metallic lustre, and obtainable artificially as octahedral crystals. 2. Cupric sulphide (Ger., Kupfersulfid), a substance, CuS, found native as indigo copper, or covellin, in soft, bluish-black hexagonal plates and spheroidal masses. 3. C. pentasulphide (q. v.). [B, 3, 158 (a, 24).]—C. sulphite. Fr., sulfite de cuivre. Ger., schwefligsaures Kupfer. It., solfito di rame. Sp., sulfito de cobre. A compound of c. and sulphurous acid. There are known : 1. Cuprous sulphite, a body forming red, prismatic crystals of the composition $Cu_2So_3 + H_2O$. 2. Cupric cupro-sulphite, of the constitution $CuSo_3.Cu_2So_2+2H_2O$. [B, 3.] See also C. and ammonium sulphite.—C. sulphocacodylate. See C. thiocacodylate.—C. sulphocyanate. See C. thiocyanate.—C. tartrate. Fr., tartrate de cuivre. Ger., Kupfertartrat, weinsaures Kupfer. It., tartrato di rame. Sp., tartrato de cobre. A crystalline body having the composition $C_2H_2(OH)_2\left\langle\begin{matrix}CO,O\\CO,O\end{matrix}\right\rangle Cu = C_4H_4O_6Cu$. [B, 4 (a, 24).]—C. tetrantoxide. C. quadrantoxide ; an olive-green substance, Cu_4O, oxidizing quickly when exposed to the air. [B, 3, 158 (a, 24).]—C. thioantimonate. Fr., thioantimoniate (ou sulfantimoniate) de cuivre. Ger., thioantimonsaures Kupfer, schwefelantimonsaures Kupfer. It., tioantimoniato (o solfantimoniato) di rame. Sp., tioantimoniato (ó sulfantimoniato) de cobre. C. sulphantimonate ; a compound having the formula $Cu_3(SbS_4)_2$. [B, 2.]—C. thioarsenite. Fr., thioarsénite (ou sulfarsénite) de cuivre. Ger., thioarsenigsaures Kupfer, schwefelarsenigsaures Kupfer, Kupferthioarsenit. It., tioarsenito (o solfarsenito) di rame. Sp., tioarsenito (ó sulfarsenito) de cobre. C. sulpharsenite ; a compound of c. and thioarsenious acid. Normal c. thioarsenite is a light-brown, flaky substance, $Cu_3(AsS_3)_2$. Other c. thioarsenites of more complex structure are known. [B, 2, 158 (a, 24).]—C. thiocacodylate. Cuprous thiocacodylate ; a bright-yellow powder of loose texture, insoluble in water, alcohol, or ether, $2As(CH_3)_2.Cu_2S_4$. [B, 2.]—C. thiocyanate. Ger., Schwefelcyankupfer, thiocyansaures Kupfer. C. sulphocyanate ; a compound, $Cu(SCN)_2$, insoluble in water. [B, 4 (a, 24).]—C. vanadate. Fr., vanadate de cuivre. Ger., vanadinsaures Kupfer. A compound of c. and vanadium pentoxide. Several such compounds are known. The orthovanadate, $Cu_3(Vo_4)_2 + H_2O$, constitutes the mineral volborthite. [B, 3, 158 (a, 24).]—C. vitriol. Lat., vitriolum cupri. Fr., couperose bleu. Ger., Kupfervitriol. It., vitriolo di rame. Sp., vitriolo azul. See C. sulphate.—Dibasic c. salicylate. Ger., überbasisch-salicylsaures Kupferoxyd. A light yellowish-green powder, $CuC_7H_4O_3+4H_2O$, almost insoluble in water, produced by heating the normal c. salicylate or treating it with ether. [B.]—Indigo c. See C. sulphide.—Liniment of subacetate of c. Fr., liniment cuivreux, éléolé d'acétate de cuivre. A liniment made by triturating 3 or 4 grains of c. subacetate with 1 oz. of olive-oil. [B, 97 (a, 21).]—Ointment of subacetate of c. See Unguentum ÆRUGINIS.—Ointment of sulphate of c. Of Augustin, a preparation used as a remedy for syphilitic ulcers ; made by mixing 1 part of c. sulphate with 16 parts of lard. [B, 97 (a, 21).]—Oxymel of subacetate of c. See Linimentum ÆRUGINIS.—Pills of subcarbonate of c. and of ammonia. A preparation official in the Ferr. Ph., 1825 ; made by mixing 2 grains of solid carbonate of c. and ammonium and 1 scruple of licorice with a sufficient quantity of syrup, and dividing into 8 pills ; used in certain fevers. [B, 97 (a, 21).]—Pills of subsulphate of c. and of ammonia. See Pilulæ ammoniareti CUPRI.—Purple c. See ERUBESCITE.—Rademacher's tincture of c. acetate. See Tincture of c. acetate.—Red c. oxide. Fr., oxyde rouge de cuivre. Ger., rothes Kupferoxydul. It., ossido rosso di rame. Sp., óxido rojo de cobre. Cuprous oxide. [a, 24.] See C. hemioxide.—Sesquibasic c. acetate. See under C. acetate.—Solution of acetate of c. A solution of c. subacetate, in fine powder, in ½ oz. of acetic acid and a sufficiency of distilled water. The acid is dissolved in ½ fl. oz. of the water, and the c. subacetate is digested in the mixture at a temperature not exceeding 100° C., with repeated stirring, the heat being continued until a dry residue is obtained. This is digested in 4 fl. oz. of boiling distilled water, with the addition of enough more of the water to make up the solution to 5 fl. oz. It is then filtered. [B, 5 (a, 24).—Solution of c. ammonio-sulphate. A solution of crystals of c. sulphate in distilled water, with ammonia added till the precipitate first formed is nearly dissolved. The solution is then filtered, and distilled water added. [B, 5 (a, 24).]—Solution of subsulphate of c. and of ammonia. See Liquor CUPRI ammoniati.—Test solution of c. sulphate. A solution prepared by dissolving 1 part of selected crystals of c. sulphate in 10 parts of distilled water. [B, 5 (a, 24).]—Test solution of c. ammonio-sulphate. A solution prepared by adding water of ammonia in drops to test solution of copper sulphate until the precipitate is nearly all dissolved, and filtering. [B, 5 (a, 24).] Cf. Liquor CUPRI ammoniati.—Tincture of c. A preparation official in the Dutch Ph., 1805, Niemann's Notes ; made by fusing 1 part of c. sulphate with 2 parts of ammonium chloride over a very slow fire, stirring the mass with an iron rod till it has acquired a blackish hue, pulverizing it on becoming cool, and pouring upon it a sufficient quantity of spirit of ammonia. [B, 97 (a, 21).]—Tincture of c. acetate. See Tinctura CUPRI acetici Rademacheri.—Tincture of sulphate of c. See Tinctura CUPRI sulphurici.

COPPERAS, n. Ko^{2}p′u^{5}r-a^{2}s. Lat., cupri rosa. Fr., couperose. Ger., Kuperose. It., cupparosa. Sp., caparrosa. A term formerly synonymous with vitriol, now restricted to green vitriol (ferrous sulphate). [B, 81 ; L, 77.] See IRON sulphate.—Blue c. See COPPER sulphate.—Green c. See C.—White c. See ZINC sulphate.

COPPERNOSE, n. Ko^{2}p′u^{5}r-noz. See ROSACEA.

COPPERY, adj. Ko^{2}p′u^{5}r-i^2. Lat., cupreus. Fr., cuivreux. Ger., kupferig. Brownish-red with a metallic lustre. [B, 19.]

COPRA, n. The kernels of the cocoa-nut broken into small pieces and dried in the sun. From them the oil of cocoa is obtained by pressure. [B, 77, 121 (a, 24).]

COPRACRASIA (Lat.), COPRACRATIA (Lat.), n's f. Ko^{2}p-ra^{2}k(ra^{3}k)-raz(ra^{3}s)′i^2-a^3, -rash(ra^{3}t)′i(e)′a^3. From κόπρος, fæces, and ἀκρασία or ἀκρατεια, want of control. Fr., coprocrasie. Ger., unwillkürlicher Kothabgang. Involuntary defecation. [A, 322.]

COPRACRATUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}p-ra^{2}k(ra^{3}k)-ra^{2}t(ra^{3}t)-u^{3}s-(u^{4}s). From κόπρος, fæces, and ἀκρατής, powerless. Unable to restrain the evacuation of the bowels. [A, 322.]

COPRÆMIA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}p-rem′(ra^3′e^{2}m)-i^2-a^3. From κόπρος, fæces, and αἷμα, blood. Of R. Barnes, a condition of the system attributed to the prolonged retention of fæces and the absorption of some of their constituents, including bile, into the blood ; characterized by loss of appetite, sometimes vomiting, and an earthy, dirty, yellow tinge of the skin. [A, 204.]

COPRAGOGUE, adj. Ko^{2}p′ra^2-go^{2}g. Gr., κοπραγωγός (from κόπρος, fæces, and ἄγειν, to lead). Lat., copragogus. Fr., c. Ger., kothentleerend. Producing the discharge of fæcal matter ; as a n. (Gr., κοπραγωγόν ; Lat., copragogum ; Fr., c. ; Ger., kothentleerende Mittel), a cathartic. [L, 94 (a, 21).]

COPRAH, n. See COPRA.

COPRANON (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}p′ra^{2}n(ra^{3}n)-o^{2}n. Gr., κόπρανον. Fæces. [Hippocrates (A, 387).]

COPRECCRITICUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}p-re^{2}k-kri^{2}t′i^{2}k-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κόπρος, fæces, and ἐκκριτικός, excretive. See COPRAGOGUE.

COPREMESIA (Lat.), COPREMESIS (Lat.), n's f. Ko^{2}p-re^{2}m-ez(e^{2}s)′i^2-a^3, -re^{2}m′e^{2}s-i^{2}s. Gen., copremes′iæ, -emes′eos (-em′-esis). From κόπρος, fæces, and ἐμεσία or ἔμεσις, vomiting. Fr., coproémèse. Ger., Kothbrechen. Stercoraceous vomiting. [A, 322.]

COPREPISCHESIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}p-re^{2}p-i^{2}s′ke^{2}s(ch^{2}e^{2}s)-i^{2}s. Gen., coprepisches′eos (pisch′esis). From κόπρος, fæces, and ἐπίσχεσις, obstruction. Fr., coprépischèse. Ger., Zurückhaltung des Kothes. See COPROSTASIS.

COPRICUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}p′ri^{2}k-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κοπρικός. Fæcal. [A, 322.]

COPRIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}p′ri^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., coprides. A family of the Coleoptera. [L, 292.]

COPRIEMETOS (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}p-ri^2-e^{2}m′e^{2}t-o^{2}s. From κόπριον (= κόπρος), fæces, and ἔμετος, vomiting. See COPREMESIS.

COPRIN (Fr.), adj. and n. Kop-ra^{2}n^2. See COPRINUS.

COPRINUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}p-ri(re)′nu^{3}s(un^{4}s). From κόπρος, fæces. Fr., coprin. 1. Pertaining to fæces or to dunghills. 2. As a n., of Persoon, a tribe (of Fries, a genus) of small dark-spored Fungi. They are numerous on dung-heaps or richly manured soils, developing and decaying in a few hours. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]—C. atramentarius (Fries). Fr., agaric deliquescent. An edible species yielding a dark juice which has been used as ink (encre de Chine). [B, 19, 121, 173 (a, 24).]—C. bolbitius. A species having salmon-colored spores. [B, 19 (a, 24).]—C. comatus. A species sometimes eaten when young and considered delicate and wholesome. [B, 19, 71, 105, 149 (a, 24).]—C. coronatus (Fl. Dan.). A species edible before the opening of the volva. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—C. fimetarius, C. plicatus [Persoon]. See C. atramentarius.

COPRIOLA (It.), COPRIOLE (It.), n's. Kop-re-o′la^3, -la. The Plantago coronopus. [B, 88, 121 (a, 24).]

COPRIPENTOLE (It.), n. Ko-pre-pe^{2}n-to′la. The genus Nymphœa. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COPRIVOROUS, adj. Ko^{2}p-ri^{2}v′or-u^{3}s. Lat., coprivorus (from κόπρος, fæces, and vorare, to devour). See COPROPHAGOUS.

COPROBIOUS, adj. Ko^{2}p-rob′i^2-u^{3}s. Lat., coprobius (from κόπρος, fæces, and βίος, the mode of life). Fr., coprobie. Living upon manure. [L, 41.]

COPROCRITICUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}p-ro(ro^3)-kri^{2}t′i^{2}k-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See COPRECCRITICUS.

COPRODÆUM. Ko^{2}p-ro(ro^3)-de′(da^3′e^2)-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Of the embryo, the innermost cloacal chamber. [Gadow, "Proc. of the Roy. Soc.," March 25, 1886 (L).]

COPRODOCHEUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}p-ro(ro^3)-do^{2}k(do^{2}ch^2)-e-(a)′u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Gr., κοπροδοχεῖον. Fr., coprodochéon. Ger., Nachteimer, Stechbecken, Kloake, Mistgrube. A receptacle for fæces. [A, 322.]

COPROEMESIS (Lat.), COPROEMETUS (Lat.), n's f. and m. Ko^{2}p-ro(ro^3)-e^{2}m′e^{2}s-i^{2}s, -e^{2}t-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See COPREMESIS.

COPROLALIA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}p-ro(ro^3)-la(la^3)′li^{2}a^3. From κόπρος, filth, and λαλία, talkativeness. Fr., coprolalie. Ger., Coprolalie, Kothreden. Indecency of speech as a manifestation of disease. [De la Tourette, "Arch. de neurol.," Jan., 1885, p. 19.]

COPROLITES [W. Buckland], n. pl. Ko^{2}p′ro-lits. From κόπρος, fæces, and λίθος, a stone. Fossil bodies of varying shapes, the petrified excreta of animals. [B, 77 (a, 24) ; L, 14, 121.]

COPROLITH, n. Ko^{2}p′ro-li^{2}th. Lat., coprolithus (from κόπρος, fæces, and λίθος, a stone). Fr., coprolithe. Ger., Kothstein. A fæcal or other intestinal concrement. [A, 322.]

COPROPHAGOUS, adj. Ko^{2}p-ro^{2}f′a^{2}g-u^{3}s. Lat., coprophagus. Fr., coprophage. Ger., kothfressend (1st def.), kothessend (2d def.). 1. Living normally upon fæcal matter (said of certain animals). [L, 182.] 2. Addicted to morbid coprophagy. [A, 301.]

COPROPHAGY, n. Ko^{2}p-ro^{2}f'a^{2}j-i^2. Lat., coprophagia (from κόπρος, fæces, and φαγεῖν, to eat). Fr., coprophagie. Ger., Coprophagie, Kothessen. The eating of fæces (a manifestation of some forms of insanity and of hysteria). [A, 301.]

COPROPHILOUS, adj. Ko^{2}p-ro^{2}f'i^{2}l-u^{3}s. Lat., coprophilus (from κόπρος, fæces, and φιλεῖν, to love). Fr., coprophile. Growing or living upon excrement. [L, 41.]

COPROPHORESIS (Lat.), COPROPHORIA (Lat.), n's f. Ko^{2}p-ro(ro^3)-for(fo^{2}r)-es(as)'i^{2}s, -for(fo^{2}r)'i^2-a^3. From κόπρος, fæces, and φορεῖν, to bring. Fr., coprophorie. Ger., Ausleerung des Koths. Purgation by the bowels. [A, 322.]

COPROPHORUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}p-ro^{2}f'o^{2}r-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Causing coprophoresis. [A, 322.]

COPROPLANESIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}p-ro(ro^3)-pla^{2}n(pla^{3}n)-e-(a)'si^{2}s. Gen., coproplanes'eos (-is). From κόπρος, fæces, and πλάνησις, a leading astray. Fr., coproplanèse. Ger., Verirrung (oder Austretung) des Kothes. Escape of the intestinal contents by an unnatural channel, such as a fistula. [A, 322.]

COPROPOIESIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}p-ro(ro^3)-poi-e(a)'si^{2}s. Gen., copropoies'eos (-is). From κόπρος, fæces, and ποιεῖν, to make. Fr., copropoièse. Ger., Kothbereitung. The physiological process of the formation of fæces. [A, 322.]

COPROPOIETICUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}p-ro(ro^3)-poi-e^{2}t(at)'i^{2}k-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Pertaining to copropoiesis. [A, 322.]

A supplementary coraco-brachialis muscle, arising from the coracoid process and inserted, at the level of the neck of the humerus, into the terminal tendon of the subscapularis; found by L. Testus in a Bushman. ["Union méd.," July 22, 1884, p. 129.]—Petit c.-b. surnuméraire (Fr.). See Coracobrachialis accessorius.

CORACOBRACHIALIS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}r-a^{2}k(a^{3}k)-o(o^2)-brak-(bra^{3}ch^2)-i^2-a(a^3)'lis. See Coraco-brachial; as a n. (Fr., coraco-brachial, coraco-huméral; Ger., Rabenmuskel, Rabenschnabeloberarmmuskel, Rabenarmmuskel, Hakenarmmuskel; It., muscolo coraco-brachiale; the coracoideus or coracobrachicus of Riolan, the perforatus Casserii of Winslow, the levator humeri internus of Arnold), a muscle arising from the apex of the coracoid process of the scapula and inserted into the middle of the inner side of the shaft of the humerus. It raises the arm and draws it forward and inward. [L, 31, 142, 332.]—C. accessorius. Fr., petit coraco-brachial surnuméraire. An anomalous muscle arising from the coracoid process of the scapula and inserted into the lesser tuberosity of the humerus or into the capsular ligament of the shoulder joint. [L, 31, 332.]—C. brevis. See C. superior and C. accessorius.—C. longus. That portion of the c. muscle which is inserted into the ligamentum intermusculare mediale, or a band extending from the common tendon of origin to the internal condyle of the humerus. [L, 215.] Cf. Internal brachial ligament. [L, 332.]—C. medius. See C.—C. minor. See C. accessorius.—C. proprius. See C.—C. secundus [Gruber]. See C. accessorius.—C. superior. Syn.: rotator humeri. That portion of the c. muscle which is inserted into the humerus near the lesser tuberosity. [L, 142, 215.]

CORACOCAPSULARIS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}r-a^{2}k(a^{3}k)-o(o^2)-ka^{2}p-(ka^{3}p)-su^{2}l(su^{4}l)-a(a^3)'ri^{2}s. Pertaining to the coracoid process of the scapula and to the capsular ligament of the shoulder joint; as a n., of Wood, an anomalous muscle arising from the coracoid process and inserted into the capsule of the shoulder joint; also, of Macalister (the deltoideus profundus, depressor tendinis subscapularis [Gruber], or tensor capsulæ), an anomalous muscle arising from the humerus, below the lesser tuberosity, and inserted into the capsule of the shoulder joint. [L, 31, 341.]

CORACOCERVICALIS [Krause] (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}r-a^{2}k(a^{3}k)-o(o^2)-su^{5}r(ke^{2}r)-vi^2(we)-ka(ka^3)'li^{2}s. From κόραξ (see Corax), and cervix, the neck. Pertaining to the coracoid process of the scapula and to the cervical region; as a n., an anomalous muscle (the musculus Krausii), arising from the coracoid process and passing upward and forward to be lost in the cervical fascia. [L, 31, 341.]

CORACO-CLAVICULAR, adj. Ko^{2}r-a^{2}k-o-kla^{2}v-i^{2}k'u^{2}l-a^{3}r. For deriv., see Corax and Clavicula. Lat., coracoclavicularis. Fr., coraco-claviculaire. It., coraco-claviculare. Pertaining to the coracoid process of the scapula and to the clavicle. [L, 31.]

CORACOCLAVICULARIS [Koster] (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}r-a^{2}k-(a^{3}k)-o(o^2)-kla^2(kla^3)-vi^{2}k(wi^{2}k)-u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-a(a^3)'ri^{2}s. See Coraco-clavicular; as a n., an anomalous muscle (the omoclavicularis) arising from the clavicle and inserted into the coracoid process or the upper margin of the scapula. [L, 332.]—C. anticus. An anomalous muscle arising from the clavicle and the capsular ligament of the sterno-clavicular articulation and inserted into the coracoid process of the scapula. [L, 31, 332.]—C. posticus. See C.—C. singularis [Gruber]. See C. anticus.

CORACOCOSTALIS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}r-a^{2}k(a^{3}k)-o(o^2)-ko^{2}st-a-(a^3)'li^{2}s. From κόραξ (see Corax), and costa, a rib. Pertaining to the coracoid process of the scapula and to the ribs. [L, 31.]

CORACO-CUBITAL, adj. Ko^{2}r''a^{2}k-o-ku^{2}b'i^{2}t-a^{2}l. From κόραξ (see Corax), and κύβιτον, the forearm. Lat., coracocubitalis. Fr., c.-c. It., coraco-cubitale. Pertaining to the coracoid process of the scapula and to the forearm; as a n., see Coracoradialis. [Gérard (L, 13).]

CORACODES (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}r-a^{2}k(a^{3}k)-od'ez(as). See Coracoid.

CORACO-EPICORACOID, adj. Ko^{2}r''a^{2}k-o-e^{2}p-i^2-ko^{2}r'a^{2}k-oid. Relating to or connected with the coracoid and epicoracoid bones. [L, 7.]

CORACOGLENOIDALIS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}r-a^{2}k(a^{3}k)-o(o^2)-glen(glan)-o(o^2)-i^{2}d(ed)-a(a^3)'li^{2}s. From κόραξ (see Corax), and γλήνη, a glenoid cavity. Fr., coráco-glénoïdien. Pertaining to the coracoid process of the scapula and to the region of the glenoid cavity. [L, 31.]

CORACOGLENORADIALIS (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}r''a^{2}k(a^{3}k)-o-(o^3)-glen(glan)'''o(o^3)-ra(ra^3)-di^2-a(a^3)'li^{2}s. See Biceps flexor cubiti.

CORACOGNATHÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}r-a^{2}k(a^{3}k)-o^{2}g-na(na^3)'-the(tha^3-e^2). From κόραξ, a raven, and γνάθος, the jaw. A section of the Oscines, having the palate bones broad and flattened, with elongated outer angles developed into a vertical plate. [a, 22.]

CORCULUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}rk'u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Dim. of cor, the heart. Fr., corcule. Ger., Herzchen, Keimchen, Keim. It., germe. Sp., ovario, brote gérmen. Lit., a little heart ; in botany, the embryo, also the small axis of growth in such dicotyledonous embryos as the walnut. [B, 1, 19, 121 (a, 24).]—C. germinis [Linnæus]. See Germinal SPOT.

CORD, n. Ko^{2}rd. Gr., χορδή (lit., an intestine ; hence, catgut). Lat., chorda, funis. Fr., corde, cordon, lien. Ger., Strang, Saite, Schnur. It., corda. Sp., cuerda. 1. A string-like structure ; in common parlance, a tendon. 2. In botany, see FUNICULUS and CHORDA pistillaris.—Axis c. Ger., Axenstrang, Axenplatte [Remak]. See Primitive STREAK.—Bioplasson c. Of Heitzmann, a coarse net-work formed by branching cells, especially the reticulum of the umbilical cord. [J, 26.]—Contractile c. Of Sars, the gymnocaulus of a polyzoon. [L, 121.]—C's of Müller. See Müllerian DUCTS.—Dorsal c. Fr., corde dorsale. See NOTOCHORD.—Elastic c. Elastic fibre ; of Boll, a single elastic fibre which was supposed to be developed from a plate-like cell. [J, 42.]—False vocal c's. See Superior vocal BANDS.—Follicular c's. See Lymphoid c's and Lymph TUBES.—Genital c. Ger., Genital-strang. Thiersch's term for a cord-like structure in the embryo, formed by the fusion of the two Wolffian ducts and their incorporation with the two Müllerian ducts. [A, 5.]—Great gangliated c. A nervous c., consisting of a series of ganglia united by short c's. There is one on each side of the spinal column reaching from the base of the skull to the coccyx. They are connected above with nerves which enter the brain, and terminate below in a loop on the sacrum. [C ; L, 142.]—Gubernacular c. A fibrous structure that forms a part of the gubernaculum testis, being attached inferiorly to the lower part of the scrotum, and surrounding the processus vaginalis above. [A, 5.]—Hepatic c's. See Hepatic COLUMNS.—Intervascular-tissue c's [Billroth]. The cord-like processes of the parenchyma of the spleen, between the plexus of the splenic veins. [L, 31.]—Ligamentous c. of Weitbrecht. Fr., corde ligamenteuse de Weitbrecht. The orbicular ligament of the elbow. [A, 301.]—Lumbo-sacral c. A trunk formed by the anterior branch of the fifth lumbar nerve and a portion of the fourth lumbar nerve, which gives origin to the greater part of the superior lumbar nerve. [C ; L, 142.]—Lymphatic c. A cord-like swelling of a lymphatic vessel running from an infected part, as from the seat of an initial syphilitic lesion. [E. B. Bronson, "N. Y. Med. Jour.," March 24, 1888, p. 309.] Cf. BUBONULUS.—Lymphoid c's. Fr., cordons folliculaires. Ger., Markstränge, Markschläuche, Follicularstränge, Lymphröhren. The anastomosing, cord-like masses of the proper glandular substance, pulp or parenchyma of lymphatic glands. [J, 30.] See Lymph TUBES.—Medullary c. See Medullary TUBE.—Pistillary c. See CHORDA pistillaris.—Sonorous c's. Fr., cordes sonores. The membranous semicircular canals of the internal ear. [A, 301.]—Spermatic c. Lat., funiculus spermaticus. Fr., cordon spermatique. Ger., Samenstrang. It., cordone spermatica. Sp., cordón espermático. A cord-like structure made up of the vas deferens, the spermatic artery and veins, lymphatics, nerves, and connective tissue. It begins at the internal abdominal ring, passes through the inguinal canal, and terminates in the scrotum, at the back part of the testicle, by the distribution of its component parts to the different structures of the testicle and scrotum. [L, 142, 172.] —Spinal c. Lat., medulla spinalis. Fr., moelle épinière. Ger., Rückenmark. It., corda spinale. Sp., cuerda espinal. The myelon, or portion of the cerebro-spinal axis below the medulla oblongata. It is about 40 ctm. (18 in.) long, and is contained within the vertebral canal, being limited above by the foramen magnum and below by the body of the first lumbar vertebra. It terminates below in the filum terminale. [K.]—Testicular c. See Spermatic c.—True vocal c's. Fr., vraies cordes vocales. See Inferior vocal BANDS.—Tympanic c. See CHORDA tympani.—Umbilical c. Lat., funis umbilicalis, funiculus umbilicalis. Fr., cordon ombilical. Ger., Nabelstrang, Nabelschnur. It., funicolo, cordone ombelicale. Sp., cordón umbilical. 1. The navel-string ; a thick, flexible c. connecting the fœtus, at the umbilicus, with the placenta ; consisting of the umbilical arteries, the umbilical vein, and a tough, gelatinous mass (the gelatin of Wharton) serving to support and bind the vessels together. 2. In botany, the delicate filament connecting the placenta with the chalaza of the seed. [B, 1 (a, 24).]—Vertebral c's. See Protovertebral COLUMNS.—Vocal c's. See Vocal BANDS.

CORDA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}rd'a^3. See CHORDA.

CORDAITACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}rd-a^3-i^{2}t-a(a^3)'se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Of Engler, the single order of the Cordaitinæ, comprising only fossil genera. [B, 245.]

CORDAITEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}rd-a^3-i^{2}t'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cordaitées. Of Grand'Eury, a group of fossil plants allied to the Coniferæ. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORDAITINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko²rd-a³-i²t-i(e)′ne(na³-e²). A class of gymnosperms intermediate in botanical characters between the Cycadinæ and the Coniferinæ, consisting of the order Cordaitaceæ. [B, 245.]

CORDATE, adj. Ko²rd′at. Lat., cordatus (from cor, the heart). Fr., cordiforme. Ger., herzförmig. Heart-shaped leaves, etc., having a notched base, with the sides of the notch convex, as in the heart of a playing card. [B, 1, 19 (a, 24).]

CORDATO-HASTATE, adj. Ko²rd-at″o-ha²st′at. Lat., cordatohastatus. Cordate and hastate. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]

CORDATO-OVATE, adj. Ko²rd-at″o-o′vat. Of a form between cordate and ovate. [B, 19 (a, 24).]

CORDATO-SAGITTATE, adj. Ko²rd-at″o-sa²j′i²t-at. Of a form between cordate and sagittate. [B, 19.]

CORDE (Fr.), n. Kord. See Cord, Chorda, and Chordee.—C. à violon. The genus Periploca and the Cuscuta americana. [B, 121, 173 (a, 24).]—C. colique transverse. F. Glénard's term for a variety of the epigastric pulsation of nervous dyspepsia, characterized by a transverse cord-like extension of the impulse, due to its communication to the overlying transverse colon. ["Lyon méd.," April 5, 1885, p. 492.]—C. condylo-coronoïdienne. The distance in a straight line from the external extremity of the condyle to the summit of the coronoid process of the inferior maxilla. [L, 143.]—C's contournées. The chordulæ contortæ. [L, 7.]—C. de farcin. Of the veterinarians, a cord-like engorgement of the subcutaneous lymphatics. [A, 301.]—C's de Ferrein. See Vocal bands.—C's de lait. A popular expression for a cord-like distension of the milk-ducts.—C. de Weitbrecht. See Ligamentous cord of Weitbrecht.—C. d'Hippocrate. See Tendo Achillis.—C. dorsale. See Notochord.—C. du ligament cervical. In quadrupeds, an upward prolongation of the cervical ligament, attached to the occipital protuberance. [A, 301.]—C. du tambour, C. du tympan. See Chorda tympani.—C. frontale. The distance in a straight line between the frontal point and the bregma. ["Rev. d'anthropol.," 1876, p. 410 (L).]—C. gonio-symphysienne. The distance in a straight line between the gonion and the symphyseal joint. ["Rev. d'anthropol.," 1876, p. 537 (L).]—C. musculaire. A cord-like prominence of a muscle or a part of a muscle, due to a special morbid excitability of its fibres. [Hardy, "Union méd.," Jan. 10, 1885, p. 61.]—C. vocales. See Vocal bands.—C's vocales inférieures. See Inferior vocal bands.—C's vocales supérieures. See Superior vocal bands.

CORDÉ (Fr.), adj. Kor-da. 1. Cord-like; of the veterinarians, showing a transverse cord-like prominence formed by one of the abdominal muscles (a sign of abdominal pain or the result of emaciation). 2. Complicated with chordee (said of gonorrhœa). 3. (Improperly) heart-shaped. [A, 301.]

CORDÉAC (Fr.), n. Kor-da-a²k. A place in the department of Isère, France, where there is a cold sulphurous spring. [A. 385.]

CORDEAU (Fr.), n. Kor-do. See Acus (4th def.) and Amussis.

CORDELÉ (Fr.), adj. Kor-de²-la. See Funiculosus.

CORDELIÈRE (Fr.), n. Kord-e²l-e-e²r. The Amarantus caudatus. [B, 173 (a, 24).]

CORD-GRASS, n. Ko²rd′gra²s. The Spartina stricta. [B, 275 (a, 24).]

CORDIA (Lat.), n. f. Ko²rd′i²-a³. Of Linnæus, a genus of trees and shrubs of the Boragineæ, tribe Cordieæ. [B, 19, 42, 121 (a, 24).]—C. abyssinica. An Abyssinian species, employed like C. myxa. [B, 19.]—C. africana. See C. myxa.—C. angustifolia [West]. Fr., monjoli de Curaçao. A West Indian variety. The fruit is acid and edible. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. beurreria [Linnæus]. The Ehretia beurreria of R. Brown. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. Boissieri [De Candolle]. A Mexican species, now known to furnish the so-called anacahuite wood, formerly much used in decoction, in phthisis. According to Buchner, the wood contains considerable calcium oxalate, but no organic proximate principle. [B, 5, 121, 195.] Cf. Anacahuite.—C. calococca [Linnæus]. Fr., c. à coques, bois à chique. A species indigenous to Jamaica. The fruit is used as a pectoral, and the natives employ it and the root and leaves, boiled in palm-oil, for cutaneous diseases. The fruit is considered by them an aphrodisiac, and they obtain a glue from the bark. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. cerdana [Linnæus]. A species indigenous to Peru. The leaves and bark are used like garlic. [L, 30.]—C. chinensis [Lamarck]. A Chinese species. The acid and astringent fruit is used in urinary diseases. [B, 180.]—C. crenata. A species indigenous to Egypt and Abyssinia. It is the κοκκυμηλέα of Theophrastus. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. domestica [Roth]. See C. myxa.—C. ehretioides [Lamarck]. See C. calococca.—C. globosa. The gout-tea of the West Indies. The leaves are used in baths for dropsy and skin diseases. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. guianensis. A species indigenous to Guiana: used as an application to tumors and painful limbs. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. juglandifolia. See C. sebestena.—C. latifolia [Roxburgh]. Beng., buro buhovari. The broad-leaved slpistan; an East Indian species. The young fruits are pickled and eaten. The fruit is pectoral and astringent. [B, 172, 275 (a, 24).]—C. Loureiri [Römer and Schultes]. Fr., monjoli de Chine. A species indigenous to China; employed as a diuretic. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. mixa [Linnæus]. See C. myxa.—C. myxa [Linnæus], C. obliqua [Willdenow], C. officinalis [Lamarck]. Fr., sebastia domestique. Ger., schwarze Cordie, schwarzer Brustbeerbaum. The περσέα of Hippocrates and Dioscorides; a species indigenous to the East Indies, but cultivated in Arabia and Egypt. The fruit, a fleshy berry about 1 inch long and shaped like a plum, was once official in Europe as fructus sebestenæ and jujubæ nigræ, and was used in pectoral complaints. The powdered seeds, mixed with oil, are used by the natives in ringworm; the bark is considered a mild tonic in Java. [B, 172, 173, 180, 275 (a, 24).]—C. pellita [Willdenow]. Fr., herbe à chiques. The Tournefortia hirsutissima. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. retusa [Vahl]. The Ehretia buxifolia. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. rotundifolia [Ruiz and Pavón.] Fr., c. à feuilles rondes. A Peruvian species. A decoction of the leaves is employed in ophthalmia. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. sebestenia [Linnæus], C. speciosa [Willdenow]. Fr., bois de chik, bois de rapé, bois de roses, sébestier. A species indigenous to the West Indies. The fruit, called sebestenis, is used in Egypt as a laxative. It is also made into a confection. The tree furnishes a glue. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. tetrandra [Linnæus]. A species indigenous to Peru. The fruit is edible. [L, 30.]

CORDIACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko²rd-i²-a(a³)′se²(ke²)-e(a³-e²). Fr., cordiacées. A group of plants, united to the Borraginaceæ by Adanson and A. L. Jussieu, but made by R. Brown and many others a distinct order. De Candolle makes it a division of the Borraginaceæ, and subdivides it into three groups—Cordieæ, Heliotropieæ, and Tournefortieæ. It corresponds to the Cordieæ of Bentham and Hooker. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORDIAL, adj. Ko²rd′ya²l. Lat., cordialis (from cor, the heart). Fr., c. Ger., herzstärkend. It., cordiale. Sp., c. Acting as a stimulant or tonic to the heart and the stomach; warming; exhilarating; as a n., a preparation so acting. [A, 301.]—Brodum's c., Brodum's nervous c. Of Paris, a preparation containing the tinctures of gentian, calumba, cardamom, and cinchona, compound spirit of lavender, and wine of iron. CORE (Lat.), n. f. Kor(ko^{2}r)'e(a). Gen., cor'es. Gr., κόρη. The pupil of the eye (originally, the eyeball). [A, 325, 387.]

COREA (Port.), n. Kor'a-a^{3}. The Coris monspeliensis. [B, 88, 121 (a, 24).]

CORE CORE, n. In Chili, the Geranium columbinum. [B, 88.]

CORECTASIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}k'ta^{2}s(ta^{3}s)-i^{2}s. Gen., corectas'eos (-ec'tasis). From κόρη, the pupil, and ἔκτασις, dilatation. Dilatation of the pupil. [A, 322.]

CORECTENIA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}k-ten(te^{2}n)'i^{2}-a^{3}, -ten(te^{2}n)-i-(e)'a^{3}. From κόρη, the pupil, and ἐκτενία (= ἐκτένεια), extension. Enlargement of the pupil by prolapse of the iris through a wound in the cornea. [F.]

CORECTODIALYSIS (Lat.), CORECTOMIA (Lat.), CORECTOMODIALYSIS (Lat.), n's f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}k-to(to^{2})-di(di^{2})-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)'-i^{2}s(u^{6}s)-i^{2}s, -tom(to^{2}m)'i^{2}-a^{3}, -tom(to^{2}m)-o(o^{2})-di(di^{2})-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)'i^{2}s(u^{6}s)-i^{2}s. Gen., corectodialys'eos (-al'ysis), corectom'iæ, -tomodialys'eos (-al'ysis). From κόρη, the pupil, and διάλυσις, liberation, or τέμνειν, to cut. See IRIDECTOMY and IRIDODIALYSIS.

CORECTOMIA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}k-tom(to^{2}m)'i^{2}-a^{3}. From κόρη, the pupil, and ἐκτέμνειν, to cut out. See IRIDECTOMY.

CORECTOPIA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}k-top(to^{2}p)'i^{2}-a^{3}. From κόρη, the pupil, and ἔκτοπος, displaced. Fr., corectopie. Ger., Corectopie, Pupillenversetzung. It., dislogamento della pupilla, c. Sp., dislocación de la pupila. Displacement of the pupil; a condition in which the pupil in not in the centre of the iris. [F.]

COREDIALYSIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}(a)-di(di^{2})-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)'i^{2}s(u^{6}s)-i^{2}s. Gen., coredialys'eos (-al'ysis). From κόρη, the pupil, and διάλυσις, liberation. See IRIDODIALYSIS.

COREDIASTASIS (Lat.), COREDIASTOLE (Lat.), n's f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}(a)-di(di^{2})-a^{2}st(a^{3}st)'a^{2}s(a^{3}s)-i^{2}s, -o^{2}l-e(a). Gen., corediastas'eos (-ast'asis, -ast'oles). From κόρη, the pupil, and διάστασις or διαστολή, dilatation. Fr., corédiastase, corédiastole. Dilatation of the pupil. [L, 32.]

COREI [Schiödte] (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kor(ko^{2}r)'e^{2}-i(e). A family of the Trochalopoda. [L, 196.]

COREIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}r-e(e^{2})'i^{2}d-e(a^{3}-e^{2}). Fr., coréidées, coréides. A family of the Gymnocerata, or of the Nodicornia, or a group or subfamily of the Corisiæ. [L, 121, 196, 292.]

CORELLINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}l-li(le)'ne(na^{3}-e^{2}). A subfamily of the Ascidiadæ. [L, 121.]

CORELYSIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}l(al)'i^{2}s(u^{6}s)-i^{2}s. Gen., corelys'eos (-el'ysis). From κόρη, the pupil, and λύειν, to loosen. Fr., corélysie. The operation of detaching the pupillary or sphincter margin of the iris from any adhesions which it may have contracted to the cornea or to the capsule of the lens. [F.]

COREMA (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}r-e(a)'ma^{3}. Gen., corem'atos (-is). Gr., κόρημα. 1. Refuse, filth, anything purged away. 2. Of Paulus Ægineta, a general term for medicinal applications for cleansing and softening the skin. [A, 325.]

COREMEGINE [Runge], n. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}m'e^{2}j-en. From κόρη, the pupil, and μέγας, large. Fr., corémégine. Atropine. [A, 301; L, 49.]

COREMETAMORPHOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}(a)-met-a^{3}-mo^{2}rf-os'i^{2}s. Gen., coremetamorphos'eos (-is). From κόρη, the pupil, and μεταμόρφωσις, a transformation. Irregularity in the shape of the pupil. [F.]

COREMIACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}m-i^{2}-a(a^{3})'se^{2}(ke^{2})-e-(a^{3}-e^{2}). Fr., corémiacées. Of Payer, a family of arthrosporaceous Fungi, having their receptacle formed by a union of many filaments. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COREMIEI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}m-i(i^{2})'e^{2}-i(e). A tribe of the Hormiscineæ, comprising Coremium and Stysanus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COREMIUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}m'i^{2}-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). 1. A stalk consisting of a collection of hyphæ. [A, 396.] 2. Of Link, a genus of the Mucedines in which the receptacular filaments are gathered in a cylindrical shape, and at their summits spread out in the form of a bouquet. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COREMORPHOMA (Lat.), COREMORPHOSIS (Lat.), n's n. and f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}(a)-mo^{2}rf-om'a^{3}, -os'i^{2}s. See COROMORPHOMA and COROMORPHOSIS.

CORENBLOEM, n. In Belgium, the Vaccinium myrtillus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORENC (Fr.), n. Kor-a^{3}n^{2}k. A place in the department of Isère, France, where there is a cold sulphurous and saline effervescent spring. [A, 385.]

CORENCLEISIS (Lat.), n. f. Kor(ko^{2}r)-e^{2}n^{2}(an^{2})-klis'(kle^{2}-es')-is. Gen., corencleis'eos (-cleis'is). From κόρη, the pupil, and ἔγκλεισις, inclusion. See IRIDENCLEISIS.

COREOMETER, n. Kor-e^{2}-o^{2}m'e^{2}t-u^{5}r. Fr., coréomètre. From κόρη, the pupil, and μέτρον, a measure. An instrument for measuring the diameter of the pupil; several varieties of instruments for this purpose have been proposed by Obers, Follin, Lawrence, Coccins, Galezowski, Obernier, Fick, Hondin, Badal, Mulder and Kreuchel, Doijer, and Landolt. One of the earliest and simplest is the instrument of Lawrence, which consists of a horizontal scale divided into quarters of a line. This scale carries two vertical indices, one of which is stationary while the other can be moved along the scale by means of a screw. [F.]

COREONCION (Lat.), COREONCIUM (Lat.), n's n. Kor-(ko^{2}r)-e^{2}(a)-o^{2}n(on^{2})'si^{2}(ki^{2})-o^{2}n, -u^{3}m(u^{4}m). From κόρη, the pupil, and ὄγκος, a hook. Fr., coréoncion. 1. A hook-like instrument, devised by Langenbeck, for drawing out a portion of the iris through an incision in the cornea, so as to form an artificial pupil. 2. A forceps with double hooks, invented by the elder von Graefe. [F.]

CORÉOPE (Fr.), n. Kor-a-op. See COREOPSIS.

COREOPSIDEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}-o^{3}ps-i^{2}d'e^{2}-e(a^{3}-e^{2}). Fr., coréopsidées. Of Cassini, a subtribe of the Compositæ, comprising Guizotia, Synedrella, Trichospira, Heterospermum, Glossocardia, Microlecane, Coreocarpus, Dahlia, Hidalgoa, Thelesperma, Cosmos, Bidens, Narvalina, Glossogyne, Isostigma, and Chrysanthellum. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COREOPSIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}-o^{2}ps'i^{2}s. Gen., coreops'eos (-is). From κόρις, a bug, and ὄψις, appearance. Fr., coréope, co-

réopsis, coriope. Ger., Wanzengesicht. Tickseed; of Linnæus, a genus of the Compositæ. tribe Helianthoideæ. [B, 34, 42, 275 (a, 24).]—C. alternifolia [Linnæus]. See ACTINOMERIS squarrosa.—C. atkinsoniana. An ornamental species now referred to Calliopsis. [B, 19 (a, 24).]—C. bidens [Linnæus]. See BIDENS cernua.—C. Drummondii [Torrey and Gray]. A species found in Texas. [B, 19, 34 (a, 24).]—C. georgina nuda. The Dahlia pinnata. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. georgina pruinosa [Cassini]. The Dahlia bidentifolia. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. trichosperma [Michaux]. Tickweed- (or tickseed-) sunflower; a species growing in the United States. [B, 34 (a, 24).]—C. verticillata [Linnæus]. Fr., coréopsis verticille. A species found in the Middle and Western United States; the leaves furnish a red dye. [B, 19, 34, 173 (a, 24).]

COREPALINANOIXIS (Lat.), n. f. Kor(ko^{2}r)-e^2(a)-pa^{2}l(pa^{3}l)-i^{2}n-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-o(o^2)-i^{2}x′i^{2}s. Gen., corepalinanoix′eos (-is). From κόρη, the pupil, πάλιν, again, and ἄνοιξις, an opening. An obsolete term for the re-opening or re-establishment of the natural pupil. [F.]

COREPARELCYSIS (Lat.), n. f. Kor(ko^{2}r)-e^2(a)-pa^{2}r(pa^{3}r)-e^{2}l′si^{2}s(ku^{6}s)-i^{2}s. See COROPARELCYSIS.

COREPHTHISIS (Lat.), n. f. Kor(ko^{2}r)-e^{2}t(e^{2}f)′ti^{2}s(thi^{2}s)-i^{2}s. Gen., corephthis′eos (-eph′thisis). From κόρη, the pupil, and φθίσις, a shrinking. Fr., coréphthisie. Habitual contraction of the pupil. [A, 301.]

COREPLASTY, n. Kor′e^2-pla^{2}st-i^2. Lat., coreplastica, coreplastice (from κόρη, the pupil, and πλαστική [τέχνη understood], plastic art). Fr., coréplastie. The formation of an artificial pupil; coremorphosis. [F.]

CORESTENOMA (Lat.), n. n. Kor(ko^{2}r)-e^2(a)-ste^{2}n-o′ma^3. Gen., corestenom′atos (-is). From κόρη, the pupil, and στένωμα, a narrow place. A narrowing or partial closure of the pupil. [F.]—C. congenitum [von Ammon]. Congenital c.; a peculiar deformity of the pupil caused by proliferations or outgrowths from the sphincter margin of the iris, which sometimes touch each other and thus form several pupils. [F.]

CORÈTE (Fr.), n. Kor-e^{2}t. The genus Corchorus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—C. mélochie, C. potagère. The Corchorus olitorius. [A, 301; B, 173 (a, 24).]

CORETODIALYSIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}r-et(at)-o(o^2)-di(di^2)-a^{2}l-(a^{3}l)′i^{2}s(u^{6}s)-i^{2}s. Gen., coretodialys′eos (-al′ysis). From κόρη, the pupil, and διάλυσις, a loosening. See IRIDODIALYSIS.

CORETOMODIALYSIS (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}t(at)-o(o^2)-mo-(mo^2)-di(di^2)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)′i^{2}s(u^{6}s)-i^{2}s. Gen., coretomodialy′seos (-al′ysis). From κόρη, the pupil, τέμνειν, to cut, and διάλυσις, a loosening. Fr., corétomédialyse. See IRIDECTOMY.

CORETOMY, n. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}t′o-mi^2. From κόρη, the pupil, and τέμνειν, to cut. Fr., corétomie. See IRIDOTOMY.

CORETONECTOMY, n. Ko^{2}r-e^{2}t-o-ne^{2}k′to-mi^2. From κόρη, the pupil, and ἐκτέμνειν, to cut out. See IRIDECTOMY.

CORETOTOMY, n. Ko^{2}r-e^2-to^{2}t′o-mi^2. From κόρη, the pupil, and τέμνειν, to cut. See IRIDOTOMY.

COREVIA (Ar.), n. The Carum carvi. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORGNOULE (Fr.), n. Korn-yul. A kind of gall growing on the plum-tree. [B, 88; L, 109.]

CORIACE (Fr.), adj. Ko-re-a^{2}s. See CORIACEOUS.

CORIACEA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kor(ko^{2}r)-i^2-a(a^3)′se^2(ke^2)-a^3. Fr., coriacés. 1. A subsection of the Cyclorrhapha. 2. A family of the Zoantharia. [L, 41, 121.]

CORIACEOUS, adj. Kor-i^{2}a′shu^{3}s. Lat., coriaceus (from corium, leather). Fr., coriace, coriacé. Ger., lederartig. It., coriaceo. Sp., coriáceo. Leathery. [B, 19, 34, 121 (a, 24).]

CORIAIRE (Fr.), n. Ko-re-ar. See CORIARIA.

CORIAL, adj. Kor′i^2-a^{2}l. Lat., corialis. Of or pertaining to the genus Coriaria. [a, 24.]—C. alliance. Lat., nixus corialis. See CORIALES.

CORIALES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kor(ko^{2}r)-i^2-a(a^3)′lez(las). Of Lindley, the Coriarieæ. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORIAMYRTIN, n. Kor-i^2-a^3-mu^{5}rt′i^{2}n. Fr., coriamyrtine. The peculiar principle, $C_{30}H_{36}O_{10}$, of the fruit of Coriaria myrtifolia, discovered by Riban. It forms white, bitter crystals, without odor, slightly soluble in water, but freely so in alcohol, in ether, in chloroform, and in benzene. It is a violent poison, resembling picrotoxin in action. [A, 319; B, 5 (a, 24).]

CORIANDER, n. Kor-i^2-a^{2}n′du^{6}r. Fr., coriandre. Ger., C. The genus Coriandrum; also the fruit of the Coriandrum sativum.—Common c. The Coriandrum sativum. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—C.-fruit, C.-seed. Lat., coriandri fructus [Br. Ph.], coriandrum [U. S. Ph.], fructus coriandri [Ger. Ph.]. Ger., C′samen. The fruit of Coriandrum sativum. [B, 5, 81 (a, 24).]—Essential oil of c. See Oil of c.—Gemeiner C. (Ger.). The Coriandrum sativum. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—Oil of c. Lat., oleum coriandri [U. S. Ph., Br. Ph.]. Fr., huile volatile (ou essence) de coriandre. Ger., C′öl. Sp., esencia de culantro [Sp. Ph.]. A volatile oil, isomeric with borneol, obtained by distillation, with water, from bruised c.-seeds. It has the odor and taste of c., a neutral reaction, and the medicinal properties of the fruit. [B, 5 (a, 24).]—Römischer C. (Ger.), Schwarzer C. (Ger.). The Nigella sativa. [B, 180 (a, 24).]

CORIANDRE (Fr.), n. Ko-re-a^{3}ndr′. See CORIANDER and CORIANDRUM.—Alcoolat de c. Spirit of coriander; made by macerating 1 part of coriander-seeds for 2 days in 8 parts of alcohol, and evaporating on a water-bath. [B, 92 (a, 21).]—C. commune. The Coriandrum sativum. [A, 301.]—Essence (ou Huile volatile) de c. Oil of coriander. [B, 5 (a, 24).]

CORIANDREÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kor(ko^{2}r)-i^2-a^{2}nd(a^{3}nd)′re^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., coriandrées. 1. Of De Candolle, a tribe of the Umbelliferæ-Cœlospermeæ, including Bifora, Astoma, Atrema, and Coriandrum. 2. Of Reichenbach, a division of the Umbelliferæ, comprising (in 1827) Coriandrum and Biforis; in 1828 he made them a subdivision of the true Umbelliferæ, including the same genera as before and adding Exoacantha; in 1837 including Lagoecia, Coriandrum, Atrema, Astomæa, and Bifora; and in 1841 comprising Coriandrum, Biforis, Cymbocarpum, Astomæa, Apiastrum, and Atrema. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CORIANDRIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kor(ko^{2}r)-i^2-a^{2}nd(a^{3}nd)′ri^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). Of Lindley, a tribe of the Apiaceæ. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORIANDRINEÆ [Dietr.] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kor(ko^{2}r)-i^2-a^{2}nd-(a^{3}nd)-rin′e^2-e(a^3-e^2). The Coriandreæ of De Candolle. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CORIANDRUM [Linnæus] (Lat.), n. n. Kor(ko^{2}r)-i^2-a^{2}nd-(a^{3}nd)′ru^{3}m(ru^{4}m). Gr., κορίανδρον, κορίαννον, κορίανον. Fr., coriandre. Ger., Coriander. 1. A genus of umbelliferous plants of the Caucalineæ. 2. Of the U. S. Ph., the fruit of C. sativum. [B, 5, 42 (a, 24).]—Ætheroleum coriandri. See Oleum coriandri æthereum.—Coriandri fructus [Br. Ph.]. See CORIANDER-fruit.—C. cicuta [Crantz]. CORIUM (Lat.), n. n. Kor(ko^{2}r)'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Gr., χόριον, δέρμα. Fr., derme, muco-derme (2d def.), chorion muqueux (2d def.). Ger., Lederhaut (1st def.), eigentliche Cutis (1st def.). It., corion. Sp., corión. 1. The dense felt-like membranous layer of the skin, covered on the ectal or free surface by the epidermis or cuticle, and on the ental or attached surface insensibly merging into the areolar subcutaneous tissue. It is composed of a dense network of white fibrous tissue with a slight admixture of elastic tissue. The meshes of the network are wide next the subcutaneous tissue, but become very close next the epidermis, from which it is said to be separated by a basement membrane; here also the c. is raised into blunt projections (formed by cutaneous follicles deflected upward) which constitute the papillæ upon which the epidermis is molded. Besides the proper fibrous tissue of the c., there are present in it blood-vessels and lymph-vessels, nerves and their endings, sweat-glands and sebaceous glands, the roots of the hairs and their arrector pili muscles, connective-tissue corpuscles and lymph-cells, muscular fibre-cells, and, in many animals, striated muscular fibres. 2. The connective-tissue framework or membrane, comparable with the c. of the skin, upon which rests the epithelium of mucous membrane. It contains considerable adenoid tissue, and is bounded next the epithelium, in most situations, by a basement membrane, and, next the submucosa, by a thin layer of muscular fibre-cells (muscularis mucosæ). [J, 26, 30, 32, 35, 42; L, 115.] 3. The Poria of Pursh. 4. Of Pliny, the rind, bark, or shell of fruits, plants, or nuts. CORNEO-CALCAREOUS, adj. Ko^{2}rn″e^2-o-ka^{2}l-ka′re^2-u^{3}s. From cornu, horn, and calx, lime. Fr., corneo-calcaire. Containing horny and calcareous matter. [L, 121.]

CORNEOLE, n. Ko^{2}rn′e^2-ol. See CORNEULE.

CORNÉOLE (Fr.), n. Kor-na-o^{3}l. The Genista tinctoria. [A, 385 ; L, 41.]

CORNEOLUS (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}rn-e(e^2)′o(o^2)-lu^{3}s(lu^{4}s). See CARNELIAN.

CORNEOUS, adj. Ko^{2}rn′e^2-u^{3}s. Lat., corneus. Fr., corné. Ger., hornartig, hörnern. It., corneo. Sp., córneo. Having the aspect or consistence of horn. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]

CORNESTA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}rn-e^{2}st′a^3. A retort. [Morley (A, 325).]

CORNET, n. Ko^{2}rn-e^{2}t′ ; in Fr., korn-a. Fr., c. 1. See CONCHA. 2. A bony lamina. 3. A trumpet-shaped organ in a plant. 4. The Arum maculatum. [B, 121, 173 (a, 24) ; L, 41.]—C. acoustique (Fr.). A small silver or golden tube, with a funnel-like expansion, often found in use among those partially deaf. Useful only in cases of collapse of the meatus auditorius. [A, 301 ; F.] Cf. ABRAHAM.—C. blanc (Fr.). The Lactarius contraversus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—C. de Bertin (Fr.). See C. sphénoidal.—C. de Morgagni (Fr.). See Superior turbinated BONE.—C's des fosses nasales (Fr.). The turbinated bones. [L, 88.]—C. inférieur (Fr.). See Inferior turbinated BONE.—C. médical (Fr.). See STETHOSCOPE.—C. moyen (Fr.). See Middle turbinated BONE.—C. sous-ethmoïdal (Fr.). See Inferior turbinated BONE.—C. sphénoïdal (Fr.). The anterior portion of the body of the sphenoid bone, at the entrance to the sphenoidal cells. [A, 301.]—C. supérieur (Fr.). See Superior turbinated BONE.

CORNETO, n. In Colombia, the Deckeria c. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORNETTE (Fr.), n. Korn-e^{2}t. The Aquilegia vulgaris and the Melampyrum arvense. [B, 121, 173 (a, 24).]

CORNEULE, n. Ko^{2}rn′e^2-u^{2}l. Dim. of cornea. One of the facets of the cornea of a compound eye of an insect. [L, 296.]

CORNEUR (Fr.), adj. Korn-u^{5}r. Affected with cornage. [L, 41.]

CORN-FLAG, n. Ko^{2}rn′fla^{2}g. The genus Iris and the Gladiolus segetum. [B, 121, 275 (a, 24).]—African c.-f. The Antholyza (Gladiolus) æthiopica. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—European c.-f. The Gladiolus segetum. [B, 275 (a, 24).]

CORN-FLOWER, n. Ko^{2}rn′flu^5-u^{4}r. The Centaurea cyanus. [B, 121, 173 (a, 24).]—Blue c.-f. The Centaurea cyanus. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Golden c.-f. The Chrysanthemum segetum. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Red c.-f. The Lychnis githago and the Papaver rhœas. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Yellow c.-f. See Golden c.-f.

CORNICABRA (Sp.), n. Korn-e-ka^3′bra^3. The Pistacia terebinthus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORNIC ACID, n. Ko^{2}rn'i^{2}k. Fr., acide cornique. See CORNIN.

CORNICHE (Fr.), n. Kor-nesh. 1. The Trapa natans. [B, 121, 173 (a, 24).] 2. Of Bouliomme, the edge of the fornix cerebri. [I, 3; K.]

CORNICHON (Fr.), n. Kor-ne-shon^2. The Cucumis sativus, especially when pickled in vinegar (the ordinary pickled cucumber). [A, 385; L, 87.]—C. de câprier. The Capparis ægyptiaca. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. de cerf. See CORNU CERVI.—C. vert. The young preserved fruits of Cucumis sativus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—Eau de c's de cerf. See Aqua e TYPHIS cervi.

CORNICOLUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k'ol(o^{2}l)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From cornus (q. v.), and colere, to inhabit. Fr., cornicole. Growing on a plant of the genus Cornus (e. g., the Sphæria cornicola). [L, 41.]

CORNICULA (Lat.), n. f. sing. and n. pl. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k'u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-a^3. Dim. of cornu, a horn. Fr., cornicule. 1. (Sing.) an ancient name for a small tube of horn for making suction. [Scultetus (A, 325).] 2. (Pl.) see CORNICULUM.

CORNICULAR, adj. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k'u^{2}l-a^{3}r. Lat., cornicularis. Fr., corniculaire. See ANCONOID.

CORNICULARIEÆ [Nyl] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k-u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-a^{2}r(a^{3}r)-i(i^2)-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., corniculariées. A tribe of the Phylloideæ, comprising Platysma and Cornicularia. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORNICULARII (Lat.), n. m. pl. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k-u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-a(a^3)-ri^2-i(e). A family of discoid lichens, comprising Cornicularia, Roccella, Ramalina, and Physcia. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORNICULATÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k-u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-a(a^3)-te-(ta^3-e^2). Fr., corniculatées. Ger., Gehorntfrüchtige, Hornfrüchtige. 1. Of Reichenbach, a group of polypetalous dicotyledons, comprising the Crassulaceæ and, in great part, the Saxifragaceæ. 2. Of Endlicher, a class of the same grand division, comprising the Crassulaceæ, Saxifrageæ, and Ribesiaceæ. [B, 121 (a, 24); L, 30.]

CORNICULATE, adj. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k'u^{2}l-at. Lat., corniculatus, corniculiferus, cornutus. Fr., corniculé, corniculifère. Ger., hornförmig, gehörnt. It., cornicolato. Sp., corniculado. Having horns or processes resembling small horns; in botany, having horn-shaped organs (e. g., petals). [A, 301; L.]

CORNICULIFEROUS, adj. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k-u^{2}l-i^{2}f'e^{2}r-u^{3}s. Lat., corniculiferus (from corniculum, a little horn, and ferre, to bear). Fr., corniculifère. Having horn-shaped processes (said of the throat of the corolla, as in the Consolida tuberosa). [B, 121; L, 41 (a, 14).]

CORNICULO-PHARYNGEUS (Lat.), adj. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k''u^{2}l-(u^{4}l)-o(o^2)-fa^{2}r(fa^{3}r)-i^{2}n(u^{6}n^2)'je^2(ge^2)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Relating to or connected with the cornicula laryngis and the pharynx. [L, 31.]

CORNICULUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k'u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Dim. of cornu, a horn. 1. A little horn or horn-shaped body. 2. A cupping instrument shaped like a horn. [E.]—Cornicula interna ossis hyoidei. See Cornicula of the hyoid bone.—Cornicula laryngis. The Santorinian cartilages; two small conical cartilages which articulate with the tops of the arytenoid cartilages of the larynx; composed of yellow fibro-cartilage. [C.] See cut under Arytænoid CARTILAGES.—Cornicula of the hyoid bone. The small cornua of the hyoid bone; the cerato-hyals. [C.]—Cornicula santoriniana. See Cornicula laryngis.

CORNIER (Fr.), n. Korn-e-a. The Cornus mas. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. à grandes fleurs. See CORNUS florida.

CORNIFIC, adj. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}f'i^{2}k. From cornu, a horn, and facere, to make. Fr., cornifique. Forming or producing horn or horns.

CORNIFICATION, n. Ko^{2}rn-i^2-fi^2-ka'shu^{3}n. Fr., cornu, a horn, and facere, to make. Fr., c. Ger., Verhornung. It., cornificazione. Sp., cornificación. Conversion into a horn-like substance; the process of becoming horny. [D, 3; L, 121.]

CORNIFIED, adj. Ko^{2}rn'i^2-fid. Converted into a horn-like substance. [L, 121.]

CORNIFLE (Fr.), n. Kor-ne-fl'. The genus Ceratophyllum. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORNIFORM, adj. Ko^{2}rn'i^2-fo^{2}rm. From cornu, a horn, and forma, form. Lat., corniformis. Fr., corniforme. Ger., hornförmig. It., Sp., corniforme. Horn-shaped.

CORNIGEROUS, adj. Ko^{2}rn-i^{2}j'e^{2}r-u^{3}s. Gr., κερατοφορος. Lat., corniger, cornigerus (from cornu, a horn, and gerere, to bear). Fr., cornigère. Ger., gehörnt. It., cornigero. Sp., cornigero. Horn-bearing (said of plants having horn-shaped appendages). [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORNIINE (Fr.), n. Korn-e-en. See CORNIN.

CORNILLE (Fr.), CORNILLET (Fr.), n's. Korn-el-y', -el-ya^2. 1. In Champagne, the Centaurea cyanus. 2. The cornel-tree. [B, 121 (a, 24); L, 41.]

CORNILLET (Fr.), n. Korn-el-ya. The Cucubalus behen. [B, 173 (a, 24).]

CORNILLON (Fr.), n. Kor-nel-yon^2. See Horn CORES.

CORNIN, n. Ko^{2}rn'i^{2}n. Fr., cornine, corniine. Ger., Corneïn. It., cornicina. Sp., cornina. Cornic acid; a bitter principle obtained from the bark of Cornus florida, occurring in silky needles, soluble in water and in alcohol, little soluble in ether, and colored dark by alkalies. [B, 5 (a, 24).]

CORNINE, n. Ko^{2}rn'en. An alkaline bitter principle found by Carpenter in Cornus florida. ["Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," xxviii, p. 158 (a, 21).]

CORNIOLA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}rn-i(i^2)'ol(o^{2}l)-a^3. Fr., cormiole. 1. Of Gray, the genus Collybia. 2. Of Adanson, the Genista tinctoria. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—Radix corniolæ. Ger., Nurtoakwurzel. The root of a Syrian species of Asphodelus; sometimes used as a substitute for salep. [Vogl (A, 319).]

CORNIOLE (Fr.), n. Korn-e-ol. The Trapa natans. [B, 121, 173 (a, 24).]

CORNIOLLO (It.), CORNIOLO (It.), n's. Korn-e-ol'eo, -ol-o. The Cornus mas of Linnæus. [B, 121 (a, 21).]

CORNIOT (Fr.), n. Korn-e-o. In Champagne, the Cornus sanguinea. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORNIPLUME, n. Ko^{2}rn'i^2-plu^{2}m. From cornu, a horn, and pluma, a plume. In ornithology, a tuft of feathers on the head, erected like a horn. [L, 343.]

CORNIX (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}rn'i^{2}x. Gen., corni'cis. Gr., κορώνη. 1. The carrion-crow, the dung of which was formerly used medicinally. [L, 94.] 2. An old term for a sharp, prominent, beak-like bony process. [Galen, Hippocrates (A, 325).] 3. The fornix cerebri. [A, 301.]

CORNOUILLE (Fr.), n. Korn-u-el-y'. The fruit of Cornus mas. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CORNOUILLER (Fr.), n. Korn-u-el-ya. The genus Cornus, especially Cornus mas. [B, 119, 173 (a, 24); L, 105.]—C. à feuilles arrondies. The Cornus circinata. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. à grandes fleurs. The Cornus florida. [L, 87.]—C. mâle. The Cornus mas. [L, 87.]—C. sauvage. The Cornus mas. [a, 22.]—C. soyeux. The Cornus sericea. [a, 24.]—Decoction de c. à grandes fleurs. See Decoctum CORNI floridæ.—Huile de c. An oil obtained from the pulp of the berries of Cornus sanguinea. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—Conserve de c. See Conserva CORNORUM.

CORNOVA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}rn-o'va^3(wa^3). An undetermined tropical tree. The bark (Lat., cortex cornovæ; Ger., C'rinde) is used as a stomachic and in fevers. [B, 180 (a, 24); L, 30 (a, 21).]

CORN-SALAD, n. Ko^{2}rn'sa^{2}l-a^{2}d. The Valerianella olitoria. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Italian c.-s. The Valerianella eriocarpa. [B, 275 (a, 24).—Keeled c.-s. The Valerianella carinata. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Narrow-fruited c.-s. The Valerianella dentata. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Sharp-fruited c.-s. The Valerianella auriculata. [B, 275 (a, 24).]

CORNTREON, n. The Cornus mas. [B, 88.]

CORNU (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}rn'u^2(u). Indecl. in the sing.; nom. and acc. pl., corn'ua; gen. pl., cor'nuum; dat. and abl. pl., cornibus. Gr., κέρας. Fr., corne. Ger., Horn. It., corno. Sp., cuerno. 1. A horn. 2. A horn-shaped process or appendage; of the Arabian physicians, the zygomatic process of the temporal bone. 3. A horn-shaped extension of a cavity (e. g., those of the lateral ventricle of the brain and those of the cavity of the uterus). 4. The genus Glaucium. 5. The Plantago coronopus. [B, 121 (a, 24); L, 343, 349.]—Alcis c. See C. alcis.—Anterior gray c. Fr., corne (grise) antérieure. The anterior projection of the mass of gray matter seen on each half of the spinal cord upon transverse section. This projection, found throughout the whole extent of the cord, forms a continuous structure, called the anterior gray column. As seen in section the anterior c. is larger than the posterior c., and is largest of all in the cervical and lumbar enlargements of the cord. It is composed of a spongy formation or fine felty network of nerve-fibrillæ, with some cementing neuroglia, and receives many fibres from the anterior roots of the spinal nerves. [Gowers (a, 18).]—Cervi c. See C. CERVI.—C. acetabuli anterius (seu anticum). The anterior curved end of the superficies lunata of the acetabulum. [L, 332.]—C. acetabuli majus. See C. acetabuli posterius.—C. acetabuli minus. See C. acetabuli anterius.—C. acetabuli posterius. The posterior curved end of the superficies lunata of the acetabulum. [L, 341.]—C. acousticum. See CORNET.—C. alcis. Fr., corne d'élan. 1. See ALCES c. 2. An ancient name for the Acrostichum alcicorne. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—C. Ammonis. Fr., corne d'Ammon. Ger., Ammonshorn. See HIPPOCAMPUS major.—C. anterius cerebri (seu ventriculi lateralis). The anterior c. of the lateral ventricle of the brain. [K.]—C. arietis. See HIPPOCAMPUS major.—C. breve cartilaginis thyreoideæ. See Superior c. of the thyreoid cartilage.—C. cartilaginis thyreoideæ breve. See Superior c. of the thyreoid cartilage.—C. cartilaginis thyreoideæ inferius. See Inferior c. of the thyreoid cartilage.—C. cartilaginis thyreoideæ superius. See Superior c. of the thyreoid cartilage.—C. cerebri inferius (seu laterale). The descending horn of the lateral ventricle of the brain. [L.]—C. cervi. See the major list.—C. cervinum. The Plantago coronopus. [a, 24.]—C. clavatum [Willdenow]. The erect apex of the c. of the staminal column in the Asclepiadaceæ. [B.]—Cornua coccygea. The cornua of the coccyx. [L.]—C. combustum. See CORNU CERVI ustum.—C. cutaneum. Fr., corne de la peau, production cornée. Ger., Hauthorn, Hornauswuchs. It., corna cutanee. A cutaneous horn, horny excrescence, horny tumor; a morbid corneous excrescence of the epidermis resembling a horn. [G.] Cf. ICHTHYIASIS.—C. descendens. The descending horn of the lateral ventricle of the brain. [K.]—C. elaphi. See CORNU CERVI.—C. glandulæ thyreoideæ medium. The middle lobe of the thyreoid gland. [L.]—C. humanum. See C. cutaneum.—Cornua inferiora glandulæ thymi. The lower pointed extremities of the lateral lobes of the thymus gland. See C. anterius cerebri.—C. ventriculi lateralis descendens (seu laterale). See C. descendens.—C. ventriculi lateralis posterius (seu posticum). The posterior horn of the lateral ventricle of the brain.—Elaphi c. See Cornu cervi.—Ethmoidal c. See Middle turbinated bone.—Great cornua of the hyoid bone. Lat., cornua ossis hyoidei majora. Fr., cornes de l'os hyoïde. Ger., grosse Zungenbeinhörner. The lower pair of processes which project backward from the sides of the body of the hyoid bone. During early life they are united by synchondrosis with the body of the bone, but in later life they fuse with it. In most vertebrates they exist as separate bones. [L, 7, 31, 142.] Cf. Thyreohyal bones.—Great c. of the thyreoid cartilage. See Superior c. of the thyreoid cartilage.—Inferior c. of the thyreoid cartilage. Lat., c. cartilaginis thyreoideæ. Fr., corne inférieure du cartilage thyréoïde. Ger., unteres Schildhorn. A short, blunt process which extends downward and somewhat forward (one on each side) from the lower end of the posterior margin of the thyreoid cartilage. On the inner surface near the lip it presents a smooth surface for articulation with the cricoid cartilage. [L, 7, 31, 142.]—Lateral cornua of the hyoid bone. See Great cornua of the hyoid bone.—Lesser cornua of the hyoid bone. Lat., cornua ossis hyoidei minora. Fr., cornes mineures de l'hyoïde. Ger., kleine Zungenbeinhörner. Two short conical pieces which project upward and back from the points at which the great cornua unite with the body of the hyoid bone. They are often incompletely ossified, and are united with the body of the hyoid bone by a synovial articulation which rarely ankyloses. [L, 7, 31, 142.] See Cerato-hyal bones.—Middle c. See Middle turbinated bone.—Posterior c. of the lateral ventricle. See Posterior horn of the lateral ventricle.—Posterior c. of the medulla oblongata. Ger., Hinterhorn der Oblongata. A mass of gray matter in the medulla oblongata which corresponds to the posterior gray c. of the spinal cord. [I, 31; K.]—Posterior c. of the spinal cord. Lat., c. posterius. Fr., corne (grise) postérieure. The posterior projection of the mass of gray matter in each half of the spinal cord as seen upon transverse section. The totality of this projection is properly called the posterior gray column. It is longer and narrower than the anterior gray c. and receives some of the fibres from the posterior roots of the spinal nerves, while others of these fibres pass parallel to the c. between it and the posterior root zone. A gray gelatinous substance forms a sort of cap on this c. and is called the caput cornu posterioris. Isolated ganglion cells, medium and small in size, lie in the posterior horn, and a few small cells are found in the gelatinous substance. [Gowers (α, 18).]—Posterior spinal cornua. See Posterior c. of the spinal cord.—Sacral cornua. Lat., cornua sacralia. Fr., cornes sacrées (ou du sacrum). Ger., Kreuzbeinhörner. Two blunt, somewhat conical processes upon the lower end of the posterior surface of the sacrum, one on each side of the median line, which articulate with the cornua of the coccyx. [L, 31, 172.]—Smaller c. of the thyreoid cartilage. See Inferior c. of the thyreoid cartilage.—Sphenoidal cornua. Lat., cornua sphenoidalia. Fr., cornes sphénoïdales. Ger., Wespenbeinhörner. Syn.: bones of Bertin. Triangular-shaped bones situated (one on each side) at the inferior anterior portion of the body of the sphenoid bone. Their inner concave surfaces assist in forming the sphenoidal sinuses, while the outer convex surface articulates with the ethmoid and palate bones. They usually unite at puberty with the sphenoid bone, but occasionally remain separate through life. [L, 31, 142.]—Styloid cornua of the hyoid bone. See Lesser cornua of the hyoid bone.—Superior c. of the thyreoid cartilage. Lat., c. cartilaginis thyroideæ superior. Fr., corne supérieure du cartilage thyréoïde. Ger., oberes Schildhorn. A blunt, slender process which extends upward and slightly backward (one on each side) from the upper end of the posterior margin of the thyreoid cartilage. It is connected with the tip of the greater c. of the hyoid bone of the same side by the lateral thyreo-hyoid ligament. [L, 7, 31, 142.]—Thyreoid cornua. See Great cornua of the hyoid bone and Superior and Inferior cornua of the thyreoid cartilage.

CORNU (Fr.), adj. Korn-u^6. Lat., cornutus. Horn-shaped (said of ergoted grain); projecting like a horn (said of the hip-bone in horses that are malformed or much emaciated). [A, 301.]

CORNUATE, adj. Ko^{2}rn'u^2-at. See Corniculate, Corniform, and Cornigerous.

CORNU CABRA, n. A plant found in the Argentine Republic. Its charcoal is used to remove spots from the skin. ["Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," xxiv (α, 21).]

CORNU CERVI [Belg. Ph.] (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}rn'u^2(u)su^{6}r(ke^{2}r)'-vi(we). Gr., ἐλαφρόκερας. Fr., corne de cerf [Fr. Cod.]. Sp., cuerno (ó asta) del ciervo [Sp. Ph.]. Syn.: cervi cornu [Gr. Ph.]. Hartshorn; the horn of the stag [Belg. Ph.]; made into a jelly [Gr. Ph.]. The Fr. Cod. directs that only the extremities of the horn be used. [B, 95 (α, 21).]—C. c. calcinatum. See C. c. ustum.—C. c. præparatum [Netherl. Ph.]. Prepared hartshorn; made by digesting 2 parts of c. c. raspatum and 1 part of crude hydrochloric acid, of sp. gr. 1·165 to 1·170, in a sufficient quantity of water, until all the calcium phosphate is eliminated, then washing repeatedly with cold water, and drying at a gentle heat. [B, 95 (α, 21).]—C. c. raspatum [Netherl. Ph.], C. c. rasum, C. c. tornatum. Ger., geraspelte Hirschhorn. Rasped hartshorn; a preparation containing about 25 per cent. of gelatinous substance soluble in water, about 60 per cent. of salts of calcium soluble in hydrochloric acid, and about 60 per cent. of calcium phosphate. When thoroughly boiled in water, it yields an inodorous and tasteless jelly. [B, 95 (α, 21).]—C. c. ustum. Sp., cuerno de ciervo calcinado [Sp. Ph.]. Burnt hartshorn; made of calcined hartshorn, freed from impurities, pulverized, sifted, dried, and formed into troches. [B, 95 (α, 21).]—C. c. ustum album. Ger., weissgebranntes Hirschhorn. Crude calcium phosphate prepared by calcining hartshorn. [B, 270 (α, 24).]—C. c. ustum nigrum. The residue of charcoal and phosphate of calcium (i. e., bone ash) obtained in the preparation of c. c. ustum. [B, 270 (α, 24).]—C. c. ustum præparatum. See C. c. ustum.—Decoctum c. c. A decoction of hartshorn made by boiling 1 part of burnt hartshorn in 12 parts of distilled water until 8 parts result, and straining; used as a drink in fevers attended with diarrhœa. [L, 104.]—Decoctum c. c. compositum [Belg. Ph., Gr. Ph.]. Compound decoction of hartshorn; made by dissolving 3 parts of sugar, 2 parts of gum arabic [Gr. Ph.] in a percolate obtained from 4 parts each of rasped hartshorn and white bread crumbs, and 150 parts, or a sufficient quantity, of water (192 parts [Gr. Ph.]); used instead of decoctum album Sydenhami. [B, 95 (α, 21).]—Decoctum c. c. gummosum. See Apozème blanc.—Emulsio c. c. usti. See Apozème blanc.—Gelatina de c. c. [Fr. Cod.]. See Gelée de corne de cerf.—Liquor c. c. Liquid hartshorn; the artificial form was ordered in many old pharmacopœias; made by mixing ammoniacal salts with empyreumatic oils. [L, 85.]—Liquor c. c. alcalinus. See Spiritus c. c.—Liquor c. c. succinatus. See Liquor ammonii succinici.—Liquor c. c. succinatus albus. Fr., liqueur de corne de cerf succinée blanche. Of the Würtemb. Ph., 1798, a preparation made of 1 part each of the spiritus c. cervi and succinic acid, and 8 parts of black-cherry water. [B, 97, 119.]—Liquor c. c. succinici. See Liquor ammonii succinici.—Liquor c. c. terebinthinatus. See Liquor ammonii acetatis.—Liquor volatilis c. c. See Spiritus c. c.—Mistura c. c. See Apozème blanc.—Mistura c. c. usti [Lond. Ph., 1824]. See Apozème blanc.—Oleum c. c. Oil of hartshorn. See Dippel's animal oil.—Rasura c. c. See C. c. raspatum.—Sal c. c. depuratum. Fr., sel de corne de cerf purifié. Purified salts of hartshorn, a preparation differing slightly from ammonium carbonate in that it contains a small amount of empyreumatic oil; made by distilling on a slow fire 1 part of vegetable charcoal and 8 parts of hartshorn. [Dutch Ph., 1805, Belg. Ph., 1823], and in various proportions, according to other old pharmacopœias, both with and without the addition of chalk. [B, 119 (α, 21).]—Sal c. c. succinatum. See Ammonium succinate.—Sal c. c. volatile. See Ammonium carbonicum pyrooleosum.—Salsilago c. c. succinata. See Liquor ammonii succinici.—Spiritus c. c. Fr., esprit (ou liqueur) de corne de cerf, esprit d'ivoire (ou de vipères, ou de lombrics, ou de soie), carbonate d'ammoniaque liquide huileux (ou pyrohuileux liquide). Ger., Hirschhorngeist. It., carbonato d'ammoniaco empireumatico liquido, spirito volatile di corno de cervo. One of the products of the distillation of animal matters for the purpose of obtaining ammonia. It is a watery fluid containing an empyreumatic oil and ammonium carbonates and acetates. This preparation is also made by dissolving the ammonium carbonicum pyrooleosum in distilled water, and is official in the Belg. Ph., Dan. Ph., and Russ. Ph. [L, 68, 85 (α, 21).]—Spiritus c. c. depuratus. Fr., esprit de corne de cerf purifié. A preparation made by distilling spirits of hartshorn with charcoal. [B, 119 (α, 21).]—Spiritus c. c. succinatus. See Liquor ammonii succinici.

CORNUE (Fr.), n. Korn-u^6. A retort. [A, 301.]—C. tubulée. See Tubulated retort.

CORNUELLE (Fr.), n. Korn-u^6-e^{2}l. The Trapa natans. [B, 19, 121, 173 (α, 24).]

CORNUET (Fr.), n. Korn-u^6-a. The Bidens tripartita. [B, 121, 173 (α, 24).]

CORNULARIADÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}rn-u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-a^{2}r(a^{3}r)-i(i^2)'-a^{2}d(ad)-e(a^2-e^2). Fr., cornulaires [Milne-Edwards]. A subfamily of the Alcyonidæ; of Verrill, a family of the Alcyonacea. [L, 244.]

CORNUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko^{2}rn'u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Fr., cornouille. The cornelian cherry, the fruit of Cornus mas; formerly used in medicine. [B, 119 (α, 21); B, 173, 180 (α, 24).]

CORNUMUSA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}rn-u^2(u^4)-mu^2(mu)'za^3(sa^3). An old name for a retort. [Morley (A, 325).]

CORNUPES (Lat.), adj. Ko²rn'u²(u⁴)-pez(pas). From cornu, horn, and pes, the foot. Fr., cornupède. Ger., hornfüssig. Having the feet provided with hoofs. [L, 41.]

CORNUS (Lat.), n. f. Ko²rn'u³s(u⁴s). From cornu, horn, from its horn-like wood. Gr., κρανεία. Fr., cornouiller (1st def.), écorce de cornouiller à grandes fleurs (3d def.). Ger., Hornstrauch (1st def.), grossblüthige Cornelrinde (3d def.). 1. The cornel-tree; of Linnæus, the typical genus of the Cornaceæ. 2. Of Catesby, the genus Bumelia. 3. Of the U. S. Ph., the root-bark of C. florida, formerly also of C. circinata and C. sericea. [B, 5, 19, 42, 77, 121 (α, 24).]—Blue-berried c. See C. sericea.—C. alba. See C. sericea.—C. alternifolia [Linnæus]. Alternate-leaved cornel; a small tree of the northern and western United States and of Canada. [B, 34 (α, 24).]—C. amomum [Miller], C. cærulea [Lamarck]. See C. sericea.—C. canadensis. Fr., cornouiller du Canada. The low cornel (or dog-wood), pudding-berries; a species found in the United States, having the same properties as C. sericea. [B, 34, 173, 185 (α, 24).]—C. chilensis [Molina]. The Aristotelea macqui. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—C. circinata [L'Héritier]. A North American species with verrucous branches and orbicular or broadly oval leaves, white, and tomentous beneath; formerly recognized in the U. S. secondary list. Its uses are similar to those of C. florida. The bark, when dried, affords a powder resembling that of ipecacuanha. [B, 5, 34, 173, 180, 270 (α, 24).]—C. cyanocarpus [Mönch], C. femina, C. ferruginea. See C. sericea.—C. florida [Linnæus]. Fr., cornouiller à grandes fleurs, bois de chien. Ger., schönblühender Hornstrauch, virginische Hundsbeere. The flowering dogwood; a North American species growing in the forests from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, and cultivated in Europe as an ornament. The root-bark (c. of the U. S. Ph.) is used as a stomachic and febrifuge and as a substitute for Peruvian bark. It is bitter, astringent, and aromatic. It contains gum, mucilage, gallic acid, resin, tannin, and cornine. The young branches, stripped of their bark, are used for whitening the teeth. [B, 5, 19, 77, 173, 180, 280 (α, 24).]—C. herbacea. See C. suecica.—C. lanuginosa [Michaux]. See C. sericea.—C. mas, C. mascula [Linnæus]. Fr., cornouiller mâle, aournier, caneule, cornies, cornouiller des bois. Ger., gelber Hornstrauch, Kornelbaum, Kornelkirsche, rother Hartriegel. The cornelian cherry; a species from 15 to 20 feet high, growing in central and southern Europe and through northern Asia to Japan. The pulpy fruits (fructus corni), when unripe, contain much tannin, and when ripe are edible, and were formerly used in inflammatory diseases. They are made into marmalades and comfits, which are astringent.—C. mas odorata. The Sassafras officinalis. [α, 22.]—C. officinalis. A Japanese species, the fruit of which is used for antiseptic beverages in certain forms of fever. The Japanese name is San-si-u. [J. Matsumura (α, 22).]—C. paniculata [L'Héritier]. Fr., cornouiller paniculé. Panicled or white cornel; a species growing in the Northern and Western United States and in Canada. [B, 34 (α, 24).]—C. rubiginosa. See C. sericea.—C. rugosa [Lamarck]. See C. circinata.—C. sanguinea [Linnæus]. Fr., cornouiller sanguin bois puine, cornouiller femelle, puine noire, sanguinelle, savignon, verge sanguine. Ger., gemeiner Hartriegel. The hound's-tree, dogberry; a species reaching a height of 8 or 9 feet, common in the thickets and uncultivated fields in Great Britain. The fruits are of a dark purple, and contain a large percentage of oil, which is used in Italy in soups and elsewhere in lamps and in the manufacture of soap. [B, 19, 77, 173 (α, 24).]—C. sericea [L'Héritier]. Fr., cornouiller à fruit bleu. Swamp dogwood; a North American species with round, blue fruit. It has similar uses to those of C. florida. [B, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. suecica. Dwarf cornel, dwarf honeysuckle; a dwarf species, native of Britain, northern Europe, Asia, and America. The little red berries are eaten by the Esquimaux and in the Scotch Highlands, where they are reputed to be tonic. [A, 305; B, 19, 77 (α, 24).]—C. tomentulosa [Michaux], C. verrucosa. See C. circinata.—Decoctum c. floridæ [U. S. Ph., 1870]. Decoction of dogwood; made by boiling the bruised root-bark of C. florida in water. [B, 5 (α, 21).]—Extractum c. floridæ fluidum [U. S. Ph., 1870], Extractum c. fluidum [U. S. Ph.]. Fr., extrait liquide de cornouiller à grandes fleurs. Ger., flüssiger Kornelrindenextrakt. Fluid extract of dogwood; made by exhausting the powdered root-bark of C. florida with a mixture of glycerin and alcohol. [B, 5 (α, 24).]—Fructus corni. See CORNUM.

CORNUSTIBIUM (Lat.), n. n. Ko²rn-u²(u⁴)-sti²b-i²-u²m(u⁴m). From cornu, a horn, and stibium, antimony. An old name for a cruet of horn for holding antimony. [A, 325.]

CORNUTA (Lat.), n. f. Ko²rn-u²t(ut)'a³. See RETORT.

CORNUTE, adj. Ko²rn'u²t. See CORNUTUS.

CORNUTINE, n. Ko²rn-u²t'en. Fr., c. Ger., Cornutin. A poisonous alkaloid obtained by extracting a fluid from large quantities of ergot of rye with 3-per-cent. hydrochloric acid, straining, nearly neutralizing the percolate with sodium carbonate, evaporating, and extracting with alcohol, distilling off the last, alkalinizing the residue with a solution of sodium carbonate, extracting with acetic acid, washing, and precipitating the c. from the acetic acid by shaking it with water containing citric acid. ["Ctrlbl. f. Gynak.," May 15, 1886, No. 20, p. 309 (α, 21).]

CORNUTUS (Lat.), adj. Fr., cornute. Ger., hörnertragend. In the form of a horn, or furnished with appendages resembling horns. [B, 1, 121 (α, 24).]

CORNWEED, n. Ko²rn'wed. The Biserula pelecinus. [B, 19.]

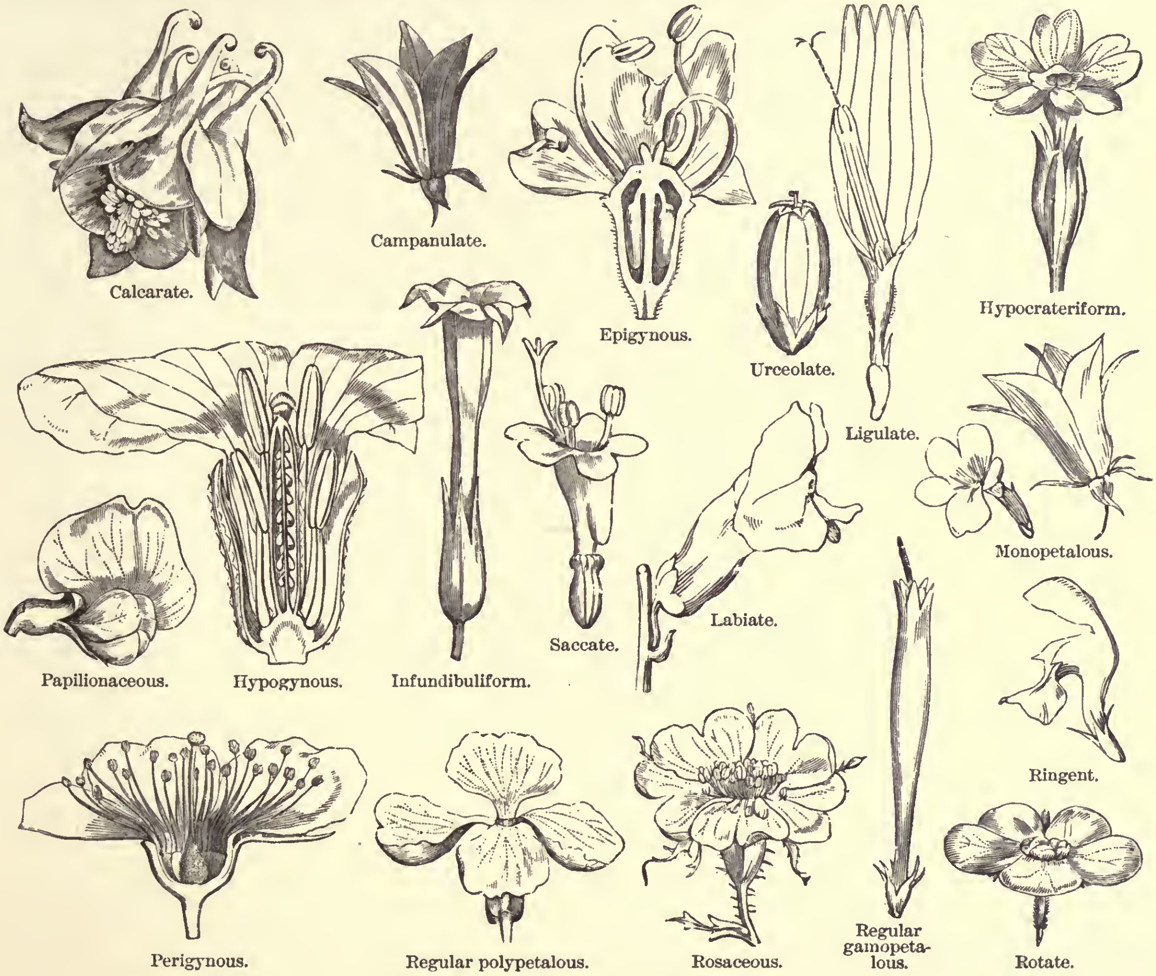
COROA, n. See CORNOVA.

COROCLEISIS (Lat.), n. f. Kor(ko²r)-o(o²)-klis(kle²-es')-i²s. Gen., corocleis'eos (-is). From κόρη, the pupil, and κλεῖσις, a closing. Fr., coréclise. Ger., Pupillenverschluss. Closure or obliteration of the pupil by a membrane or an inflammatory exudate. [F.]



COROCRUM (Lat.), n. n. Kor(ko²r)-o²k-ru³m(ru⁴m). See FERMENT.

CORODIALYSIS (Lat.), n. f. Kor(ko²r)-o(o²)-di(di²)-a²l(a³l)'i²s-(u⁶s)-i²s. Gen., corodialys'eos (-al'ysis). From κόρη, the pupil, and διάλυσις, a loosening. See IRIDODIALYSIS.

CORODIASTASIS (Lat.), CORODIASTOLE (Lat.), n's f. Kor(ko²r)-o(o²)-di(di²)-a²st(a³st)'a²s(a³s)-i²s, -ol(o²l)-e(a). Gen., corodiastas'eos (-ast'asis), -ast'oles. From κόρη, the pupil, and διάστασις or διαστολή, separation. Dilatation of the pupil. [A, 322.]

COROLLA (Lat.), n. f. Ko²r-o²l'la³. Dim. of corona, a crown. Gr., στεφάνη. Fr., corolle. Ger., Blumenkrone, Korolle. The inner floral envelope forming the whorl of petals, often colored, between the calyx and the stamens. [B, 19, 77 (α, 24).]—Abnormal c. Fr., corolle anormale. Ger., regelwidrige Korolle. Any irregular, dialypetalous c., not papilionaceous. [B, 121 (α, 24).]—Actinomorphous c. A c. in which the parts are radically disposed, i. e., one which is divided into symmetrical halves by vertical planes passed through its centre in any direction. [B, 245.]—Alsinaceous c. Fr., corolle alsinacée. A c. in which the claw is less narrow than in the caryophyllaceous c. and there are distinct spaces between the petals. [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Anisostemonous c. Fr., corolle anisostémonée. A c. in which the petals are not equal to the stamens in number. [B, 1 (α, 24).]—Apopetalous c. See Choripetalous c.—Appendiculate c. Lat., c. appendiculatus. Fr., corolle appendiculée. Ger., anhängselige Korolle. A c. which has scales or other outgrowths on its petals. [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Bilabiate c. Lat., c. bilabiata. Fr., corolle bilabiée. Ger., zweilippige Korolle. A c. divided into two segments or lips, each of which represents usually several united petals. [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Caducous c. Lat., c. caduca. Fr., c. caduque. Ger., hinfällige Korolle. A c. which falls with its expansion. [B, 1, 77 (α, 24).]—Calcarate c. Lat., c. calcarata. Fr., corolle éperonnée. Ger., gespornte Korolle. Syn.: spurred c. A c. in which one or more of the petals are prolonged in the form of a spur. [B. 291 (α, 24).]—Campanulate c. Lat., c. campanulata. Fr., corolle campanulée. Ger., glockige Korolle. A bell-shaped c. [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Caryophyllaceous c. Lat., c. caryophyllacea. Fr., corolle caryophyllée. Ger., nelkenartige Korolle. A c. in which there are five petals with long, narrow, tapering claws. [B, 77, 121, 123 (α, 24).]—Choripetalous c. Syns.: dialypetalous c., eleutheropetalous c., apopetalous c. A c. having separate and distinct petals. [B.]—Clavate c. Lat., c. clavata. Fr., corolle en massue, corolle clavé. A c. which is larger and with its petals thicker at the base than at the summit. [B, 1 (α, 24).]—Cruciform c. Lat., c. cruciformis. Fr., corolle cruciforme. Ger., kreuzförmige Korolle. A c. having four petals, often unguiculate, placed opposite in the form of a cross. [B, 77, 121 (α, 24).]—Dialypetalous c. Fr., corolle dialypétale. See Choripetalous c.—Digitaliform c. A slightly irregular c., longer than a campanulate c., as in Digitalis. [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Eleutheropetalous c. See Choripetalous c.—Epigynous c. Lat., c. epigyna. Fr., corolle épigyne. Ger., epigynische Korolle. Syn.: superior c. A c. springing from the upper part of the ovary or from above it. [A, 301; B, 19 (α, 24).]—Funnel-shaped c. See Infundibuliform c.—Gamopetalous c. Lat., c. gamopetala. Fr., corolle gamopétale. Ger., verbundenblättrige Korolle. A c. consisting of several united petals; commonly but incorrectly called monopetalous c. [B. 75.]—Hypocrateriform c. Lat., c. hypocrateriformis. Fr., corolle hypocrateriforme. Ger., tellerförmige Korolle. Syn.: salver-shaped c. A c. in which there is a straight tube surmounted by a flat spreading limb. [B, 77, 121, 123 (α, 24).]—Hypogynous c. Lat., c. hypogyna. Fr., corolle hypogyne. Ger., unterweibige Korolle. Syn.: inferior c. A c. springing from the base of the ovary or from below it. [A, 301; B, 1 (α, 24).]—Imbricate c. Lat., c. imbricata. Fr., corolle imbriquée. Ger., schindelige (oder hypogynische) Korolle. A c. in which the edge of each petal overlaps the adjoining one. [B, 1 (α, 24).]—Inferior c. Fr., corolle infère. See Hypogynous c.—Infundibuliform c. Lat., c. infundibuliformis. Fr., corolle infundibuliforme. Ger., trichterförmige Korolle. Syn.: funnel-shaped c. A c. having the tube like an inverted cone, and the limb more expanded at the apex. [B, 77, 121, 123 (α, 24).]—Irregular c. Lat., c. irregularis. Fr., corolle irrégulière. Ger., unregelmaslige Korolle. A c. in which the petals are unequal as regards their development, number, size, or position. [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Isostemonous c. Fr., corolle isostémonée. A c. in which the petals are equal in number to the stamens. [B, 1 (α, 24).]—Labiate c. Lat., c. labiata. Fr., corolle labiée. Ger., lippige Korolle. Syn.: lipped c. See Bilabiate c. [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Ligulate c. Lat., c. ligulata. Fr., corolle ligulée. Ger., zungenförmige (oder geschweifte) Korolle. Syn.: strap-shaped c. A tubular c. split in such a manner as to form a strap-like process on one side. [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Liliaceous c. A c. or, more strictly, a perianth composed of 6 segments regularly disposed to form a funnel-shaped tube. [B, 34.]—Lipped c. See Bilabiate c.—Marcescent c. Lat., c. marcescens. Fr., corolle marcescente. Ger., welkende Korolle. A c. which remains in a withered form after the ripening of the fruit. [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Mask-like c. Fr., corolle en masque. See Personate c.—Monopetalous c. Fr., corolle monopétale. Ger., verbundene Korolle. Syn.: gamopetalous c., sympetalous c. 1. As commonly used, see Gamopetalous c. 2. More correctly, a c. consisting of a single petal, a unipetalous c. [Gray (B, 75).]—Orchidaceous c. Lat., C. orchidea. Fr., corolle orchidée. Ger., orchidartige Korolle. A c. in which the floral leaves are epigynous, and the calyx and c. are in whorls of 3 pieces each, and one of the petals, called the lip, is decidedly different from the rest. [B, 291 (α, 24).]—Papilionaceous c. Fr., corolle papilionacée. Ger., schmetterlingsartige Korolle. That form of irregular polypetalous c. in which there are five petals—one posterior, placed next to the axis; two lateral, called wings; and two anterior, covered in part or whole by the wings and often united slightly by their lower margins, so as to form a single carina. [B, 77, 121, 123 (α, 24).]—Perigynous c. Fr., corolle périgyne. Ger., umweilige Korolle. A c. with the petals adnate to the throat of the calyx—i. e., around the pistil instead of at its base. [B. 123, 291 (α, 24).]—Personate c. Lat., c. personata. Fr., corolle personée. Ger., verlarvte (oder entstellte) Ko- rolle. Syn.: mask-like c. A labiate c. in which the lower lip is pressed back against the upper one, so as to give the appearance of a mask. [B. 19, 77 (a, 24).]—Polypetalous c. Fr., corolle polypétale. Ger., vielblättrige Korolle. Syn.: dialypetalous c., eleutheropetalous c., apopetalous c., choripetalous c. 1. As commonly used, see Choripetalous c. 2. More properly, a c. composed of a considerable but unspecified number of petals. [Gray (B, 75).]—Regular c. Lat., c. regularis. Fr., corolle régulière. Ger., regelmässige Korolle. A c. in which the petals are equal in size, position, and development. [B, 77, 121, 123 (a, 24).]—Regular gamopetalous c. Fr., corolle gamopétale régulière. A c. that is both regular and gamopetalous. [a, 24.]—Regular polypetalous c. A c. that is both regular and polypetalous. [a, 24.]—Reversed c. Lat., c. resupinata. Fr., corolle renversée. A labiate c. in which the upper lip seems to take the place of the lower one. [B, 1 (a, 24).]—Ringent c. Lat., C. ringens. Fr., corolle ringente (ou en gueule). Ger., rachige Korolle. A labiate c. in which the upper lip is much arched and the lips are separated by a wide opening. [B, 77, 121, 123 (a, 24).]—Rosaceous c. Fr., corolle rosacée. Ger., rosenartige Korolle. A c. in which there are five spreading petals with short claws, and arranged as in the single rose and Potentilla. [B, 77, 121, 123 (a, 24).]—Rotate c. Lat., c. rotata. Fr., corolle rotacée (ou en roue). Ger., radförmige Korolle. Syn.: wheel-shaped c. A c. in which the tube is very short and the limb flat and spreading. [B, 77 (a, 24).]—Saccate c. Lat., c. saccata. Fr., corolle gibbeuse. Ger., sackförmige Korolle. A c. that is gibbous or sack-like at the base. [B, 77 (a, 24).]—Salver-shaped c. See Hypocrateriform c.—Spurred c. See Calcarate c.—Superior c. Fr., corolle supère. See Epigynous c.—Sympetalous c. See Gamopetalous c.—Strap-shaped c. Ger., bandförmige Korolle. See Ligulate c.—Tubular c. Lat., c. tubulata. Fr., corolle tubulée. Ger., röhrige Korolle. A c. in which the free limb is short and not at all spreading, retaining a cylindrical shape to its mouth. [B, 1 (a, 24).]—Tubular urceolate c. Fr., corolle tubuleuse urceolée. A c. in which the claws are united into an urn-shaped tube. [B, 77 (a, 24).]—Unipetalous c. Fr., corolle unipétale. Ger., einblättrige Korolle. See Monopetalous c. (2d def.).—Urceolate c. Lat., c. urceolata. Fr., c. urcéolée. Ger., krugige Korolle. Syn.: urn-shaped c. A c. in which there is scarcely any limb, and the tube is narrow at both ends and expanded at the middle. [B, 77, 121, 123 (a, 24).]—Wheel-shaped c. See Rotate c.—Zygomorphous c. A c. which can be divided into two symmetrical halves by one vertical plane and no more. [B, 245.]

VARIOUS FORMS OF COROLLA. (AFTER YOUMANS.)

COROLLACEOUS, adj. Ko^{2}r-o^{2}l-a'shu^{3}s. Lat., corollaceus. Fr., corollacé. Ger., blumenartig. Having the appearance of a corolla. [B, 121 (a, 24).] Cf. PETALOID.

COROLLÆFLORÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ko^{2}r-o^{2}l-le(la^3-e^2)-flor'e-(a^3-e^2). From corolla (q. v.), and flos, a flower. Of G. Don., the Corollifloræ. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

Fr., corps. Ger., Körper. It., corpo. Sp., cuerpo. See BODY.—C. adeniforme, C. adenodes, C. adenoides. See Adenoid BODY.—C. adiposum. Fr., corps adipeux. A mass of fat or of fat-like material. 1. In certain larvæ, a mass on each side of the body which breaks up during metamorphosis, setting free fat globules that assist in the formation of the tissues of the pupa and imago; in the larvæ of certain Diptera, a fatty body from which ova are developed. 2. In many Arthropoda, a mass of cells, usually milk-white, within the body cavity. 3. A mass of fat in the peritonæum surrounding the intestine in lizards. [L, 11, 196, 200, 231.]—C. adventitium. See Foreign BODY.—C. albicans. 1. The c. luteum of the ovary after it has lost its yellow color and most of its vessels and is composed largely of connective tissue. Its general appearance is that of a white cicatrix. [J, 42; "Arch. f. Anat. u. Entw.," 1879, p. 175 (J); "Arch. f. mikr. Anat.," 1881, p. 506 (J).] 2. In the pl., corpora albicantia, two small masses situated in front of the anterior perforated space, connected with the anterior pillars of the fornix and with each other. [I, 3; K.]—C. album subrotundum Vieussenii. The anterior tubercle of the optic thalamus. [L, 31, 142.]—Corpora bigemina. See Corpora quadrigemina.—Corpora bigemina anteriora (seu antica). The anterior pair of the corpora quadrigemina. [I, 27; K.]—Corpora bigemina posteriora (seu postica). The posterior pair of the corpora quadrigemina. [I, 27; K.]—C. callosum. Fr., corps calleux. Ger., Balken. It., corpo calloso. Sp., cuerpo calloso. The great commissure of the brain; a mass of white substance which connects the cerebral hemispheres. It lies at the bottom of the longitudinal fissure, and has a length of about 4 inches. Its form is arched, the convexity of the curve being upward. Anteriorly it bends downward (at the genu) and backward to the base of the brain, and terminates in two diverging masses (peduncles) which run across the anterior perforated space to terminate near the Sylvian fissure. Posteriorly it ends in a rounded projection called the splenium. In structure it presents a fibrous character, its upper surface showing numerous transverse bundles of nerve-fibres. The lower surface is continuous posteriorly with the fornix, but it is separated from the latter anteriorly by the septum lucidum. It is essentially commissural in its office, its fibres entering all three of the principal cerebral lobes. [K.]—C. cameratum. The fornix cerebri. A dentate lamina of gray matter found in the olivary bodies.—C. dentatum cerebelli, C. denticulatum. Fr., corps denté (ou dentelé). Ger., Markkern. A thin convoluted or indented lamina of gray matter situated in the centre of the white substance of the cerebellum, surrounded by a thin layer of gray substance. It is situated at the confluence of the third peduncuIi of the cerebellum at the level of the lateral angles of the fourth ventricle. The gray lamella forming the periphery of the nucleus is open at its inner, anterior, and inferior extremity, allowing voluminous fasciculi of nerve-fibres to pass from its interior to the pedunculus cerebelli ad corpora quadrigemina. [Henle, Sappey (α, 18); I, 23; K.]—C. dentatum olivæ. A gelatinous, transparent plate of gray matter, containing small round and angular cells, and transversed by nerve-fibres, found in the olivary body of the medulla oblongata. Upon transverse section it shows a nearly ovoid and irregularly dentated contour. [Henle (α, 18).]—C. discoides. See Crystalline LENS.—C. epididymidis. That portion of the epididymis between the tail and the head. Fr., corps jaune, oariule [Robin], ovariule, metoarion [Raciborski]. Ger., gelber Körper. It., corpo giallo (o luteo). Sp., cuerpo amarillo. Syn.: c. glandulosum [De Graaf]. The solid yellow body formed in the ovary during the retrograde metamorphosis, or histolysis, of a Graafian follicle after the extrusion of the ovum. It is composed of the somewhat wrinkled wall of the follicle and of the structures formed within the follicular cavity to take the place of the extruded ovum. These latter consist of a limited amount of blood derived from the capillaries broken at the rupture of the follicle, a fibrous stroma formed by proliferation of the cells of the membrana granulosa, and the surrounding ovarian stroma. It possesses an abundance of capillaries, and when first formed is considerably larger than the Graafian follicle, this enlargement being especially marked if pregnancy follows the extrusion of the ovum; it finally atrophies, however, and gives place to the ordinary ovarian stroma. The time required for the development and disappearance of a c. luteum is said to be about ten months when pregnancy follows the extrusion of the ovum, and in other cases about two months. [J, 14, 30, 32, 35, 42.]—C. luteum falsum, C. luteum of menstruation. A c. luteum formed in a Graafian vesicle that has discharged an ovule which has not become fecundated. It shows retrogressive changes within a few days, shrinks, and at last disappears. [A, 5, 17.]—C. luteum of pregnancy. A c. luteum formed in a Graafian vesicle that has discharged an ovule which has become fecundated. It undergoes a development that lasts during most of the period of gestation. Ger., Vierhügel. A small portion of the encephalon, derived from the mesencephalon of the embryo, measuring about 12 mm. in antero-posterior diameter and 15 mm. in width, lying upon the posterior aspect of the caudex cerebri (q. v.), behind the third ventricle, beneath the splenium of the corpus callosum, anterior to the vermis superior, and above the upper extremity of the aquæductus Sylvii. A shallow crucial sulcus divides the mass into four rounded eminences, the larger two of which are situated side by side anterior to and above the lower and smaller pair. From each of the anterior eminences extends a tractus of white substance (brachium anterius corporis quadrigemini) to the c. geniculatum externum of the corresponding side. From each of the posterior eminences extends a somewhat similar tractus (brachium posterius corporis quadrigemini) to the c. geniculatum internum. The structure of the eminentiæ anteriores is as follows: 1st, an outer layer of white substance (stratum zonale); 2d, beneath this a layer of gray matter (stratum cinereum); 3d, a layer of gray matter mixed with fibres from the optic nerve (stratum opticum); 4th, a deep-lying layer of which the fibres participate in the formation of the lemniscus. Beneath this layer is the central gray substance surrounding the aquæductus Sylvii. CORPUSCLE, n. Ko²rp'u³s'l. Lat., corpusculum (dim. of corpus, a body). Fr., corpuscule. Ger., Körperchen. It., corpuscolo. Sp., corpúsculo. A general term for (a) a cell (e. g., a connective-tissue c.), (b) some minute particle which is not equivalent to a cell (e. g., a milk-c.), (c) a part composed of many cells or even complex structures (e. g., the Malpighian and tactile c's). [J.]—Accessory c. Fr., corpuscule accessoire. Ger., Nebenkern, Nebenkörper, Nebenkörperchen, Belegungskörper. It., corpuscolo secondario. Sp., corpúsculo accesorio. 1. A kind of secondary nucleus found in the most diverse cells of the body, but more especially in the male reproductive cells, where it was discovered by V. St. George in 1867. Later researches have shown that it is derived from the nucleus by a kind of budding, and that in cell division it again fuses with the nucleus. [" Arch. f. mikr. Anat.," 1886 (J).] 2. An obsolete term for a nerve-cell. [L.]—Amniotic c's. Small outgrowths, sessile or pedunculated, springing from the amnion investing the umbilical cord, somewhat smaller than mustard-seeds, and of a yellowish-brown or olive tint; observed in certain mammals. [A, 11.]—Amylaceous c's, Amyloid c's. Lat., corpuscula (seu corpora) amylacea. Fr., corpuscules (ou corps) amylacés (ou amyloïdes). Ger., amyloïde (oder starkemehlartige) Körperchen, Amyloïdkörper, Amylonkörnchen. Syn.: animal starch. 1. Small round or oval bodies, concentrically striated, found normally in the central nervous system and some other parts; so called by Virchow, who supposed them to be starch-like in character. In 1859 Schmidt and Bertholet showed them to be proteid; their origin and function are unknown. [J; K.] 2. Similar bodies, reacting like starch with iodine, found especially in the nervous system, in chronic wasting diseases, but not as a product of lardaceous degeneration. [K.]—Antheridian c. Fr., corpuscule des anthéridiés. See ANTHEROZOID.—Areal c's. See Extrusion GLOBULE.—Articular nerve c's. Ger., Gelenknervenkörperchen. A modification of the tactile c's in the synovial articulations of the human fingers. They consist of rounded oval bodies, containing long and elliptical nuclei and a finely granulated matrix, into which from one to four double-contoured nerve-fibres enter, which divide dichotomously and are decidedly convoluted. [L, 332, 351.]—Assimilation c's. C's or cells which have the power of converting food into such a state that it is ready and proper for assimilation by the organism. [" Jour. of the Roy. Micr. Soc.," 1888, p. 970 (L).]—Axile c., Axis c. Ger., Achsenkörper. Of Kölliker, the central part or core of a tactile c. [J, 24.]—Bizzozero's c. Fr., corpuscule de Bizzozero. Ger., Blutplättchen. A variety of c. differing from the ordinary red and white c's, discovered by Bizzozero in the blood; regarded by Norris as identical with his c. (see Transparent c's of Norris), by others regarded as a variety of hæmatoblast. See HÆMATOBLAST.—Black c. Fr., corpuscule noir. See OSTEOPLAST.—Blood-c. Lat., corpusculum sanguinis. Fr., globule du sang. Ger., Blutkörperchen. See the major list.—Bone-c's. Fr., corpuscules osseux. Ger., Knochenkörperchen. 1. They are intermediate in structure between Pacinian c's and Herbst's c's, and are smaller than either. ["Arch. f. mikr. Anat.," 1881, p. 53 (J).]—Krause's c's. Bodies analogous in structure to the Pacinian c's, but found in mucous membranes. [a, 18.]—Lostorfer's c's. Ger., Lostorfer'sche Syphiliskörperchen. Minute round or oval, highly refracting bodies found in the blood of syphilitic persons by Lostorfer, of Vienna, in 1871. A small drop of the blood was placed on a glass slide covered, and kept for several days in a moist chamber. The c's made their appearance in from two to five days. Although they were regarded by Lostorfer as peculiar to syphilitic blood, Wedl, Biesiadecki, and Köbner have shown that they appear in the blood of non-syphilitic persons also, and that they are probably products of disintegration, especially of the white blood-c's. [G, 91.]—Lymphatic c's, Lymph-c's, Lymphoid c's. Fr., cellules (ou éléments, ou globules) lymphatiques, globules de la lymphe. Ger., Lymphkörperchen, Lymphzellen, Chyluskörperchen. It., corpuscoli linfatici (o della linfa). Sp., corpúsculos de la linfa. Syn.: lymph-cells (or globules), chyle-c's, leucocytes. The nucleated amœboid cells found in lymph and chyle. They are poured into the blood with the lymph, and are then called white blood-c's. They vary greatly in diameter, especially in mammals, in which they range from 5 μ to 20 μ. The smaller ones show only very slight amœboid movement or none at all, and are often described as free nuclei on account of the small size of the cell-body. Some of these c's are coarsely granular, and hence are called granular cells. [J, 24, 30, 31. 32, 35, 45.] Cf. Wandering cell.—Malpighian c's. Lat., corpuscula Malpighii (seu malpighiana), acini (seu glandulæ interiores) renales (1st def.). It., corpuscoli di Malpighi. Sp., corpúsculos de Malpighi. Syn.: Malpighian

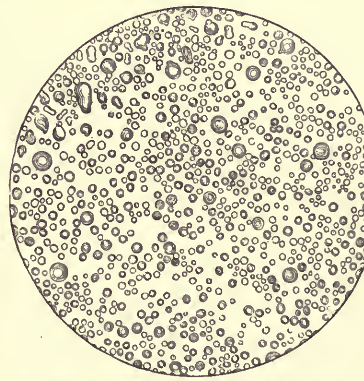
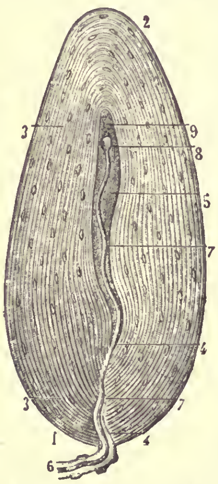
MALPIGHIAN CORPUSCLES OF THE KIDNEY. (FROM FLINT, AFTER SAPPEY.)



1, 1, Malpighian bodies surrounded by capsules; 2, 2, 2, convoluted tubes connected with Malpighian bodies; 3, artery branching to go to Malpighian bodies; 4, 4, 4, branches of artery; 6, 6, Malpighian bodies from which a portion of capsules has been removed; 7, 7, 7, vessels passing out of Malpighian bodies; 8, vessel, branches of which (9) pass to capillary plexus (10).

MALPIGHIAN CORPUSCLES OF THE SPLEEN. (FROM FLINT, AFTER CADIAT.)



A, artery around which corpuscle is placed; B, meshes of spleen-pulp, injected; C, artery of corpuscle ramifying in lymphatic tissue. The clear space around corpuscle represents lymphatic sinus.

bodies (or follicles, or glomeruli [1st and 2d def's]), glandules of Malpighi, spleen-c's (3d def.). 1. The globular, cæcal dilatations forming the origin of the urinary tubules. Each consists of a Bowman's capsule inclosing a glomerulus or tuft of capillary blood-vessels. 2. The glomeruli or Malpighian tufts of blood-vessels contained in a Bowman's capsule. 3. The globular masses of lymphoid tissue developed in the adventitia of the arteries of the spleen. Ger., Milchkügelchen. Globules of fat having an average diameter of from 0·0023 to 0·0090 mm., found in milk. They are said to have an albuminoid envelope (the albumin membrane of Ascherson). [L, 350, 351.]—Mobile c. See Antherozoid.—Molluscum c's. Ger., Molluscumkörperchen. Certain egg-shaped bodies found in the contents of the tumors of molluscum contagiosum, probably produced by degenerative changes in the epidermic cells.—Mucous c's, Mucus c's. Fr., corpuscules miqueux, cellules (ou globules) de mucus. Ger., Schleimkörperchen. 1. Round, granular bodies found in mucus, showing amœboid movements and apparently identical with white blood-c's. Cf. Salivary c's. 2. Young cells forming the deepest layer of an epithelium, finally becoming epithelia. [J, 27, 30; K.]—Muscle c's. Fr., noyaux musculaires. Ger., Muskelkerne, Muskelkörper, Muskelkörperchen. Syn.: muscle-nuclei. Small nucleiform or cell-like masses belonging to striated muscular fibres. In mammals they are situated on the surface of the muscular fibres, next to the sarcolemma, but in the lower vertebrates and in the invertebrates part of them are upon and part within the substance of the muscular fibre. They appear like nuclei and are sometimes surrounded by more or less granular protoplasm, which shades off gradually into the substance of the fibre. It is supposed to represent the cell-body, which originally, with others, gave rise to the muscular substance, and presides over the nutrition and growth of the fibres. [J, 30, 32; "Arch. f. Anat.," 1861, p. 1 (J).]—Nerve c's. Fr., corpuscules nerveux. Ger., Nervenkörperchen, Neurilemkerne (3d def.). 1. Of Dutrochet, the minute pores in the walls of the cells of vegetable tissue, supposed by him to be the seat of the elements of a true nervous system in plants. [B, 1 (a, 24).] 2. See Nerve-cell. 3. Of

HUMAN MILK-CORPUSCLES. (FROM FLINT, AFTER FUNKE.)

Klein, the cell-like bodies or nuclei belonging to the inner surface of the neurilemma or primitive sheath in both medullated and non-medullated nerve-fibres. In the non-medullated fibres they have no very definite arrangement, but in the medullated there is a single nerve-c. to each segment—i. e., between every two nodes of Ranvier. According to Adamkiewicz, there are, in addition to the nuclei or c's belonging to the neurilemma or peripheral medullated nerves, special fusiform c's imbedded in the myelin. They appear semilunar on transverse section and stain orange with safranin. They are about one fifth as numerous as the nuclei of the neurilemma. Hermann suggests that they are nuclei of the neurilemma with a remnant of a cell-body. [Adamkiewicz, "Stzgsb. d. k. k. Akad. d. Wissensch. zu Wien.," xci (J); Hermann, "Biol. Ctrlbl.," 1886 (J); J, 32.]—Neuroglia c. See Neuroglia-CELL.—Norris's c's. See Transparent c's of Norris.—Nuclear c. Of Schwann, a nucleolus. Each c. consists of a centrally situated blind termination of a medullated nerve-fibre surrounded by an ovoid mass consisting of several concentrically arranged layers with a central, nearly homogeneous core next to the nerve-fibre. The concentric layers forming the principal mass of the c. are supposed to be derived from the perineurium of the nerve-fibre and are surrounded by a layer of endothelial cells. The nerve-fibre enters the c. at one pole, very soon loses its myelin, and then extends as a naked axis-cylinder nearly to the opposite pole, where it enlarges into one or more club-shaped terminal masses. The c's are from 1 to 2 mm. or less in diameter, and have a wide distribution in the body of mammals, being especially abundant in the skin of the hands and feet of man and in the mesentery of the cat. CORSET, n. Ko^{2}rs'e^{2}t. Lat., tunica thoracis. Fr., c. Ger., Schnürleib, Corsett. It., giustacuore. Sp., corsé. 1. A firm, close-fitting, laced article of dress worn chiefly by women, generally stiffened with strips of steel or whalebone. When properly fitted, it relieves the strain on the muscles of the trunk in the erect posture, supports the breasts, and prevents the weight of the skirts from falling directly on the hips; when laced too tight, it impedes the movements of the chest and abdomen and exerts injurious pressure on the abdominal and pelvic organs. 2. In surgery, a firm, close investment for the chest or abdomen, made of some plastic material; used chiefly for the correction of spinal deformities and in the treatment of fractures and dislocations of the clavicle or the ribs.

COTINGIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kot(ko^{2}t)-i^{2}n(i^{2}n^2)'ji^{2}d(gi^{2}d)-e-(a^3-e^2). Of Garrod and Forbes, a family of the Heteromeri. [L, 121.]

COTINOS (Lat.), COTINUS (Lat.). n's m. and f. Ko^{2}t'i^{2}n-o^{2}s, -u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κότινος. Of Theophrastus, the wild olive-tree (Elæagnus angustifolia) ; of Pliny, the Rhus cotinus. [B, 114, 115, 121 (a, 24).]

COTIS (Lat.), n. f. Kot(ko^{2}t)'i^{2}s. Gr., κοτίς. Of Hippocrates, the occiput and the region of the nucha. [A, 325 ; L, 94 (a, 21).]

COTO-BARK, n. Ko'to-ba^{3}rk. Lat., cortex coto. Ger., Cotorinde. A bark obtained from the interior of Bolivia, believed at first to be from a Cinchona, though its origin is now in dispute. It has a cinnamon-brown color, a pungent, aromatic odor, and a sharp, peppery taste. It contains oil, resin, starch, gum, sugar, and other substances, but its active principle seems to be a glucoside, cotoin. It has been used with benefit in diarrhœa, though it must be employed cautiously when there is a tendency to acute inflammation, as the bark is very irritating. The powder rubbed on the skin produces heat and redness. It is said to be used in South America in rheumatism. [B, 5, 270 (a, 24) ; Lascar, " N. O. Med. and Surg. Jour.," Apr., 1882 (a, 24).]

COTOIN, n. Ko'to-i^{2}n. Fr., cotoïne. Ger., C. A crystalline substance, $C_{22}H_{18}O_6$, found in coto-bark ; sparingly soluble in water, readily soluble in alcohol. It has been used in diarrhœa, and is said to lessen the excretion of indican. [Albertoni, " Ann. univers. di med.," v, p. 261 (a, 24) ; B, 5, 270 (a, 24).] See also PARACOTOIN, OXYCOTOIN, LEUCOCOTOIN, and HYDROCOTOIN.

COTON (Fr.), n. Ko-ton^2. 1. In botany, see TOMENTUM. 2. See COTTON and GOSSYPIUM. 3. A popular term for favus. [G, 7.]—C. azotique. See PYROXYLIN.—C. bamba. A species of Gossypium, probably a variety of C. barbadense. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—C. cardé. Carded cotton. [A, 301.]—C. de la Chine. The down obtained by bruising the Artemisia vulgaris. [L, 105 (a, 21).]—C. fulminant. See PYROXYLIN.—C. hydrophile. See Absorbent COTTON.—C. iodé [Fr. Cod.]. See Iodized COTTON.—C.-poudre. See PYROXYLIN.—C. purifié. See Absorbent COTTON.—Huile de c. Cotton-seed oil. [B. 5, 173 (a, 24).]—Poudre-c. See PYROXYLIN.

COTONARIA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}t-o^{2}n-a(a^3)'ri^2-a^3. The Diotis candidissima. [B, 88.]

COTONEA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{2}t-on'e^2-a^3. The Origanum vulgare, also the fruit of Cydonia vulgaris. [B, 121, 180 (a, 24) ; L, 87, 105.]—Semen cotoneæ. The seed of Cydonia vulgaris. [B, 180 (a, 24).]

COTONEASTER (Lat.), n. m. Ko^{2}t-on-e^2-a^{2}st(a^{3}st)'u^{5}r(ar). Gen., cotoneast'eros (-is). Fr., cotonéastre. A genus of small trees and trailing shrubs of the order Rosaceæ, tribe Pomeæ. [B, 19, 42 (a, 24).]—Black-fruited c., Common c. See C. vulgaris.—C. microphylla [Wallich]. A trailing Himalayan species the fruits of which are said to contain hydrocyanic acid. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]—C. nummularia [Fischer and Meyer]. An Asiatic species ; a tall, stout shrub which yields a sort of manna or sweetmeat (see SHIRKHIST), exported in quantity from Afghanistan to Russia and India. [B, 5, 18, 270, 275 (a, 24).]—C. pyracantha [Spach]. Gr., ὀξύακανθα. Fr., buisson ardente. Ger., Feuerdorn, Feuerstrauch. A shrub of southern Europe and Asia Minor, the scarlet berries of which are used in obstinate diarrhœa and menorrhagia. [B, 180, 245.]—C. rotundifolia. An East Indian species, said to contain hydrocyanic acid. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—C. vulgaris [Lindley]. Syn. : Mespilus c. [Linnæus]. Common c. ; a species cultivated in Europe. The fruit was formerly used in diarrhœa. According to Wicke, the seeds contain amygdalin. [B, 5, 19, 121, 275 (a, 24).]—Moneywort-leaved c. See C. nummularia.—Small-leaved c. See C. microphylla.

COTTON, n. Ko^{2}t'n. Gr., ἔριον ἀπὸ ξύλου. Ar., cotin. Heb., zemer. Lat., gossypium [U. S. Ph., Br. Ph.], xylum [Fr. Cod.], gossypium depuratum [Ger. Ph.], lanugo (seu lana, seu pili) gossypii. Fr., coton [Fr. Cod.]. Ger., Baumwolle. It., cotone. Sp., algodón. The hairs of the seed of Gossypium barbadense and other species of Gossypium deprived of impurities. It consists of fine, soft, white filaments, without odor or taste, insoluble in water, in alcohol, or in ether, soluble in strong alkaline solutions, and decomposed by the concentrated mineral acids. Chemically, it is identical with lignin, and, besides its chief constituent, cellulose, contains wax, a fatty acid, coloring matter, pectic acid, and an albuminoid substance. Official c. is prepared by boiling raw c. in a diluted alkaline solution, the soap which is formed through the union of the alkali with the fatty matter being dissolved out by repeated washings. C. impregnated with almost any of the fixed oils will, if allowed to stand, take fire spontaneously. C., besides its use for fabricating cloth, is employed as a filtering medium, and is said to purify air which passes through it by straining out the microscopic organisms that induce fermentation. It is applied as a dressing for scalds, burns, wounds, etc., to absorb effused liquids, and to protect the affected parts from the air. It is also recommended as an external application in erysipelas and rheumatism. [B, 5 (a, 24).]—Absorbent c. Lat., gossypium [U. S. Ph., Br. Ph.], gossypium depuratum [Ger. Ph.], gossypium purificatum. Fr., coton hydrophile, coton purifié. Ger., gereinigte Baumwolle. It., cotone assorbente. Sp., algodón absorvente. C. from which oil and all impurities have been removed ; according to F. L. Slocum, made by boiling carded c. for half an hour with a 5-per-cent. solution of soda or caustic potassa, washing thoroughly, expressing, boiling again for 15 or 20 minutes in a 5-per-cent. solution of alkali, washing well with water, acidulated water, and water, expressing, and drying quickly. [B, 81 (a, 21).]—Benzoic c. A preparation made by immersing 1 kilogramme of clean absorbent c. in a solution of 50 or 100 grammes of benzoic acid and 10 or 20 grammes each of castor-oil and resin in 4 litres of alcohol, and then drying. [B, 81 (a, 21).]—Chlorinated c. Of Pavesi, c. moistened with glycerin and subjected to the action of chlorine vapor. COULEUVRE (Fr.), n. Kul-u^{5}vr'. See COLUBER.—C. à collier. The Coluber natrix. [A, 385.]—C. lisse. See CORONELLA lævis.

COULEUVRÉE (Fr.), n. Ku-lu^{5}v-ra. 1. The Bryonia alba. 2. The Agaricus procerus. [B, 121, 173 (a, 24).]—C. noire. The Tamus communis. [B, 121, 173 (a, 24)].

COULEUVRIN (Fr.), adj. Ku-lu^{5}v-ra^{2}n^2. Resembling the Coronella. [L, 41.]

COULEUVRINE (Fr.), n. Ku-lu^{5}v-ren. See COULEUVRÉE.

COULISSE (Fr.), n. Ku-les. A groove lined with synovial membrane, through which a tendon plays. [A, 301.]

COULOBRINIÉ (Fr.), n. Ku-lo-bre-ne-a. The Sambucus nigra. [B, 88 (a, 21).]

COULOIR (Fr.), n. Kul-wa^{4}r. See EMUNCTORY.—C's accidentels, C's artificiels. An obsolete term applied to ulcers, abscesses, etc., on account of the belief that they afforded the means of escape of foul humors, etc. [L, 41.]

COULOMB, n. Ku-lo^{3}m. From the name of a French electrician. The unit of electrical quantity ; the quantity of electricity produced by an electro-motive force of 1 volt acting for 1 second against 1 ohm of resistance—i. e., the quantity of electricity developed by a current of 1 ampère. In static electricity, the same unit measured by the charge developed in a Leyden jar of the capacity of 1 farad by 1 volt of electro-motive force. [B.]—C'meter. A galvanometer for the measurement of electrical quantity. [B.]

COULOMBA, n. The Morus alba. [B, 88, 121 (a, 24).]

COULOUBRIGNÉ (Fr.), n. Ku-lu-bren-ya. The Sambucus nigra. [B, 88, 121 (a, 24).]

COULTERIA (Lat.), n. f. Ko^{3}lt-e(e^2)'ri^2-a^3. See CÆSALPINIA.

COULURE (Fr.), n. Kul-u^{6}r. In botany, abortion. [A, 301.]

COUMA (Lat.), n. f. Kum'a^3. Fr., coumier. Of Aublet, a genus of South American apocynaceous trees of the Carisseæ. The species all bear berries of an agreeable taste. [B, 42, 121, 173 (a, 24).]—C. guianensis. Fr., coumier de la Guiane. Of Aublet, a species indigenous to Guiana, where the sweet, fleshy fruit is eaten. The bark yields a resin, which is used as a perfume and sometimes as a substitute for pitch and tar. [B. 173 (a, 24).]

COUMARATE, n. Ku'ma^{2}r-at. A salt of coumaric acid. [a, 24.]

COUMARIC ACID, n. Ku-ma^{2}r'i^{2}k. Fr., acide coumarique. Ger., Cumarinsäure. It., acido cumarico. Sp., ácido cumárico. An acid, $C_9H_8O_3 = C_6H_4\langle^{OH}_{C_2H_2CO.OH}$, forming one of the constituents of melilot. It forms colorless, shining, prismatic crystals, which are readily soluble in hot water and in alcohol, and melt at 195° C. [B, 4, 5, 158 (a, 24).] See also PARACOUMARIC ACID.

COUMARIN, n. Ku'ma^{2}r-i^{2}n. Fr., coumarine. Ger., C. It., Sp., cumarina. The anhydride, $C_9H_6O_2$, of coumaric acid. It is the fragrant principle of several plants, especially of tonka-beans, in which it often occurs in fine crystals. It may be extracted with alcohol, and crystallizes in colorless prisms, soluble with difficulty in cold water, more soluble in hot water and in alcohol. It melts at 67° C. [B, 4, 5, 158 (a, 24).]

COUMARINIC ACID, n. Ku-ma^{2}r-i^{2}n'i^{2}k. See COUMARIC ACID.

COUMAROU, n. In Brazil, the Coumarouna odorata. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COUMAROUNA (Lat.), n. f. Ku-ma^{2}r-u'na^3. See Dipteryx.—C. odorata [Aublet]. The Dipteryx odorata. [B, 121, 173, 180 (a, 24).]

COUMARYL, n. Ku'ma^{2}r-i^{2}l. Fr., coumaryle. The hypothetical radicle of coumarin. [A, 301.]

COUMÈNE (Fr.), n. Ku-man. The Lycopus europæus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COUMIER (Fr.), n. Ku-me-a. See COUMA.—C. de la Guiane. See COUMA guianensis.—C'harz (Ger.). The resin of Icica guianensis and Icica heptaphylla. [B, 180 (a, 24).]

COUMMAIRE (Fr.), n. Kum-mar. The Conyza squarrosa. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COUMON, n. In Guiana, the fruit of a species of palm. An agreeable beverage is made from it. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

COUNDOU-MANI, n. In India, the Abrus precatorius. [L, 105 (a, 21).]

COUNTERACTION, n. Ku^5''u^{4}n-tu^{5}r-a^{2}k'shu^{3}n. From contra, against, and agere, to act. Fr., contre-action. Ger., Gegenwirkung. Action (as of a drug) that opposes the action of another.

COUNTERBANE, n. Ku^5'u^{4}n-tu^{5}r-ban. See ANTIDOTE.

COUNTER-EXTENSION, n. Ku^5''u^{4}n-tu^{5}r-e^{2}x-te^{2}n'shu^{3}n. From contra, against, and extendere, to extend. Fr., contre-extension. Ger., Gegendehnung, Gegenstreckung. It., controestensione. Sp., contra-extensión. The process or means of holding one part of a structure fixed while traction is exerted on the opposite part; usually such fixation of the proximal fragment of a broken bone.

COUNTER-FISSURE, n. Ku^5'u^{4}n-tu^{5}r-fi^{2}s-u^{2}r. See CONTRA-FISSURA.

COUNTER-INDICATION, n. Ku^5-u^{4}n-tu^{5}r-i^{2}n-di^2-ka'shu^{3}n. See CONTRA-INDICATION.

COUNTER-IRRITANT, adj. Ku^5-u^{4}n-tu^{5}r-i^{2}r'i^{2}t-a^{2}nt. Lat., contra-irritans. Fr., contre-irritatif. Ger., entgegenreizend. Producing counter-irritation.

COUNTER-IRRITATION, n. Ku^5-u^{4}n-tu^{5}r-i^{2}r-i^{2}t-a'shu^{3}n. Lat., contra-irritatio. Fr., contre-irritation. Ger., Gegenreizung. Irritation of a part for the purpose of diminishing morbid action in another part; derivation by irritation.

COUNTER-OPENING, n. Ku^5-u^{4}n-tu^{5}r-op'e^{2}n-i^{2}n^{2}g. Lat., contra-incisio. Fr., contre-ouverture. Ger., Gegenöffnung. An opening made into an abscess or other pathological collection of liquid, in addition to the original opening, and usually remote from it, for the purpose of facilitating the prompt and thorough escape of the liquid.

COUNTERPARTS, n. Ku^5-u^{4}n-tu^{5}r-pa^{3}rts. An old term for the individual parts of the obstetrical forceps, including each blade and its handle. [A, 29.]

CREASOL, n. Kre'a^{2}s-o^{2}l. Fr., créosol. Ger., Kreosol. A phenol obtained from wood-tar creasote, $C_6H_3(CH_3)(OH)OCH_3 = C_8H_{10}O_2$. [B, 4, 5 (a, 24).]

CREASOTE, n. Kre'a^{2}s-ot. Lat., creasotum. [U. S. Ph., Br. Ph.] (from κρέας, flesh, and σώζειν, to preserve), kreosotum [Ger. Ph., Aust. Ph., Hung. Ph., Swiss Ph., Belg. Ph., Netherl. Ph., Dan. Ph., Russ. Ph., Greek Ph.]. Fr., créosote du goudron de bois. Ger., Kreosot. It., creosoto. Sp., creosota [Sp. Ph.]. A substance obtained by the distillation of wood-tar, consisting chiefly of a mixture of cresol, oxycresol, methylcresol, and phlorone. It is a highly refractive, oily liquid, having, when freshly prepared, a yellowish tinge which changes to red or brown on exposure to the light. It has a peculiar, sharp, empyreumatic odor and a burning taste, and produces a white stain on coming into contact with the skin. It has a sp. gr. of from 1·035 to 1·085, boils at nearly 200° C., and is inflammable. It is soluble in 80 parts of cold water and readily soluble in absolute alcohol, in ether, and in chloroform. It has marked antiseptic properties. It is used in medicine for its local action as a paralyzant of nerve tissue. Given in small doses, it acts as a sedative, but in overdoses it is a violent poison, producing nausea, headache, convulsions, and coma. It has been administered with advantage in cases of obstinate vomiting, cholera morbus, cholera infantum, lienteric diarrhœa, and typhoid fever, and is of special value in gastric diseases attended with fermentation. Externally it is applied as a stimulant styptic and in the treatment of decayed teeth. It has been found useful in skin diseases of a scaly nature and in the treatment of foul ulcers or inflamed tissues that give rise to fœtid discharges in leucorrhœa, diphtheritic sore throat, etc. It has recently been recommended in the treatment of pulmonary phthisis. [B, 5, 95 (α, 24) ; α, 27.]—Coal-tar c. Fr., créosote du goudron de houille. Ger., Steinkohlentheerkreosot. 1. That portion of the heavy oil of coal-tar which distills between 165° and 200° C. It resembles c. in appearance, and is often substituted for it. It differs from c. in containing carbolic acid. It also contains cresol, xylenol, and other substances of the aromatic group. 2. An improper name for carbolic acid. [B, 5 (α, 24).]—C.-bush. The Larrea mexicana. [B, 81 (α, 24).]—C. capsules with balsam of tolu. Of Reuss, capsules containing each 5 centigrammes of c. with balsam of tolu. CRÉNATÉ (Fr.), adj. Kra-na^3-ta. Containing salts of crenic acid. [A, 301.]

CRENATED, adj. Kre^{2}n'at-e^{2}d. See CRENATE (adj.).

CRENATION, n. Kre^{2}n-a'shu^{3}n. Fr., crénation. Ger., Zackenform. It., merlatura. Sp., dentación. The state of being crenate, also the assumption of a crenate shape.

CRENATO-DENTATE, adj. Kre^{2}n-at''o-de^{2}nt'at. Lat., crenato-dentatus (from crena, a notch, and dens, a tooth). Notched at the edge into crenels. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]

CRENATO-SERRATE, adj. Kre^{2}n-at''o-se^{2}r'at. Lat., crenato-serratus (from crena, a notch, and serra, a saw-tooth). Having convex serratures (said of leaves). [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]

CRENATURE, n. Kre^{2}n'a^{2}t-u^{2}r. Lat., crenatura. See CRENA.

CRENCORO (It.), n. Kre^{2}n-ko'ro. The Cneorum tricoccum. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CRÉNÉ (Fr.), adj. Kra-na. See CRENATE (adj.).

CRENEL, n. Kre^{2}n'e^{2}l. See CRENA.

CRENELLATE, CRENELLED, adj's. Kre^{2}n'e^{2}l-at, -e^{2}ld. Fr., crénelé. See CRENULATE.

CRENELURE, n. Kre^{2}n'e^{2}l-u^{2}r. Fr., crénelure. An indentation, also a tooth-like process (as of the cranial bones). [A, 301.]

CRENEUSE (Fr.), n. Kre^{2}n-u^{6}z. The Leonurus cardiaca. [L, 105.]

CRENIC ACID [Berzelius], n. Kre^{2}n'i^{2}k. Lat., acidum crenicum (from κρήνη, a spring). Fr., acide crénique. Ger., Quellsäure. An organic acid, $C_{12}O_8$ (according to Mulder), found in vegetable mould and in ochreous deposits in ferruginous waters. It is a pale yellow, transparent, hard, uncrystallizable substance. It forms neutral and acid salts with alkalies. [B, 2 (a, 24).]

CRENICOLLIS (Lat.), adj. Kre^{2}n(kran)-i^2-ko^{2}l'li^{2}s. From crena, a cleft, and collum, the neck. Fr., crenécolle. Ger., kerbhalsig. Having the neck or body indented. [L, 41.]

CRENIFEROUS, adj. Kre^{2}n-i^{2}f'e^{2}r-u^{3}s. Lat., creniferus (from crena, a cleft, and ferre, to bear). Fr., crénifère. Ger., kerbtragend. See CRENATE.

CRENIHET, n. In Provence, the Silene inflata. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CRÉNILABRE (Fr.), adj. Kran-e-la^{3}b'r. From crena, a notch, and labrum, a lip. Having notched lips. [A, 385.]

CRENIROSTRIS (Lat.), adj. Kre^{2}n(kran)-i^2-ro^{2}st'ri^{2}s. From crena, a notch, and rostrum, a beak. Fr., crénirostre. Ger., kerbschnabelig. Having a notched beak, as in the Crenirostres (a family of the Passeres). [L, 41.]

CRENO-CRENNO (It.), n. Kran-o-kran'no. The Raphanus silvestris. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CRENOTHRIX [Cohn] (Lat.), n. f. Kre^{2}n(kran)'o(o^3)-thri^{2}x. Gen., crenot'richos (-is). From κρήνη, a spring, and θρίξ, a hair. A genus of Schizomycetes in which the filaments are simple but articulated, and are inclosed in a gelatinous or mucilaginous envelope. [B, 291 (a, 24).]—C. kühniana [Rabenhorst], C. polyspora [Cohn]. A species which sometimes contaminates drinking-water, by reason of its filaments becoming charged with a precipitate of sesquioxide of iron, after which they putrefy and give the water a very disagreeable taste. [Giard, "Gaz. hebd. de méd. et de chir.," Aug. 11, 1882, p. 529; "Quart. Jour. of Micr. Sci.," 1873, p. 163 (B).]

CRENUCHINA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kre^{2}n(kran)-u^2(u^4)-ki(ch^{2}e)'na^3. A subfamily or group of the Characinidæ. [L, 207, 280.]

CRENULATE, CRENULATED, adj's. Kre^{2}n'u^{2}l-at, -e^{2}d. Lat., crenulatus. Fr., crénulé. Ger., feingekerbt. Finely crenate. [B, 1, 123 (a, 24).]

CRENULATION, n. Kre^{2}n-u^2-la'shu^{3}n. The condition of being crenate or crenulated. [L.]

CRENULURE, n. Kre^{2}n'u^{2}l-u^{2}r. See CRENELURE.

CREOCERIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kre(kra)-o(o^3)-se^{2}r(ke^{2}r)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A family of the Coleoptera. [L. 196.]

CREOCHITEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kre(kra)-o(o^3)-ki^{2}t(ch^{2}i^{2}t)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., créochitées. Of Miquel, a subtribe of the Melastomaceæ miconales, consisting of the genus Creochiton. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CREOGRAPHY, n. Kre-o^{2}g'ra^{2}f-i^2. From κρέας, flesh, and γράφειν, to describe. Fr., créographie. See HISTOLOGY.

CREOLIN, n. Kre'ol-i^{2}n. Lat., creolinum. Fr., créoline. Ger., C. A blackish-brown, syrupy liquid produced by the dry distillation of coal, consisting mainly of coal-tar, certain saponifiable fatty acids and resins, and soda. It forms a milky emulsion with water, from which it is apt to be deposited on surfaces with which it is brought in contact. This emulsion is used as an antiseptic. [J. Neundorfer, "Pharm. Post"; "Am. Jour. of Pharm.," June, 1888, p. 273; L. A. Stimson, "N. Y. Med. Jour.," Feb. 2, 1889, p. 134.]

CRÉON (Fr.), n. Kra-o^{3}n^2. The Pinus pumilio. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]

CREOPHAGA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kre(kre^2)-o^{2}f'a^{2}g(a^{3}g)-a^3. Fr., créophages. 1. An order of the Zoophaga. [L, 228.] 2. See CARABIDÆ.

CREOPHAGOUS, adj. Kre-o^{2}f'a^{2}g-u^{3}s. Lat., creophagus (from κρέας, flesh, and φαγεῖν, to eat). Fr., créophage. Ger., fleischfressend. See CARNIVOROUS.

CREOSOL, n. Kre'o-so^{2}l. See CREASOL.

CREOSOT (Ger.), n. Kra-o-zot'. See CREASOTE.—C. und carbolsaures-Klystier. Creasote-and-carbolic-acid enema; a mixture of 1 part of carbolic acid and 2,000 parts of decoction of flaxseed. [Bernatzik (L, 57 [a, 21]).]

CREOSOTE, n. Kre'o-sot. See CREASOTE.

CRÉOSOTE (Fr.), n. Kra-o-zot. See CREASOTE.—Alcoolat de c. Spirit of creasote; a mixture of 15 parts of alcohol and 1 part of creasote. [L, 87 (a, 21).]—C. du goudron de hître. C. obtained from the tar of beech-wood. [a, 18.]—C. du goudron de houille. See Coal-tar CREASOTE.—C. officinale. Ordinary creasote. [B.]—C. solidifiée. Solidified creasote; of S. Martin, a mixture of 15 parts of creasote and 10 of collodion. [L, 87 (a, 21).]—C. végétale. See CREASOTE.—Eau de c. See Aqua CREASOTI.—Mixture de c. See Mistura CREASOTI.—Pilules de c. Creasote pills; of Pitschaff, a preparation made by mixing 3 drops of creasote, 0·20 gramme of extract of conium and a sufficient quantity of magnesia and mucilage, and dividing into 9 pills. [L, 87 (a, 21).]—Potion de c. Creasote potion; of Laveran, a preparation containing 3 drops of creasote, 2 drops of essence of lemon, 30 grammes of orange-flower syrup, and 90 grammes of water. [L, 87 (a, 21).]—Solution alcoolique de c. Alcoholic solution of creasote; of Dujardin-Beaumetz, a preparation consisting of 6 grammes of creasote, 250 grammes of alcohol, and sufficient sweet wine to make 1 litre. [L, 87 (a, 21).]—Solution huileuse de c. Oily solution of creasote; of Bouchard and Gimbert, a preparation containing 75 parts of cod-liver oil and 1 part of creasote. [L, 87 (a, 21).]

CRÉOSOTÉ (Fr.), adj. Kra-o-zo-ta. Containing creasote.

CRÉOSOTE-PAYS (Fr.), n. Kra-o-zot-pae. The Spilanthus uliginosa. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CREOSOZON (Lat.), n. m. Kre(kre^2)-o(o^3)-soz'o^{2}n(on). Gen., creosozont'os (-is). From κρέας, flesh, and σώζειν, to preserve. See CREASOTE.

CREOZOMA (Lat.), n. f. Kre(kre^2)-o(o^3)-zo'ma^3. See CREATOZOMA.

CREPALIA (Lat.), n. f. Kre^{2}p-a(a^3)'li^2-a^3. See LOLIUM.

CREPANELLA (It.), n. Kra-pa^{3}n-e^{2}l'la^3. The Plumbago europœa. [B, 88, 121 (a, 24).]

CREPATERRA (It.), n. Kra-pa^3-te^{2}r'ra^3. The Silene behen. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CREPATION, n. Kre^{2}p-a'shu^{3}n. Gr., λακίς, λάκισμα. Lat., crepatio, crepatura (from crepare, to crack). The cracking or bursting of a seed in boiling. [L, 94 (a, 21).]

CREPATURA (Lat.), n. Kre^{2}p-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-u^2(u)'ra^3. 1. See CREPATION. 2. Of Paracelsus, an intestinal hernia. [A, 325; L, 84, 94 (a, 21).]—C. intestini. See CREPITUS ventris.

CREPELIA (Lat.), n. f. Kre^{2}p-e(a)'li^2-a^3. See LOLIUM.

CREPIDARIA (Lat.), n. f. Kre^{2}p(krap)-i^{2}d-a(a^3)'ri^2-a^3. The genus Pedilanthus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—C. myrtifolia [Haworth]. The Pedilanthus tithymaloides. [B, 173 (a, 24).]

CRÉPIDE (Fr.), n. Kra-ped. See CREPIS. [L, 41.]

CREPIDEÆ (Lat.), n. p. pl. Kre^{2}p-i^{2}d'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., crépidées, crépides. 1. Of Cassini, a division of the Lactuceœ, comprising Lampsana, Rhagadiolus, Kölpima, Zacintha, Nemanchenes, Gatyona, Hostia, Barkhausia, Catonia, Crepis, Intybellia, Pterotheca, Ixeris, Taraxacum, Helmintha, Picris, and Medicusia; subsequently comprising the subdivisions Lampsaneœ, Cerœ (consisting of Chondrilla, Willemelia, Zacintha, Nemanchenes, Gatyona, Anisoderis, Barkhausia, Paleya, Catonia, Crepis, Brachyderea, Phœcasium, Intybellia, Deloderium, Pterotheca, Ixeris, Taraxacum, and Omalocline) and Picrideœ. 2. Of Bentham and Hooker, a subtribe of the Cichoriaceœ, order Compositœ. [B, 42, 170 (a, 24).]

CREPIDIAL, adj. Kre^{2}p-i^{2}d'i^2-a^{2}l. Shaped like the sole of a shoe. [L, 121.]

CREPIDO (Lat.), n. f. Kre^{2}p(krap)-i(e)'do. Gen., crepid'inis. From κρηπίς, a sandal. See AMBE (2d def.).—Crepidines palpebrarum. An obsolete term for the tarsal cartilages. [F.]

CREPIDOPODUS (Lat.), adj. Kre^{2}p(krap)-i^{2}d(ed)-o^{2}p'o^{2}d-u^{3}s-(u^{4}s). From κρηπίς, a sandal, and πούς, the foot. Fr., crépidopode. Ger., sohlefüssig. Having a sandal-shaped foot; as a n., in the n. pl., Crepidopoda, a family of the Gasteropoda. [A, 385; L, 41.]

CREPIDULATE, adj. Kre^{2}p-i^{2}d'u^{2}l-at. Lat., crepidulatus (from crepido, a sandal). Fr., crépidulé. Ger., pantoffelchenförmig. Slipper-shaped, sandal-shaped. [L, 41.]

CREPIDULINA (Lat.), n. pl. Kre^{2}p(krap)-i^{2}d-u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-i(e)'na^3. Fr., crépidulines. A subfamily of the Calyptrœadœ. [L, 282.]

CRÉPINE (Fr.), n. Kra-pen. A crystallizable substance found in the various plants of the Crepideœ. [A, 385.]

CRÉPINETTE (Fr.), n. Kra-pe-ne^{2}t. The Polygonum aviculare., [B, 121, 173 (a, 24).]

CRÉPINIÈRE (Fr.), n. Kra-pe-ne-ar. The Berberis cretica. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CREPINUM [Paracelsus], n. Tartar. [L, 84.]

CREPIS (Lat.), n. f. Kre(kra)'pi^{2}s. Gen., crepid'os (-is). From κρηπίς, a sandal. Fr., crépide. Ger., Pippau. Hawk's-beard; a Linnæan genus of the Cichoriaceœ. [A, 505; B, 121.]—C. echioides [Allione]. The Helmintha (Picrio) echioides. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. globulosa [Tollard]. Fr., crépide globuleuse. A species the young leaves of which are eaten in France as a salad. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. lacera [Tenore]. A poisonous species found in southern Europe. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. montana [Bernhardi]. The Hieracium sabaudum. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. placera [Tenore]. A species found in Sicily and southern Italy. According to Tenore, it is dangerous, but that point is not sufficiently well established. [L. 87 (a, 21).]—C. sibirica. A species found in northern Asia. The Bashkirs eat the milky stems, which they call chakœ. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—C. umbellata [Bernhardi]. The Hieracium umbellatum. [B, 173.]

CREPITACULUM (Lat.), n. n. Kre^{2}p-i^{2}t-a^{2}k(a^{3}k)-u^2(u^4)-lu^{3}m-(lu^{4}m). From crepitare, to crackle. Fr., crépitacle. Lit., a rattle; a sort of fruit that cracks open with a noise. [L, 41.]

CREPITANT, CREPITATING, adj's. Kre^{2}p'i^{2}t-a^{2}nt, -ati^{2}n^{2}g. Lat., crepitans. Fr., crépitant. Ger., crepitirend, knisternd. Crackling. Cf. SUBCREPITANT.

CREPITATIO (Lat.), n. f. Kre^{2}p-i^{2}t-a(a^3)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., crepitation'is. See CREPITATION.—C. dentium. Fr., claquement de dents. Ger., Zähneklappen. Chattering of the teeth, as in a child. [Gabler (a, 18).]—C. indux. A crepitant râle heard at the beginning of hepatization in pneumonia. [L, 20 (a, 18).]—C. redux. Fr., crépitation (ou râle) de retour. A crepitant râle occurring during the decline of pneumonia in the portions of lung previously solidified. It is louder and more lasting than the crepitant râles at the beginning of hepatization. [L, 20 (a, 18).]

CREPITATION, n. Kre^{2}p-i^{2}t-a'shu^{3}n. Lat., crepitatio, crepitus. Fr., crépitation. Ger., Knistern. It., crepitazione. Sp., crepitación. 1. A fine crackling sound, such as is heard when salt is thrown into a fire, when a lock of hair is rolled between the fingers near the ear, when pressure is made on a dry sponge, or on auscultation of the chest in the early stage of pneumonia. [A, 326.] 2. See CREPITUS.—Dry c. A dry crackling rhonchus. [D.]—Humid c. A moist crackling rhonchus. [D.]

CRÉPITATION (Fr.), n. Kra-pe-ta^3-se-o^{3}n^2. See CREPITATION.—C. de retour. See CREPITATIO redux.

CREPITOUS, adj. Kre^{2}p'i^{2}t-u^{3}s. See CREPITANT.

CREPITUS (Lat.), n. m. Kre^{2}p'i^{2}t-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gen., c. Fr., crépitation. Ger., C. 1. A sudden and very pronounced crepitation. 2. An audible discharge of flatus. 3. The snapping noise made by pulling upon a joint. 4. The sound produced or the sensation felt by the examiner on manipulating a joint into which an effusion has taken place. 5. The grating sound or sensation produced by rubbing the fragments of a broken bone together. [A, 301; E.]—Albuminous c. See C. (4th def.).—Bony c. See C. (5th def.).—C. lupi. The genus Lycoperdon. especially the Lycoperdon bovista. [A, 325; B, 121 (a, 24).]—C. redux. See CREPITATIO redux.—C. ventris. Gr., πορδή. An audible escape of flatus from the anus. [A, 325.]—False c., Joint c. See C. (4th def.).—Silken c. Fr., bruit parcheminè. The rushing sensation imparted to the hand in manipulating hypertrophied fringes of the synovial membrane in hydrarthrosis, and is so called from its resemblance to the sensation produced by rubbing between the fingers two surfaces of silk ribbon. [Barwell (a, 28).]

CREPOIDEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kre^{2}p(krap)-o(o^3)-i^{2}d(ed)'e^2-e-(a^3-e^2). Fr., crépoidées. A tribe of the Cichoraceœ, comprising Chondrilla, Willemetia, Taraxacum, Picridium, Zacintha, Pterotheca, Crepis, Soyeria, Hieracium, and Andryala. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CRÉPOLE (Fr.), n. Kra-po^{3}l. The genus Crepis. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CRÉPON (Fr.), n. Kra-po^{3}n^2. An implement for applying rouge to the face. [A, 505.]

CRÉPU (Fr.), adj. Kra-pu^6. See CRISPUS.

CREPUSCULAR, adj. Kre^{2}p-u^{3}sk'u^{2}l-a^{3}r. Lat., crepuscularis (from crepusculum, twilight). Fr., crépusculaire, crépusculin. Most active at dawn or at the approach of evening (said of animals). [L, 41, 147.]

CREPUSCULARIA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kre^{2}p-u^{3}s(u^{4}s)-ku^2(ku^4)-la(la^3)'ri^2-a^3. A family or tribe of the Lepidoptera. [L. 73.]

CRÉQUIER (Fr.), n. Kra-ke-a. The Prunus spinosa. [B, 121, 173 (a, 24).]

CRESCENTIA (Lat.), n. f. Kre^{2}s(kras)-se^{2}n(ke^{2}n)'shi^2(ti^2)-a^3. From crescere, to grow. Fr., crescentie. calebassier. Ger., Kürbisbaum. A Linnæan genus of the Bignoniaceœ, tribe Crescentieœ. [B, 42 (a, 24).]—C. alata [Bonpland]. A species indigenous to Mexico, and cultivated in the Philippine and Ladrone Islands. A decoction of the leaves is used in hæmoptysis. The Mexicans use the pulp of the fruit in chest diseases. [B, 19 (a, 24).]—C. cucurbitina [Linnæus and Swartz]. Fr., calebassier à large feuilles, arbre à couis. The calabazo de playa of Panama; a species common on the coasts of Central America and the West Indies, and cultivated in Japan. It is used like C. cujete. Its fruit is said to be poisonous. [B, 19, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. cujete. Fr., calebassier à longues feuilles. Ger., grossfrüchtiger Kürbisbaum. A West Indian and South American tree. The pulp of the fruit is used in the West Indies for pectoral complaints, dropsy, and diarrhœa. [B, 19, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. edulis [Desvaux]. Fr., calebassier comestible. A West Indian species, used like C. cujete. The pulp of the fruit is eaten cooked. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. latifolia [Lamarck and Miller]. See C. cucurbitina. 1. Of Dumortier, a tribe of the Bignoniaceœ. 2. Of Gardner, an order intermediate between the Bignoniaceœ and the Cyrtandraceœ. 3. Of Lindley, an order of the Bignoniales, comprising the genera of the Crescentieœ. 4. Of Endlicher and Seemann, a family comprising the tribes Tanœcieœ and Crescentiaceœ. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CRESCENTIACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kre^{2}s(kras)-se^{2}n(ke^{2}n)-shi^2(ti^2)-a(a^3)'se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., crescentiacées.

CRESCENTIADS, n. pl. Kre^{2}s-se^{2}n'ti^2-a^{2}dz. See CRESCENTIACEÆ.

CRESCENTIC, adj. Kre^{2}s-e^{2}nt'i^{2}k. Fr., crescentique. 1. Crescent-shaped. 2. Derived from a plant of the genus Crescentia. —C. acid. Fr., acide crescentique. A crystalline acid obtained by Peckolt, of Brazil, from the fruit of Crescentia cujete. [" Pharm. Rundsch ," Aug., 1884 ; " Nouv. rem.," June 15, 1885, p. 142 (B).]

CRESCENTIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kre^{2}s(kras)-se^{2}n-ti(ti^2)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., crescentiées. A tribe of the Bignoniaceæ, comprising, according to Don, Crescentia, Tanæcium, and Tripinnraria, or, according to Bentham and Hooker, Phyllarthron, Schlegelia, Crescentia, and Kiegelia. [B, 19, 42, 121, 170 (α, 24).]

CRESCENTINEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kre^{2}s(kras)-se^{2}n(ke^{2}n)-ti^{2}n'-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). 1. Of Baillon, a tribe of the Bignoniaceæ, comprising the subtribes Tanæcieæ and Crescentieæ. 2. Of Meissner, a suborder of the same family. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRESCENTI-PINNATISECT, adj. Kre^{2}s-e^{2}nt''i^2-pi^{2}n-a^{2}t'i^2-se^{2}kt. Lat., crescenti-pinnatisectus (from crescere, to grow, pinnatus, feathered, and sectus, cut). Having pinnated leaves, of which the lobes gradually grow larger toward the end. [B, 19, 121 (α, 24).]

CRESCIONE (It.), n. Kre^{2}s-chi^2-o'na. The Sisymbrium nasturtium, the Veronica beccabunga, and the Sium nodiflorum. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRESCITIVUS (Lat.), adj. Kre^{2}s(kras)-si^{2}t(ki^{2}t)-i(e)'vu^{3}s(wu^{4}s). From crescere, to grow. Vegetative, nutritive, tending to increase. [A, 325.]

CRESERA (Lat.), n. f. Kre(kra)'se^{2}r-a^3. Gen., cres'eras. Gr., κρησέρα. A sieve. [L, 94 (α, 21).]

CRÉSINAU (Fr.), n. Kre^{2}s-e-no. In Provence, the Silene inflata. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRESOL, n. Kre^{2}s'o^{2}l. Fr., crésol. Ger., Kresol. A substitution compound, $C_6H_4(OH)(CH_3)$, of benzene. It has three isomeric varieties: 1. Orthocresol, a white solid, melting at 31° C., and boiling between 185° and 186° C. 2. Metacresol, a colorless liquid with the odor of phenol, boiling between 195° C. and 200° C. 3. Paracresol, a white crystalline substance, which melts at 36° C. and boils at 198° C. It is sparingly soluble in water. These are in turn isomeric with benzyl alcohol. [B, 4, 158 (α, 24).]

CRESOLSULPHONIC ACID, n. Kre^{2}s-o^{2}l-su^{3}lf-o^{2}n'i^{2}k. Fr., acide crésolsulfonique. Ger., Kresolsulfonsäure. A monobasic acid, $C_6H_3(CH_3)(OH).SO_2.OH$, formed from cresol by the substitution of the molecule $SO_2.OH$ for hydrogen. Various isomeric forms are known: 1. Orthocresolsulphonic acid, $C_6(OH,CH_3,H,SO_2.OH,H.H)$, derived from orthocresol. 2. Metacresolsulphonic acid, derived from metacresol. 3. Paracresolsulphonic acid, derived from paracresol, and presenting two varieties having respectively the compositions $C_6(OH,SO_2.OH,H,CH_3.H,H,)$ and $C_6(OH,H,SO_2,OH,CH_3,H,H,)$. [B, 2 (α, 24).]

CRESOTIC ACID, CRESOTINIC ACID, n's. Kre^{2}s-o^{2}t'i^{2}k, -o^{2}t-i^{2}n'i^{2}k. Fr., acide crésotique. Ger., Kresotinsäure. An aromatic hydroxy-acid of the constitution $C_6H(OH)CH_3CO.OH$. Three isomeric compounds of this constitution may be prepared by the action of sodium and carbonic anhydride on the three modifications of cresol: α-c., from paracresol, melting at from 147° to 150° C.; β-c., from orthocresol, melting at 164° C.; and γ-c., from metacresol, melting at 174° C. They all form acicular crystals. [B, 4 (α, 24).]

CRESOXACETIC ACID, n. Kre^{2}s-o^{2}x-a^{2}s-et'i^{2}k. Fr., acide crésoxacétique. According to Heintz, an acid, $CH_{10}O_3$, formed by the action of chloracetic acid on sodium cresylate. [B.]

CRESPIGNIA (It.), n. Kre^{2}s-pen'yi^2-a^3. The Sonchus oleraceus. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRESPILLA (Sp.), n. Kre^{2}s-pel'ya^3. The genus Morchella. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRESPINO (It.), n. Kre^{2}s-pe'no. The Berberis vulgaris. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRESPOLINA (It.), n. Kre^{2}s-po^3-le'na^3. The Santolina chamæcyparissus. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRESS, n. Kre^{2}s. A.-S., cresse. Fr., cresson. Ger., Kresse. It., crescione. Sp,, mastuerzo. A popular name for many pungent, acrid plants, especially of the genera Lepidium, Nasturtium, and Thlaspi; in the West Indies, the Lepidium sativum. [B, 282 (α, 24).]—American c. The Barbarea præcox. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—American water-c. The Cardamine rotundifolia. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—Amphibious c. See Great water-c.—Australia c. A variety of the Lepidium sativum. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—Bank-c. See American c.—Bastard c. The genus Thlaspi. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—Belle-Isle c. See American c.—Bitter c. The Cardamine amara and other species of Cardamine. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Broad-leaved c. The Lepidium latifolium. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Brown c. The Nasturtium officinale. [A, 505.]—Carl's c., Churl's c. Apparently the Lepidium campestre. [A, 505.]—Common c. See Garden-c.—Cow-c. The Lepidium campestre, the Helosciadium nodiflorum, and the Veronica beccabunga. [A, 505.]—Creeping water-c. The Nasturtium silvestre. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—C.-seeds. The seeds of Lepidium sativum. [A, 479.]—Dock-c. The Lapsana communis. [A, 505.]—Early winter c. The Barbarea præcox. [B, 19.]—French c. The Barbarea vulgaris. [A, 505.]—Garden-c. The Lepidium sativum. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24).]—Golden c. A variety of Lepidium sativum. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—Great water-c. The Nasturtium amphibium. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Hairy bitter c. The Cardamine hirsuta. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Hoary c. The Lepidium draba. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Indian c. The Tropæolum majus; in the pl., Indian c'es, the order Tropæolaceæ. [B, 19, 34 (α, 24).]—Lake-c. The Nasturtium lacustre. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Lamb's c. The Cardamine hirsuta. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Land-c. The Barbarea præcox and the Cardamine hirsuta. [A, 505.]—Marsh water-c. The Nasturtium palustre. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Meadow-c. The Cardamine pratensis. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24).]—Mountain water-c. The Cardamine rotundifolia. [B, 275 (α. 24).]—Mouse-ear c. The Arabis thaliana. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—Narrow-leaved c. The Lepidium ruderale. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—New Zealand c. The Lepidium oleraceum. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Normandy c. The Barbarea præcox. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Oil of c. An oil, $C_6H_{10}S$, obtained by distillation from the herb and seed of Lepidium sativum and other species; yellow, heavier than water, of an alliaceous odor, and soluble in alcohol and in ether. [B, 2, 14 (α, 24).]—Pará c. Fr., cresson de Para [Fr. Cod.]. Ger., Parakresse. It., crescione di Para. Sp., mastuerzo de Pará. The Spilanthes oleracea. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24).]—Penny-c. The Thlaspi arvense. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24).]—Pepper-c. The Teesdalia nudicaulis. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Peter's c. An old name for the Crithmum maritimum. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24).]—Rock-c. 1. The genus Arabis. 2. The Crithmum maritimum. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24).]—Sciatica-c. The Iberis amara. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Showy bastard-c. The Thlaspi latifolium. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Spanish c. The Lepidium cardamines. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24).]—Spring c. The Cardamine rhomboidea. [B, 19 (α. 24).]—Succory dock-c. See Dock-c.—Sun c. The Heliophila pectinata. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Swine's c. The Coronopus Ruellii, the Lapsana communis, and the Senecio jacobœa. [A, 505.]—Thale-c. The Arabis thaliana. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24).]—Tooth-c. The genus Dentaria. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—Tower-c. The Arabis turrita. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24)]. —Town-c. See Garden-c.—Violet-flowered c. The Ionopsidion acaule. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24).]—Wall-c. A popular name for various species of Arabis, especially the Arabis thaliana. [A, 505; B, 19 (α, 24).]—Wart-c. The Senebiera coronopus. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—Water-c. Fr., cresson de fontaine [Fr. Cod.]. Ger., Brunnenkresse. It., crescione di riviera. Sp., berro. The Nasturtium officinale. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—Wild c. The Thlaspi arvense. [B, 275 (α, 24).]—Winter-c. The Barbarea vulgaris. [B, 19, 275 (α, 24).]

CRESSA (Lat.), n. f. Kre^{2}s'sa^3. A genus of the Convolvulaceæ, division Cresseæ. [B, 121 (α, 24).]—C. cretica. The Kharadi of India. A decoction of the fresh herb is used as a tonic and expectorant. [A, 479.]

CRESSABOUS (Fr.), n. Kre^{2}s-sa^3-bu. In Auvergne, the Cucubalus behen. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRESSEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kre^{2}s-se^2-e(a^3-e^2). A division of the Convolvulaceæ, consisting of the genus Cressa. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRESSON (Fr.), n. Kre^{2}s-so^{3}n^2. See Cress.—Alcoolat de c. ordinaire. A preparation made by distilling 25 parts of liquor from 45 parts of the fresh leaves of Lepidium sativum and 30 parts of 80-per-cent. alcohol. [B, 92 (α, 21).]—Alcoolat de c. de Para. A preparation made by distilling 25 parts of liquor from 45 parts of fresh leaves of Spilanthus oleracea and 30 parts of 80-per-cent. alcohol. [B, 92 (α, 21).]—Alcoolature de c. de Para [Fr. Cod.]. Fluid extract of Para-cress made by bruising 1 part of the fresh leaves of Spilanthus oleracea, macerating them for 10 days in 1 part of 90-per-cent. alcohol, straining with expression, and filtering. [B, 113 (α, 21).] —Conserve de c. See Conserva nasturtii.—C. alénois. The Lepidium sativum. [B, 121, 173 (α, 24).]—C. à siliques nombreuses. The Sisymbrium polyceratium. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. amer. The Cardamine amara. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—C. amphibie. The Sisymbrium amphibium. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. cultivé. The Lepidium sativum. [A, 301.]—C. d'eau. The Nasturtium officinale. [B, 19, 121, 173 (α, 24).]—C. de cheval, C. de chien. The Veronica beccabunga. [B, 121, 173 (α, 24).]—C. de fontaine. The Nasturtium officinale. [A, 301.]—C. de jardin. The Lepidium sativum. [L, 87.]—C. de l'île de France. The Spilanthes acmella. [B, 121, 173 (α, 24).]—C. de Para [Fr. The Spilanthes oleracea. [B, 19, 121, 173, 180 (α, 24).]—C. de rivière. The Nasturtium silvestre. [B, 121 (α, 24).]—C. de rocher. The Chrysosplenium alternifolium. [L, 105 (α, 21).]—C. des prés. The genus Cardamine. [A, 301.]—C. des ruines. The Lepidium ruderale. [L, 105 (α, 21).]—C. de ruisseau. The Nasturtium officinale. [B, 121, 173 (α, 24).]—C. de savane commun. The Lepidium gramineum. [B, 121, 173 (α, 24).]—C. des Indes. The Sisymbrium indicum. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. des jardins. The Barbarea præcox and the Lepidium sativum. [B, 121 (α, 24).] —C. des murs. The Antirrhinum cymbalaria. [B, 88.]—C. des prés. The Cardamine pratensis. [B, 121, 173 (α, 24).]—C. des savanes. In the Antilles, two Cruciferæ allied to the genus Iberis. [L, 105 (α, 21).]—C. de terre. The Barbarea vulgaris. [L, 105 (α, 21).]—C. d'Inde. See Grand c. d'Inde and Petit c. d'Inde.—C. doré. The Chrysosplenium alternifolium. [B, 88, 121, 173 (α. 24).] —C. du Brésil. The Spilanthus fusca and the Spilanthus oleracea. [B, 19, 121, 173 (α, 24).]—C. du désert. The Lunaria parviflora and the Rhaphanus lyratus. [B, 88, 121, 173 (α, 24).]—C. du Mexique. The Tropæolum majus. [B. 88, 121, 173 (α, 24).]—C. élégant. See C. des prés.—C. irio. The Sisymbrium irio. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. officinale. The Nasturtium officinale. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. ordinaire. The Lepidium sativum.—C. sauvage. The Senebiera coronopus. [B, 88, 121, 173 (α, 24).]—C. sophia. The Sisymbrium sophia. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. velu. The Sisymbrium hispidum. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. vivace. The Barbarea vulgaris. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—Grand c. d'Inde (ou du Pérou). The Tropæolum majus. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—Petit c. aquatique. The Cardamine pratensis. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—Petit c. d'Inde. The Tropæolum minus. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—Sirop de c. [Fr. Cod.]. Syrup of cress; made by dissolving on the water-bath 9 parts of white sugar in 5 of the clarified juice of Nasturtium officinale and passing through a sieve. [B, 113 (α, 21).]—Suc de c. [Fr. Cod.]. Lat., succus nasturtii. A preparation made by bruising the fresh leaves of Nasturtium officinale, expressing the juice, and filtering. [B, 113 (α, 21).]—Suc de c. de fontaine. See Suc de c.

CRESSONÉE (Fr.), n. Kre^{2}s-so^3-na. The Veronica beccabunga. [B, 81.]

CRESSONETTE (Fr.), CRESSONNETTE (Fr.), n's. Kre^{2}s-o^{3}n-e^{2}t. The Barbarea præcox. [B, 121, 173 (α, 24).]

CRESSON SPRINGS, n. Kre^{2}s'o^{2}n. A place in Cambria County, Pennsylvania, in the Alleghanies, 3,000 feet above the level of the sea, where there are springs (including the "Iron," the "Alum," and the "Magnesia") containing iron. The climate is invigorating. [A, 363, 512.]

CRESS-ROCKET, n. Kre^{2}s'ro^{2}k-e^{2}t. The Vella annua and the Vella pseudo-cytisus. [B, 19, 121, 275 (a, 24).]

CRESSWORT, n. Kre^{2}s'wu^{6}rt. The Eupatorium perfoliatum. [B, 88.]

CREST, n. Kre^{2}st. Gr., λόφος. Lat., crista. Fr., crête. Ger., Kamm. It., Sp., cresta. The comb of a cock; in ornithology, a collection of long feathers on the head; in general, any ridge-like structure.—Anterior lacrymal c. Lat., crista lacrimalis anterior. Fr., crête lacrimale antérieure. The inner sharp edge of the lacrymal groove of the superior maxilla. [L, 332.]—Auditive c. See CRISTA auditiva.—Canine c. Fr., crête canine. An elevation upon the superior maxilla over the situation of the root of the canine tooth. ["Rev. d'anthrop.," 1876, p. 515 (L).]—Cnemical c. A ridge upon the posterior aspect of the tibia of certain birds. [L, 200.]—C. of the clitoris. See CRISTA clitoridis.—C. of the ethmoid bone. See CRISTA galli.—C. of the ilium. Lat., crista ilii (seu ossis ilii). Fr., crête iliaque (ou de l'os iliaque). Ger., Darmbeinkamm. It., cresta dell' ileo. Sp., cresta iliaca. The thickened upper border of the ilium.—C. of the pubes, C. of the pubic bone. Lat., crista ossis pubis. Fr., crête pubienne. Ger., Schaambeinkamm. A rough ridge upon the upper border of the pubic bone. [C, 3; L.]—C. of the sacrum. Lat., crista sacralis. Fr., crête sacrée. Ger., Kreuzbeinhuste. A longitudinal c., situated in the median line, on the posterior surface of the sacrum, consisting of a series of eminences representing the spinous processes of the vertebræ.—C. of the tibia. Lat., crista tibiæ. Fr., crête de la tibia. Ger., Schienbeinkamm. The sharp anterior border of the tibia.—C. of the urethra. See CAPUT gallinaginis.—Dental c., Gingival c. Lat., crista gingivalis, cartilago dentalis. Fr., crête gingivale, cartilage dentaire. Syn.: dental cartilage. A whitish-gray, hard, sharp projection formed by the gingival mucous membrane of the edentulous fœtus along the line subsequently to be occupied by the teeth; composed of vascular fibrous tissue. [A, 301.]—Ethmoidal c. Lat., crista ethmoidalis. Fr., crête ethmoïdale. 1. A transverse ridge upon the inner surface of the nasal process of the superior maxilla against which the anterior portion of the lateral mass of the ethmoid bone fits. 2. See Superior turbinate CREST.—External occipital c. Lat., crista occipitalis externa. Fr., crête occipitale externe. A ridge which extends in the middle line between the posterior margin of the foramen magnum and the external occipital protuberance of the occipital bone. [L, 332.]—Frontal c. Lat., crista frontalis. Fr., crête frontale. A ridge upon the cerebral surface of the frontal bone which extends between the foramen cæcum and the anterior end of the groove of the longitudinal sinus. [L, 142, 332.]—Iliac c. See C. of the ilium.—Incisor c. Lat., crista incisiva [Henle]. Fr., crête incisive. The prolongation forward of the nasal c. which terminates in the anterior nasal spine, and having the cartilage of the septum of the nose resting upon it. [L, 142.]—Inferior turbinate c. A horizontal ridge on the nasal surface of the superior maxilla for articulation with the inferior turbinal bone. [L, 31, 142.]—Infra-temporal c. Fr., crête sous temporale. A ridge on the external surface of the greater wing of the sphenoid bone which separates the part of the bone which forms a portion of the temporal fossa, and that which aids in forming the zygomatic fossa. [L, 31, 142.]—Internal occipital c. Lat., crista occipitalis interna. Fr., crête occipitale interne. A ridge on the internal surface of the occipital bone, extending between the posterior margin of the foramen magnum and the internal occipital protuberance. [L, 31, 142.]—Lambdoid c. Fr., crête lambdoïde. In dogs, an elevation upon the posterior surface of the skull which is made up by the union in the middle line of two ridges, each of which runs downward and outward, on each side at the line of junction of the parietal and supraoccipital bones, to the squamosal bone, upon which it is continued to the upper edge of the external auditory meatus, forming the posterior edge of the temporal fossa. [L, 153.]—Nasal c. Lat., crista nasalis. 1. A c. on the palatal process of the superior maxilla, which receives the lower border of the vomer. 2. The vertical prolongation backward of the internal surface of the nasal bone which forms a portion of the nasal septum. [L, 31, 142, 172, 332.]—Neural c. In the embryo, a series of cellular swellings continuous with the medullary plates close to the place of inflection of the epiblast into the involution that forms the primary brain and spinal cord. The posterior roots of the spinal nerves and most of the cranial nerves are formed from them. [A, 5.]—Occipital c. See Lambdoid c.—Olfactory c's [Verrill]. Longitudinal ridges upon the neck of the Oigopida, believed to be olfactory in function. ["Quart. Jour. of Micr. Sci." (L).]—Orbital c. Lat., crista orbitalis. The lower rounded margin of the orbital surface of the sphenoid bone. [L, 332.]—Posterior lacrymal c. Lat., crista lacrimalis posterior. Fr., crête lacrymale postérieure. The vertical ridge upon the outer surface of the lacrymal bone which divides it into two unequal parts, and assists in forming the inner side of the canal for the nasal duct. [L, 142, 332.]—Sagittal c. In dogs, a ridge upon the posterior and upper surface of the skull, which runs forward in the median line, and divides near the fronto-parietal suture into two less marked ridges which curve out to the superior posterior angle of the orbit. [L, 153.]—Sphenoidal c. A thin projecting edge of bone in the middle line of the anterior surface of the body of the sphenoid bone. [C.]—Spheno-maxillary c. An arched ridge formed partly by the anterior surface of the ala magna of the sphenoid bone and partly by the pterygoid process which forms the edge of the spheno-maxillary fissure. [L, 31.]—Sublingual c. A ridge in the floor of the mouth of solipeds at the top of which the ducts of the sublingual gland open. [L, 13.]—Superior turbinate c. Lat., crista turbinalis superior. A ridge upon the internal surface of the vertical plate of the palate bone which articulates with the middle turbinate bone. [L, 142, 332.]—Temporal c. Lat., crista temporalis. Fr., crête temporale. Ger., Schläfenbeinkamm. Syn.: linea frontalis. A c. on the frontal bone which springs from the external angular process and passes backward to be continuous with the temporal line of the parietal bone, and separates the temporal and frontal portions of the bone. [L, 31, 142, 332.]—Urethral c. See CAPUT gallinaginis.—Zygomatic c. Lat., crista zygomatica. The anterior edge of the ala magna of the sphenoid bone, which articulates with the malar bone and separates the orbital and temporal surfaces. [L, 31, 142, 332.]

CRESTED, adj. Kre^{2}st'e^{2}d. Having a crest (in botany, said chiefly of anthers having an elevated, irregular or notched ridge, resembling the crest of a helmet). [B, 19, 123 (a, 24).]

CREST-MARINE, n. Kre^{2}st-ma^{2}r-en'. The Crithmum maritimum. [B, 275 (a, 24).]

CRESYL, n. Kre^{2}s'i^{2}l. Fr., crésyle. Ger., Kresyl. The radicle of cresol, methyl-phenyl, $C_6(CH_3)H_4 = C_7H_7$. [B.]—C. hydrate. Fr., hydrate de crésyle. See CRESYL ALCOHOL.

CRESYL ALCOHOL, n. Kre^{2}s'i^{2}l-a^{2}l'ko-ho^{2}l. A monatomic alcohol of the $C_nH_{2n}-6O$ series (phenols), isomeric with benzyl alcohol and formed from phenylalcohol by substituting a molecule of methyl for an atom of the hydrogen of the phenyl. Formula: $C_6H_4(OH)CH_3$. [B, 2.]

CRESYLATE, n. Kre^{2}s'i^{2}l-at. Fr., crésylate. Ger., Kresylat. A compound of cresol with a metallic radicle. The c's are homologous with the carbolates, and have the general constitution $(C_6H_4CH_3O)nR$, where R is a radicle of the combining power n. [a, 24.]

CRESYLCHLORACETAMIDE, n. Kre^{2}s''i^{2}l-klor-a^{2}s-e^{2}t'-a^{2}m-i^{2}d(id). Of Tommasi, tolylchloracetamide. [B, 2.]

CRESYLIC, adj. Kre^{2}s-i^{2}l'i^{2}k. Fr., crésylique. Containing cresyl. [B.]—C. acid. Lat., acidum cresylicum. Fr., acide crésylique. Ger., Kresylsäure. Cresol; so called because, like phenol, it forms metallic derivatives called cresylates, by replacement of the hydrogen in its molecule of hydroxyl. [B.]—C. alcohol, C. phenol. See CRESYL ALCOHOL.

CRESYLOL, n. Kre^{2}s'i^{2}l-o^{2}l. Fr., crésylol. See CRESOL.

CRESYLSALICYLIC ACID, n. Kre^{2}s''i^{2}l-sa^{2}l-i^2-si^{2}l'i^{2}k. Fr., acide crésylsalicylique. Of J. Williams, an acid that accompanies salicylic acid when prepared by Kolbe's process, and that is found in the mother-liquor. [a, 27.]

CRESYLSULPHUROUS ACID, n. Kre^{2}s-i^{2}l-su^{3}lf'u^{2}r-u^{3}s. Fr., acide crésylsulfureux. An acid, $C_7H_8SO_3 = CH_3-C_6H_4.SO_3H$, formed by heating toluene and sulphuric acid for two days on a water-bath. [B, 244 (a, 27).]

CRETA (Lat.), n. f. Kre(kra)'ta^3. Gr., γῆ κρητική (Cretan earth, from κρήτη, the island of Crete, whence the ancients derived their chief supply). Fr., craie. Ger., Kreide. It., c. Sp., c. greda. Chalk. [a, 24.]—Ceratum cretæ acetatis. See Kirkland's (neutral) CERATE.—C. alba. White chalk. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. amoniacal (Sp.). Ammonium sesquicarbonate. [A, 447.]—C. argentaria. Chalk containing mica. [A, 325.]—C. barotica. See BARIUM carbonate.—C. blanca (Sp.). White chalk. [A, 447.]—C. brianzonica, C. brigantina. See French CHALK.—C. cimolia. Fullers' earth. [L, 97.]—C. farinacea. See Mineral AGARIC.—C. fullonica. Fullers' earth. [L, 97.]—C. gallica. See French CHALK.—C. hispanica. Venetian or Spanish chalk; a variety of talc used in the arts. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. lævigata. See C. præparata.—C. medicinal artificial (Sp.). See C. præparata.—C. præcipitata. Precipitated chalk; calcium carbonate obtained by precipitation. [B.]—C. præparata [U. S. Ph., Br. Ph.]. Fr., craie préparée. Ger., präparirte Kreide. It., c. preparata. Sp., c. preparada, liza purificada, blanco de España. Prepared chalk; chalk freed from its impurities by elutriation. [B, 81 (a, 21).]—C. rubra. See Red CHALK.—C. selinusia. See TERRA selinusia.—C. umbria. Yellow ochre; anciently employed in medicine. [L, 77 (a, 21).]—Cretæ unguentum compositum. See Kirkland's (neutral) CERATE.—C. veneta. See C. hispanica.—C. viridis. Malachite. [A, 492 (a, 21).]—C. vulgaris. Common chalk. [L, 105 (a, 21).]—Decoctum c. Syn.: decoctum cretaceum. Decoction of chalk; of Bates, a preparation made by boiling down to 1 quart ½ pound of powdered chalk in 3 pints of water, pouring off the clear, milky liquor, and adding to it a sufficient quantity of syrup. [L, 94 (a, 21).]—Mistura cretæ [U. S. Ph., Br. Ph.], Mistura de c. [Sp. Ph.] (Sp.), Mixtura cretæ. Fr., mixture de craie. Ger., Kreidemixtur. It., mistura di c. Chalk mixture; made, according to the U. S. Ph., by rubbing up 1 pound of compound chalk-powder with 2 parts each of water and cinnamon-water. The British preparation is made by triturating ¼ oz. (av.) each of prepared chalk and gum arabic with 7½ fl. oz. of cinnamon-water, and adding ½ fl. oz. of syrup. This mixture is much employed in diarrhœa with acidity. Laudanum and kino are often added to increase its astringency. [B, 5 (a, 24).]—Pulvis cretæ aromaticus [Br. Ph.]. Fr., poudre de craie aromatique. Ger., gewürztes Kreidepulver. It., polvere di c. aromatica. Aromatic powder of chalk, consisting of 8 parts of powdered cinnamon-bark, 6 each of powdered nutmeg and powdered saffron, 3 of powdered cloves, 2 of powdered cinnamon-seeds, 50 of sugar, and 22 of prepared chalk, intimately mixed and reduced to a fine powder. [B, 81.]—Pulvis cretæ aromaticus cum opio [Br. Ph.]. Fr., poudre de craie opiacée. Ger., Kreidepulver mit Opium. It., polvere di c. aromatica con oppio. Aromatic powder of chalk and opium, consisting of pulvis cretæ aromaticus and opium; used in diarrhœa. [B, 81.]—Pulvis cretæ compositus [U. S. Ph.]. Fr., poudre de craie composée. Ger., Kreidepulver mit Gummi. Compound powder of chalk; made by mixing 30 parts of prepared chalk, 20 of acacia in fine powder, and 50 of finely powdered sugar. CRETEFACTION, n. Kre^{2}t-e^2-fa^{2}k'shu^{3}n. From creta, chalk, and facere, to make. See CALCIFICATION.

CRETELLE (Fr.), n. Kre^2-te^{2}l. The genus Cynosurus. [a, 24.]—C. à crête. The Cynosurus cristatus. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. à balais. The Cynosurus domingensis. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. commune, C. des prés. The Cynosurus cristatus. [B, 19, 173 (a, 24).]—C. dure. The Cynosurus durus. [L, 41.]—C. hérissée. The Cynosurus echinatus. [L, 41.]—C. hupée. The Cynosurus cristatus. [B, 173 (a, 24).]

CRETHMON (Lat.), CRETHMOS (Lat.), n's n. and f. Kre^{2}th-(krath)'mo^{2}n, -mo^{2}s. Gr., κρῆθμον, κρῆθμος. Of Pliny, the Crithmum maritimum. [B, 114 (a, 24).]

CRETIFICATION, n. Kre^{2}t-i^2-fi^2-ka'shu^{3}n. From creta, chalk, and facere, to make. See CALCIFICATION.

CRETIN, n. Kret'i^{2}n. Lat., cretinus. Fr., crétin. Ger., Kretin, Kreidling. It., Sp., cretino. A person affected with cretinism.

CRÉTINAGE (Fr.), n. Kra-te-na^{3}zh. See CRETINISM.

CRETINIC, adj. Kret'i^{2}n-i^{2}k. Fr., crétineux, crétinique. Pertaining to cretins or to cretinism. [D, 36.]

CRÉTINIFORME (Fr.), adj. Kra-te-ne-fo^{3}rm. See CRETINOID.

CRETINISM, n. Kre'ti^{2}n-izm. Lat., cretinismus, cretismus (probably from creta, chalk, on account of the chalky complexion). Fr., crétinisme. Ger., Kretinismus. It., Sp., cretinismo. A condition of deformity of the entire body, but especially of the head (with premature cranial synostosis), together with imperfect development. The disease is endemic in the valleys of certain mountainous districts, particularly those of the Pyrenees, the Alps, and the Himalayas, and, to a certain extent, in those of Syria and China. It is accompanied by feebleness of the mental faculties and special senses, and is often associated with goître. [A, 326.]—Complete c. That form of the disease which is characterized by idiocy, deaf-mutism, deficient general sensibility, absence of reproductive power, and incurability. [D, 1.]—Incomplete c. That form of c. in which the mental faculties are capable of development, the head is moderately well formed and erect, and the special senses and the reproductive power are preserved. [D, 1.]—Semi-c. That form of c. in which the mental faculties are limited to the impressions of the senses and to the bodily wants. General sensibility is imperfect, the head is badly formed and drooping, the speech is rudimentary, and the reproductive powers are feeble or absent. [D, 1.]—Sporadic c. A cretinoid condition observed in a person born of parents who are not cretins, and who has not lived in a district where c. prevails. According to L. E. Holt, the thyreoid gland is never enlarged. ["N. Y. Med. Jour.," Apr. 13, 1889, p. 414.]

CRETINOID, adj. Kret'i^{2}n-oid. From cretin (q. v.), and εἶδος, resemblance. Fr., crétinoïde. Ger., Kreidlingähnlich. Resembling a cretin. Cf. MYXŒDEMA.

CRETINISMUS (Lat.), CRETISMUS (Lat.), n's m. Kre^{2}t-(krat)-i^{2}r-i^{2}z(i^{2}s)'mu^{3}s(mu^{4}s), kre^{2}t(krat)-i^{2}z(i^{2}s)'mu^{3}s(mu^{4}s). See CRETINISM.

CRETOMANIA (Lat.), n. f. Kret(krat)-o(o^3)-ma(ma^3)'ni^2-a^3. An old word of doubtful etymology and meaning, thought to have denoted satyriasis. [A, 322.]

CRETOSE, adj. Kre'tos. Lat., cretosus. See CRETACEOUS.

CRETUS (Lat.), adj. Kre(kra)'tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). Cribrate. [A, 325.]

CREUSET (Fr.), n. Kru^5-za. 1. A crucible. 2. Of Paulet, a mushroom growing in caves. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CREUX (Fr.), adj. Kru^5. Hollow; as a n., a superficial cavity. [A, 301; L, 109.]—C. médullaire. Of Grew, the medullary canal of plants. [B, 1 (a, 24).]—C. tubulaires. Of Grew, the cavities filled with air that are formed in the interior of plants by the rupture of cellular tissue. [B, 1 (a, 24).]

CREVASSE (Fr.), n. Kre^2-va^{3}s. 1. In botany, a crevice or longitudinal slit or crack. [a, 24.] 2. In pathology, a superficial fissure; in horses, the scratches. [A, 301.]

CREVASSÉ (Fr.), adj. Kre^2-va^{3}s-a. Fissured. See RIMOSE.

CRÈVE-CHIEN (Fr.), n. Kre^{2}v-she-a^{3}n^2. The Solanum nigrum and the Solanum dulcamara. [B, 19, 121, 173 (a, 24).]

CREWEL, n. Kru^2'e^{2}l. The Primula veris. [A, 505.]

CREWELS, n. Kru^2'e^{2}lz. From Fr., écrouelles. A Scotch term for scrofula. [G.]

CREX, n. Kre^{2}x. The Prunus insititia. [A, 505.]

CREYAT, n. The Andrographis (Justicia) paniculata. [B, 18, 19, 121 (a, 24).]

CREYT, n. Kret. Probably the Polypodium vulgare. [A, 505.]

CRI (Fr.), n. Kre. See CRY.—C. cérébral. See Hydrocephalic CRY.—C. de détresse. Parrot's name for a sharp, frequent, sonorous cry uttered by infants suffering from athrepsia. CRICARYTÆNODES (Lat.), CRICARYTÆNOIDES (Lat.), CRICARYTÆNOIDEUS (Lat.), adj's. Kri^{2}k-a^{2}r(a^{3}r)-i^{2}t(u^{6}t)- en(a^3-e^{2}n)-od'ez(as), -o(o^3)-id(ed)'ez(as), i^{2}d(ed)-e^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Preferable forms of the word crico-arytænoideus (q. v.). [A, 322.]

CRICÉAL (Fr.), adj. Kre-sa-a^{3}l. Annular. See Os c.

CRICK, n. Kri^{2}k. A popular term for a sudden muscular pain felt on moving a part, generally the neck or the lower part of the back.

CRICKSEY, n. Kri^{2}k'se^2. The fruit of Prunus insititia. [A, 505.]

CRICO-ARYTÆNOID, adj. Kri''ko-a^{2}r-i^2-ten'oid. Lat., crico-arytænodes. Pertaining to the cricoid and to the arytænoid cartilages. [L.]

CRICO-ARYTÆNOIDEUS (Lat.), adj. Kri(kri^2)''ko(ko^3)-a^{2}r-(a^{3}r)-i^2(u^6)-ten(ta^3-e^{2}n)-o(o^3)-i^{2}d(ed)'e^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Fr., crico-aryténoïde. Crico-arytænoid; as a n., a muscle having relations to the cricoid and the arytænoid cartilages.—C.-a. anticus, C.-a. anterior, C.-a. lateralis. Fr., crico-aryténoïdien latéral. Ger., seitlicher Ringgiesskannenmuskel. A muscle arising from the upper border of the side of the cricoid cartilage and inserted into the external angle of the base of the arytænoid cartilage. With its fellow of the opposite side, it closes the glottis by rotating the arytænoid cartilages inward. Cruveilhier regarded it as a dilator of the glottis. [H. Meyer (A, 262).]—C. posticus. Fr., crico-aryténoïdien postérieur. Ger., hinterer Ringgiesskannenmuskel. A muscle arising from the posterior surface of the cricoid cartilage and inserted into the external angle of the base of the arytænoid cartilage. With its fellow of the opposite side, it separates the vocal bands. [L.]

CRICOCORNICULATUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri(kri^2)''ko(ko^3)-ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k-u^{2}l(u^{4}l)-a(a^3)'tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). From κρίκος, a ring, and cornu, a horn. Of Tourtual, an anomalous flat muscular band situated beneath the crico-arytænoidei muscles, extending from the upper surface of the cricoid cartilage to the corniculum laryngis. [L, 31.]

CRICOCORNICULO-PHARYNGEUS (Lat.), adj. Kri(kri^2)'''-ko(ko^3)-ko^{2}rn-i^{2}k''u^2(u^4)-lo(lo^3)-fa^{2}r(fa^{3}r)-i^{2}n(u^{6}n^2)'je^2(ge^2)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Relating to or connected with the cricoid cartilage, the cartilages of Santorini, and the pharynx. ["Arch. f. Anat. u. Phys.," 1869, p. 436 (L).]

CRICO-CRÉTI-ARYTÉNOIDÏEN (Fr.), n. Kre-ko-kra-te-a^{3}r-e-ta-no-ed-e-a^{3}n^2. See CRICO-ARYTÆNOIDEUS posticus.

CRICODES (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}k-od'ez(as). See CRICOID.

CRICO-EPIGLOTTICUS (Lat.), adj. Kri(kri^2)''ko(ko^3)-e^{2}p-i^2-glo^{2}t(glot)'ti^{2}k-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Relating to or connected with the cricoid cartilage and the epiglottis; as a n., the thyreo-epiglotticus muscle when it arises from the cricoid cartilage. [L, 332.]

CRICO-HYOID, adj. Kri''ko-hi'oid. Pertaining to the cricoid cartilage and the hyoid bone.

CRICO-HYOIDEUS (Lat.), adj. Kri(kri^2)''ko(ko^3)-hi(hu^6)-o-(o^3)-i^{2}d(ed)'e^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CRICO-HYOID; as a n., of Zagorsky, an anomalous muscle extending from the hyoid bone to the cricoid cartilage. [L, 31.]

CRICOID, CRICOIDEAN, adj's. Kri'koid, kri-ko-i^{2}d'e^2-a^{2}n. Gr., κρικοειδής (from κρίκος, a ring, and εἶδος, resemblance). Lat., cricodes, cricoides, cricoideus. Fr., cricoïde, cricoïdien. Ger., ringförmig. Ring-shaped. See C. CARTILAGE.

CRICO-LATÉRO-ARYTÉNOÏDIEN (Fr.), n. Kre-ko-la^3-ta-ro-a^3-re-ta-no-e-de-a^{3}n^2. See CRICO-ARYTÆNOIDEUS lateralis.

CRICO-MEMBRANOSUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri(kri^2)''ko(ko^3)-me^{2}m-bra^{2}n(bra^{3}n)-os'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CRICO-EPIGLOTTICUS.

CRICO-ŒSOPHAGEUS (Lat.), adj. Kri(kri^2)''ko(ko^3)-e(o^2-e^2)-so^{2}f-a(a^3)'je^2(ge^2)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Pertaining to the cricoid cartilage and to the œsophagus; as a n., a muscle in relation with those parts. [L, 31.]—C. anterior. Syn.: levator œsophagi. A bundle of longitudinal muscular fibres upon the upper and anterior surface of the œsophagus, united by the posterior aspect of the cricoid cartilage. [L, 332.]—Crico-œsophagei laterales. Bundles of the longitudinal muscular fibres of the œsophagus which unite with the crico-pharyngeus or thyreo-pharyngeus muscle. [L, 332.]—C. medius. See C. anterior.

CRICOPHARYNGEUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri(kri^2)''ko(ko^3)-fa^{2}r-(fa^{3}r)-i^{2}n(u^{6}n^2)'je^2(ge^2)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Fr., crico-pharyngien. Ger., Ringknorpelschlundmuskel. That portion of the inferior constrictor of the pharynx that arises from the cricoid cartilage. [Douglas (L).]

CRICOS (Lat.), n. m. Kri(kri^2)'ko^{2}s. Gr., κρίκος. See CIRCULUS.

CRICO-SANTORINIANUS (Lat.), adj. Kri(kri^2)''ko(ko^3)-sa^{3}n-to-re-ne-a(a^3)'nu^{3}s(nu^{4}s). Pertaining to or connected with the cricoid cartilage and the cartilages of Santorini. [L, 332.]

CRICOSTOMATOUS, adj. Kri^{2}k-o-stom'a^{2}t-u^{3}s. Lat., cricostomus (from κρίκος, a ring, and στόμα, an aperture). Fr., cricostome. Ger., ringmundig. Having a round mouth (said of certain molluscs). [L, 41.]

CRICO-THYREO-ARYTÆNOIDEUS (Lat.), adj. Kri-(kri^2)'''ko(ko^3)-thi(thu^6)-re(ra)''o(o^3)-a^{2}r(a^{3}r)-i^2(u^6)-ten(ta^3-e^{2}n)-o(o^3)-i^{2}d(ed)'e^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Pertaining to or connected with the cricoid, thyreoid, and arytænoid cartilages. [L, 332.]

CRICO-THYREOID, CRICO-THYREOIDEAN, adj's. Kri''ko-thi^{2}r-e'oid, -thi^{2}r-e^2-o-i^{2}d'e^2-a^{2}n. Lat., cricothyreodes, cricothyreoides, cricothyreoideus. Fr., crico-thyréoïde. Pertaining to the cricoid and to the thyreoid cartilages. [C.]

CRICOTHYREOIDEUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri(kri^2)''ko(ko^3)-thi-(thu^6)-re(ra)-o(o^3)-i^{2}d(ed)'e^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Fr., crico-thyréoïdien. Ger., Ringknorpelschildknorpelmuskel. A muscle arising from the side and front of the cricoid cartilage and inserted into the lower and inner border of the thyreoid cartilage. See THYREOTRACHEALIS profundus.—C. lateralis. An anomalous muscle extending between the lateral surface of the cricoid cartilage and that of the ala of the thyreoid cartilage. [L, 332.]—C. posticus. An anomalous muscle extending between the lower posterior lateral angle of the cricoid cartilage and the inferior cornu of the thyreoid cartilage. [L, 332.]

CRICOTHYREOPHARYNGEUS (Lat.), adj. Kri(kri^2)'''ko-(ko^3)-thi(thu^6)''re(ra)-o(o^3)-fa^{2}r(fa^{3}r)-i^{2}n(u^{6}n^2)'je^2(ge^2)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Fr., crico-thyréo-pharyngien. Pertaining to the cricoid and thyreoid cartilages and to the pharynx.

CRICOTOMY, n. Kri-ko^{2}t'o-mi^2. From κρίκος, a ring, and τέμνειν, to cut. Fr., cricotomie. Ger., Cricotomie. The operation of making an opening into the larynx by dividing the cricoid cartilage. [A, 319.]

CRICO-TRACHEAL, adj. Kri''ko-tra^{2}k-e'a^{2}l. Lat., cricotrachealis, cricotracheliœus. Fr., crico-trachéal. Pertaining to the cricoid cartilage and to the trachea. [L, 31.]

CRICO-TRACHEALIS (Lat.), n. m. Kri(kri^2)''ko(ko^3)-tra-(tra^3)-ke(ch^{2}a)-a(a^3)'li^{2}s. An anomalous bundle of muscular fibres extending between the upper rings of the trachea and the cricoid cartilage. [L, 332.]

CRICO-TRACHEOTOMY, n. Kri-ko-tra^2-ke-o^{2}t'o-mi^2. Fr., cricotrachéotomie. Tracheotomy combined with cricotomy. [P. Geffrier, "Rev. mens. des mal. de l'enfance," Aug., 1886, p. 371.]

See C. hibiscifolius.—C. antisyphiliticus [Martius]. Fr., c. antisyphilitique. A Brazilian species. The leaves are employed in decoction against syphilis, and used externally in poultices. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. argenteus [Forskål]. See C. tinctorum.—C. argyranthemum [Michaux]. An American species indigenous to Georgia and Florida. The leaves are aromatic and pungent ; the root is slightly aromatic and pleasantly bitter. An infusion of the plant is a reputed remedy for colic, diarrhœa, sore mouth, sore throat, etc., and its fresh juice is used as a vulnerary. [B, 34 (a, 24) ; J. M. Maisch, "Am. Jour. of Pharm.," Dec., 1885, p. 597 (a, 17).]—C. aromaticus [Linnæus]. Fr., c. aromatique. A small tree found in the East Indies, Cochin-China, and the Moluccas. The exudation from the twigs (caused by the puncture of insects) is one of the varieties of gum lac, and is also used as a vulnerary. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. balsamifer [Linnæus]. Fr., c. balsamique, bois du petit baume. Seaside balsam ; a species found in the West Indies, where it is used as a vulnerary and to aromatize liqueurs, especially the eau de Mantes. [B, 19, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. benzoe, C. benzoin [Linnæus]. The Terminalia angustifolia. [B.]—C. bracteiferus [Roxburgh]. The Codiæum silvestre. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. camaza [Perrotet]. A species indigenous to the Philippines ; its fruit is astringent, and its seeds are purgative in small and poisonous in large doses. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. campestris [St.-Hilaire]. Fr., c. des champs. A species indigenous to Brazil. The root is purgative and is employed in syphilis. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. cascarilla [Bennett]. Fr., c. cascarille, fausse canelle, faux quinquina, quinquina gris aromatique. Ger., falscher Kaskarillkroton. A species found in the West Indies. Though formerly a source of the cascarilla of commerce, it yields none now. Its bark is an aromatic bitter. [B, 5, 18, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. cascarilloides [Vahl]. A species indigenous to Hayti. Its bark was formerly known to commerce as cascarilla. [B, 121, 180 (a, 24).]—C. castaneifolius [Linnæus]. Fr., c. à feuilles de châtaignier. A species indigenous to tropical America furnishing lac. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. chamædryfolius [Lamarck]. A species indigenous to Colombia and the Antilles ; used as a vulnerary and resolvent. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. chloral. See BUTYLCHLORAL.—C. coccineus [Vahl]. A species found in Malabar and Ceylon ; used in snake-bites. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. coriaceus [Kunth]. Fr., c. coriacé. A species indigenous to tropical America ; its bark yields a balsamic resin employed as an incense. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. corylifolius [Lamarck]. A West Indian shrub, used as an aromatic tonic and carminative and as a vulnerary. [B, 180.]—C. des champs (Fr.). See C. campestris.—C. des teinturiers (Fr.). See C. tinctorum.—C. digitatus. The Manihot digitata. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—C. dioicus [Cavanilles]. Sp., yerba del zorrillo [Mex. Ph.]. A Mexican species. The root and the seeds are drastic, and the fixed oil of the latter has been recommended as a substitute for croton-oil. [J. M. Maisch, "Am. Jour. of Pharm.," Apr., 1886, p. 168.]—C. discolor [Reichenbach]. The C. pseudo-china. [a, 24.]—C. draco [Schlechtendahl]. A Mexican species. The sap resembles dragon's blood. [B, 19, 180 (a, 24).]—C. draconoides [Müll.]. A plant the juice of which possesses sudorific and depuratory properties. [L, 49 (a, 21).]—C. eleuteria. Fr., bois de musc. Ger., wahrer Kaskarille-Kroton, wohlriechender Kroton. 1. The C. Sloanei. 2. Of Bennett, the Clutyia eleuteria, which furnishes the true cascarilla-bark (cortex cascarillæ) of commerce ; a small tree indigenous to the West Indies, chiefly the Bahamas. [B, 5, 18, 88, 95, 173, 180 (a, 24).] See CASCARILLA.—C. faux-quina (Fr.). See C. pseudo-china.—C. flavens. Fr., petit baume. CROTONA (Lat.), n. f. Kro²t-on'a³. Gr., κρότων. Fr., Crotone. An ancient Greek city, now Crotone, on the coast of Italy, where there was a medical school. [A, 301.]

CROTONAL, n. Krot'o²n-a²l. Ger., C. A bivalent radicle consisting of crotonic aldehyde deprived of its oxygen, $C_{4+6}=CH_3.CH=CH.CH=$. [B, 9, 158 (a, 24).]—C. dichloride. Ger., C'dichlorür. An oily liquid, $C_4H_6Cl_2=CH_3-CH=CH=CH.CHCl_2$, boiling at 125° to 127° C. [B, 4, 158 (a, 24).]

CROTONATE, n. Krot'o²n-at. Fr., c. Ger., krotonsaures Salz. A salt of crotonic acid. [L, 41.]

CROTONE (Lat.), n. Kro²t-on'e(a). Gen., croton'es. Gr., κροτώνη. Fr., c. 1. A fungus parasitic on trees. 2. A fungous outgrowth. [A, 322, 325; L, 41.]

CROTONEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kro²t-on'e²-e(a³-e²). Fr., crotonées. 1. Of Bentham and Hooker, a tribe of the Euphorbiaceæ, embracing the subtribes Jatropheæ, Eucrotoneæ, Chrozophoreæ, Adrianeæ, Acalypheæ, Geloniæ, Plunketieæ, and Hippomaneæ. 2. Of Blume, a section of the Euphorbiaceæ, comprising Trigostemon, Ryparosa, Croton, Baliospermum, Erythrocarpus, Codiæum, Rottlera, Adisca, Trewia, Cleidione, Chilosa, Conceveibum, Erytrochilus, Janipha, Jatropha, Elæococca, Aleutris, Ostodes, Elateriospermum, Spathiostemon, Ricinus, Mappa, Pachystemon, Omalanthus, Acalypha, Tragia, Cnesmosa, and Excœcaria. 3. Of Reichenbach, a subdivision of the Euphorbiaceæ, comprising the Micrantheæ, Argythamineæ, and Crozophoreæ. 4. Of Baillon, a series of the Euphorbiaceæ, comprising Croton, Julocroton, Crotonopsis, and Eremocarpus. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CROTONIC, adj. Krot-o²n'i²k. Fr., crotonique. Belonging to or resembling the genus Croton; also derived from a plant of that genus. [a, 24.]—C. acid. Fr., acide crotonique. Ger., Crotonsäure. It., acido crotonico. Sp., ácido crotónico. A monobasic acid, $C_4H_6O_2$, of which three isomeric varieties are known: (a) α-c. acid (or simply c. acid), $CH_3CH \equiv CHCO.OH$, which occurs in tabular or acicular crystals, melting at 72° C.; (b) β-c. acid (isocrotonic or quartenylic acid), $CH_2 \equiv CH - CH_2.CO.OH$, a liquid boiling at 172° C.; and (c) methærylic acid, a liquid (see METHÆRYLIC acid). [B, 4. 270 (a, 24).]—C. aldehyde. Fr., aldéhyde crotonique. Ger., Crotonaldehyd. An aldehyde, $C_4H_6O = CH_2CH.CH_2CHO$ (or, according to Kekule, $CH_3 - CH - CH.CHO$), obtained from acetic aldehyde by long boiling at 100° C. with a concentrated solution of potassic acetate or with zinc chloride and a little water; it is a colorless, pungent liquid, boiling at 104° to 105° C., somewhat soluble in water. [B, 2, 4 (a, 24).]

CROTONINE, n. Krot'o²n-en. Lat., crotonina. Fr., c. Ger., Crotonin. A supposed alkaloid obtained by Brandes from croton-seeds, subsequently found to be a magnesian soap with an alkaline reaction. [B, 5 (a, 24).]

CROTONINEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kro²t-o²n(on)-i²n'e²-e(a³-e²). Fr., crotoninées. Of Brongniart, a class of hypogynous Dialypetalæ, comprising the families Antidesmeæ, Forestiereæ, and Euphorbiaceæ. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CROTONODES (Lat.), adj. Kro²t-o²n-od'ez(as). Gr., κροτονώδης (from κρότων, the genus Croton, and εἶδος, resemblance). Ger., krotonähnlich. Resembling the genus Croton. [A, 322.]

CROTONOL, n. Krot'o²n-o²l. Fr., c. According to Schlippe, the vesicating principle of croton-oil, $C_9H_{14}O_2$; not found by other chemists. [B, 5 (a, 24).]

CROTONOLEIC ACID, n. Krot-o²n-ol-e'i²k. Fr., acide crotonoléique. Ger., Crotonölsäure. An acid existing in croton-oil, both free and in combination as a glyceride. According to Kobert, it is the vesicant and purgative principle of the oil. It is freely soluble in alcohol. ["Am. Jour. of Pharm.," July, 1887, p. 342; B, 5 (a, 24).]

CROTONYLENE, n. Krot-o²n'i²l-en. Fr., crotonylène. Ger., Crotonylen. A colorless liquid, $C_4H_6 = CH_3CH \equiv C \equiv CH_2$, occurring in the gaseous state in coal-gas; it boils at 20° C. [B, 4, 5 (a, 24); "Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," xxi, p. 213.]—C. dibromide. Ger., Crotonylendibromür. A liquid, $C_4H_6Br_2 = CH_3 - CH \equiv CBr - CH_2Br$, which boils at 150° C. [B, 4 (a, 24).]—C. tetrabromide. Ger., Crotonylentetrabromür. A crystalline solid, $C_4H_6Br_4 = CH_3 - CHBr - CBr_2 - CH_2Br$. [B, 4 (a, 24).]

CROTOPHAGINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kro²t-o²f-a²j(a²g)-i(e)'ne-(na³-e²). Fr., crotophaginées. Ger., Madenfresser. A subfamily of the Cuculidæ. [L, 221.]

CROTTLE, n. Kro²t'l. The Parmelia omphalodes and various other lichens. [B, 19, 121, 275 (a, 24).]—Black c's. The Parmelia saxatilis. [A, 505.]—Hazel c's. The Sticta pulmonacea. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Light c's. The Leonora pallescens. [A, 505.]—Stone-c's. The Parmelia saxatilis. [A, 505.]

CROUP, n. Krup. Lat., angina laryngea (seu trachealis). Fr., c. Ger., C., häutige Bräune. It., c. Sp., crup. 1. A term (said to be of Scottish origin) formerly applied to an acute inflammation of the mucous membrane of the larynx or the larynx and trachea, characterized by the formation of a fibrinous exudation on the surface of the membrane which encroaches on the calibre of the larynx or trachea, and thus gives rise to a hoarse, ringing cough and sonorous, labored, and seriously or even fatally obstructed breathing. It occurs mostly in young children, and is distinguished from spasmodic and œdematous obstruction of the larynx by its gradual onset, by the fact that both inspiration and expiration are impeded, and by the continuance of the obstruction by day as well as by night. Those who use the word in this sense regard the disease as of rare occurrence, as purely a local inflammation, not specific and not infectious. 2. As now more and more accepted, a diseased state having the same symptoms, but constituting a laryngeal or laryngeal and tracheal manifestation of diphtheria; therefore characterized by an exudation into the substance of the mucous membrane instead of on its surface, giving rise to swelling and necrosis of the superjacent portion. 3. CRUDIVOROUS, adj. Kru^{2}d-i^{2}v'or-u^{3}s. Gr., ὠμοφάγος. Lat., crudivorus (from crudus, raw, and vorare, to eat). Fr., crudivore. Subsisting entirely upon raw food (said of certain savage tribes). [L, 42.]

CRUDUS (Lat.), adj. Kru^{2}d(krud)'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CRUDE.

CRUEL, n. Kru^2'e^{2}l. See CREWEL.

CRUENTATE, adj. Kru^2-e^{2}nt'at. Fr., cruenté. Rendered bloody. [A, 385.]

CRUENTATION, n. Kru^2-e^{2}nt-a'shu^{3}n. Lat., cruentatio. Fr., c. An oozing or flowing of blood from a corpse; due to putrefaction of the blood in the veins, giving rise to gases that exert pressure within them. [A, 301.]

CRUENTIN, n. Kru^2-e^{2}nt'i^{2}n. Fr., cruentine. Ger., C. Of Thudichum, a substance produced by the action of sulphuric acid on hæmoglobin. [A, 301.]

CRUENTOUS, adj. Kru^2-e^{2}nt'u^{3}s. See CRUENTUS.

CRUENTURESIS (Lat.), n. f. Kru^2(kru^4)-e^{2}nt-u^{2}r(ur)-e(a)'si^{2}s. Gen., cruentures'eos (-is). From cruentus, bloody, and οὖρον, urine. See HÆMATURIA.

CRUENTUS (Lat.), adj. Kru^2(kru^4)-e^{2}nt'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., αἱματώδης. Fr., sanglant. Ger., blutig. It., sanguinante. Sp., cruento, sangriento. 1. Bloody. 2. Used in abstracting blood (see CUCURBITULA cruenta). [A, 325.]

CRUMB, n. Kru^{3}m. Gr., ψίξ. Lat., mica. Fr., miette. A small fragment, especially of bread. See MICA panis.

CRUMEN (Lat.), n. n. Kru^2(kru^4)'me^{2}n(man). Gen., crum'inis. Fr., crumène. 1. See Lacrymal SINUS. 2. The Lycopus europæus. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CRUMENA (Lat.), n. f. Kru^2(kru^4)-me(ma)'na^3. Gr., βαλάντιον, μαρσύπιον. Fr., crumène. Ger., Beutel. A sac. [A, 322.]—C. nuptialis. The scrotum. [A, 322.]—C. urinaria. The urinary bladder. [A, 322.]

CRUMENIFERUS (Lat.), adj. Kru^2(kru^4)-men(man)-i^{2}f'e^{2}r-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From crumena, a sac, and ferre, to bear. Fr., cruménifère. Having a pouch or a pouch-shaped organ. [L, 41.]

CRUMENOPHTHALMUS (Lat.), adj. Kru^2(kru^4)-me^{2}n(man)-o^{2}f-tha^{2}l(tha^{3}l)'mu^{3}s(mu^{4}s). From crumena, a sac, and ὀφθαλμός, the eye. Fr., cruménophthalme. Ger., beutelaugig. Having the eyes surrounded by a sac. [L, 41.]

CRUMMOCK, n. Kru^{3}m'o^{2}k. The Sium sisarum. [A, 505.]

CRUMPLED, adj. Kru^{3}m'p'ld. Folded transversely. [B, 77 (a, 24).]

CRUNION (Lat.), n. n. Kru^{2}n(krun)'i^2-o^{2}n. Gr., κρούνιον (from κρουνός, a fountain). Of Aetius, a certain compound that caused abundant diuresis. [Gorræus (A, 325).]

CRUOR (Lat.), n. m. Kru^2(kru^4)'o^{2}r. Gen., cruor'is. Blood, especially venous, or extravasated, or coagulated blood. [A, 325; L, 175.]

CRUORIC, adj. Kru^2-o^{2}r'i^{2}k. Fr., cruorique. Pertaining to cruor. [A, 301.]

CRUORIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kru^2(kru^4)-o^{2}r-i(i^2)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Agardh, a tribe of the Squamarieæ, comprising Actinococcus, Petrocelis, Cruoria, and Contarinia. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CRUORIN, n. Kru^2'o^{2}r-i^{2}n. Fr., cruorine. Ger., C. See HÆMOGLOBIN.

CRUPINEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kru^2(kru^4)-pi^{2}n'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., crupinées. A tribe of the Cynarocephalæ, comprising Crupina and Serratula. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CRUPPER, n. Kru^{2}p'u^{5}r. See CROUPE.

CRURA (Lat.), n. n., pl. of crus (q. v.). Kru^2(kru)'ra^3.

CRURÆUS (Lat.), n. m. Kru^2(kru)-re'(ra^3'e^2)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Fr., muscle crural. Ger., tiefer Unterschenkelstrecker. It., moscolo crurale. Sp., músculo crural. A muscle of the thigh, lying behind the rectus femoris. It arises from the upper two thirds of the anterior surface of the femur and from the anterior intertrochanteric line, and unites with the common tendon of the quadriceps extensor cruris. [L, 31, 142, 332.] Cf. Quadriceps EXTENSOR cruris and VASTUS medius.

CRURAL, adj. Kru^2'ra^{2}l. Lat., cruralis. Fr., Ger., c. It., crurale. Sp., c. Pertaining to the lower limb.

CRURALIS (Lat.), adj. Kru^2(kru)-ra(ra^3)'li^{2}s. Crural; as a n., see CRURÆUS.

CRURO-GÉNITAL (Fr.), adj. Kru^5-ro-zha-ne-ta^{2}l. Pertaining to the thighs and to the genitals. [L, 41.]

CRURO-INGUINAL, adj. Kru^2''ro-i^{2}n^2'gwi^{2}n-a^{2}l. From crus, the lower limb, and inguen, the groin. Fr., c.-i. Pertaining to the thigh and to the groin. [L, 88.]

CRUS (Lat.), n. n. Kru^{3}s(krus). Gen., cru'ris. Gr., σκέλος (1st def.), κνήμη (2d def.). Fr., jambe. Ger., Schenkel (1st def.), Unterschenkel (2d def.). It., gamba. Sp., pierna. 1. The lower limb. 2. That part of the lower limb that extends from the knee to the ankle. 3. Any leg-like structure. [A, 322; B, 121 (a, 24); L, 343.]—Anterior c. of the stapes. The anterior and straighter of the two processes which connect the neck of the stapes with the base. [L, 31, 142, 332.]—Crura ad medullam oblongatam. See Middle PEDUNCLES of the cerebellum.—Crura adscendentes cerebelli. See Superior PEDUNCLES of the cerebellum.—C. ampullare (canalis semicircularis). Fr., extrémité ampullaire. The enlarged or ampullary extremity of each semicircular canal of the internal ear, in contradistinction to c. simplex. [a, 18.]—C. annuli inguinalis anterioris anterius. See C. superius annuli inguinalis anterioris.—C. annuli inguinalis anterioris inferius. See C. inferius annuli inguinalis anterioris.—C. annuli inguinalis anterioris internum. See C. superius annuli inguinalis anterioris.—C. annuli inguinalis anterioris posterius. See C. inferius annuli inguinalis anterioris.—C. annuli inguinalis anterioris superius. See C. superius annuli inguinalis anterioris.—C. annuli inguinalis externi medium. See Triangular LIGAMENT.—C. annuli obturatorii tendineum. See C. tendineum annuli obturatorii.—C. anterius. See Anterior PILLARS of the fornix.—C. anterius annuli inguinalis anterioris. See C. superius annuli inguinalis anterioris.—Crura anteriora fornicis. See Anterior PILLARS of the fornix.—C. anterius helicis. See CRISTA helicis.—C. anterius medullæ oblongatæ. Of Winslow, the c. cerebri. [Burdach (a, 18).]—Crura anthelicis. See Crura bifurcata.—C. anthelicis inferius. The lower one of the crura bifurcata. [L.]—C. anthelicis superius. The upper one of the crura bifurcata. [L.]—C. arcus vertebralis. The lamina of a vertebra. [Hartmann (a, 18).]—C. barbadicum. See Barbadoes LEG.—Crura bifurcata. Two ridges on the inner surface of the external ear, meeting at the anthelix. [L, 31.]—C. breve incudis. See C. incudis breve.—C. canalis semicircularis ampullare. See C. ampullare.—C. canalis semicircularis simplex. Fr., extrémité simple (ou non-ampullaire). The straight, unexpanded extremity of each semicircular canal. [a, 18.]—Crura cerebelli. See Superior, Middle, and Inferior cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura cerebelli ad cerebrum (seu ad corpora quadrigemina, seu ad eminentiam quadrigeminas). See Superior cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura cerebelli ad medullam oblongatam. See Inferior cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura cerebelli ad pontem (seu lateralia). See Middle PEDUNCLES of the cerebellum.—Crura cerebelli anteriora (seu ascendentia).

See Superior cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura cerebelli descendentia. See Inferior cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura cerebelli encephali. See Superior cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura cerebelli inferiora. See Inferior cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura cerebelli magna (seu media). See Middle cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura cerebelli medullæ oblongatæ. See Inferior cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura cerebelli posteriora (seu postica). See Middle cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura cerebelli superiora. See Superior cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura e cerebello ad medullam. See Inferior cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—Crura cerebri (seu cerebri ad pontem, seu cerebri magna). Fr., pédoncules du cerveau. Ger., Hirnschenkel. Two thick bundles of white substance which extend from the upper border of the pons Varolii, diverging to enter the cerebral hemispheres. Between them is situated the posterior perforated space. In structure each c. is composed of superficial and deep bundles of fibres, separated from each other by a mass of gray matter, called the locus niger. The superficial layers are distinguished as the crusta, and are a prolongation of the anterior pyramids; the deep layers are prolonged from the olivary fasciculi and the lateral and posterior columns of the medulla oblongata. One bundle is known as the tegmentum. [I, 15; K.]—Crura clitoridis. Fr., racines du clitoris. Ger., Kitzlerschenkel. The deep-seated roots of the clitoris, one on each side, attached to the borders of the ascending rami of the ischia and the descending rami of the ossa pubis. They unite anteriorly to form the body of the organ.—Crura corporum cavernosorum penis. See Crura penis.—C. curvilineum. See Posterior c. of the stapes.—Crura diaphragmatica (seu diaphragmatis) externa. See External PILLARS of the diaphragm.—Crura diaphragmatica (seu diaphragmatis) interna. See Internal PILLARS of the diaphragm.—Crura diaphragmatica (seu diaphragmatis) media. See Middle PILLARS of the diaphragm.—C. externum annuli inguinalis anterioris (seu canalis inguinalis). See C. inferius annuli inguinalis anterioris.—Crura fornicis anteriora. See Anterior PILLARS of the fornix.—Crura fornicis posteriora. See Posterior PILLARS of the fornix.—C. glandis. The inferior fold of the nymphæ, which passes beneath the clitoris, becomes attached to the glans, and forms the frenum. [a, 18.]—Crura helicis. See Crura bifurcata.—C. incudis breve. The processus brevis of the incus. [L, 332.]—C. incudis descendens (seu inferius, seu longum). The processus longus of the incus. [L, 332.]—C. incudis posterius (seu transversum). The processus transversus of the incus. [L, 7, 332.]—C. inferius annuli inguinalis anterioris. The internal pillar of the external abdominal ring. [L, 332.]—C. inferius ligamenti cruciati epistrophei. A short bundle of fibres which passes down from the middle of the posterior surface of the transverse ligament of the atlas and is inserted into the body of the axis. [L, 31, 332.] Cf. LIGAMENTUM occipitale posterius medium.—C. internum annuli inguinalis anterioris (seu canalis inguinalis). See C. superius annuli inguinalis anterioris.—C. longum incudis. See C. incudis longum.—C. medium. See Middle PEDUNCLE of the cerebellum.—Crura medullæ oblongatæ ad corpora quadrigemina. Of Rœhmann, the corpora olivaria of Henle, the funiculus olivaris (or ovalis) or lateral tract of the medulla oblongata; of Krause, the eminentiæ teretes. [L, 175 (a, 18).]—Crura medullæ spinalis. The anterior and posterior cornua of the spinal cord. [a, 18.]—Crura medullæ spinalis anteriora. The anterior horns of the spinal cord. [a, 18.]—Crura medullæ spinalis posteriora. The posterior horns of the spinal cord. [a, 18.]—C. nymphæ externum. The uppermost part of the two branches into which each of the labia minora divides. It unites with its fellow of the opposite side in the prepuce of the clitoris. [L, 7.]—C. nymphæ internum. The lower of the two branches into which each of the labia minora divides. It unites with its fellow of the opposite side to form the frænum of the clitoris. [L, 7.]—Crura of the clitoris. See Crura clitoridis.—Crura of the diaphragm. See PILLARS of the diaphragm.—Crura of the fornix. See PILLARS of the fornix.—Crura penis. Fr., racines de la verge. Ger., Ruthenschenkel, Peniswurzeln. Two backward prolongations of the corpora cavernosa penis. They diverge at the symphysis pubis, and are attached to the rami of the os pubis and the ischium. [L, 115.]—Crura posteriora. The posterior pillars of the fornix cerebri. [a, 18.]—C. posterius annuli inguinalis anterioris. See C. inferius annuli inguinalis anterioris.—Crura pyramidis. The lateral parts of the pyramid of the cerebellum. [a, 18.]—C. rectilineum. See Anterior c. of the stapes.—C. simplex canaliculi semicircularis. See C. canalis semicircularis simplex.—Crura stapedis. See Anterior and Posterior c. of the stapes.—C. stapedis anterius. See Anterior c. of the stapes.—C. stapedis curvilineum. See Posterior c. of the stapes.—C. stapedis rectilineum. See Anterior c. of the stapes.—Crura superiora cerebelli. See Superior cerebellar PEDUNCLES.—C. superius annuli inguinalis anterioris. The external pillar of the external abdominal ring. [L, 322.]—C. superius ligamenti cruciati. A bundle of fibres (one on each side) which passes up from the upper margin of the transverse ligament of the atlas, beneath the middle odontoid ligament, to the apex of the odontoid process of the axis. [L, 332.]—C. superius ligamenti cruciati epistrophei. A bundle of fibres which passes upward from the middle of the posterior surface of the transverse ligament of the atlas, and is inserted into the basilar process of the occipital bone. [L, 31, 332.] Cf. LIGAMENTUM occipitale posterius medium.—C. tendineum annuli obturatorii. The fibrous margin of the obturator canal. [L, 332.]—C. transversum. The transverse ligament of the atlas. [a, 18.]—C. transversum ligamenti cruciati. See Transverse LIGAMENT of the atlas (1st def.).—Crura uteri. The round ligaments of the uterus. [L, 7.]—Crura ventriculi [Günther]. The cornua of the lateral ventricle of the brain. [I, 3; K.]—Posterior c. of the stapes. Lat., c. curvilineum. The posterior and most curved of the two processes of the stapes which unite the neck with the base. [L, 31, 142, 332.]

CRUSHER, n. Kru^{3}sh'u^{5}r. Gr., πιεστήρ, πιεστήριον. Lat., instrumentum contusorium. Fr., écraseur. Ger., Zerquetscher. It., schiacciatore. Sp., magullador. See ÉCRASEUR and LITHOTRITE.

CRUSOCREATININE, n. Kru^{2}s-o-kre-a^{2}t'i^{2}n-en. Fr., crusocréatinine. Ger., Crusokreatinin. An alkaloid, $C_5H_8N_4O$, discovered by Gautier in the animal body. It forms orange-yellow crystals, and has been classed among the leucomaines. [B, 270 (a, 24); E. D. Ferguson, "N. Y. Med. Jour.," Aug. 4, 1888, p. 113.]

CRUST, n. Kru^{3}st. Lat., crusta. Fr., croûte (O. Fr., crouste). Ger., Kruste, Borke. It., crosta. Sp., costra. An outer coating, especially one formed by desiccation; ordinarily, a scab, a dry accumulation on the surface of the skin or a mucous membrane or that of a sore, consisting of the products of desquamation, secretion, or exudation, singly or combined. [G.]—French c. Syphilis. [G, 16.]—Lamellated c. Lat., crusta lamellosa. Fr., croûte lamelleuse. Ger., Schuppengrind. A c. that is formed in layers one above another.—Milk-c., Milky c. See CRUSTA lactea.—C. of the peduncle. Lat., pes pedunculi. Fr., étege inférieure du pédoncule cérébral. Ger., Hirnschenkelfuss. The anterior or ventral portion of the crus cerebri. It is separated from the posterior or dorsal portion by the locus niger, and consists of white nerve-fibres which have been divided into five groups, according to their probable function and destination. [a, 18.]

CRUSTA (Lat.), n. f. Kru^{3}st(kru^{4}st)'a^3. 1. See CRUST. 2. The external cover or shell in the Mollusca, Crustacea, and certain of the Insecta. 3. Of Nylander, the crustaceous thallus of a lichen. [B, 121 (a, 24); L, 116.]—C. adamantina. The dental enamel. [L.]—C. carnosa [Bartholin]. Fr., croûte charnue. The muscular layer of the stomach and intestines. [L, 116.]—C. cruris cerebri. The c. of the cerebral peduncle. [a, 18.]—C. fibrosa. See CEMENT (2d def.).—C. genu equini. Syn.: hippogonyolepos. The crust found upon the knees of horses in the disease known as "knee scab," "horse crust." It was recommended by J. S. Mettauer in the treatment of epilepsy and other nervous diseases. [L, 50, 325.]—C. inflammatoria. See Buffy COAT.—C. lactea. Fr., croûte laiteuse (ou de lait), gourme. Ger., Milchborke, Milchschorf. It., crosta lattea. Sp., costra de leche. Milk-crust; an eczematous or seborrhœal eruption on the face or scalp, or both, in infants, in which incrustation is a predominant feature. [A, 326; G.]—C. lamellosa. See Lamellated CRUST.—C. ollæ [Rumphius]. Fr., crusta olle. A name for different Indian plants, among others a Gratiola and an Oldenlandia. [B, 121 (a, 24).]—C. osteoides (radicis), C. petrosa [Blake]. See CEMENT (2d def.).—C. phlogistica, C. pleuritica. See Buffy COAT.—C. pruriginosa. See GUTTA rosea.—C. serpiginosa. Ger., Flechtengrind. A serpiginous crusted disease of the skin in children, described by Schönlein, the true nature of which is not clearly apparent. According to Schönlein, it often proved fatal. [G, 10.]—C. ulceris. A scab formed on an ulcer. [L, 135.]—C. vermicularis. Fr., croûte vermiculaire. Of Graaf, the mucous coat of the stomach or of the intestines. [L, 325.]—C. villosa. The gastro-intestinal mucous membrane. [Willis (A, 325).]—C. villosa ventriculi. The mucous coat of the stomach. [L, 50, 325.]

CRUSTACEA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kru^{3}st(kru^{4}st)-a(a^3)'se^2(ke^2)-a^3. Fr., crustacés. Ger., Crustaceen, Krebs, Krustenthier. 1. Of Linnæus, a class of Aptera. [L, 43.] 2. Of Cuvier and Owen, a class of the Articulata (of Lankester, of the Acerata), animals characterized by "a chitinous or subcalcareous exoskeleton," the division of the body into a variable number of somites—usually 21—some or all of which are provided with a pair of articulated appendages, and, as a rule, a respiratory apparatus adapted to an aquatic life. The sexes are distinct except in the Cirripedia, but the young usually undergo a metamorphosis after leaving the ovum. They are generally divided into the subclasses Entomostraca and Malacostraca. [L, 11, 121, 147, 168.]

CRUSTACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kru^{3}st(kru^{4}st)-a(a^3)'se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Of Agardh, an order of lichens, divided into the series Leprosæ, Rimatæ, Pyrenulatæ, Calicioideæ, and Scutellatæ. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CRUSTACEAN, adj. Kru^{3}s-ta'se-a^{2}n. Pertaining to the Crustacea; as a n., an individual of the Crustacea. [L, 121.]—Suctorian c's. Those of the Copepoda which are parasitic. [L, 11.]

Any vocal sound other than that of articulate speech or of laughing, coughing, etc., especially a sudden, shrieklike sound.—Epileptic c. Fr., cri épileptique. Ger., epileptischer Schrei. A sharp, sudden cry, "shrill and terrifying to man and beast," uttered by epileptics at the beginning of an attack of epilepsia gravior. It is believed to be involuntary, occurring as it does when the patient is partially or wholly unconscious, and is caused by the spasmodic action of expiratory and laryngeal muscles. [V. Ziemssen's "Cyclop." (Eng. trans.), xiv, p. 226 (a, 18).]—Hydrocephalic c. Fr., cri hydrocéphalique, cri hydrencéphalique, cri méningitique, cri cérébral. Ger., hydrocephalischer Schrei. A single violent cry, resembling that uttered by a person surprised by a great danger [Trousseau]; heard in cerebral diseases of children especially, such as tuberculous meningitis and acute hydrocephalus. It occurs during sleep or coma often at periods of five, ten, or fifteen minutes, sometimes every hour, during several days. As the disease progresses, the cries become less frequent, although they have been observed at the ultimate period of the disease. [a, 18.]

CRYÆSTHESIA (Lat.), n. f. Kri(kru^6)-e^{2}s(a^3-e^{2}s)-thez(thas)'i^2-a^3. From κρύος, cold, and αἴσθησις, sensation. Fr., cryesthésie. Abnormal sensibility to cold, either spontaneous or produced by contact with cold objects. [Dieulafoy, "Gaz. hebd. de méd. et de chir.," June 25, 1886, p. 426 (a, 18).]

CRYEROSIS (Lat.), n. f. Kri(kru^6)-e^{2}r-o'si^{2}s. Gen., cryeros'eos (-is). From κρυερός, chilling. Fr., cryérose. The sensation felt on touching a cold object, especially a reptile. [L, 41.]

CRYING, n. Kri'i^{2}n^{2}g. Fr., cri. Ger., Weinen. A peculiar manifestation (chiefly vocal) of some emotion, commonly grief, or of hysteria. It is usually accompanied by the shedding of tears and a modification of the respiratory rhythm, due to a reflex stimulus from the cerebral hemispheres to the respiratory centre. The inspirations are usually deep and long, and the expirations considerably shorter, sometimes intermittent, as in laughing. In crying, there is often produced a characteristic intermittent sound; it is also often accompanied by sobbing. [J.]

CRYMODES (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}m(kru^{6}m)-od'ez(as). Gr., κρυμώδης (from κρυμός, frost, and εἶδος, resemblance). Fr., crymode. Ger., eiskalt. Icy cold; as a n. f. (febris understood), algid fever (Lat., febris algida; Fr., fièvre algide; Ger., Eisfieber). Of Aetius, a form of fever with pulmonary inflammation and coldness of the surface. [A, 322, 325; L, 325.]

CRYMODYNIA (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}m(kru^{6}m)-o(o^3)-di^{2}n(du^{6}n)'i^2-a^3. From κρυμός, coldness, and ὀδύνη, pain. Fr., crymodynie. Ger., kalter Gliederfluss. Syn.: rheumatismus chronicus frigidus. An old term variously interpreted as having meant rheumatoid pain with coldness of the affected parts, the same resulting from exposure to cold, or any form of chronic (non-febrile) rheumatism. [Baumès (A, 301); A, 322; L, 41, 44, 325.]

CRYMOPHILE (Fr.), adj. Kre-mo-fel. From κρυμός, icy cold, and φιλεῖν, to love. Suited to cold climates (said of birds). [L, 109.]

CRYMOSES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}m(kru^{6}m)-os'ez(e^{3}s). From κρυμός, icy cold. Diseases attributed to the action of cold. [L, 41, 325.]

CRYOHYDRATE, n. Kri-o-hid'rat. From κρύος, frost, and ὕδωρ, water. A crystalline body formed by the union of a salt (ordinarily anhydrous) with a definite proportion of water of combination, under the influence of a very low temperature. [B, 6.]

CRYOLITE, n. Kri'o-lit. From κρύος, frost, and λίθος, a stone. Fluoride of aluminium and sodium, occurring native in snow-white masses. It fuses easily in the flame of a candle. [Dana (a, 24); "Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," xvi, p. 209.]

CRYOMÈTRE (Fr.), n. Kre-o-me^{2}t'r. From κρύος, cold, and μέτρον, a measure. An instrument for ascertaining the intensity of cold. [L, 42.] Cf. THERMOMETER.

CRYOPHORUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri(kru^6)-o^{2}f'o^{2}r-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κρύος, cold, and φορεῖν, to bear. Fr., cryophore. Ger., Kryophor. An instrument invented by Wollaston for the purpose of freezing liquids by reason of the heat absorbed in their own evaporation. It consists of two glass bulbs connected by a curved glass tube. The liquid is introduced into one bulb, partially filling it, the air is driven out, and the tube hermetically sealed. The vapor given off by the liquid is condensed in the second bulb by means of a freezing mixture, into which this latter is plunged. The evaporation is so rapid that the freezing-point of the liquid is quickly attained. [a, 27.]

CRYOPSORÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri(kru^6)-o^{2}p-so're(ra^3-e^2). Of Rabenhorst, an order of lichens consisting of the Verrucarieæ, Graphideæ, and Limborieæ. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CRYOS (Lat.), n. n. Kri(kru^6)'o^{2}s. Gen., cry'eos (-is). Gr., κρύος. Coldness; hardness, as if from freezing. [A, 325.]

CRYPHÆACEÆ (Lat.), CRYPHÆEÆ [Schimper] (Lat.), n's f. pl. Kri^{2}f(kru^{6}f)-e(a^3-e^2)-a(a^3)'se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2), -e'(a^3'e^2)-e-e^2(a^3-e^2). Fr., cryphéacées, cryphées. Of Hampe, a family (of Rabenhorst, a subdivision) of the Clonocarpi (of Spruce, a tribe of the Pleurocarpi), consisting of the genus Cryphæa. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CRYPHALUM (Lat.), n. n. Kri^{2}f(kru^{6}f)'a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). From κεκρύφαλος, a bonnet. Ger., netzförmiger Magen (2d def.). 1. A network (see RETICULUM). 2. The second (reticular) stomach of the Ruminantia. [A, 322.]

CRYPHIMA (Lat.), CRYPHINA (Lat.), n's f. Kri^{2}f(kru^{6}f)'i^{2}m-a^3, -i^{2}n-a^3. Gr., κρύφιμα, κρύφινα (from κρύφιος, secret). Of Hippocrates, a certain occult mental sense. [A, 325.]

CRYPHTHELMINTHES (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kri^{2}f(kru^{6}f)-the^{2}l-mi^{2}nth'ez(e^{2}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and ἕλμινς, a worm. Fr., c. Ger., Kryphthelminthen. The entoparasitic Infusoria. [A, 322; L, 81.]

CRYPHTHORISMUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri^{2}f(kru^{6}f)-tho^{2}r-i^{2}z(i^{2}s)'mu^{3}s(mu^{4}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and ὁρίζειν, to establish. Fr., méthode crypthoristique. Ger., kryphthorische Methode. Syn.: methodus cryphthoristica. Of Ampère, H. Pidoux, and others, the system of inferring unseen natural processes from actual observation of analogous visible processes. [A, 322.]

CRYPSANTHA (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}ps(kru^{6}ps)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)'tha^3. The Hedwigia ciliata. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CRYPSORCHIS (Lat.), n. m. Kri^{2}ps(kru^{6}ps)-o^{2}rk(o^{2}rch^2)'i^{2}s. See CRYPTORCHIS, and for other words in Cryps-, not here given, see the corresponding words in Crypt-.

CRYPT, n. Kri^{2}pt. Gr., κρύπτη (from κρυπτός, hidden). Lat., crypta. Fr., crypte. Ger., Krypte. It., critta. Sp., cripta. A small cavity, either entirely closed or opening on a free surface.—C's of Lieberkühn. Lat., cryptæ mucosæ (seu lieberkühnianæ). Fr., glandes de Lieberkühn. Ger., Lieberkühnsche Drüsen (oder Krypten). It., glandole di Lieberkühn. Sp., cripta de Lieberkühn. The minute, cæcal glandular tubes of the mucosa of the small and large intestine. They are lined with columnar cells like those covering the villi and general surface of the intestine; they extend to the muscularis mucosæ and open singly, or two or three together, into the lumen of the intestine. [J, 30, 35.]—C's of the tongue. Ger., Balgdrüsen der Zungenwurzel. Small depressions in the mucous membrane of the tongue whose walls are studded with spherical projections each of which contains a vascular loop and is provided with lymph follicles. [L, 332.]—Multilocular c's. 1. Of Sharpey, simple glands with pouched or loculated walls. 2. The lobules of an acinous or racemose gland. [J, 30, 129, 155.]—Sebaceous c's. See Sebaceous GLANDS.—Synovial c's. See BURSÆ mucosæ.—Synoviparous c's. Small follicle-like extensions of the synovial membranes which occasionally perforate the capsule of the joints, and sometimes become shut off from the main sac. [L, 34.]

CRYPTA (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)'ta^3. 1. See CRYPT. 2. One of the small, round excrescences (glomeruli) terminating the minute branches of the arteries in the cortical portion of the kidney. 3. One of the round receptacles (sunken cysts) with which the leaves of many plants are studded. [B, 19 (a, 24).]—C. gonorrhœæ. Of J. H. Salisbury, a cryptogam considered by him to be the essential element in the virus of gonorrhœa.—Cryptæ iridis. Small crypts on the anterior surface of the iris, near the pupillary margin. [L, 332.]—Cryptæ Littrii. See Preputial GLANDS.—Cryptæ minimæ (seu mucosæ). See CRYPTS of Lieberkühn.—Cryptæ odoriferæ (seu preputiales). See Preputial GLANDS.—Cryptæ sebaceæ. See Sebaceous GLANDS.—C. syphilitica. 1. A crater-shaped depression formed by the development of a syphilitic follicular ulcer on a mucous surface, as of the tonsils. [a, 25.] 2. Of Salisbury, a cryptogam regarded by him as the cause of syphilis. [B, 30.]—Cryptæ tysonianæ. See Preputial GLANDS.

CRYPTANDROUS, adj. Kri^{2}pt-a^{2}nd'ru^{3}s. Lat., cryptandrus (from κρύπτειν, to conceal, and ἀνήρ, a male). Fr., cryptandre. Having no distinct male organs of generation (said of animals and plants). [L, 41.]

CRYPTANGEIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n^2)-ji'(ge^2-e')-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). From κρυπτός, concealed, and ἀγγεῖον, a vessel. Of Bentham and Hooker, a tribe of the Cyperaceæ, comprising Lagenocarpus, Cryptangium, Fintelmannia, Cephalocarpus, Pteroscleria, Calyptrocarya, Becquerelia, and Hoppia. [B, 42 (a, 24).]

CRYPTANTHÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)'the-(tha^3-e^2). From κρυπτός, concealed, and ἄνθος, a flower. Of Wachendorff, see CRYPTOGAMIA.

CRYPTANTHERÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-the(tha)'re(ra^3-e^2). From κρυπτός, hidden, and ἀνθηρός, blooming (see ANTHER). Fr., cryptanthères. Plants either without or with only indistinct stamens. [L, 30, 41.]

CRYPTANTHEROUS, adj. Kri^{2}pt-a^{2}n'the^{2}r u^{3}s. Lat., cryptantherus. Fr., cryptanthéré. Belonging to the Cryptantheræ.

CRYPTELLADÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)-te^{2}l'la^{2}d(la^{3}d)-e(a^3-e^2). A family of the Geophila. [L, 238.]

CRYPTERONIACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)-te^{2}r-o^{2}n-i^2-a(a^3)'se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Of De Candolle, an order consisting of the genus Crypteronia. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRYPTERONIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)-te^{2}r-o^{2}n-i(i^2)'-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., crypteroniées. 1. Of Endlicher, a family of plants related to the Salicinei, consisting of the genus Crypteronia. 2. Of Baillon, a series of the Lythrariaceæ. [B, 121, 170 (α, 24).]

CRYPTHELMINTHES (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)-the^{2}l-mi^{2}nth'ez(e^{2}s). A preferable form of Cryphthelminthes (q. v.).

CRYPTHORISMUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)-tho^{2}r-i^{2}z(i^{2}s)'-mu^{3}s(mu^{4}s). A preferable form of Cryphthorismus (q. v.).

CRYPTIDINE, n. Kri^{2}p'ti^{2}d-en. Fr., c. Ger., Kryptidin. An alkaloid, $C_{11}H_{11}N$, formed by the dry distillation of quinine, cinchonine, or their isomers, with potash, or by the dry distillation of coal. It boils at about 274° C. [B, 4, 270 (α, 24).]

CRYPTINEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)-ti^{2}n'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Rafinesque, a family of the Dicotyleæ, comprising Cryptina, Claytonia, and Leptrina. [B, 121, 170 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOBIOTIC, CRYPTOBIOTOUS, adj's. Kri^{2}p-to-bi-o^{2}t'ik, -i'o^{2}t-u^{3}s. Lat., cryptobioticus, cryptobiotus (from κρυπτός, concealed, and βιοτικός, pertaining to life). Fr., cryptobiote, cryptobiotique. Ger., kryptobiotisch. Having latent or dormant life (said of inanimate objects which, like crystals and concrements, increase in size). [A, 322; L, 41.]

CRYPTOBRACHIA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)-to(to^3)-brak-(bra^{3}ch^2)'i^2-a^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and βραχίων, the arm. An order of the Brachiopoda. [L, 234.]

CRYPTOBRANCHIATE, adj. From κρυπτός, concealed, and βράγχια, gills. Lat., cryptobranchius, cryptobranchiatus. Fr., cryptobranche. Ger., verborgenkiemig. Having the branchiæ concealed, as in the Cryptobranchia, or Cryptobranchiata (of Duméril, an order of osseous fishes; of Goldfuss, et al., a family of the Isopoda; of Gray, a subclass of the Gasteropoda). [L, 121, 180.]

CRYPTOCARPA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)-to(to^3)-ka^{3}rp'a^3. Fr., cryptocarpes. A section of the Discophora. [L, 180.]

CRYPTOCARPÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)-to(to^3)-ka^{3}rp'-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cryptocarpées. See HYDROMEDUSÆ.

CRYPTOCARPEÆ [Acharius] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)-to(to^3)-ka^{3}rp'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). From κρυπτός, concealed, and καρπός, a fruit. A division of the Florideæ, consisting of Chondrus, Polyides, Furcellaria, Iridæa, Dumontia, Helminthora, and Glœosiphonia, to which the author afterward added Hildenbrandtia. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOCARYA (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}p)-to(to^3)-ka(ka^3)'ri^2-(ru^6)-a^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and κάρυον, a nut. Fr., cryptocarye. The Australian nutmeg; of R. Brown, a genus of the Laurineæ, tribe Perceaceæ. [B, 42, 275 (α, 24).]—C. aromatica. The Mespilodaphne (Ocotea) pretiosa. [A, 301.]—C. australis. The Moreton bay-laurel. The bark contains a bitter alkaloid which, when administered to warm-blooded animals, produces death by asphyxia. [Bancroft, "Pharm. Jour. and Trans.," Oct. 1, 1887; "Therap. Gaz.," Nov., 1887, p. 747 (α, 17).]—C. densiflora [Blume]. A species the bark of which contains an aromatic bitter substance known in Java as Kitedja, employed in puerperal convulsions, in spasmodic affections of the intestines, etc. [α, 24.]—C. moschata. A species indigenous to Brazil; a large tree producing an aromatic fruit known as Brazilian nutmeg, which is, however, a poor substitute for the true nutmeg. [B, 19, 185 (α, 24).]—C. pretiosa [Martius]. The Mespilodaphne (Ocotea) pretiosa. [B, 180 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOCARYÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ka(ka^3)'-ri^2(ru^6)-a^3. Fr., cryptocaryées. Of Nees, a division of the Laureæ, comprising Endiandra, Beilschmiedia, Cecidodaphne, Cryptocarya, Agathophyllum, and Mespilodaphne. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOCARYEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ka(ka^3)-ri(ru^6)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cryptocaryées. 1. Of Nees, a tribe of the Laurinæ (of Endlicher, a tribe of the Laurineæ; of Meissner, a tribe of the Laureæ; of Reichenbach, a subdivision of the Laureæ), comprising the Cryptocaryæ and the genus Caryodaphne. [B, 170, 245 (α, 24).] 2. Of Pax, a tribe of the Lauraceæ, comprising Aydendron, Ampelodaphne, Cryptocarya, Ravensara, Cyanodaphne, and Icosandra. [B, 245.]

CRYPTOCEPHALA [Wallroth] (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-se^{2}f(ke^{2}f)'a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-a^3. Fr., cryptocéphales. See LICHENASTRA.

CRYPTOCEPHALIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-se^{2}f(ke^{2}f)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cryptocéphalidées. A family of the Eupoda.

CRYPTOCEPHALUS (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-se^{2}f-(ke^{2}f)'a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and κεφαλή, the head. Fr., cryptocéphale. As a species name, having the head concealed or inconspicuous; as a n., of G. St.-Hilaire, a genus of monsters in which the head consists of a collection of rudimentary bones, and does not project; also a genus of the Chrysomelidæ. [L, 43, 196.]

CRYPTOCERATA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-se^{2}r-(ke^{2}r)-a(a^3)'ta^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and κέρας, a horn. A division of the Heteroptera. [L, 121.]

CRYPTOCERIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-se^{2}r-(ke^{2}r)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A subfamily of the Paneridæ. [L, 251.]

CRYPTOCHÆTE (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ke'(ch^{2}a^3'e^2)-te(ta). Gen., cryptochæt'es. From κρυπτός, concealed, and χαίτη, the hair. A section of the genus Microchæte. [B, 121 (α, 24).]—C. andicola [Raimondi]. A species found on the highest parts of the Andes, in Peru, where, under the name of huamanripa, it is considered a sovereign remedy for all diseases of the air-passages. [Bignon, "Nouv. remèdes," May 1, 1886, p. 200.]

CRYPTOCHILIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ki^{2}l-(ch^{2}el)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). Of Lindley, a section of the Orchidaceæ-Vandeæ, comprising Cryptochilus, Acanthophippium, and Anthogonium. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOCLYNEI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-kli-(klu^6)'ne^2-i(e). Of Léveillé, a family of Stromatospori, consisting of the genus Vermicularia. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOCOCCEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ko^{2}k'-se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cryptococcées. 1. Of Kützing, a family of the Mycophyceæ, comprising Cryptococcus, Ulvina, and Sphærotilus. 2. Of Römer, one consisting of the single genus Cryptococcus. 3. Of Rabenhorst, a division of imperfect Algæ, consisting of Cryptococcus and Ulvina. [B, 121, 170 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOCOCCUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-kok'ku^{3}s-(ku^{4}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and κόκκος, a berry. Fr., cryptocoque. Of Kützing, a genus of cryptogams, the type of the Cryptococceæ, classed by Decaisne with the Palmelleæ and by Meneghini with the Protococcoideæ; consisting of hyaline globules arranged without order and forming a mucous mass without definite consistence; found in infusions and stale liquids. [B, 121 (α, 24).]—C. alveareus. A species supposed to form the mold that sometimes proves destructive to broods of bees. [A, 396.] Cf. BACILLUS alvei.—C. cerevisiæ, C. fermentum [Kützing]. See SACCHAROMYCES cerevisiæ.—C. glutinis. See SACCHAROMYCES glutinis.—C. guttulatus [Robin]. The Saccharomyces guttulatus. [B.]—C. natans [Kützing], C. nebulosus [Kützing]. Species doubtfully identified with the Micrococcus crepusculum. [B, 30.]—C. xanthogenicus. A micro-organism described by Domingos Freire, and considered by him to be the cause of yellow fever. [α, 27.]

CRYPTOCŒLA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}p(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-sel'(ko^2'e^{2}l)-a^3. A suborder of the Bdellomorpha. [L, 261.]

CRYPTOCORYNE (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ko^{2}r-in-(u^{6}n)'e(a), -ko^{2}r'i^{2}n(u^{6}n)-e(a). Gen., cryptocoryn'es (-cor'ynes). From κρυπτός concealed, and κορύνη, a club. Of Fischer, a genus of tropical Asiatic plants of the Aroideæ, tribe Arineæ. [B, 42 (α, 24).]—C. ovata [Schott]. The Lagenandra toxicaria. [B, 216.]

CRYPTOCORYNEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ko^{2}r-i^{2}n(u^{6}n)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cryptocorynées. A tribe of the Araceæ (of Kunth, of the Aroideæ veræ; of Spach, of the Callaceæ), including Cryptocoryne and Stylochæten. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOCOTYLEDONEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ko^{2}t-i^{2}l(u^{6}l)-e^{2}d(ad)-on(o^{2}n)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). From κρυπτός, concealed, and κοτυληδών (see COTYLEDON). Fr., cryptocotylédones. See AMPHIBRYA.

CRYPTO-CRYSTALLINE, adj. Kri^{2}pt-o-kri^{2}s'ta^{2}l-i^{2}n. From κρυπτός, concealed, and κρύσταλλος, a crystal. Occurring in crystals that can not be distinguished with the naked eye. [L, 121.]

CRYPTODACTYLA [Lankester] (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt-(kru^{6}pt) o(o^3)-da^{2}k(da^{3}k)'ti^{2}l(tu^{6}l)-a^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and δάκτυλος, a digit. A grade of the Aves. [L, 121.]

CRYPTODIBRANCHIUS (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-di(di^2)-bra^{2}n^{2}k(bra^{3}n^{2}ch^2)'i^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, δίς, double, and βράγχια, gills. Fr., cryptodibranche. Having the branchiæ concealed in the body; as a n., in the m. pl., Cryptodibranchii, an order of the Cephalopoda. [L, 41.]

CRYPTODIDYMUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-di^{2}d'i^2-(u^6)-mu^{3}s(mu^{4}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and δίδυμος, a twin-child. Fr., cryptodidyme. See FŒTUS inclusus.

CRYPTODIRA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-di(de)'ra^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and δειρή, the neck. Fr., cryptodères. A series of the Testitudinata, characterized by possessing the power of retracting the head within the carapace. [L, 121.]

CRYPTODONTIA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-do^{2}n'-shi^2(ti^2)-a^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and ὀδούς, a tooth. A family of the Anomodontia. [L, 14.]

CRYPTOGAM, n. Kri^{2}pt'o-ga^{2}m. Lat., cryptogama (from κρυπτός, concealed, and γάμος, marriage). Fr., cryptogame. Ger., Kryptogam. It., crittogamo. Sp., criptógamo. Any flowerless plant, especially one belonging to the class Cryptogamia; in the pl., c's, a large division of the vegetable kingdom, including plants, distinguished by the absence of a regular axis and of true leaves by having mostly a cellular structure only, by not developing true flowers, and by producing spores without an embryo. [B, 19, 170, 270, 291 (α, 24).]—Cellular c's. Lat., Cryptogamæ cellulares. See C.—Vascular c's. Lat., Cryptogamæ vasculares (seu vasculariæ). Ger., Gefässkryptogamen. The Pteridophyta; plants having a distinct development of ducts and other vessels which are the result of cell-fusion. In modern systems they include the Equisetineæ, Filicineæ, and Lycopodineæ. The ferns are the most numerous and important of the series. [B, 291 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOGAMA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}g'a^3-ma^3. Fr., cryptogames. 1. Of Batsch, a class of plants comprising the orders Chlorophylla, Glaucophylla, and Aphylla. 2. Of Lühmen, a division of plants comprising the classes Stachyocarpa, Maschalocarpa, Hypophyllocarpa, Rhizocarpa, Mitrocarpa, Eccalyptrocarpa, Ascidiocarpa, Asnidocarpa, Angiocarpa, Hypeidormidocarpa, Engastriocarpa, Hymenocarpa, and Eleurtherocarpa. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOGAMÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}g'a^3-me-(ma^3-e^2). Fr., cryptogamées. Ger., Kryptogamen. 1. Of De La Marck, a class comprising the families Filices, Algæ, Fungi, and Musci. 2. Of Bernhardi, a class comprising the orders Periœdolatœ, Filices, and Musci. 3. Of Willdenow, a class comprising the orders Stachyopterides, Filices, Hydropterides, Musci, Hepaticœ, Algœ, Fungi, and Gasteromyci. 4. Of Mass, a class including the divisions Salvinieœ and Equisetaceœ. [B, 170 (a, 24).]—C. cellulares. See under CRYPTOGAM.—C. vasculares (seu vasculariæ). See Vascular CRYPTOGAMS.

CRYPTOGAME (Fr.), n. Krep-to-ga^{2}m. See CRYPTOGAM.—C's aphylles. See THALLOPHYTES.

CRYPTOGAMIA (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ga^{2}m(ga^{3}m)'-i^2-a^3. Fr., cryptogamie. 1. See CRYPTOGAMY. 2. See CRYPTOGAM. 3. The 24th class of Linnæus, comprising the orders Filices, Musci, Algœ, and Fungi. 4. Of Wiggers, a class comprising the Filices, Epiphyllospermœ, Rhizospermœ, Julospermœ, Metaxillares, Musci, Coleofissœ, Sphœrospermœ, Aspidoferœ, Aspermœ, Appendix, and Fungoideœ. 5. Of Schreber, a class comprising the orders of Linnæus, and in addition Miscellaneœ and Hepaticœ. 6. Of Richard, a class comprising the Filices, Hepaticœ, Equisetaceœ, and Lycopodaceœ. [B, 170, 270 (a, 24).]

CRYPTOGAMIAN, CRYPTOGAMIC, adj's. Kri^{2}pt-o-ga^{2}m'-i^2-a^{3}n, -i^{2}k. See CRYPTOGAMOUS.

CRYPTOGAMOLOGY, n. Kri^{2}pt-o-ga^{2}m-o^{2}l'o-ji^2. From κρυπτός, concealed, γάμος, marriage, and λόγος, understanding. Fr., cryptogamologie. The botany of the cryptogams. [a, 24.]

CRYPTOGAMOUS, adj. Kri^{2}pt-o^{3}g'a^{2}m-u^{3}s. Lat., cryptogamus, cryptogamicus. Fr., cryptogamique. Ger., kryptogamisch. Of the nature of a cryptogam or belonging to the Cryptogamia.

CRYPTOGAMY, n. Kri^{2}pt-o^{2}g'a^{2}m-i^2. Lat., cryptogamia (from κρυπτός, concealed, and γάμος, marriage). Fr., cryptogamie. 1. The state of being cryptogamous. 2. Concealed fructification. [B, 116 (a, 24).]

CRYPTOGASTER (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ga^{2}st-(ga^{3}st)'u^{5}r(ar). From κρυπτός, concealed, and γαστήρ, the belly. Fr., cryptogastre. Ger., verborgenbauchig. Having the abdomen concealed; as a n., in the m. pl., Cryptogasteres, a section of the Muscidœ. [L, 41.]

CRYPTOGENUS (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}j(o^{3}g)'e^{2}n-u^{3}s-(u^{4}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and γεννᾶν, to beget. Fr., cryptogène. Parasitic from the outset within the body of another living being; as an., in the n. pl., Cryptogena, a class of the Acephala. [L, 41.]

CRYPTOGYNOUS, adj. Kri^{2}pt-o^{2}j'i^{2}n-u^{3}s. From κρυπτός, concealed, and γυνή, a woman. Fr., cryptogyne. In botany, having the female organs concealed. [A, 385.]

CRYPTO-IMPETIGINES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)''o-(o^3)-i^{2}m-pe^{2}t-i^{2}j(eg)'i^{2}n-ez(as) From κρυπτός, concealed, and impetigo (q. v.). Of Schönlein, a group of skin diseases in which only a pericarpium is present, without any "fruit-products," such as papules, vesicles, etc., or with only slight indications of them; equivalent to the maculæ and squamæ of Plenck and Willan and the acarpæ of Fuchs. [G, 10.]

CRYPTOLEPIS (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}l'e^{2}p-i^{2}s. Gen., cryptolep'idos (-is). From κρυπτός, concealed, and λεπίς, a scale. Fr., cryptolépide. Of R. Brown, a genus of the Asclepiadeœ, tribe Periploceœ. [B, 42 (a, 24).]

CRYPTOLITH, n. Kri^{2}pt'o-li^{2}th. From κρυπτός, concealed, and λίθος, a stone. Fr., cryptolithe. A calculus lodged in a crypt. [A, 301.]

CRYPTOLOGY, n. Kri^{2}pt-o^{2}l'o-ji^2. Lat., cryptologia (from κρυπτός, concealed, and λόγος, understanding). Fr., cryptologie. Ger., Lehre vom Verborgenen. The science, doctrine, or study of occult things. [A, 322.] Cf. CRYPHTHORISMUS.

CRYPTOMONADINA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-mo^{3}n-a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-i(e)'na^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and μονάς, a unit. Fr., cryptomonadins. A family of the Isomastigoda or of the Infusoria. [L, 121.]

CRYPTOMYCETES (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-mi-(mu^6)-set(kat)'ez(e^{2}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and μύκης, a fungus. Of Bonorden, an order of Fungi, including the Æcidiacei, Nemasporei, and Ascosporei. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CRYPTOMYCTERES (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-mi^{2}k(mu^{6}k)-te(ta)'rez(re^{2}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and μυκτήρ, the snout. A section of apodal fishes. [L, 281.]

CRYPTONEMATA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ne^{2}m-(nam)'a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-a^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and νῆμα, a thread. Small cellular threads produced by cryptostomata. [B, 19 (a, 24).]

CRYPTONEMEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-nem-(nam)-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). 1. Of Agardh, a tribe of the Florideœ, comprising the subtribes Gloiocladeœ, Themostomeœ, Spongiocarpeœ, Gasterocarpeœ, and Coccocarpeœ. 2. Of Decaisne, an order of the Choristosporeœ, comprising Crouania, Dudresnaya, and Gloiocladia. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CRYPTONEMIACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ne^{2}m(nam)-i^2-a(a^3)'se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). 1. Of Harvey, an order of Gongylospermeœ, consisting of the suborders Gigartineœ and Cryptonemeœ. 2. Of Agardh, a family of Algœ, divided into the tribes Nemastomeœ, Gastrocarpeœ, Grateloupieœ, and Cryptonemieœ. [B, 19, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CRYPTONEMIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^2)-ne^{2}m-(nam)-i^2'(e^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Of Agardh, a tribe of the Cryptonemiaceœ. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CRYPTONEURUS (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^2)-nu^{2}r'u^{3}s-(u^{4}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and νεῦρον, a nerve. Fr., cryptoneure. Having no visible nerves; as a n., in the f., Cryptoneura, of Agardh, a division of the genus Delesseria; as a n., in the n. pl., Cryptoneura. See ACRITA. [B, 121 (a, 24); L, 41.]

CRYPTONÉVRAXIES [Piorry] (Fr.), n. pl. Krep-to-na-vra^{2}x-e. Affections of the central nervous system due to obscure causes. [L, 82.]

CRYPTOPENTAMERUS (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-pe^{2}nt-a^3-me(ma)'ru^{3}s(ru^{4}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, πέντε, five, and μηρός, the thigh. Ger., undeutlichfünfgliedrig. Having five joints one of which is obscure; as a n., in the n. pl., Cryptopentamera, a tribe or division of the Coleoptera. [L, 81, 121, 353.]

CRYPTOPHAGIDÆ [Kirby] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o-(o^3)-fa^{2}j(fa^{3}g)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cryptophagiens. A family of the Curculionidœ or of the Coleoptera. [L, 196, 267.]

CRYPTOPHANIC ACID, n. Kri^{2}pt-o-fa^{2}n'i^{2}k. Fr., acide cryptophanique. Ger., Kryptophansäure. An acid, $H_2C_5H_7NO_5$, to which Thudichum ascribes the acidity of the urine. Some authors consider it a mixture of different bodies. [B, 8. 270 (a, 24).]

CRYPTOPHTHALMIA (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}f-tha^{2}l-(tha^{3}l)'mi^2-a^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and ὀφθαλμός. A congenital defect in which the globe of the eye is hidden by the skin, which stretches across the orbit without any aperture. In some cases so called the eyes and the orbits have been absent. [F.]

CRYPTOPHTHALMUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}f-tha^{2}l-(tha^{3}l)'mu^{3}s(mu^{4}s). An individual affected with cryptophthalmia.

CRYPTOPHYCEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-fi^{2}s-(fu^{6}k)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). From κρυπτός, concealed, and φῦκος, sea-weed. The protophytes; in Thuret's classification of Algœ, those individuals in which distinct reproductive organs are not apparent, including the Palmelleœ and the Nostochineœ. [B, 62.]

CRYPTOPHYTES, n. pl. Kri^{2}pt'o-fits. Lat., cryptophyta (from κρυπτός, concealed, and φυτόν, a plant). Fr., c. Plants having no true roots. [A, 301.] Of Link, a class of Cryptogamœ, embracing Algœ, Fungi, and Lichenes (corresponding to the Thallophyta of Endlicher). [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CRYPTOPIANINE, CRYPTOPINE, n's. Kri^{2}pt-o-pi'a^{2}n-en, kri^{2}pt'o-pen. Lat., cryptopina, cryptopia (from κρυπτός, concealed, and ὄπιον, opium). Fr., c. Ger., Cryptopin. An alkaloid, $C_{21}H_{23}NO_6$, existing in small amount in opium, first obtained from weak alcoholic washings of crude morphine. It is colorless and odorless. Its salts are bitter, but cause a subsequent sensation of coolness in the mouth. [B, 5, 18, 270 (a, 24).]—C. hydrochlorate, C. hydrochloride. A compound, $C_{21}H_{23}NO_5HCl + 6H_2O$, of c. with hydrochloric acid, forming delicate prismatic crystals. If dissolved in about 30 parts of hot water and set aside, it forms a jelly much like pure gelatin. [B, 5, 270 (a, 24).]

CRYPTOPODA [Cuvier] (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}p'-o^{2}d-a^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and πούς, the foot. Fr., cryptopodes. Ger., Schildkrabbe. 1. A tribe of the Crustacea capable of concealing the last 4 pairs of feet beneath the shell. 2. Of Meyer, a family of ophidians. 3. Of Latreille, a family of the Chelonia. [L, 30, 180.]

CRYPTOPORUS (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}p'o^{2}r-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and πόρος, a pore. Fr., cryptopore. Ger., verdecktlochig. Having obscure or concealed pores. [L, 42.]

CRYPTOPROCTIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt) o(o^3)-pro^{2}k(prok)'ti^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). From κρυπτος, concealed, and πρωκτός, the anus. A family of the Carnivora. [L, 277.]

CRYPTOPROCTINA (Lat.), CRYPTOPROCTINÆ (Lat.), n's n. pl. and f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-pro^{2}k(prok)-ti(te)'na^3, -ne-(na^3-e^2). A subfamily of the Viverridœ. [L, 121.]

CRYPTOPYIC, adj. Kri^{2}pt-o-pi'i^{2}k. Lat., cryptopyicus (from κρυπτός, hidden, and πύον, pus). Fr., cryptopyique. Due to hidden suppuration (said of a state of disease caused or kept up by an occult abscess). [L, 41, 43.]

CRYPTORCHID, n. Kri^{2}pt-o^{2}rk'i^{2}d. See CRYPTORCHIS.

CRYPTORCHIDISM, n. Kri^{2}pt-o^{2}rk'i^{2}d-i^{2}zm. Lat., cryptorchidismus, cryptorchidia. Fr., cryptorchidie. Ger., Kryptorchidismus. The state of being a cryptorchis.

CRYPTORCHIS (Lat.), n. m. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}rk(o^{2}rch^2)'i^{2}s. Gen., cryptorch'eos (-is). From κρυπτός, concealed, and ὄρχις, the testicle. Fr., cryptorchide. A male whose testicles are concealed (retained within the abdomen). The condition is normal in some of the lower animals. [A, 301, 322.]

CRYPTORCHISMUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}rk(o^{2}rch^2)-i^{2}z(i^{2}s)'mu^{3}s(mu^{4}s). See CRYPTORCHIDISM.

CRYPTORISMUS (Lat.), n. m Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}r-i^{2}z(i^{2}s)'mu^{3}s-(mu^{4}s). See CRYPHTHORISMUS.

CRYPTORRHINUS (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}r-ri(re)'nu^{3}s-(nu^{4}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and ῥίς, the nose. Fr., cryptorrhinien. Ger., verdecktnasig. Having the nostrils hardly perceptible; as a n., in the m. pl., Cryptorrhini, a family of the Natatores. [L, 180.]

CRYPTORRHYNCHIDES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o^{2}r-ri^{2}n^{2}k(ru^{6}n^{2}ch^2)'i^{2}d-ez(e^{2}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and ῥύγχος, the snout. Fr., cryptorrhynques, c. A family (or subfamily) of the Curculionidœ. [L, 41, 262.]

CRYPTOS (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)'o^{2}s. Gr., κρυπτός. Occult, latent, concealed. [A, 325.]

CRYPTOSIPHONIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-si^{2}f-o^{2}n(on)-i(i^2)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). From κρυπτός, concealed, and σίφων, a tube. Of Agardh, a family of the Dumontiaceœ. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CRYPTOSPERMEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-spu^{6}rm(spe^{2}rm)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). From κρυπτός, concealed, and σπέρμα, a seed. Fr., cryptospermées. Of Kützing, an order of Gymnospermeœ, comprising the families Lemanieœ, Chœtophorœ, Batrachospermeœ, Liagoreœ, and Mesoglœaceœ. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CRYPTOSPOREÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-spor-(spo^{2}r)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Trevisan, a group of Algœ. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CRYPTOSTEGIA (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-stej(ste^{2}g)′-i^2-a^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and στέγη, a chamber. A genus of asclepiadaceous shrubs. The species yield a milky juice, which, when exposed to the sun, is changed into caoutchouc. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—C. grandiflora [R. Brown]. The India-rubber vine; a species common on the coast of India, yielding a caoutchouc called Palay rubber. [B, 77, 172 (α, 24).]—C. madagascariensis. The Madagascar caoutchouc-plant. [B, 77, 275 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOSTEGIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-stej(ste^{2}g)′e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Reichenbach, a subdivision of the Periploceæ, consisting of the genus Cryptostegia. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOSTEMMEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ste^{2}m′me^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Reichenbach, a subdivision of the Ursinieæ, comprising Arctotheca, Cryptostemma, and Microstephium. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOSTEMMIDES [Westwood] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt-(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ste^{2}m′mi^{2}d-ez(e^{2}s). A family of the Phalangidea. [L, 121.]

CRYPTOSTEMONES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-ste^{2}m(stam)′o^{2}n-ez(e^{2}s). Of Gleditsch, a division of plants comprising the classes Filicinæ, Muscosæ, Algaceæ, and Fungosæ. [B, 270 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOSTEMONOUS, adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o-ste^{2}m′o^{2}n-u^{3}s. From κρυπτός, concealed, and στήμων, a filament. Fr., cryptostémone. Having the stamens concealed. [Gleditsch and Mönch (A, 301.)]

CRYPTOSTOMATA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-sto^{2}m′-a^3 ta^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, and στόμα, the mouth. Fr., cryptostomes. Little circular nuclei found on the surface of some algals. [B, 19, 121 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOTETRAMERA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-te^{2}t-ra^{2}m(ra^{3}m)′e^{2}r-a^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, τέσσαρες, four, and μέρος, a part. See TETRAMERA.

CRYPTOTHECII (Lat.), n. m. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-thes-(thak)′i^2-i(e). From κρυπτός, concealed, and θήκη, a receptacle. A group of mosses, including Spiridens. [B, 19, 121 (α, 24).]

CRYPTOTRIMERA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-tri^{2}m(trem)′e^{2}r-a^3. From κρυπτός, concealed, τρεῖς, three, and μέρος, a part. See TRIMERA.

CRYPTOUS, adj. Kri^{2}pt′u^{3}s. Gr., κρυπτός. Lat., cryptos, cryptus. Fr., caché. Ger., verborgen. Concealed. [A, 322.]

CRYPTOZOUS (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-o(o^3)-zo′u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κρυπτός, concealed, and ζωή, life. Fr., cryptozoé. Apparently dead, possessed of latent life. [A, 322.]

CRYPTOZYGOUS, adj. Kri^{2}pt-o-zig′u^{3}s. From κρυπτός, concealed, and ζυγόν, an arch. Fr., cryptozyge. Ger., cryptozyg. Having the dental arches not sufficiently prominent to be visible when the skull, resting on a horizontal plane, is viewed from above. [A, 301.]

CRYPTURIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-u^2(u)′ri^{2}d-e-(a^2-e^2). From κρυπτός, concealed, and οὐρά, the tail. Fr., crypturides. A family of the Gallinacea. [L.]

CRYPTURINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-u^2(u)-ri(re)′ne-(na^3-e^2). A subfamily of the Tetraonidæ. [L.]

CRYPTURUS (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}pt(kru^{6}pt)-u^2(u)′ru^{3}s(ru^{4}s). Fr., crypturé. Ger., verdecktschwanzig. Having an inconspicuous tail; as a n., in the m. pl., Crypturi, of Sclater, a family of the Carinatæ. [L, 121.]

CRYSORCHIS (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}s(kru^{6}s)-o^{2}rk(o^{2}rch^2)′i^{2}s(es). Gr., κρυσόρχεις (from κρύπτειν, to conceal, and ὄρχις, the testicle). Retraction of one or both of the testicles. [A, 325; L, 94.]

CRYSTAL, n. Kri^{2}s′ta^{2}l. Lat., crystallum. Gr., κρύσταλλος. Fr., cristal. Ger., Krystal. It., cristallo. Sp., cristal. A substance occurring in a definite geometrical form which is essentially constant for that substance, and which the latter always assumes when the conditions for its production are present. [B.]—Acicular c. A needle-shaped c. [α, 24.]—Arborescent c's. C's arranged in slender, spreading branches, somewhat plant-like, as in the frost on windows, and in the delineations on rocks, called dendrites. [α, 24.]—Asthma c's. See under ASTHMA.—Blood-c's. Blood-red, transparent, doubly refractive, microscopic c's, usually rhomboidal, consisting of oxyhæmoglobin. [α, 27.]—Complex c. A c. bounded by dissimilar faces. [B, 3 (α, 21).]—C'feuchtigkeit (Ger.). The vitreous body of the eye. [L, 80.]—C'häutchen, C'-lenhaut (Ger.). The capsule of the crystalline lens. [L, 80.]—C'llinse (Ger.). See Crystalline LENS.—C. mineral. Fr., c. minéral. Potassium nitrate (see SAL prunelle). [B, 5 (α, 24).]—C's of tartar. Lat., crystalli tartari. Fr., crystaux de tartre. C's of potassium bitartrate. [B, 5, 270 (α, 24).]—C's of Venus. Lat., crystalli Veneris. Fr., cristaux de Vénus. C's of copper sulphate. [B, 5, 180 (α, 24).]—Ear-c. See OTOLITH.—Hæmin c's. See Teichmann's c's.—Lead-chamber c's. C's of the composition $HSO_3(NO_2)$, formed in the lead chambers in which sulphuric acid is manufactured. [B, 5.]—Simple c. A c. the faces of which are similar and occupy similar relative positions. [α, 27.]—Teichmann's c's. Narrow rhombic plates of a nut-brown color, which consist of hæmatin hydrochloride. [L, 351.]

CRYSTALBAN, n. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l′ba^{2}n. According to Payer, a resin that is a constituent of gutta-percha. [B, 270 (α, 24).]

CRYSTALHYDRATION, n. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l-hid-ra′shu^{3}n. The absorption of a definite number of molecules of water by salts on crystallizing. [α, 27.]

CRYSTALLI (Lat.), n. m., pl. of crystallus. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l-(a^{3}l)′li(le). 1. Crystals (see CRYSTALLUS). 2. An old name for the pocks of varicella. [G.]

CRYSTALLIFEROUS, CRYSTALLIGEROUS, adj's. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l-i^{2}f′e^{2}r-u^{3}s, -i^{2}j′e^{2}r-u^{3}s. From crystallum, a crystal, and ferre, or gerere, to bear. Fr., cristallifère. Containing crystals. [L, 121.]

CRYSTALLINA (Lat.), n., f. of adj. crystallinus (tunica understood). Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)′li^{2}n-a^3. The arachnoid membrane. [A, 322.]

CRYSTALLINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)′li^{2}n-e-(a^3-e^2). See CRYSTALLI (2d def.).

CRYSTALLINE, n. Kri^{2}st′a^{2}l-en. 1. Of Unverdorben (1826), the substance now called aniline. 2. The Mesembryanthemum crystallinum. [B, 77, 121 (α, 24).] 3. The c. lens.

CRYSTALLINE, adj. Kri^{2}st′a^{2}l-i^{2}n. Gr., κρυσταλλοειδής. Lat., crystallinus. Fr., cristallin. Ger., krystallisch, krystallinisch. It., cristallino. Sp., cristalino. Resembling or belonging to a crystal; occurring under the form of crystals. [B, 81.]

CRYSTALLINOCAPSULITIS (Lat.), n. f. From crystallinum, the crystalline lens, capsula, a capsule, and *-itis. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)′′li^{2}n-o(o^3)-ka^{2}p(ka^{3}p)-su^{2}l(su^{4}l)-i(e)′ti^{2}s. Gen., crystallinocapsulit′idos (-is). For deriv., see CRYSTALLINE, CAPSULE, and *-itis. See PHAKITIS.—C. anterior. Inflammation of the anterior capsule of the crystalline lens. It is extremely doubtful if this ever occurs except as a consequence of perforating wound of the eyeball and capsule, with or without accompanying iritis. [F.]

CRYSTALLINOCELE (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-li^{2}n-o(o^3)-se(ka)′le(la); in Eng., kri^{2}st-a^{2}l-i^{2}n′o-sel. From κρυστάλλινος, the crystalline lens, and κήλη, a tumor. Hernia of the crystalline lens. [L, 290.]

CRYSTALLION (Lat.), n. n. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)′li^2-o^{2}n. Gr., κρυστάλλιον. Of Dioscorides, the Plantago psyllium. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CRYSTALLISATIO (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-li^{2}z(li^{2}s)-a(a^3)′shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., crystallisatio′nis. See CRYSTALLIZATION.

CRYSTALLISCH (Ger.), adj. Kri^{2}st-a^{3}l′li^{2}sh. See CRYSTALLINE (adj.).

CRYSTALLISIRUNG (Ger.), n. Kri^{2}st-a^{3}l-lez-er′un^{2}g. See CRYSTALLIZATION.

CRYSTALLITIS (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-li(le)′ti^{2}s. Gen., crystallit′idos (-is). From κρύσταλλος, the crystalline lens (see also *-itis). Inflammation of the crystalline lens, or more properly of its capsule. [F.] See PHAKITIS.

CRYSTALLIZATION, n. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l-i^{2}z-a′shu^{3}n. Lat., crystallisatio. Fr., cristallisation, crystallisation. Ger., Crystallisirung, Krystallbildung, Krystallisation, Kristallisirung. It., cristallizzazione. Sp., cristalización. 1. The act of assuming the crystalline form. 2. The body thus formed. 3. The process of rendering crystalline. [B, 116 (α, 24).]—Alternate c. The successive c. of several different salts in solution. [α, 27.]

CRYSTALLOCATAPIESIS (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l-(a^{3}l)′′lo(lo^3)-ka^{2}t(ka^{3}t)-a^3-pi(pi^2)′e^{2}s-i^{2}s. Gen., crystallocatapies′eos (-pi′esis). From κρύσταλλος, the crystalline lens, and καταπίεσις, a keeping down. See CRYSTALLOCATATHESIS.

CRYSTALLOCATARACTA (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l-(a^{3}l)′′lo(lo^3)-ka^{2}t(ka^{3}t)-a^3-ra^{2}k(ra^{3}k)′ta^3. From κρύσταλλος, the crystalline lens, and καταῤῥάκτης, a cataract. Fr., cristallocataracte. A lenticular cataract. [A, 322.]

CRYSTALLOCATATHESIS (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l-(a^{3}l)′′lo(lo^3)-ka^{2}t(ka^{3}t)-a^{2}th(a^{3}th)′e^{2}s-i^{2}s. Gen., crystallocatathes′eos (-ath′esis). From κρύσταλλος, the crystalline lens, and κατάθεσις, a laying down. Fr., cristallocatathèse. Reclination (couching) of the crystalline lens. [A, 322.]

CRYSTALLOCLAST, n. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l′o-kla^{2}st. From κρύσταλλος, a crystal, and κλᾶν, to break. Fr., brisecristal. One who studies crystals by means of cleavage. [L, 121.]

CRYSTALLODES (Lat.), adj. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-lod′ez(as). Gr., κρυσταλλώδης. See CRYSTALLOID.

CRYSTALLOGENOUS, adj. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l-o^{2}j′e^{2}n-u^{3}s. From κρύσταλλος, a crystal, and γεννᾶν, to produce. Producing or capable of producing crystals. [α, 24.]

CRYSTALLOGENY, n. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l-o^{2}j′e^{2}n-i^2. Lat., crystallogenesis, crystallogenia (from κρύσταλλος, a crystal, and γεννᾶν, to engender). Fr., cristallogenie. Ger., Krystallbildung (1st def.). 1. See CRYSTALLIZATION (1st def.). 2. See CRYSTALLOGRAPHY.

CRYSTALLOGRAPHY, n. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l-o^{2}g′ra^{2}f-i^2. Lat., crystallographia (from κρύσταλλος, a crystal, and γράφειν, to write). Fr., cristallographie. Ger., Krystallographie. The science of the formation and forms of crystals.

CRYSTALLOID, adj. Kri^{2}st′a^{2}l-oid. Gr., κρυσταλλοειδής (from κρύσταλλος, a crystal, and εἶδος, resemblance). Lat., crystallodes, crystalloides, crystalloïdens. Fr., cristalloïde. Ger., krystallähnlich. It., cristalloide. Sp., cristaloídeo. Resembling a crystal in structure or appearance; as a n., of Graham, one of a class of substances distinguished by the rapidity with which their solutions diffuse through a neighboring liquid. They are usually delivered from the mineral kingdom, and are of simple chemical constitution, but there are also crystal-like protein bodies of this class found in the cells of various plants (sometimes associated with inorganic matter). They are so called because their typical representatives are crystallizable bodies or are of a crystalline form. [B, 77, 121, 229, 291 (α, 24).] See COLLOIDS.

CRYSTALLOIDITIS (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-lo(lo^3)-i^{2}d(ed)-i(e)′ti^{2}s. Gen., crystalloidit′idos (-is). See CRYSTALLITIS.

CRYSTALLOMAGNETIC, adj. Kri^{2}st′′a^{2}l-o-ma^{2}g-ne^{2}t′i^{2}k. Relating to or connected with crystallo-magnetism. [L, 121.]

CRYSTALLO-MAGNETISM, n. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l-o-ma^{2}g′ne^{2}t-i^{2}zm. The property by virtue of which certain crystals, when suspended horizontally, point to the north, the line of direction being that of the optical axis of the crystal. [L, 121.]

CRYSTALLOMETRY, n. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l-o^{2}m'e^{2}t-ri^2. Lat., crystallometria (from κρύσταλλος, a crystal, and μέτρον, a measure). Fr., cristallométrie. Ger., Krystallometrie, Krystallmesskunst. The science of the measurement of the angles of crystals. [A, 322.]

CRYSTALLONOMIA (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-lo-(lo^3)-nom(no^{2}m)'i^2-a^3. From κρύσταλλος, a crystal, and νόμος, a law. See CRYSTALLOGRAPHY.

CRYSTALLOPARATOPIA (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l-(a^{3}l)-lo(lo^3)-pa^{2}r(pa^{3}r)-a^3-top(to^{2}p)'i^2-a^3. From κρύσταλλος, the crystalline lens, παρά, aside, and τόπος, a place. Displacement of the crystalline lens. [A, 322.]

CRYSTALLOPHOROUS, adj. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l-o^{2}f'o^{2}r-u^{3}s. From κρύσταλλος, a crystal, and φορεῖν, to bear. See CRYSTALLIFEROUS.

CRYSTALLOTECHNY, n. Kri^{2}st-a^{2}l'o-te^{2}k-ni^2. From κρύσταλλος, a crystal, and τεχνή, art. The art or process of preparing crystals. [a, 27.]

CRYSTALLUM (Lat.), n. n. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)'lu^{3}m(lu^{4}m). See CRYSTAL.—C. Dianæ. Nitrate of silver prepared by precipitation; Sala's magisterium argenti. [B, 70.]—C. minerale. See CRYSTAL mineral.

CRYSTALLURIDROSIS (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-u^2-(u)-ri^{2}d-ros'i^{2}s. Gen., crystaluridros'eos (-is). From κρύσταλλος, a crystal, οὖρον, urine, and ἱδρώς, sweat. Fr., cristalluridrose. Ger., Harnschwitzen mit Krystalbildung auf der Haut. A condition in which urinary elements are excreted in the sweat, with the formation of crystals on the skin. [A, 322.]

CRYSTALLUS (Lat.), n. m. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)'lu^{3}s(lu^{4}s). Gr., κρύσταλλος. See CRYSTAL.—Crystalli argenti. Crystals of silver nitrate. [L, 105.]—Crystalli cordis. See CARDIOCRYSTALLI.—Crystalli cupri. Crystals of copper sulphate. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—Crystalli Dianæ, Crystalli lunæ. Crystals of silver nitrate. [B; L, 135.]—C. mineralis. See CRYSTAL mineral.—Crystalli sodæ. Crystals of sodium carbonate. [L, 135.]—Crystalli tartari. Crystals of potassium bitartrate. [B, 270 (a, 24).]—Crystalli Veneris. Crystals of copper sulphate. [B, 180 (a, 24).]

CRYSTALS, n. Kri^{2}st'a^{2}lz. The fruit of Prunus insititia. [A, 505.]

CRYSTAL SPRING, n. Kri^{2}st'a^{2}l. One of the springs at Saratoga, New York. [A, 363.]

CRYSTALWORTS, n. pl. Kri^{2}st'a^{2}l-wu^{6}rts. The Ricciaceæ. [B, 19 (a, 24).]

CRYSTANE (Lat.), n. f. Kri^{2}st(kru^{6}st)'a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-e(a). Gen., cryst'anes. Of Dioscorides, the Chelidonium majus. [B, 88, 121 (a, 24).]

CSICORGOFA [Malay], n. The Gratiola officinalis. [B, 88; L, 105.]

CTEDON (Lat.), n. f. Te(kta)'do^{2}n(don). Gen., cted'onos (-is). Gr., κτηδών. A fibre; in the pl., ctedones, the fibrous layers of wood. [A, 325, 387; L, 94.]

CTEIS (Lat.), n. m. Tis(kte^2'i^{2}s). Gen., cten'os (-is). Gr., κτείς. 1. A comb. 2. A row of incisor teeth. 3. The pubic hair. 4. The ulnar border of the hand. [A, 325, 387.]

CTENES (Lat.), n., pl. of cteis (q. v.). Ten(kte^{2}n)'ez(e^{2}s). The incisors. [L.]

CTENIDIOBRANCHIA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-i^{2}d-i^2 o-(o^3)-bra^{2}n^{2}k(bra^{3}n^{2}ch^2)'i^2-a^3. From κτενίδιον, a little comb, and βράγχια, gills. A suborder of the Palliata.

CTENIDIUM (Lat.), n. n. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-i^{2}d'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Gr., κτενίδιον (dim. of κτείς, a comb). A gill-comb; in the Mollusca, a process of the body wall upon each side, having a number of comb-like processes, usually respiratory in function. [L, 121.]

CTENIUM (Lat.), n. n. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-i^2'u^{3}m(u^{4}m). From κτενίον, a small comb, from the appearance of the spikes. A genus of gramineous plants. [B, 19, 245.]—C. americanum, C. aromaticum. Toothache-grass, a pungent-tasting species growing in the southern United States. [B, 19, 34.]

CTENOBRANCHIA (Lat.), CTENOBRANCHIATA [Gray] (Lat.), n's n. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-o(o^3)-bra^{2}n^{2}k(bra^{3}n^{2}ch^2)'i^2-a, -bra^{2}n^{2}k-(bra^{3}n^{2}ch^2)-i^2-a(a^3)'ta^3. Fr., cténobranches. An order of the Gasteropoda, having pectinated branchiæ. [L, 180.]

CTENOCERA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-o^{2}s(o^{2}k)'e^{2}r-a^3. From κτείς, a comb, and κέρας, a horn. Fr., cténocères. See ALCYONARIA.

CTENOCYST (Lat.), n. Te^{2}n'o-si^{2}st. From κτείς, a comb, and κύστις, a bladder. Fr., cténocyste. A spherical vesicle lined with ciliated epithelium and filled with a clear fluid containing mineral particles, which is situated within the apical pole of the Ctenophora, and is believed to possess auditory functions. [L, 147.]

CTENODACTYLINA (Lat.), CTENODACTYLINÆ (Lat.), n's n. pl. and f. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-o(o^3)-da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ti^{2}l(tu^{6}l)-i(e)'na^3, -ne(na^3-e^2). From κτείς, a comb, and δάκτυλος, a digit. A subfamily of the Octodontidæ. [L, 121.]

CTENODODIPTERIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-od-o-(o^2)-di^{2}p-te^{2}r'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). From κτείς, a comb, εἶδος, resemblance, and δίπτερος, double-winged. A family of the Ganoidei. [L, 207.]

CTENODONT, adj. Te^{2}n'o-do^{2}nt. From κτείς, a comb, and ὀδούς, a tooth. Fr., cténodonte. Having comb-like teeth. [L, 41, 42.]

CTENODONTEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-o(o^3)-do^{2}nt'e^2-e-(a^3-e^2). Fr., cténodontées. Of Montagne, a tribe of the Florideæ, consisting of the genus Ctenodus. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CTENODONTIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-o(o^3)-do^{2}nt'-i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). Of Lindley, a tribe of the Cryptonemeæ, consisting of the genus Ctenodus. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CTENOID, adj. Te^{2}n'oid. From κτείς, a comb, and εἶδος, resemblance. Comb-like, pectinate (said of the free border of scales and of teeth). [L, 14.]

CTENOIDEI [Agassiz] (Lat.), n. m. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-o(o^3)-i^{2}d-(ed)'e^2-i(e). An order of fishes having ctenoid scales. [L, 147.]

CTENOIDES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-o(o^3)-i(e)'dez(de^{2}s). Fr., cténoïdes. See PLEURONECTIDÆ.

CTENOLABRIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-o(o^3)-la^{2}b-(la^{3}b)'ri^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A family of the Pharyngognathi. [L, 14.]

CTENOPHOR, n. Te^{2}n'o-for. An individual of the Ctenophora. [L.]

CTENOPHORA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-o^{2}f'o^{2}r-a^3. From κτείς, a comb, and φορεῖν, to bear. Fr., cténophores. Ger., Kammquallen. 1. Of Lankester, a class of the Nematophora. 2. Of Hæckel, a class of the Cnidariæ. 3. Of von Siebold and Stannius, an order of the Acalephæ. [L, 121, 228, 231.]

CTENOPHORAL, adj. Te^{2}n-o^{2}f'o^{2}r-a^{2}l. Pertaining to or resembling a ctenophore, belonging to the Ctenophora. [L, 147.]

CTENOPHORAN, n. Te^{2}n-o^{2}f'o^{2}r-a^{2}n. An individual of the Ctenophora. [B, 100.]

CTENOPHORE, n. Te^{2}n'o-for. In the Ctenophora, one of the longitudinal bands of transverse rows of cilia, which serve as locomotive organs. [L, 11, 147.]

CTENOPHORIC, adj. Te^{2}n-o-fo^{2}r'i^{2}k. Pertaining to or resembling the Ctenophora or a ctenophore. [L.]

CTENOPHORIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-o(o^3)-fo^{2}r'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). See CTENOPHORA.

CTÉNOPTÈRE (Fr.), adj. Kta-no^{3}p-tar. From κτείς, a comb, and πτερόν, a wing. Having the wings divided like a comb. [L, 41.]

CTENOSTOMA (Lat.), CTENOSTOMATA (Lat.), n's n. and pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-o^{2}st'o^{2}m-a^3, -o^{2}st-o^{2}m'a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-a^3. From κτείς, a comb, and στόμα, an aperture. A suborder of marine Gymnolæmata. [L, 147.]

CTENUCHIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Te^{2}n(kte^{2}n)-u^{2}k(uch^2)'i^{2}d-e-(a^3-e^2). A family of the Lepidoptera heterocera. [L, 248.]

CUA (Malay), n. The Amomum zedoaria. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CUAJA-LECHE (Sp.), n. Kwa^3''ha^3-la'cha. The Galium verum. [B.]

CUAJILOTE [Mex. Ph.] (Sp.), n. Kwa^3-he-lo'ta. The Parmentiera edulis. [A, 447.]

CUAJIOTE [Mex. Ph.] (Sp.), n. Kwa^3-he-o-ta. The Rhus perniciosa. [A, 447.]

CUAMARA, n. In Guiana, the Coumarouna odorata. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CUAPINOLE (Mex.), n. The resin of Hymenæa courbaril. [A, 447.]

CUARUBATINGA, n. In Brazil, the genus Centrolobium. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CUASIA [Mex. Ph.] (Sp.), n. Kwa^3'se-a^3. See QUASSIA.—C. amarga de Surinam [Sp. Ph.]. See QUASSIA amara.—C. de Jamaica [Mex. Ph.]. Quassia derived from the Picræna (Simaruba) excelsa. [A, 447.]

CUASTECOMATE (Sp.), n. Kwa^{3}s-ta-ko-ma^3'ta. See CUAUTECOMATE.

CUATE (Sp.), n. Kwa^3'ta. The Varennea polystachya. [A, 447.]

CUAUCHALALÁ [Mex. Ph.], CUAUCHALALATE, n's. The Rajania subsamarata. [A, 447.]

CUAUTECOMATE [Mex. Ph.] (Sp.), n. Kwa^3-u-ta-ko-ma^3'ta. The Crescentia alata. [A, 447.]

CUBAB CHINIE (Hind.), n. The Piper cubeba. [B, 88.]

CUBALSANT, n. The Actinia equina. [B, 88.]

CUBARIS (Lat.), n. f. Ku^2(ku^4)'ba^{2}r(ba^{3}r)-i^{2}s. Gr., κυβαρίς. An old name for a kind of insect. [A, 325.]

CUBATIO (Lat.), n. f. Ku^2(ku^4)-ba(ba^3)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., cubation'is. From cubare, to lie down. Fr., couchée. Ger., Liegen. 1. See DECUBITUS. 2. A generic term for anteversion and retroversion of the uterus. [A, 59.]

CUBEB, n. Ku^2'be^{2}b. Ar., kab'abah. Lat., cubeba [U. S. Ph., Br. Ph.], cubebæ [Ger. Ph.]. Fr., cubèbe [Fr. Cod.]. Ger., Kubebe. It., cubebe. Sp., cubeba. The unripe fruit of Cubeba officinalis [Miquel] (Piper cubeba [Linnæus]), consisting, as found in commerce, of the dried globose fruits of the plant, of about the size of a small pea, of a grayish-brown color, and covered with an ashy-gray bloom. They are strongly wrinkled by the shrinking of the fleshy pericarp, and are furnished with a short stalk. The shell is hard and smooth, and contains a single seed with a whitish, oily albumen. C's have a strong taste with some bitterness and acridity, and a highly aromatic odor, and chemically consist chiefly of a volatile oil, cubebin, and cubebic acid (q. v.). Gum, a fatty oil, and malates of magnesium and calcium are also said to have been found in them. C's are generally stimulant, and are much employed in gonorrhœa. They have been given also in leucorrhœa, cystorrhœa, the urethritis of women and female children, abscess of the prostate gland, hæmorrhoids, chronic bronchial inflammation and diphtheritic affections of the throat. [B, 5. 18 (a, 24).]—African c's. 1. Ashantee pepper, Guinea pepper, African black pepper; the fruit of Piper Afzelii. They are smaller than the official c's, and have a taste more like that of black pepper (which they resemble in containing piperine and not cubebin). 2. The fruit of an African plant of the Xanthoxylaceæ; said to be simply aromatic and stimulant, without any of the virtues of the genuine c's. [B, 5 (α, 24).]—Camphor of c's, C.-camphor. A hydrate, $C_{15}H_{24} + H_2O = C_{15}H_{26}O$, of that fraction of the oil of c's which boils at about 262° C. It crystallizes in inodorous octahedra, which melt at about 60° C. [B, 5 (α, 24).]—Essential oil of c's. See Oil of c.—False c's. The fruits of Piper crassipes, Piper ribesioides, Daphnidium (Lindera) cubeba, etc. They all differ from genuine c's in not giving (in powder on a porcelain slab), with concentrated sulphuric acid, a deep crimson with a distinct carmine tint, and in giving (in decoction) with iodine a dull purple tint instead of a pure blue. [B, 5, 18 (α, 24).] See also African c's.—Fluid extract of c. See Extractum CUBEBÆ fluidum.—Oil of c. (or c's). Lat., oleum cubebæ [U. S. Ph., Br. Ph.], oleum cubebarum. Fr., huile volatile de cubèbes, essence de cubèbes. Ger., Kubebenöl. It., olio di cubebe. Sp., aceite de cubebas. The oil obtained from c's by grinding and distillation. When recently distilled, it has the odor and aromatic properties of c's, and a warm camphoraceous taste; it is lighter than water and contains a small amount of a hydrocarbon, $C_{10}H_{16}$, and two oils of the formula $C_{15}H_{24}$, one of which unites with hydrochloric acid. [B, 5 (α, 24).]—Oleoresin of c. See Oleoresina CUBEBÆ.—Tincture of c. See Tinctura CUBEBÆ.—Troches of c. See Trochisci CUBEBÆ.

CUBEBA (Lat.), n. f. Ku^{2}(ku)-be(ba)'ba^{3}. 1. Of the U. S. Ph. and Br. Ph., cubeb. 2. Of Miquel, a genus of piperaceous shrubs, referred by Bentham and Hooker to the genus Piper. [B, 5, 18, 42, 180 (α, 24).]—Ætheroleum cubebæ (seu cubebarum). CUP, v. tr. Ku³p. Lat., cucurbitulas imponere. Fr., ventouser. Ger., schröpfen. It., ventosare. Sp., pegar ventosas. To apply cupping-glasses.—Dry-c. To apply dry c's to.—Wet-c. To apply wet c's to. [B.]

CUP, n. Ku³p. A.-S., cupp. Gr., ποτήριον (1st def.). Lat., poculum (1st def.), calix (1st def.), cucurbitula (2d def.). Fr., calice (1st def.), ventouse (2d def.). Ger., Becher (1st def.), Kelch (1st def.), Schröpfkopf (2d def.). 1. A small drinking-vessel; the contents of such a vessel; any structure (e. g., the calyx of a flower) shaped like a drinking-vessel. 2. A similar vessel (usually of glass) which, having had the air contained in it rarefied by means of heat, or by the action of a pump, or the recoil of an elastic cap fitted to it, is applied to the skin for the purpose of drawing blood to that part of the skin or, when associated with the use of the scarificator, to abstract blood from the part by suction.—Antimonial c's. See CALICES vomitorii (under CALIX).—Bitter c. A c. made of quassia-wood; used for imparting a bitter taste and tonic properties to water. [L, 65, 120.]—Chinese c. A cup of red arsenic. Wine is left in it all night, and drank in the morning as a purge. [L, 164 (a, 21).]—C.-plant. The Silphium perfoliatum. [B, 19 (a, 24).]—Dry c. A c. (2d def.) for drawing the blood to the surface without abstracting it from the bud. [B.]—Emetic c's. See CA-

LICES vomitorii (under CALIX).—Favus c. 1. A depression in a favus crust circumscribing a hair. 2. A depression in the scalp or skin left after a favus crust has been removed. [a, 27.]—Germ c. See GASTRULA.—Glaucomatous c. The so-called "pressure excavation," which refers to the condition of the optic disc in glaucoma. The cupping extends quite across the optic disc to the edge, the lamina cribrosa being stretched and pushed backward. The edge is always abrupt and precipitous, and often overhangs the c. which has undermined the margin of the disc. This cupping is done by a sudden bending of the vessels just within the border of the disc, where they look darker because they are foreshortened. If the c. is deep they may disappear beneath its edge, and not reappear until they reach the bottom of the c. [F.]—Montgomery's c's. Small dilatations, filled with a milky fluid, of the canals of the decidua, into which the uterine gland-tubes penetrate. [A, 80.]—Ocular c., Optic c. Ger., secundäre Augenblase, Augenblasengrube. Of Foster and Balfour, the secondary optic vesicle of the embryo. [Kölliker (H).]—Optic c's. In comparative anatomy, c.-shaped or bell-shaped depressions lined with epithelial cells, usually also provided with pigment cells and connected with a nervous filament; they subserve vision. [L, 121.]—Wet c. A c. for drawing the blood to the surface and then removing it through incisions made by a scarificator. [B.]

CUPRESS, n. Ku^2′pre^{2}s. See CYPRESS.—C. powder. The pulverized rhizome of Arisæma triphyllum. [B, 270 (a, 24).]

CUPRESSACEÆ [Walers] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku^2(ku)-pre^{2}s-sa-(sa^3)′se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). An order of the Monochlamydeæ, comprising the genera of Endlicher's Cupressineæ. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CUPRESSEÆ (Lat.), n. f. Ku^2(ku)-pre^{2}s′se^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Lindley, a suborder of the Pinaceæ, comprising Juniperus, Thuiæcarpus, Thuja, Cryptomeria, Thujopsis, Cupressus, Retinospora, Callitris, Carolinia, Taxodium, and Chamæpeuce. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CUPRESSIDEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku^2(ku)-pre^{2}s-si^{2}d′e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Gray, a family of the Monochlamydeæ, consisting of the genus Juniperus. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CUPRESSINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku^2(ku)-pre^{2}s-si(se)′ne(na^3-e^2). 1. Of Richard, a section (of Agardh, a tribe) of the Coniferæ, comprising Juniperus, Thuja, Cupressus, and Taxodium. 2. Of Reichenbach, a division of the Strobilaceæ, comprising Juniperus, Thuja, Callitris, Cupressus, and Schubertea. [B, 170 (a, 24).] 3. Of Eichler, a subtribe of the Cupressineæ, comprising Cupressus and Chamæcyparis. [B, 245.]

CUPRESSINEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku^2(ku)-pre^{2}s-si^{2}n′e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cupressinées. 1. Of A. Richard, a division of the Coniferæ, comprising Juniperus, Thuja, Callitris, Cupressus, and Taxodium, to which Reichenbach added Carolinia and Cryptomeria. 2. Of Koch, an order of the Coniferæ, consisting of Juniperus and Cupressus. 3. Of Endlicher, a division comprising Juniperus, Thuja, Cryptomeria, Thujopsis, and Chamæpeuce. 4. Of Wood, a suborder of the Coniferæ, comprising Thuja, Cupressus, Taxodium, and Juniperus. 5. Of Bentham and Hooker and of Eichler, a tribe of the Coniferæ, including Callitris, Actinostrobus, Fitzroya, Libocedrus, Thuja, Cupressus, and Juniperus. [B, 34, 42, 121, 170, 291 (a, 24).] By Eichler it is divided into the subtribes Thujopsidinæ, Actinostrobinæ, Cupressinæ, and Juniperinæ. [B, 245.]

CUPRESSINUS (Lat.), adj. Ku^2(ku)-pre^{2}s′si^{2}n-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Pertaining to, made from, or containing cypress. [A, 318.]

CUPRESSUS (Lat.), n. f. Ku^2(ku)-pre^{2}s′su^{3}s(su^{4}s). Gr., κυπάρισσος. Fr., cyprès. Ger., Cypresse. It., cipresso. Sp., ciprés. Of Linnæus, the typical genus of the Cupressineæ. [B, 19, 42, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. arbor vitæ. Fr., arbre de vie. The Thuja occidentalis. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. disticha. The Taxodium disticha. [B, 180, 245, 275 (a, 24).]—C. fastigiata. A variety of C. sempervirens. [B, 19 (a, 24).]—C. glauca, C. lusitanica. Fr., cyprès pendant, cèdre de bousaco, cèdre de Goa, cyprès de Goa. A species indigenous to the East Indies, cultivated in Portugal and elsewhere. The cones are stomachic and vulnerary. The powder is said to be a tonic and febrifuge. The branches and twigs are used to preserve cloths, woolens, etc., from worms. [B, 19, 173 (a, 24).]—C. pyramidalis, C. sempervirens [Linnæus]. Fr., cyprès, cyprès pyramidal. Ger., gemeine (oder immergrüne) Cypresse. The common cypress, a species indigenous to Persia and the Levant. The wood was formerly used as an astringent, sudorific, and diuretic, and the cones and the oil obtained from them were employed in fevers, hæmorrhage, and catarrh. [B, 19, 178, 180, 275 (a, 24).]—C. thuja. The Thuja orientalis. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. thujoides, C. thyoides. Ger., weisse Ceder. Of Linnæus, the Chamæcyparis sphæroidea. [B, 185, 275 (a, 24).]—Fructus cupressi. The cones of C. sempervirens. [A, 319.]—Herba cupressi. The herb of Santolina chamæcyparissus. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—Lignum cupressi. The wood of C. sempervirens. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—Nuces cupressi. See Fructus cupressi.—Oleum cupressi. The oil obtained from the nuts of C. sempervirens. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—Trochisci cupressi [Sp. Ph., 1798]. Fr., trochisques de cyprès. Cypress troches; made by boiling 128 parts of quince-juice, 12 of verjuice, 24 of cypress-cones, 16 of myrtle-leaves, and 8 of red roses, straining, and adding 12 of gum arabic, 10 of lignum santali citrini, 8 each of sumac and red roses, 12 of allspice, and a sufficient quantity of rose-water, and forming into troches. [B, 119 (a, 21).]—Vinum cupressi [Sp. Ph., 1798]. Fr., vin de cyprès. Cypress wine; made by macerating for 24 hours with a gentle heat 3 parts of green cypress-cones, 1 part each of pomegranate-bark, Rosmarinus officinalis, myrtle, red roses, and pomegranate-flowers, and 24 parts of red wine and expressing. [B, 119 (a, 21).]

CUPREUS (Lat.), adj. Ku^2(ku)'pre^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See Cupreous.

CUPREUX (Fr.), adj. Ku^6-pru^5. See Cuprous.

CUPRIC, adj. Ku^2'pri^{2}k. Lat., cupricus. Fr., cuprique, cuvrique. Containing copper as a bivalent element. [B.]

CUPRICOLLIS (Lat.), adj. Ku^2(ku)-pri^2-ko^{2}l'li^{2}s. From cuprum, copper, and collum, the neck. Fr., cupricolle. Having a copper-colored neck. [L, 41.]

CUPRICUM (Lat.), n. n. Ku^2(ku)-pri^{2}k-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). An allotropic form of copper imagined to exist in the cupric compounds. [B.]—C. aceticum. Copper acetate. [B, 270 (a, 24).]—C. sulphuricum, C. vitriolatum. Copper sulphate. [L, 77 (a, 21).]

CUPRIFEROUS, adj. Ku^2-pri^{2}f'e^{2}r-u^{3}s. Lat., cupriferus (from cuprum, copper, and ferre, to bear). Fr., cuprifère. Ger., kupferhaltig, kupferführend. Containing or yielding copper. [L, 56.]

CUPRINE, n. Ku^2'pren. A weak base, $C_{11}H_7NO_3$, derived from cotarnine. It has a coppery lustre, is insoluble in ether, but dissolves in water and in alcohol, forming a green solution. [B, 270 (a, 24).]

CUPRITE, n. Ku^2'prit. Red oxide of copper. [Dana (a, 24).]

CUPRO-AMMONIACAL, adj. Ku^2''pro-a^{2}m-on-i'a^{2}k-a^{2}l. Lat., cupro-ammonicus. Fr., cupro-ammonique. Containing or pertaining to a compound of copper and ammonium. [B.]

CUPROCYANIDE, n. Ku^2-pro-si'a^{2}n-i^{2}d(id). A salt of hydrocuprocyanic acid, a double cyanide of copper and some other metal. [B.]

CUPROCYANOGEN, n. Ku^2-pro-si-a^{2}n'o-je^{2}n. Copper cyanide. [a, 27.]

CUPROCYANWASSERSTOFFSÄURE (Ger.). n. Kup'rotse-a^{3}n-va^{3}s-se^{2}r-sto^{3}f-zoir-e^2. Hydrocuprocyanic acid. [B.]

CUPROIDE (Fr.), adj. Ku^6-pro-ed. From cuprum, copper, and εἶδος, resemblance. Resembling copper; as a n., in the pl., c's, a family of metals, comprising copper, lead, cadmium, and bismuth. [L, 41.]

CUPRONINE, n. Ku^2'pro-nen. A derivative of cotarnine, $C_{20}H_{18}N_2O_3$. [B, 270 (a, 24).]

CUPRO-POTASSIC, adj. Ku^2-pro-po^{2}t-a^{2}s'i^{2}k. Fr., cupro-potassique. Containing or pertaining to a compound of copper and potassium. [B.]

CUPROSO-POTASSIC, adj, Ku^2-pro''so-po^{2}t-a^{2}s'i^{2}k. Lat., cuprosopotassicus. Fr., cuproso-potassique, cuivroso-potassique. Containing or pertaining to a compound of a cuprous salt and potassium. [L, 109.]

CUPROSULPHATE, n. Ku^2-pro-su^{3}lf'at. A double sulphate containing copper. [B.]

CUPROSUM (Lat.), n. n. Ku^2(ku)-pro'su^{3}m(su^{4}m). 1. An allotropic modification of copper imagined to exist in the cuprous salts. [B.] 2. See Squama æris (under Æs).

CUPROTARTRATE, n. Ku^2-pro-ta^{3}r'trat. Fr., cupro-tartrate. A compound containing copper and tartaric acid. [A, 385.]

CUPROXIDE, n. Ku^{2}p-ro^{2}x'i^{2}d(id). Native cuprous oxide, Cu_2O. [B, 244 (a, 27).]

CUPROXYDUM (Lat.), n. Ku^{2}p(ku^{4}p)-ro^{2}x'-i^{2}d-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Cuprous oxide. [B.]

CUPROUS, adj. Ku'pru^{3}s. Lat., cuprosus. Fr., cupreux. Ger., kupfrig. Containing copper as a univalent element. Thus, c. chloride is Cu_2Cl_2. In such compounds, however, as in the corresponding mercurous compounds, copper is probably in reality a bivalent radicle, the graphic formula of c. chloride being Cl−Cu−Cu−Cl, where the molecule −Cu−Cu−, although made up of two bivalent atoms, has itself only a combining power of two. [B.]

CUPRUM [U. S. Ph., Br. Ph.] (Lat.), n. n. Ku^2(ku)'pru^{3}m(pru^{4}m). From œs cyprium, Cyprian brass. See Copper.—Acetas cupri [Belg. Ph.]. See Copper acetate.—Acetas cupri crudus. Verdigris. [A, 24.]—Acetas cupri crystallisatus. See Copper acetate.—Acetas cupri imperfectus. Verdigris. [B, 10.]—C. chloratum. Cuprous chloride. [B.]—C. chloratum ammoniacale. Fr., chlorure cuprosoammonique. A compound of ammonia and cuprous chloride. Dry ammonia gas forms three compounds with cuprous chloride, variable with the temperature. A black amorphous substance results on heating slightly $Cu_2Cl_2NH_3 = (NH_3)(Cu_2)Cl_2$, which, dissolved in hydrochloric acid, gives $Cu_2Cl_2,NH_3HCl = NH_4Cl.Cu_2Cl_2$. Treated in the cold by ammonia, there results $Cu_2Cl_22NH_3 = (NH3)_2(Cu_2)Cl_2$ = cuproso diammonium chloride, which, acted upon by hydrochloric acid, produces $Cu_2Cl_22NH_3\text{-}2HCl = 2NH_4Cl,Cu_2Cl_2$, beautiful white crystals, easily decomposed. If ammonium chloride be boiled with the oxide of copper and an excess of copper, there result colorless laminæ, $Cu_2Cl_22NH_3\text{-}2H_2O$, which becomes $Cu_2Cl_2,2NH_3,2HCl$ when treated with HCl. In the same reaction violet laminæ are deposited, $Cu_2Cl_2CuCl_2,2NH_3 + 2H_2O$. [W. H. Welch, "N. Y. Med. Jour.," Apr. 28, 1888, p. 449.]—Swedish-movement c. The treatment of disease by Swedish gymnastics.—Water-c. See HYDROTHERAPY.—Whey-c. Fr., c. de petit-lait. Ger., Molkenkur. The systematic internal administration of whey in laxative doses, sometimes in conjunction with its use in the form of baths; used for the same purposes as the grape-c. [A, 301.]

CURE-ALL, n. Ku^{2}r'a^{4}l. 1. See PANACEA. 2. The Geum rivale. [A, 505.]

CURE-LANGUE (Fr.), n. Ku^{6}r-la^{3}n^{2}g. See Tongue-SCRAPER.

CURE-OREILLE (Fr.), n. Ku^{6}r-o-re^{2}l-y'. See Aural CURETTE.

CURETTE, n. Ku^{2}r-e^{2}t'. Lat., cochleare. Fr., c. (from curer, to cleanse). Ger., C. An instrument for removing foreign bodies, accumulated secretions, etc., from the surface or from the accessible passages of the body, also for removing morbid outgrowths and neoplastic deposits by scraping. Generally made in the form of the bowl of a spoon or in that of a ring. [G.]—Antiseptic c. A

AN AURAL CURETTE.

a, spring catch; b, articulation of the stem with the handle.

A CUTTING CURETTE.

A FLEXIBLE CURETTE.

A PHARYNGEAL CURETTE.

BOWMAN AND CRITCHETT'S CURETTE.

CRITCHETT'S CURETTE.

uterine c. devised by E. Noeggerath. The shaft is tubular for antiseptic irrigation during the use of the instrument. ["N. Y. Med. Jour.," June 27, 1885, p. 733.]—Articulated c. Fr., c. articulée. Of Pajot, a uterine c. with a hinge-like joint near the end capable of being worked at the handle; used for extracting portions of the ovum retained within the uterus in cases of abortion. [A, 15.]—Cutting c. Fr., c. tranchante. A c. with a sharp edge, intended to cut or scrape away vegetations, neoplastic deposits, etc.—Dull wire c. See Wire c.—Fenestrated c. Fr., c. fenêtrée. Ger., gefensterte C. A c. with the blade fenestrated or consisting simply of a ring, instead of being solid like the bowl of a spoon. [F.]—Irrigations-C. (Ger.). A uterine c. with a hollow shank, to which an injecting apparatus may be attached, for the purpose of combining irrigation with the operation of curetting. [Freund, "Ctrlbl. f. Gynäk.," Sept. 2, 1882, p. 545.]—Vesical c. Ger., Blasenlöffel. See Lithotomy SCOOP.—Wire c. A c. made of wire, having no cutting edge.

CURETTING, n. Ku^{2}r-e^{2}t-i^{2}n^{2}g. Fr., curettage, curettement. Ger., Auskratzung. The operation of removing vegetations, etc., by means of a curette.

CURIMATINA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Ku^2(ku^4)-ri^2-ma^3-ti(te)'na^3. A subfamily or group of the Characinidæ. [L, 207.]

CURINE, n. Ku^{2}r'en. Fr., c. Ger., Curin. A substance obtained by Böhn, along with curarin, from curare. Unlike curarine, it is physiologically inactive. It dissolves sparingly in cold water, is more soluble in hot water, and, with alcohol, chloroform, and dilute acids, forms very bitter solutions. It is a weak base, forming amorphous salts. It melts at 160° C. [B, 270 (a, 24).]

CURITIS (Lat.), n. f. Ku^{2}r(ku^{4}r)-i(e)'ti^{2}s. An ancient name for the genus Verbena. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CURL, n. Ku^{5}rl. Dan., Krölle (1st def.). Lat., cirrus (1st def.). Fr., boucle (1st def.). Ger., Locke (1st def.). 1. Anything (like a lock of hair) of a spiral form; in botany, a cirrus or other organ rolled on itself. 2. A disease of the potato-plant attacking the leaves and stems and causing a failure of the tubers. [B, 19, 77 (a, 24).]

CURL-DODDY, n. Ku^{5}rl'do^{2}d-i^2. The Scabiosa succisa, the Plantago lanceolata, and the Plantago major. [A, 505.]

CURLED, adj. Ku^{5}rld. Lat., cirratus. Fr., cirrhé. Ger., gekräuselt. Having the form of a curl. [a, 24.]

CURLICK, n. Ku^{5}rl'i^{2}k. The Sinapis arvensis. [A, 505.]

CURLUNS, n. Ku^{5}rl'u^{3}nz. The Carum bulbocastanum. [A, 505.]

CURLY-DODDY, n. Ku^{5}rl'i^2-do^{2}d-i^2. See CURL-DODDY.

CURMASI, n. The Prunus laurocerasus. [B, 88.]

CURMI (Lat.), n. n. Gr., κοῦρμι. An ancient sort of beer made from barley. [Gorræus (A, 325).]

CURNBERRY, n. Ku^{5}rn'be^{2}r-i^2. See CRANBERRY.

CURRADAPALA (Malay), n. The Nerium antidysentericum. [B, 88.]

CURRALEIRA, n. The Croton antisyphiliticum. [B, 88.]

CURRANBERRY, n. Ku^{5}r'a^{2}n-be^{2}r-i^2. See CRANBERRY.

CURRANBINE, n. Ku^{5}r'a^{2}n-bin. The Aquilegia vulgaris. [A, 505.]

CURRANT, n. Ku^{5}r'ant. 1. Probably a corruption of Corinth, whence a small seedless grape was formerly obtained which much resembled c's. Fr., groseille (1st def.) [Fr. Cod.], gradelle (1st def.). Ger., Johannisbeere (1st def.). It., ribes. Sp., grosella. The fruit and plant of various species of Ribes. [a, 24.] 2. See Corinthian c's.—American black c. The Ribes floridum. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Australian c. The Leucopogon Richei and the Leptomeria acerba. [B, 19, 275 (a, 24).]—Black c. Fr., groseille noire. Ger., schwarze Johannisbeere, Gichtbeere. The Ribes nigrum. [B, 34 (a, 24).]—Buffalo c. The Ribes aureum. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Californian black c. The Ribes bracteosum. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Common black c. The Ribes nigrum. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Common white c. The Ribes rubrum, var. album. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Common red c. The Ribes rubrum. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Corinthian c's. Corinthian raisins, the uvæ passuum minores of the old pharmacopœias. [B, 5 (a, 24).]—C.-wine. Wine made from c's, containing about 20 per cent. of alcohol. [B, 5 (a, 21).]—Indian c. The Symphoricarpus vulgaris. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Indian c.-bush. The genera Miconia and Clidemia. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Missouri c. See Buffalo c.—Mountain c. The Ribes alpinum. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—Native c. (of New South Wales). CURRANTWORTS, n. pl. Ku^{5}r'a^{2}nt-wu^{5}rts. The Grossulariaceæ. [B, 19 (a, 24).]

CURRENT, n. Ku^{5}r'e^{2}nt. From currere, to run. It., corriente. Fr., courant. Ger., Strom. Sp., corriente. A flowing, as of the blood in the vessels, of electricity, etc.—Abterminal c. Ger., Abterminal-Strom. Of Hermann, the secondary, lesser c. developed at any point in a nerve or muscle after the passage of a single induction shock. [A, 383 (K).]—Action c. Ger., Wirkungsstrom. The electro-motive force resident in an isolated frog's muscle during the state of tetanus, induced by the application of a proper stimulus to its nerve. [A, 429 (K).]—Adterminal c. Ger., Adterminal-Strom. Of Hermann, the negative c. observed at any point in a nerve or muscle on the passage of a single induction shock through it. [A, 383 (K).]—Alternate c., Alternating c. A c. the direction of which is periodically changed; especially a c. the direction of which in a magneto-electric machine is reversed by the revolution of a magnet before an armature, or vice versa. [Hayne (B).]—Anelectrotonic c. Ger., anelectrotonischer Strom. Of Du Bois-Reymond, the c. observed at the anode on passing a constant c. through a nerve. [A, 383 (K).]—Angular c's. C's which are inclined to each other at any angle. [L.]—Ascending c. An electric c. which passes from the periphery to the centre, as from the peripheral portion of a nerve toward the nerve-centre. [B.]—Battery c. Ger., Batteriestrom. The direct c. from a galvanic battery.—Branch c. See Derived c.—Catelectrotonic c. Ger., katelectrotonischer Strom. A c. observed at the cathode on passing a constant c. through a nerve. [A, 383 (K).]—Centrifugal c. See Descending c.—Centripetal c. See Ascending c.—Combined c. The resultant of the combined action of the galvanic and faradaic c's. [a, 27.] See GALVANOFARADISATION.—Constant c. Fr., courant constant. 1. A galvanic c. produced by a constant (two-fluid) battery. 2. A galvanic c. in general as distinguished from a faradiac c. [Hayne, Beard, and Rockwell (B).]—Constant galvanic c. An uninterrupted galvanic c. [B.]—Continuous c. 1. A c. which flows always in the same direction; especially an uninterrupted galvanic c. 2. As sometimes used, the galvanic c. [Hayne, Beard, and Rockwell (B).] — C.-breaker. See RHEOTOME. — C.-changer. See RHEOTROPE.—C.-condenser. Fr., condensatur de Fizeau. An apparatus for collecting the extra c's generated in the operation of an induction machine, which it combines to form a c. of reverse direction to that of the battery c., and which, transmitted to the core, demagnetizes it instantly, thus increasing the rapidity of the interruptions and the intensity of the induced c. It consists of numerous layers of tin, separated by paper impregnated with resin, the alternate layers of the tin being connected to form one armature, and the intervening layers to form the other. The whole is introduced beneath the stand supporting the bobbin. [B. 21 (a, 27).] —C. electricity. Galvanism. [Guthrie (B).]—C.-increaser. A variety of rheostat by which the strength of a galvanic c. can be increased without breaking the circuit. [Beard and Rockwell (B).] —C.-interrupter. See RHEOTOME.—C. of the pile. See Galvanic c.—C.-regulator. See RHEOSTAT.—C.-reverser. Ger., Stromwechsler. See RHEOTROPE.—C. selector. An arrangement by which any desired number of galvanic elements can be brought into or excluded from the circuit. [B.]—Cutaneous c. Ger., Haut-Strom. A natural electric c. supposed by Hermann to be present in the skin, apparently distinguished from the c's which are proper to the muscles. [A, 383 (K).]—Demarcation c. Of Hermann, the new electrical c. developed in a muscle or nerve at a point of injury. This is negative with respect to the previous c. in the intact muscle. [A, 429 (K).]—Derived c. That portion of an electric c. which is abstracted from the main c. passing through a circuit by connecting two points of the circuit with an additional conductor, called a derivation-wire. [Hayne (B).]—Descending c. An electric c. which passes from the nerve-centres toward the periphery. [B.]—Deviation c. Ger., abweichender Strom. Of Du Bois-Reymond, the electrical c. in a muscle-rhombus. [A, 429 (K).]—Diaphragm c. 1. The passage of fluids through the membranous partition of a dialyzer. 2. A diffusion of gases through a porous substance. [L.]—Diffusion c. The extension of the effect of a galvanic c. beyond the points of application of the electrodes. [Hayne (B).]—Direct c. 1. See Descending c. 2. See Galvanic c. —Downward c. See Descending c.—Electric c. Fr., courant électrique. Ger., electrischer Strom. The transfer of electrical energy from one part of a body to another along a determinate path called the circuit, and through a body or series of bodies constituting the conductor. [Hayne (B).] See Galvanic c., Faradaic c., and Static c.—Electro-magnetic c. See Faradaic c.—Electrotonic c. A c. that exists at the surface of that part of a nerve not directly acted upon by a galvanic c. Its strength varies with the size of the nerve and the force, direction, and duration of the galvanic electrization. [a, 27.]—Exciting c. A c. used for magnetizing the magnet in certain dynamo-electric machines. [L.] —Extra c. Fr., extra-courant. A faradaic c. induced in portions of a coil of wire by the action of the c. passing through other portions of the same coil. [B.]—Eye c. Ger., Augenstrom. An appreciable electric c. which may be observed in a freshly removed eye, if it is placed in a suitable galvanometer-circuit. Its direction is from the cornea to the cut section of the optic nerve. It is temporarily increased by the action of light. [A, 429 (K).]—Faradaic c., Faradic c. Fr., courant faradaïque. Ger., faradischer Strom. An electric c. (induced c., secondary c.) induced in a conducting coil by the opening or closure of an electric c. (primary c.) in a neighboring conducting coil. Its direction is always opposite to that of the inducing c. A faradaic c. is distinguished from a galvanic c. by being always an interrupted c., so as to exhibit constant reversal of direction. [B.]—Frog-c. Ger., Frosch-Strom. It., corrente propria della rana [Nobili]. Of Du Bois-Reymond, the total electrical c. in the body of a frog, which represents the sum of the natural c's in the muscles and nerves. Its direction is from the tips of the toes to the head. [A, 429 (K).]—Galvanic c. Fr., courant galvanique. Ger., galvanischer Strom. An electric c. produced by the chemical interaction of two or more substances, which latter constitute a galvanic element. [B.]—Gland c., Glandular c. Ger., Drüsen-Strom. A natural electric c. which is situated in glands. On stimulating the nerves which supply a gland, a negative variation is observed in its current, the same as in muscles. [K, 35.]—Imbibition c. Ger., Einsaugungsstrom. An electrical c. at the cut surface of a nerve or muscle due to the imbibition of fluid by that surface. Its direction is the same as that of the fluid current. [A, 429 (K).]—Increasing c. An electric c. the strength of which is gradually increased without breaking the circuit. [Beard and Rockwell (B).]—Individual c. See Animal MAGNETISM.—Induced c. See Faradaic c.—Inducing c. The primary c. A c. (faradaic or galvanic) which by its closure or opening generates a faradaic c. in an adjoining circuit. [B.]—Induction c., Inductive c. See Induced c.—Interrupted c. Fr., courant interrompu. A c. which is broken and closed again at short intervals; as sometimes employed, a faradaic (as distinguished from a galvanic) c. [B.]—Labile c. [Remak]. Fr., courant labile. Ger., labiler Strom. An electric c. applied by moving one or both of the electrodes over the surface to which the application is made. [B.] —Local c. A c. in which the action of the electric current is limited approximately to the point of application, mediate or immediate, of one electrode to a part preserving its normal relations. [a, 27.]—Magneto-electric c. A faradaic c. generated by the action of a magnet. [B.]—Muscular c. Fr., courant musculaire. The electrical c. which exists in a muscle, and is demonstrated by placing the poles of a galvanometer upon two distinct parts of it. When the points are upon the surface the c. is electro-positive; when they are upon a transverse section, it is electro-negative. The tension of the c. decreases according as the points are remote from the centre of the transverse section or from an imaginary circle (the equator) which divides the muscle into two halves; when the contact is made between either extremity of the longitudinal axis of the muscle and any point of the equator, it is termed "contact fort," but when it is made between two points upon the same surface (transverse or longitudinal) unequally distinct from the equator or centre, it is termed "contact faible." [L, 87.]—Nerve-muscle c. [Benedikt]. An electric c. applied by placing one electrode over a nerve and the other over a muscle. [Beard and Rockwell (B).]—Partial c. See Derived c.—Phasic c's. Ger., phasische Ströme. Of Hermann, the two opposite c's which are observed at any point in an uninjured nerve or muscle on the application to it of a single induction shock. [A, 383 (K).] —Plexus-nerve c. [Benedikt]. An electric c. applied by placing one electrode over a nerve-plexus and the other over a nerve. [Beard and Rockwell (B).]—Polarizing after-c. A secondary current induced in living nerves and muscles during the opening of a constant c.; to depend upon "internal polarization." [A, 429 (K).]—Primary c. 1. See Inducing c. 2. An incorrect term for a galvanic c. [Beard and Rockwell (B).] — Primitive c. An electric c. from which a derived c. has not been abstracted. [Hayne (B).] — Reverse c. See Ascending c. — Secondary c. See Faradaic c.—Secretion c. Ger., Ausscheidungsstrom. An electrical c. observed by Hermann in the skin of the frog, the direction of which is from without inward. It appears simultaneously with the formation of secretion in the sweat-glands. [A, 429 (K).]—Sinuous c. A c. which is transmitted in a curved line. [a, 27.]—Spinal-cord c. [Benedikt]. An electric c. in which both electrodes are placed on the spine. [Beard and Rockwell (B).] —Spinal-cord-muscle c. An electric c. applied by placing one electrode over the spine and the other over a muscle. [Beard and Rockwell (B).]—Spinal-cord-nerve c. [Benedikt]. An electric c. applied by placing one electrode over the spine and the other over a nerve. [Beard and Rockwell (B).]—Spinal-cord-plexus c. [Benedikt]. An electric c. applied by placing one electrode upon the spine and the other over a nerve-plexus. [Beard and Rockwell (B).]—Spinal-cord-root c. [Benedikt]. An electric c. applied by placing one electrode upon the spine and passing the other upon and down along the sides of the vertebræ. [Beard and Rockwell (B).]—Stabile c. [Remak]. Fr., courant stabile. Ger., stabiler Strom. An electric c. applied with the electrodes both fixed in one position. [B.] Cf. Labile c.—Static c. An electric c. constituted by the constant abstraction and renewal of a change of frictional electricity. [Hayne (B).]—Swelling c. See Increasing c.—Terrestrial c's. Thermo-electric c's caused, according to Ampère, by the atmospheric variations due to the position of the sun. They circulate from east to west, and are perpendicular to the magnetic meridian of each place. [a, 27.]—To-and-fro c. See Faradaic c. —Uniform c. [Beard and Rockwell]. An electric c. the strength of which remains the same during its application. [B.]—Uninterrupted c. An electric c. which is not broken during its application; a continuous c. [B.]—Unit of c. See AMPÈRE.—Upward c. See Ascending c.—Voltaic c. See Galvanic c.

CURRIE, CURRY, n's. Ku⁵r-i². From Pers., khûrdi, broth, juicy meats (from khûrdan, to eat, to drink). Fr., cary. Ger., Gerbepulver. A sauce or other culinary preparation flavored with c.-powder.—Bengal c., C.-powder. A coarse, yellowish-brown powder, having a strong aromatic odor and taste, made by mixing black pepper, capsicum, coriander, fenugreek, white pepper, and caraway, with curcuma and ginger. ["Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," xxviii (a, 21).]—C.-leaf tree. The Murraya Kœnigii (Bergera Kœnigii). [B, 19, 275.]

CURSORES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku⁵rs(ku⁴rs)-o'rez(ras). From currere, to run. Fr., coureurs. Ger., Laufvögel. 1. As most commonly used, an order of birds which rarely use their wings. 2. Of De Blainville, a family of the Rodentia. 3. Of Cuvier and Latreille, a family of the Orthoptera. 4. Of Haworth, a family of the Crustacea. 5. Of Sundevall, a cohort of the Humilinares. [L, 41, 121, 180.]

CURSORIA [Latreille] (Lat.), n. n. pl. Ku⁵r(ku⁴r)-so'ri²-a³. A section of the Dermaptera. [L, 266.]

CURSORIAL, adj. Ku⁵rs-o'ri²-a²l. Lat., cursorius. Fr., c., coureur. Belonging to or resembling the Cursores. [L, 14.]

CURSORIIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku⁵rs(ku⁴rs)-o²r-i(i²)'i²d-e(a³-e³). See CURSORES.

CURSORINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku⁵rs(ku⁴rs)-o²r-i(e)'ne(na³-e²). A subfamily of the Charadriidæ. [L, 73.]

CURSORIPES (Lat.), adj. Ku⁵r(ku⁴r)-sor'i²-pez(pas). From currere, to run, and pes, the foot. Fr., cursoripède. Ger., fluchfüssig. Having feet adapted to running (said of birds); as a n., in the m. pl., Cursoripedes, a family of the Cursores. [L. 41.]

CURSUMA (Lat.), n. f. Ku⁵r(ku⁴r)-su²(su)'ma³. The Ficaria ranunculoides. [B, 88.]—C. hæmorrhoidalis. See C.

CURSUS (Lat.), n. m. Ku⁵r(ku⁴r)'su³s(su⁴s). Gr., δρόμος. Ger., Lauf (1st def.), Abfluss (2d def.). 1. A course, also the act of running. 2. A flow. [A, 325.]—C. menstruus. The menstrual flow. [A, 325.]—C. urinæ. A flow of urine. [A, 325.]

CURSUTA (Lat.), n. f. Ku^{5}r(ku^{4}r)-su^2(su)′ta^3. Fr., cursute. The Gentiana purpurea. [B, 88.]

CURTAIN, n. Ku^{6}rt′i^{2}n. From cortina, the c. of a theatre. Fr., courtine. 1. A screen-like structure. 2. In botany, see VOLVA. —Valvular c. See Valvular PLATE.

CURTATIO (Lat.), n. f. Ku^{5}r(ku^{4}r)-ta(ta^3)′shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., curtation′is. From curtare, to shorten. Ger., Verkürzen. A shortening, curtailment. [L, 81.]

CURTIDOR, n. At Caracas the Weinmannia glabra. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CURTIPES (Lat.), adj. Ku^{5}rt(ku^{4}rt)′i^2-pez(pas). From curtus, short, and pes, the foot. Fr., curtipède. Ger., kurzfüssig. Having short feet. [L, 41.]

CURTIROSTRIS (Lat.), adj. Ku^{6}rt(ku^{4}rt)-i^2-ro^{2}s′tris. From curtus, short, and rostrum, the beak. Fr., curtirostre. Ger., kurzschnabelig. Having a short beak. [L, 41.]

CURTUM (Lat.), n. n. Ku^{5}r(ku^{4}r)′tu^{3}m(tu^{4}m). See COLOBOMA.

CURTUS (Lat.), adj. Ku^{5}rt(ku^{4}rt)′u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Short (a species name). [L.]

CURUA, CURUBA, n′s. In Brazil, the Trichosanthes anguina. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CURUCUCU, n. A disease caused by the sting of a South American serpent. [L, 41.]

CURUPA, n. A little known South American herb, employed as an intoxicant by the Flathead Indians, especially the Omaguas of the upper Amazon, in Peru, and the Enaguas of the upper Guaviare, in Colombia. The powdered plant is insufflated through the nostrils by means of a forked reed, and produces an intoxication like that of hasheesh, which lasts sometimes for twenty-four hours, accompanied, it is said, by delicious visions. [a, 14.]

CURUQNA (Tarasco), n. The Cœsalpinia echinata. [A, 447.]

CURUQUIÈRES (Fr.), n. Ku^6-ru^6-ke-e^{2}r. See ARACHIS hypogæa.

CURURA, n. Of Plumier, the genus Paullinia. [B, 121 (a, 24); L, 97.]—C.-ape. In Brazil, the Paullinia pinnata. [B, 88.]

CURUTUPALA (Malay), n. The Tabernæmonta crispa. [B, 172 (a, 24).]

CURVAMEN (Lat.), n. n. Ku^{5}r(ku^{4}r)-va(wa^3)′me^{2}n. Gen., curvamin′is. A protuberant curve, especially of the spinal column. [A, 322, 325.]

CURVATE, adj. Ku^{5}r′vat. Lat., curvus. Fr., courbé. Ger., gekrümmt. It., curvato. Sp., corvo, encorvado. Bent, bowed. [a, 24.]

CURVATIO (Lat.), n. f. Ku^{5}r(ku^{4}r)-va(wa^3)′shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., curvation′is. Fr., courbure. Ger., Krümmung. A bending or bowing. [A, 318.]

CURVATIVE, adj. Ku^{6}rv′a^{2}t-i^{2}v. Fr., curvatif. Very slightly curved (said of leaves). [A, 301.]

CURVATOR (Lat.), n. m. Ku^{5}r(ku^{4}r)-va(wa^3)′to^{2}r. Gen., curvator′is. From curvare, to bend. Fr., curvateur. Ger., Beuger, Krummacher. A muscle the action of which is to bend a part. [A, 322.]—C. coccygis. Fr., muscle curvateur du coccyx. Ger., Steissbeinkrümmer. 1. An occasional muscle in man, arising from the anterior surface of the sacrum and inserted into the bodies of the second, third, and fourth coccygeal vertebræ. 2. Of Sömmerring, a fasciculus of the levator ani muscle. 3. Of von Bähr, a fasciculus of the coccygeus muscle. [A, 5, 262; L, 332.] 4. See SACRO-COCCYGEUS lateralis.—C. coccygis accessorius. Syn.: sacrococcygeus anticus externus. A rare accessory muscle arising from the lower part of the anterior surface of the transverse process of the fourth sacral vertebra and from the upper half of the transverse process of the fifth sacral vertebra, and inserted into the border of the third and fourth coccygeal vertebræ; the homologue of certain constant muscles in the lower Mammalia. [W. Gruber, "Arch. f. path. Anat. u. Physiol. u. f. klin. Med.," cix, 1, 1887, p. 1.]

CURVATURA (Lat.), n. f. Ku^{5}r(ku^{4}r)-va^{2}t(wa^{3}t)-u^2(u)′ra^3. See CURVATURE.—C. postpubica [Hyrtl]. The curvature of the urethra behind the pubes. [L, 31.]—C. prostatica. The forward curvature of the lower end of the rectum. [A, 500.]—C. sacralis. The sacral curvature of the rectum. [A, 500.]—C. sigmoidea. 1. The curve of the oviduct. 2. The curvature of the internal carotid artery as it passes through the carotid canal. [L, 349.] 3. See Sigmoid FLEXURE of the colon.—C. subpubica [Hyrtl]. The curve formed by the urethra beneath the pubes. [L, 31.]—C. unguium. See ONYCHOGRYPHOSIS.

CURVATURE, n. Ku^{6}r′va^2-tu^{2}r. Gr., κύρτωμα. Lat., curvatura, flexura. Fr., courbure. Ger., Einbiegung, Krümmung. It., curvatura. Sp., corvadura. A bending, a bend.—Angular c. of the spine. Fr., flexion angulaire de la colonne vertébrale. Ger., winkelförmige Knickung der Wirbelsäule. It., curvatura angolare della colonna vertebrale. Sp., corvadura angular de la columna vertebral. A sharp, angular bend of the spinal column, causing a posterior projection, due to carious destruction of the body of a vertebra. [E.]—Compensatory c. Fr., courbure compensatrice. A secondary spinal c. that takes place as the result of efforts to maintain the general upright state of the trunk when it has been vitiated by a c. of the spine.—Cotylo-sacral c. The curved surface of the sacrum and ilium shown in a section of the pelvis made through the cotylo-sacral arch. [L, 14.]—C. of concussion. In botany, the sudden c. which internodes take when sharply struck, the concavity of the c. lying toward the direction of the blow. [B, 229 (a, 24).]—C. of the spine. Fr., inflexion de la colonne vertébrale. Ger., Biegung der Wirbelsäule. It., curvatura della colonna vertebrale. Sp., corvadura de la columna vertebral. A permanent deviation of some portion of the spinal column from its normal form.—Greater c. of the stomach. Lat., curvatura ventriculi major. Fr., grande courbure de l'estomac. The lower convex border of the stomach. [L, 7.]—Lateral c. of the spine. Fr., flexion latérale de la colonne vertébrale. Ger., seitliche Verbiegung der Wirbelsäule, Rückgratsverbiegung. It., curvatura laterale della colonna vertebrale. Sp., corvadura lateral de la columna vertebral. See SCOLIOSIS.—Lesser c. of the stomach. Lat., curvatura ventriculi minor. Fr., petite courbure de l'estomac. The upper concave border of the stomach. [L, 7.]—Pott's c. See Angular c. of the spine.—Rotaro-lateral c. of the spine. See SCOLIOSIS.—Secondary c's of the dental tubules. The numerous fine, spiral curves made by the dental tubules in their passage through the dentine. [L.]—Spinal c. See C. of the spine.

CURVATURED, adj. Ku^{6}rv′a^{2}t-u^{2}rd. See CURVATIVE.

CURVATUS (Lat.), adj. Ku^{6}r(ku^{4}r)-va(wa^3)′tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). See CURVATE.

CURVE, n. Ku^{6}rv. (From Lat., curvus.) A bend, a flexure. Gr., κύρτωμα. Lat., curvatura. Fr., courbe. Ger., C., Krümmung. It., curvatura. Sp., corbadura. A bend; in graphic delineations, the general course of a line formed by a number of straight lines extending between adjacent registry points.—Aortic c. Fr., courbure aortique. See ARCH of the aorta.—Bauchc' (Ger.). A graphic c. exhibiting the respiratory movements of the abdomen. ["Arch. f. Anat. u. Phys.," 1878, p. 441 (L).]—Brustc'. A graphic c. exhibiting the movements of the chest in respiration. ["Arch. f. Anat. u. Phys.," 1878, p. 447 (L).]—Carus's c. See C. of Carus.—Caudal c. Of the embryo, see Caudal FLEXURE.—Cephalic c. Fr., courbure céphalique. Ger., Kopfkrümmung. 1. Of the embryo, see Cephalic FLEXURE. 2. Of an obstetrical forceps, the c. of that portion of each blade that is applied to the fœtal head.—Compensatory c. See Compensatory CURVATURE.—C.-basis. In a sphygmographic tracing, the common level from which the ascending lines spring. [D, 1.]—C. of Carus. The arc of an imaginary circle having its centre at the symphysis pubis and extending in the median line of the pelvis in women, from the plane of the inlet to that of the outlet; corresponding roughly with the pelvic axis.—C. of the false promontory. Fr., courbe du faux promontoire. A term proposed by R. Barnes for c. which the fœtal head has to describe in order to enter the pelvis in cases in which the sacro-vertebral angle is unusually prominent. [A, 40.]—C'nzeichnung (Ger.). See Graphic c.—Ermüdungs-C. (Ger.). The graphic c. registered during the contraction of a muscle when in a state of exhaustion; as the exhaustion becomes extreme this c. approaches a straight line. [K, 16.]—Front c. See Skull c.—Graphic c. Fr., courbe graphique. Ger., graphische C., C'nzeichnung. The course formed on a graphic chart by a line made up of a number of straight lines passing between the contiguous points registered; also the undulating line registered by the needle of the sphygmograph or other like instrument on a moving plate.—Hind c. Ger., hintere Kopfkrümmung, Nackenkrümmung. A curvature of the body of the embryo between about the fourth and eighth weeks of development, opposite the beginning of the spinal cord. [L, 146.]—Pelvic c. Fr., courbure pelvienne (ou nouvelle). Ger., Beckenkrümmung. Of an obstetrical forceps, the c. formed by the anterior deviation of the blades from the axis of the shank, the instrument being in position with the blades corresponding to the mother's right and left side.—Perineal c. Fr., courbure périnéale. Ger., Dammkrümmung. Of an obstetrical forceps, a c. formed by the backward deviation of the handles from the axis of the shank. —Skull c. See Principal cephalic FLEXURE.—Tail c. Ger., Schwanzkrümmung. The curvature of the caudal extremity of the embryo between the fourth and seventh weeks of development. [L, 146.]—Temperature c. A graphic c. exhibiting the variations of the temperature during a given period. [L.]

CURVEMBRYÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku^{5}r(ku^{4}r)-ve^{2}m(we^{2}m)′bri^2-(bru^6)-e(a^3-e^2). For deriv., see CURVE and EMBRYO. Fr., curvembryées. 1. Of Brongniart, a suborder of leguminous plants, comprising the tribes Sophoreœ, Dalbergieœ, and Intricœ. 2. Of Lindley, a cohort of the Incompletœ, comprising the alliances Chenopodales, Polygonales, Petivales, Sclerales, and Cocculales. 3. Of Miers, the Solanaceœ, and of Lindley a division of that order. Subsequently he classified the C. as a division of the Solanaceœ, comprising Micrembergia, Petunia, etc. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CURVEMBRYÉ (Fr.), adj. Ku^{6}r-va^{3}n^2-bre-a. Having a curved embryo (said of plants where the cotyledons are applied against the radicle). [a, 24.]

CURVEMBRYEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku^{5}rv(ku^{4}rv)-e^{2}m-bri^2(bru^6)′-e(e^2)-e(a^3-e^2), ku^{5}r(ku^{4}r)-ve^{2}m(we^{2}m)-bri(bru^6)′e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., curvembryées. Of Bentham and Hooker, a series of monochlamydeous dicotyledons, comprising the Nyctagineœ, Illecebraceœ, Amarantaceœ, Chenopodiaceœ, Phylotaccaceœ, Batideœ, and Polygonaceœ. [B, 42, 170 (a 24).]

CURVICAUDATE, adj. Ku^{6}rv-i^2-ka^4′dat. From curvus, bent, and cauda, the tail. Fr., curvicaude. Ger., krummschwanzig. Having a curved or crooked tail. [L.]

CURVICAULE (Fr.), adj. Ku^{6}r-ve-kol. From curvus, bent, and caulis, a stem. Having a recurved stem. [L, 41.]

CURVICOLLE (Fr.), adj. Ku^{6}r-ve-ko^{3}l. From curvus, bent, and collum, the neck. Having a curved neck; in botany, having the apex or top bent. [L, 41.]

CURVICOSTATE, adj. Ku^{6}rv-i^2-ko^{2}s′tat. From curvus, bent, and costa, a rib. See CURVINERVED.

CURVIDENTATE, adj. Ku^{6}rv-i^2-de^{2}n′tat. From curvus, bent, and dens, a tooth. Fr., curvidenté. Having curved teeth. [L, 56.]

CURVIFLORE (Fr.), adj. Ku^{6}r-ve-flor. From curvus, bent, and flos, a flower. Having curved flowers. [L, 41.]

CURVIFOLIATE, adj. Ku5rv-i2-fo'li2-at. Lat., curvifoliatus (from curvus, bent, and folium, a leaf). Fr., curvifolié. Having the leaves bent back. [a, 24.]

CURVIFORM, adj. Ku5rv'i2-fo2rm. From curvus, bent, and forma, form. Curved.

CURVILINEAL, CURVILINEAR, adj's. Ku5rv-i2-li2n'e2-a2l, -a3r. From curvus, bent, and linea, a line. Fr., curviligne. Forming a curve (said of contours).

CURVINERVATE, CURVINERVED, CURVINERVOUS, adj's. Ku5rv-i2-nu5rv'at, -nu5rvd', -nu5rv'u3s. Lat., curvinervis (from curvus, bent, and nervus, a nerve). Fr., curvinervie, curvinervé. Ger., krummnervig. Having the nervures running parallel to the border and converging to the point (said of leaves). [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]

CURVIPÈDE (Fr.), adj. Ku6r-ve-pad. From curvus, bent, and pes, the foot. Having curved limbs. [L, 41.]

CURVIROSTRAL, CURVIROSTRATE, adj's. Ku5rv-i2-ro2s'tra2l, -trat. From curvus, bent, and rostrum, the beak. Fr., curvirostre. Having a crooked beak; in botany, having the opercula of the urn curved. [L, 41, 56.]

CURVIROSTRES [Sclater] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku5rv(ku4rv)-i2-ros'-trez(tre2s), ku5r(ku4r)-vi2(wi2)-ro2st'rez(ras). Ger., Krummschnäbler. A family of the Laminiplantares. [L, 121.]

CURVISERIAL, adj. Ku5rv-i2-se'ri2-a2l. From curvus, bent, and series, a series. Fr., curvisériaté, curvisérié. In a curved series (said of leaves when arranged in a spiral around the axis). [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CURVITY, n. Ku5rv'i2-ti2. Lat., curvitas. Fr., curvité, courbure. Ger., Krümmung. The state of being curved. [L, 41, 56.]

CURVUS (Lat.), adj. Ku5r(ku4r)'vu3s(wu4s). Gr., κυρτός, ὑβός, σκολιός. Fr., courbé. Ger., krumm. It., curvato. Sp., corvo. Curved. [A, 322, 325.]

CUSCA, n. See Brazilian CHICLE.

CUSCAMIDINE, n. Ku3sk-a2m'i2d-en. An amorphous substance discovered by Hesse in Cinchona succirubra. [B, 81 (a, 27).]

CUSCAMINE, n. Ku3sk'a2m-en. A crystalline substance discovered by Hesse in Cinchona succirubra. [B, 81 (a, 27).]

CUSCOCINCHONINE, n. Ku3sk-o-si2n2k'on-en. See CUSCONINE.

CUSCONIDINE, n. Ku3s-kon'i2d-en. Lat., cusconidina, cus conidia. Fr., c. Ger., Cusconidin. A pale-yellow, amorphous, resinoid alkaloid found in cusco-bark together with cusconine. Its formula has not yet been ascertained. [B, 5, 23, 270 (a, 24).]

CUSCONINE, n. Ku3s'kon-en. Fr., c. Ger., Cusconin. An alkaloid, $C_{23}H_{26}N_2O_4 + 2H_2O$, discovered by Leverköhn in cusco-bark. It is almost insoluble in water, soluble in 35 parts of ether, easily soluble in alcohol and in chloroform. It may be distinguished from other cinchona alkaloids by the character of its sulphate. It crystallizes in faintly lustrous white laminæ which lose water on heating and melt at 110° C. [B, 5, 270 (a, 24).]—C. sulphate. Fr., sulfate de c. Ger., Cusconinsulfat. A neutral, amorphous, yellow gelatinous substance insoluble in an excess of the acid compounded of c. and sulphuric acid. [B, 5, 270 (a, 24).]

CUSCUS, n. In some West Indian islands (San Domingo) the seed of Penicillaria spicata (Holcus spicatus) and some other edible grains. In India the root of Andropogon muricatus and the poppy. [a, 22.]

CUSCUTA (Lat.), n. f. Ku3s(ku4s)'ku2(ku4)-ta3. Fr., cuscute. Ger., Flachsseide. 1. A genus of slender twining, leafless parasites belonging to the Convolvulaceæ. [B, 19, 34, 42 (a, 24).] 2. Of Paracelsus, an exostosis. [A, 325.]—C. americana [Jacquin]. A species said to be cholagogue and laxative; used in the West Indies as a diuretic. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. baccifera barbadensium [Pluckenet]. The Cassytha americana (filiformis). [B, 214.]—C. chlorocarpa. A species growing in the United States, from Wisconsin to Arkansas, on species of Polygonum. [B, 34 (a, 24).]—C. decora. A species, found in southern Illinois and southward to Florida and Texas, with the capsule enveloped by the dead corolla. It attacks the Leguminosæ, Compositæ, etc. [B, 34 (a, 24).]—C. densiflora, C. epilinum. The flax-dodder; a species known throughout Europe as a great impediment to the cultivation of flax. It has the same uses medicinally as C. europæa (1st def.). [B, 19, 180 (a, 24).]—C. epithymum. 1. Of Smith, a species somewhat smaller than C. europæa, growing on heath, thyme, etc. It has the medicinal properties of C. europæa, but is said to be stronger, and was formerly official as herba epithymi (seu cuscutæ minoris). 2. Of Thuillier, see C. europæa (1st def.).—C. europæa. Fr., cuscute d'Europe (ou commune), agourre, angourre, angure de lin, barbe de moine, bourreau de lin, cheveux de Vénus, cheveux du diable, crémaillère, goutte de lin, lin de lèvre, lin maudit, rache, raisin barbu, rogne, ruble, teigne. Ger., gemeine Flachsseide, Nesselseide, Teufelszwirn, Vogelseide. Sp., cuscuta. 1. Of Linnæus, a species growing on thistles, nettles, oats, and other soft plants. It is a mild purgative and was formerly used in hepatic diseases, melancholia, etc. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).] 2. Of Lamarck, see C. epithymum (1st def.).—C. filiformis. See C. europæa (1st def.).—C. glomerata [Choisy]. A species abundant in Missouri, Illinois, and Iowa, found chiefly on the Compositæ. [B, 34 (a, 24).]—C. graveolens [Kunth]. A poisonous species found in South America, having a strong, disagreeable odor. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. major [De Candolle]. See C. europæa (1st def.).—C. minor. See C. epithymum (1st def.).—C. nimlata. A species the powdered herb of which is used as a vulnerary; the freshly expressed juice as a styptic and astringent in sore throat, abscesses, etc. [a, 22.]—C. racemosa [Martius]. A Brazilian species, used like C. umbellata. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. reflexa [Roxburgh]. An East Indian species, used by the natives as a blood-purifier and considered especially useful in bilious disorders. It is also used in skin diseases and sometimes in dyeing. [B, 172 (a, 24).]—C. rombut putru [Rumphius]. The Cassyta filiformis. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. surinamensis [Schilling]. See C. americana.—C. tenuiflora. A pale, much-branched species, growing in Illinois and other Western States, on Cephalanthus, Aster, and other plants. [B, 34 (a, 24).]—C. tetrandra, C. tubulosa. See C. europæa (1st def.).—C. thymi. See C. epithymum.—C. umbellata [Kunth]. A South American species, used in slight inflammation, sore throat, hoarseness, etc. A powder made from it is used in wounds. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. verrucosa. See C. reflexa.—C. vulgaris. 1. Of Persoon, see C. europæa (1st def.). 2. Of Presl, see C. epilinum.—Herba cuscutæ, Herba cuscutæ majoris. The herb of C. europæa of Linnæus. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—Herba cuscutæ minoris, Herba cuscutæ thymi. The herb of C. epithymum (1st def.).

CUSCUTACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku3s(ku4s)-ku2(ku4)-ta(ta3)'-se2(ke2)-e(a3-e2). 1. Of Lindley, an order of the Solanales, comprising Cuscuta and Lepidanche. 2. Of Pfeiffer, an order of plants consisting of Cuscuta, Epilinella, and Engelmannia. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CUSCUTACEOUS, adj. Ku3s-ku2-ta'shu3s. Fr., cuscutacé. Resembling the genus Cuscuta or belonging to the Cuscutaceæ. [a, 24.]

CUSCUTÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku3s(ku4s)'ku2(ku4)-te(ta3-e2). Of Gray, a section of the Convolvulaceæ, comprising Cuscuta and Cassytha. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CUSCUTEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku3s(ku4s)-ku2(ku4)'te2-e(a3-e2). Fr., cuscutées. 1. Of Presl and Bartling, an order of the Tubifloræ. 2. Of Lindley, an order of the Volvales. 3. Of Choisy, a section (of A. Gray, a tribe) of the Convolvulaceæ. 4. Of Desmoulins, a tribe of the Cuscutaceæ. They all consist of the single genus Cuscuta, except that of Desmoulins, who includes besides Cuscuta, the Epilinella and Monogynella. [B, 42, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CUSCUTIFORMIS (Lat.), adj. Ku3s(ku4s)-ku2(ku4)-ti2-fo2rm'-i2s. From cuscuta (q. v.), and forma, form. Having the form of a plant of the genus Cuscuta. [B.]

CUSCUTINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku3s(ku4s)-ku2(ku4)-ti(te)'ne-(na3-e2). Of Link, a suborder (of Koch, a tribe) of the Convolvulaceæ, consisting of Cuscuta. Of Garcke, a division of the Convolvulaceæ, consisting of Cuscuta and Cuscutina. [B. 170 (a, 24).]

CUSCUTINEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku3s(ku4s)-ku2(ku4)-ti2n'e2-e-(a3-e2). 1. Of Engelmann, the Cuscutaceæ of Lindley. 2. Of Desmoulins, a tribe of the Cuscutaceæ, consisting of Cassutha and Cuscuta. 3. Of Wood, a tribe of the Convolvulaceæ, consisting of Cuscuta. [B, 34, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CUSHAG, n. Ku4sh'a2g. The Senecio jacobæa. [A, 505.]

CUSHIA, n. Ku4sh'i2-a3. The Heracleum sphondylium. [A, 505.]

CUSHION, n. Ku4sh'u3n. Lat., culcita. Fr., coussinet. Ger., Kissen (1st and 2d def's), Polster (3d def.). It., cuscinetto. Sp., cojinete. 1. A soft, pillow-like structure. 2. In botany, an enlargement at the base of the petiole in certain plants; in the Mimosa it is the seat of irritable cells. [B, 1, 123, 229, 291 (a, 24).] 3. In anatomy, a collection of adipose or elastic tissue which relieves pressure upon subjacent tissues. [L.]—Adipose c. of the external ear. A deposit of fat which envelops the base of the concha of the ear of solipeds in front, inwardly, and posteriorly. [L, 13.]—Coronary c. In the solipeds, a dermal structure beneath the upper edge of the hoof, of which it is the matrix. [L, 13.]—C. of the epiglottis. The tubercle of the epiglottis. [C.]—C.-pink. See Sea-c.—Eve's c. The Saxifraga hypnoides. [A, 505.]—Ladies' c., Lady's c., Our Lady's c. The Saxifraga hypnoides, the Chrysosplenium oppositifolium, and the Lotus corniculatus. [A, 505.]—Plantar c. In the solipeds, a fibrous, somewhat wedge-shaped structure between the perforans tendon and the plantar portion of the hoof. [L, 13.]—Sea-c. The Armeria maritima. [A, 505.]—Stromeyer's c. A triangular and wedge-shaped c. 4 in. thick at the thickest end, from which point it gradually thins down for a length of 14 or 15 in. It is used for treating compound fractures of the arm, the elbow resting on the thick end, while the thin end rests upon the side of the chest. It is fastened in place by a tape around the neck and body, and when applied it supports the arm and keeps it in position. It may be further fitted with straps for holding the arm and forearm in position. [E.]

CUSHY-COWS, n. Ku4sh'i2-ku5-u4z. The Rumex obtusifolius. [A, 505.]

CUSICH, n. Of the Samucos Indians, the Orbignia phalerata. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CUSO, n. Ku'so. See KOUSSO.

CUSP, n. Ku3sp. Gr., ἄκρον. Lat., cuspis. 1. A pointed projection, as of the crown of a tooth. 2. A segment of a valve of the heart.

CUSPABAUM (Ger.), n. Kus'pa3-ba5-u4m. The Galipea cusparia. [B, 180 (a, 24).]

CUSPAIRE (Fr.). Ku6s-par. See CUSPARIA.

CUSPARÉ, CUSPAREE (Fr.), n's. Ku6s-pa3-ra. Old names for angustura-bark. [B, 173 (a, 24).]

CUSPARIA (Lat.), n. f. Ku3s(ku4s)-pa(pa3)'ri2-a3. Fr., cusparie, Bonplandie. Ger., Cusparabaum. The genus Galipea of Aublet. [B. 121 (a, 24).]—C.-bark. Lat., cuspariæ cortex [Br. Ph.], angustura [U. S. Ph., 1870]. Fr., angusture vraie [Fr. Cod.]. Ger., Angusturarinde. Sp., corteza de angostura. The bark of Galipea officinalis [Hancock] (Galipea c. [St.-Hilaire]). It occurs in flattish or channeled pieces, rarely in quills, generally less than 6 in. long, coated on the outer side with a yellowish-gray, corky layer. When broken, it displays on its transverse edge sharply defined white points, due to deposits of calcium oxalate. It has a bitter, pungent taste and a disagreeable musty odor, especially when fresh. It contains a volatile oil, bitter extractive, a hard and bitter resin, a soft resin, a caoutchouc-like substance, lignin, gum, and various salts. It is a stimulant tonic and in large doses purgative. It is said that the native practitioners of South America find it efficacious in malignant bilious intermittent fever, dysentery, and dropsy. [B, 5, 18 (a, 24).]—C. febrifuga, C. trifoliata. The Galipea c. [B, 5, 18, 180 (a, 24).]—Infusum cuspariæ [Br. Ph.]. Fr., tisane d'angusture. Ger., Angustura-Infusion. Syn.: infusum angusturæ [U. S. Ph., 1870]. Infusion of c.; made by infusing in a covered vessel for 2 hours ½ oz. of coarsely powdered c.-bark in 10 fl. oz. of distilled water and straining. [B, 81 (a, 21).]

CUSPARIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s)-pa^{2}r(pa^{3}r)-i(i^2)'e^2-e-(a^3-e^2). Fr., cuspariées. Of De Candolle (1822), a tribe of the Rutaceæ, consisting of Cusparia, Picorea, Galipea, Erythrochiton, and Diglottis. 2. Of Reichenbach, a section of the Diosmeæ, comprising the genera of De Candolle, also Spiranthera and Almeidea. 3. Of Bentham and Hooker, a tribe of the Rutaceæ, comprising Spiranthera, Almeidea, Leptothyrsa, Erythrochiton, Naudinia, Galipea, Ticorea, Ravenia, and Monnieria. [B, 42, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CUSPARIN, n. Ku^{3}s'pa^{2}r-i^{2}n. Fr., cusparine. Ger., C. A crystalline neutral substance obtained from angustura-bark. It melts at 45° C., is soluble in alcohol, soluble with difficulty in water, insoluble in ether. [B, 5, 18, 270 (a, 24).]

CUSPATED, CUSPED, CUSPID, CUSPIDAL, adj's. Ku^{3}sp'at-e^{2}d, ku^{3}spd, ku^{3}sp'i^{2}d, -i^{2}d-a^{2}l. See CUSPIDATE.

CUSPIDARIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s)-pi^{2}d-a^{2}r(a^{3}r)-i(i^2)'-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Jussieu, the Tricuspidarieæ of Endlicher. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CUSPIDATE, adj. Ku^{3}sp'i^{2}d-at. Lat., cuspidatus (from cuspis, a point). Fr., cuspidé. Ger., feingespitzt, langgespitzt. Having a pointed extremity. [B, 19, 123, 273 (a, 24).]

CUSPIDE (Fr.), n. Ku^{6}s-ped. See CUSP.

CUSPIDIFEROUS, adj. Ku^{3}sp-i^{2}d-i^{2}f'e^{2}r-u^{3}s. Lat., cuspidiferus (from cuspis, a point, and ferre, to bear). Fr., cuspidifère. Ger., spitztragend. See CUSPIDATE.

CUSPIDIFOLIUS (Lat.), adj. Ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s)-pi^{2}d-i^2-fol(fo^{2}l)'i^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From cuspis, a point, and folium, a leaf. Fr., cuspidifolié. Ger., spitzblättrig. Having cuspidate leaves. [L, 41.]

CUSPIDIFORMIS (Lat.), adj. Ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s)-pi^{2}d i^2-fo^{2}rm'i^{2}s. From cuspis, a point, and forma, form. Fr., cuspidiforme. Ger., spitzförmig. Having the form of a point. [L, 41.]

CUTIN, n. Ku^2'ti^{2}n. From cutis, skin. A modification of cellulose found in the walls of certain cells, chiefly on the exterior of plant organs rendering them impervious to water. [B, 229, 291 (a, 24).]

CUTINIZATION, n. Ku^2-ti^{2}n-i^{2}z-a'shu^{3}n. The formation of a cell-wall of cutin. [B, 229 (a, 24).]

CUTIO (Lat.), n. f. Ku^2(ku^4)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., cutio'nis. Fr., cution. See ASELLUS (2d def.).

CUTIS (Lat.), n. f. Ku^2(ku^4)'ti^{2}s. Gr., κύτος, δέρμα. Fr., peau. Ger., Haut. The skin, especially the derma; in botany, the peridium of puff-balls and certain other Fungi. [B. 19 (a, 24); L, 343.]—C. ærea. The bronze-like hue of the skin found in Addison's disease. [Ziegler (a, 18).]—C. anguillæ. The skin of an eel, the Muræna anguilla. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. anserina. Fr., peau ansérine, chair de poule. Ger., Gänsehaut. It., pelle d'oca. Sp., piel de gallina. "Goose-skin"; a transitory state of the skin in which, owing to spastic contraction of the arrector pili muscles (usually from chilling of the surface), the follicles become prominent and form visible projections. [G.] Cf. HORRIPILATION.—C. carnosa. See PANNICULUS carnosus.—C. externa, C. extima, C. extrema. See EPIDERMIS.—C. fucata. Painted skin; artificial coloring of the skin with cosmetics. [G, 11.]—C. gallinacea, C. horrida. See C. anserina.—C. laxa. See DERMATOLYSIS and MOLLUSCUM fibrosum.—C. linguæ. The mucous membrane covering the tongue. [L, 7.]—C. pendula. See DERMATOLYSIS and MOLLUSCUM fibrosum.—C. rugosa. A wrinkled state of the skin. Plenck describes three varieties, due, respectively, to laxity of the skin, to leprosy, and to old age. [G, 11.]—C. suilla. See *Buffy-*COAT.—C. summa, C. suprema. See EPIDERMIS.—C. tensa. See SCLERODERMIA.—C. testacea. See ICHTHYOSIS sebacea neonatorum.—C. ultima. See EPIDERMIS.—C. unctuosa. See SEBORRHŒA.—C. variegata. Maculation of the skin with spots of varying color. [G, 11.]—C. variegata a sugillatione. Ecchymosis attended with variegated discoloration. [G, 11.]—C. variegata morbosa. A disease of doubtful character, observed once by Plenck, in which the patient's face was green, the right side of the body black, and the left side yellow. [G, 11.]—C. variegata nativa. A form of maculation of the skin resembling the marks on a tiger; said to exist among the people of a certain race in Tartary. [G, 11.]—C. vera. See CORIUM (1st def.).—Horrida c. See C. anserina.

CUTISATION (Fr.), n. Ku6-te-za3-se-o3n2. The skin-like condition of hardness, thickness, and dryness acquired by a mucous membrane as the result of continued exposure, as in a state of eversion, inversion, or prolapse. [A, 301.]

CUTISECTOR (Lat.), n. m. Ku2(ku4)-ti2-se2k'to2r; in Eng., ku2'ti2-se2k-to2r. Gen., cutisector'is. From cutis, the skin, and sector, a cutter. Of H. G. Piffard, an instrument for cutting out sections of skin from the living subject for microscopical examination; a spring-catch thumb-forceps with expanded, fenestrated cutting blades capable of nice adjustment as to their degree of approximation. [E.]

CUTISPONGIUS (Lat.), adj. Ku2(ku4)-ti2-spo2n(spo2n2)'ji2(gi2)-u3s(u4s). For deriv., see CUTIS and SPONGE. Having a spongy cuticle (a botanical species name). [α, 24.]

CUTITIRIBA, n. In Brazil, the Lucuma rivicoa. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CUTITIS (Lat.), n. f. Ku2(ku4)-ti(te)'ti2s. Gen., cutit'idos (-is). Fr., cutite. See DERMATITIS.

CUTLEAF, n. Ku3t'lef. A popular name for various marine Algæ, such as the Fucus vesiculosus, the Fucus serratus, and the Laminaria digitata. [A, 505.]

CUTLERIACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku3t-lu6r-i2(a3)'se2(ke2)-e-(a3-e2). A family of fucoid Algæ. [B. 279; L, 73.]

CUTLERIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku3t-lu6r-i(i2)'e2-e(a3-e2). Of Zanardini, a tribe of the Antheridieæ (of Trevisan, a subtribe of the Dictyoteæ; of Thuret, a family of the Phæosporeæ), consisting of the genus Cutleria. [B, 121, 170 (α, 24).]

CUT-OFF, n. Ku3t'o2f. An appliance for obstructing the flow of gas or liquid through a rubber tube, as in a spray apparatus.

CUTOSE, n. Ku2'tos. The transparent film covering the aerial organs of plants. It is isomeric with cellulose, soluble in alkaline liquids, insoluble in concentrated sulphuric acid and in cuprammonia. [B, 229 (α, 24).]

CUTSCHULA, n. In the East, the Strychnos nux vomica. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CUTSFOOT, n. Ku3ts'fu4t. The Gnaphalium dioicum. [B, 88.]

CUTTING, n. Ku3t'i2n2g. The operation of making a cut.—C. on the gripe. See APPARATUS minor.

CUTTLE-BONE, n. Ku3t'l'bo3n. See Os SEPIÆ.

CUTTLE-FISH, n. Ku3t'l'fi2sh. See SEPIA officinalis.—C.-f. bone. See Os SEPIÆ.—C.-f. powder. Of Piesse, a preparation made by rubbing 1 part of carmin with 4 parts of ammonia-water diluted with 24 parts of water, imbuing 96 parts of powdered c.-f. bone and 192 parts of precipitated chalk with this solution, allowing the mixture to dry, and adding 96 parts of orris-root perfumed with 16 parts of oil of lemon and 8 parts of oil of neroli. ["Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," xxiii (α, 21).]

CUT-TOOTHED, adj. Lat., inciso-dentatus. Ger., eingeschnitten-gezähnt. In botany, slash-toothed (i. e., having teeth separated by acute incisions), said of leaves, as in the Alchemilla fissa. [B, 19, 123 (α, 24).]

CUTUBEA (Lat.), n. f. Ku2(ku)-tu2(tu)'be2-a3. See COUTOUBEA.

CUTUCANHEM, n. In Brazil, a variety of Roupala. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CUTUCHA. Ku2(ku)-tu2(tu)'ka3(ch2a3). Properly, CUTUBA. See DERMATOBIA.

CUVAGE (Fr.), n. Ku6-va3zh. The Polygonum hydropiper and, in the Antilles, the Commelyna zanonia. [L, 87 (α. 21).]

CUVE (Fr.). Ku6v'. A trough or vat.—C. hydrargyropneumatique. A pneumatic trough in which mercury is used in place of water. [L, 42.]—C. hydropneumatique. See Pneumatic TROUGH.

CUVE DE VÉNUS (Fr.), n. Ku6v d' va-nu6z. The Dipsacus fullonum. [B, 121, 173 (α, 14).]

CUVIERIADÆ [Gray] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Ku6-ve-ar-i(i2)'a2d(a3d)-e(a3-e2). A family of the Holothurida. [L, 303.]

CUVY, n. Ku2'vi2. The Laminaria digitata. [A, 505.]

CUXHAVEN (Ger.), n. Kux'ha3f-e2n. A sea-bathing resort at the mouth of the Elbe. [A, 319.]

CUYA, n. Of the Paunacos Indians, the Acrocomia tolai. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CYAMELIDE, n. Si-a2m'e2l-i2d(id). Fr., cyanamélide. Ger., Cyamelid, unlösliche Cyansäure. An amorphous, porcelain-like mass, polymeric with cyanic acid, into which it may be converted by great heat. It has no acid properties, is insoluble in water, in alcohol, in ether, and in dilute acids. Soluble in strong sulphuric acid with the aid of heat. [B, 4, 258, 270 (α, 24).]

CYAMELURATE, n. Si-a2m-e2l-u2'rat. A salt of cyameluric acid. [L, 73.]

CYAMELURIC ACID, n. Si-a2m-e2l-u2'ri2k. Fr., acide cyamélurique. Ger., Cyamelürsäure. An acid whose formula, $C_6N_7O_3H_3=$

$$(C_3N_3)\begin{cases}-OH\\-OH\\-N\end{cases}(C_3N_3-OH,$$

may be regarded as that of a double molecule of tricyanic (cyanuric) acid, in which 1 atom of nitrogen replaces 3 molecules of hydroxyl. It occurs under the form of white crystals. [B, 4 (α, 24).]

CYAMETHINE, n. Si-a2m-e2th-en. Fr., cyaméthine. Ger., Cyamethin. A crystallizable organic base, $C_6H_9N_3$, polymeric with methyl cyanide, homologous with cyanethine, produced by the action of acetyl chloride on potassium cyanate. [B, 2 (α, 24).]

CYAMIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku6)-a2m(a3m)'i2d-e(a3-e2). Fr., poux de baleine, cyamidées. A family of the Læmodipoda. [L, 275.]

CYAMIUM (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku6)-a(a3)'mi2-u3m(u4m). Ger., Hülsenkapsel. A legume-like follicle like that of Aquilegia, Helleborus, etc. [B, 119, 121, 123 (α, 24).]

CYAMOID, adj. Si'a2m-oid. From κύαμος, a bean, and εἶδος, resemblance. Fr., cyamoïde. Ger., bohnenähnlich. Of Fries, having the odor of the bean in flower. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CYAMOS (Lat.), CYAMUS (Lat.), n's m. Si(ku6)'a2m(a3m)-o2s, -u3s(u4s). Gr., κύαμος. Fr., cyame. 1. A bean. [A, 322, 325.] 2. See ASELLUS. 3. The nipple. [A, 387.] 4. The testicle. [A, 387.] 5. Of Theophrastus, the genus Nelumbium; of Pliny, the Egyptian bean (supposed to be Nelumbium speciosum). [B, 88, 116, 121 (α, 24).]—C. ægyptiacus. The C. of Pliny.

CYAN (Ger.), n. Tsu6-a3n'. See CYANOGEN.—C'cyan. Cyanogen gas. [α, 24.]

CYANACETIC ACID, n. Si-a2n-a3s-e'ti2k. Fr., acide cyanacétique. Ger., Cyanessigsäure. A cyanogen substitution compound of acetic acid, $CH_2(CN)-CO-OH=C_3O_2NH_3$. (B, 4 (α, 24).]

CYANACETYL, n. Si-a2n-a3s'e2t-i2l. See ACETYL isocyanide.

CYANÆMOCHROSIS (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-a2n(a3n)-e2m(a3-e2m)-o(o3)-kro(ch2ro)-si2s. Gen., cyanæmochros'eos (-is). From κυάνεος, blue, αἷμα, blood, and χρῶσις, a coloring. See CYANOSIS.

CYANAETHIN (Ger.), n. Tsu6-a3n-at-en'. See CYANETHINE.

CYANAETHOLIN (Ger.), n. Tsu6-a3n-at-ol-en'. See CYANETHOLINE.

CYANAETHYL (Ger.), n. Tsu6-a3n-at'u6l. See ETHYL cyanide.

CYANALDEHYDE, n. Si-a2n-a2l'de-hid. For deriv., see CYANOGEN and ALDEHYDE. A cyanogen substitution compound of acetic aldehyde. Monocyanaldehyde, $C_2H_3(CN)O$, formed by adding potassium cyanide to an aqueous solution of monochloraldehyde, is the only member of this class known. [B, 2.]

CYANALLYL, n. Si-a2n-a2l'i2l. A compound, C_4H_5N, prepared by the action of a cyanide on potassium myronate; a neutral, colorless liquid, with an agreeable, alliaceous odor and a burning, aromatic taste, boiling at 116° C. [B, 244 (α, 27).]

CYANAMEISENSÄURE (Ger.), n. Tsu6-a3n-a3m-i'ze2n-zoir-e2. See CYANFORMIC acid.

CYANAMÉLIDE (Fr.), n. Se-a3n-a3-ma-led. See CYAMELIDE.

CYANAMIDE, n. Si-a2n'a2m-i2d(id). Lat., cyanamidum. Fr., c. Ger., Cyanamid. Amide of cyanogen, $CN_2H_2=NH_2C\equiv N$, obtained by the action of ether and ammonia on cyanogen chloride. It forms colorless, readily soluble crystals which melt at 40° C. [B, 4 (α, 24).]

CYANAMIL, n. Si-a2n'a2m-i2l. Cinnamyl cinnamate. [B.]

CYANAMMON (Ger.), n. Tsu6-a3n-a3m-mon'. See AMMONIUM cyanide.

CYANANILIDE, n. Si-a2n-a2n'i2l-i2d(id). Fr., c. Ger., Cyananilid. An anilide of cyanic acid; aniline in which two atoms of hydrogen are replaced by the acid residue, CNH_{11}, of cyanic acid. It forms acicular crystals of the composition $N(C_6H_5):C:NH=C_7H_6N_2$. [B, 4 (α, 24).]

CYANANILINE, n. Si a2n-a2n'i2l-en. Fr., c. Ger., Cyananilin. A base, $(C_7H_7N_2)_2=H(C_6H_5)N\begin{smallmatrix}\diagdown\\ \diagup\!\!\diagup\end{smallmatrix}C-C\begin{smallmatrix}\diagup\!\!\diagup N\\ \diagdown NH(C_6H_5)H\end{smallmatrix}$, with $H.N$ below, forming colorless laminar crystals. [B, 4 (α, 24).]

CYANATE, n. Si'a2n-at. Lat., cyanas. Fr., c. Ger., Cyanat, cyansaures Salz. A salt of cyanic acid. [A, 301.]

CYANCHLORÜR (Ger.), n. Tsu6-a3n'ch2lor-u6r". Cyanogen chloride. [B.]—Festes C. See TRICYANOGEN.—Flüssiges c. Cyanogen chloride. [B.]

CYANDIPHENYL, n. Si-a^{2}n-di-fe^{2}n′i^{2}l. A cyanogen substitution product, $C_6H_5.C_6H_4.CN$, of diphenyl. It forms hard, colorless crystals, which melt at 84° or 85° C., and are insoluble in water, but easily soluble in alcohol. [B, 4, 158 (α, 24).]

CYANE (Fr.), n. Se-a^{3}n. 1. See CYANOGEN. 2. The genus Pneumonanthe. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CYANE (Ger.), n. Tsu^6-a^{3}n′e^2. The Centaurea cyanus. [B, 180 (α, 24).]

CYANEA (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku^6)-a(a^3)′ne^2-a^3. Gr., κυανεή (f. of adj. κύανεος [νόσος understood]). See CYANOSIS.

CYANEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku^6)-a(a^3)′ne^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Cassini, a section of the Jacineæ, comprising Melanoloma, Cyanus, Odontolophus, Lopholoma, Acrocephalus, Acrocentron, Hymenocentron, and Crocodilium. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CYANELLA [Linnæus] (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-e^{2}l′la^3. Fr., cyanelle. A genus of liliaceous herbs, referred by Bentham and Hooker to the Hæmodoraceæ, tribe Conanthereæ. [B, 19, 42 (α, 24).]—C. capensis. Fr., cyanelle du cap. A South African species. The root is eaten by the Hottentots. [B, 173 (α, 24).]

CYANELLUS (Lat.), adj. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-e^{2}l′lu^{3}s(lu^{4}s). Bluish. [L, 341.]

CYANEOUS, adj. Si-a^{2}n′e-u^{3}s. Lat., cyaneus. Fr., bleu pur. Ger., kornblumenblau, kornblau, berlinerblau, himmelblau. A clear bright blue. [B, 1, 19, 123 (α, 24).]

CYANEPHIDROSIS (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-e^{2}f-i^2-dro′si^{2}s. Gen., cyanephidros′eos (-is). From κυάνεος, blue, and εφίδρωσις, perspiration. Fr., cyanéphidrose. Ger., blauer Schweiss. A condition in which the perspiration is bluish. [L, 41.]

CYANESCENT, adj. Si-a^{2}n-e^{2}s′e^{2}nt. Bluish, turning blue. [α, 27.]

CYANETHINE, n. Si-a^{2}n-e^{2}th′en. Fr., cyanéthine. Ger., Cyanäthin. A base. $C_7H_{15}N_3=3(C_2H_5CN)$, a polymeride of ethyl cyanide, forming white foliate crystals; discovered by Kolbe and Frankland in 1847. [Walton, "Jour. of Physiol.," iii, 5–6, 1882, p. 349; B, 4 (α, 24).]

CYANETHOLINE, n. Si-a^{2}n-e^{2}th′o-len. Ger., Cyanätholin. Of Cloëz, true cyanate of ethyl, as distinguished from the pseudocyanate. [B.]

CYANETHYLAMIDE, n. Si-a^{2}n-e^{2}th-i^{2}l′a^{2}m-i^{2}d(id). Lat., cyanæthylamidum. Fr., cyanéthylamide. Ger., Cyanäthylamid. Ethyl cyanamide. [α, 24.]

CYANETUM (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-e(a)′tu^{3}m(tu^{4}m). See CYANIDE.—C. kalico-ferrosum [Netherl. Ph.]. Potassium ferrocyanide. [B, 95.]

CYANEUS (Lat.), adj. Si(ku^6)-a(a^3)′ne^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CYANEOUS.

CYANEUX (Fr.), adj. Se-a^{3}n-u^5. See CYANEOUS and CYANIC.

CYANFORMATE, n. Si-a^{2}n-fo^{2}rm′at. A salt of cyanformic acid. [B.]

CYANFORMIC, adj. Si-a^{2}n-fo^{2}rm′i^{2}k. For deriv., see CYANOGEN and FORMIC. Formic and containing cyanogen. [B.]—C. acid. Fr., acide cyanoformique. Ger., Cyanameisensäure. Syn.: cyancarbonic acid. A cyanogen substitution compound of formic acid, $(CN).CO.OH=C_2NHO_2$; a monobasic acid known only by its salts. [B, 3.]

CYANHÆMATIN, n. Si-a^{2}n-he^{2}m′a^{2}t-i^{2}n. From κυάνεος, blue, and αἷμα, blood. A compound prepared by adding potassic cyanide to an alkaline solution of hæmatin. [A, 27.]

CYANHARNSÄURE (Ger.), n. Tsu^6-a^{3}n-ha^{3}rn′zoir-e^2. Cyanuric acid. [A, 324.]

CYANHIDROSIS (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-hi^{2}d-ro′si^{2}s. See CYANEPHIDROSIS.

CYANHYDRATE, n. Si-a^{2}n-hi′drat. See HYDROCYANATE.

CYANHYDRIC, adj. Si-a^{2}n-hi′dri^{2}k. Lat., cyanhydricus. Fr., cyanhydrique. See HYDROCYANIC.

CYANHYDRIN, n. Si a^{2}n-hi′dri^{2}n. A derivative of one of the higher alcohols in which cyanogen replaces hydroxyl. [B.]

CYANIC, adj. Si-a^{2}n′i^{2}k. Lat., cyanicus. Fr., cyanique. Ger., cyanisch. 1. Blue. 2. Containing or pertaining to cyanogen. [α, 24.]—C. acid. Fr., acide cyanique. Ger., Cyansäure. A very volatile colorless liquid, HCNO=probably H — O — C≡N, of acetous odor and caustic properties. It is strongly acid in reaction, and forms a series of salts called cyanates. The isomeric pseudocyanic acid (see CARBOXYLIMIDE) is known only by its derivative, but polymeric forms have been isolated. [B, 4, 158, 270 (α, 24).] See TRICYANIC ACID and CYAMELIDE.—C. ether. Of Wöhler and Liebig, ethyl allophanate. [B, 2.] As now used, a cyanate of a compound radicle, especially ethyl cyanate. The pseudocyanic ethers were originally called c. ethers, their discovery antedating that of the normal cyanic ethers, which are the product of gaseous cyanogen chloride on the sodium alcoholates. [B, 158 (α, 24).]—C. series. Of De Candolle, plants exhibiting some modification of a blue coloration. [B, 104 (α, 24).]

CYANICUS (Lat.), adj. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)′i^{2}k-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Cyanic; with the name of a base, the cyanate of the base. [B.]

CYANIDE, n. Si-a^{2}n-i^{2}d(id). Lat., cyanidum. Fr., cyanure. Ger., Cyanür, Cyanid. It., cianuro. Sp., cianido. A compound of cyanogen with a metal or a compound radicle. The general formula of the c's is $R_n(C\equiv N)_n$ (formed from true cyanogen), although others, the isocyanides, have the composition $(C\equiv N)_nR_n$, being derived from isocyanogen, R_n in the formulæ denoting a radicle of the atomicity n. The c's, as a class, are active poisons and frequently, from their strong affinity for oxygen, act as powerful reducing agents. [B, 158 (α, 24).]

CYANIDROSIS (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-i^{2}d-ro′si^{2}s. See CYANEPHIDROSIS.

CYANIDUM (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)′i^{2}d-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). See CYANIDE.—C. hydricum. See HYDROCYANIC acid.

CYANIFERRURET, n. Si-a^{2}n-i^2-fe^{2}r′u^{2}r-e^{2}t. Fr., cyaniferrure. See FERRICYANIDE.

CYANILIC ACID, n. Si-a^{2}n-i^{2}l′i^{2}k. See CYANYLIC ACID.

CYANILINE, n. Si-a^{2}n′i^{2}l-en. See CYANANILINE.

CYANINE, n. Si′a^{2}n-en. Fr., c. Ger., Cyanin. A blue dyestuff which crystallizes in tables of a fine beetle-green lustre, soluble in alcohol. The c's are derived by heating the amyl-iodide compound of the quinoline bases with potash.

CYANITE, n. Si′a^{2}n-it. Lat., cyanis. Fr., c. Ger., Cyanit. 1. A salt of cyanic acid. [A, 301.] 2. A native basic aluminium silicate, $Al_2O_3SiO_3$. [B, 158 (α, 24).]—C. ammonique (Fr.). Urea. [B, 119 (α, 21).]

CYANJODID (Ger.), n. Tsu^6-a^{3}n′yo-ded. See CYANOGEN iodide.

CYANMETHINE, n. Si-a^{2}n-me^{2}th′en. See CYAMETHINE.

CYANMETHYL (Ger.), n. Tsu^6-a^{3}n-mat′u^{6}l. See ACETONITRIL.

CYANO-ANÉMIQUE (Fr.), adj. Se-a^3-no-a^3-na-mek. Pertaining to anæmia and cyanosis. [P. Duroziez, "Union méd.," Sept. 4, 1888, p. 313.]

CYANOBENZENE, n. Si-a^{2}n-o-benz′en. See BENZONITRIL.

CYANOCARBONATE, n. Si-a^{2}n-o-ka^{3}rb′o^{2}n-at. See CYANFORMATE.

CYANOCARBONIC ACID, n. Si-a^{2}n-o-ka^{3}rb-o^{2}n′i^{2}k. Ger., Cyanocarbonsäure. See CYANFORMIC acid.

CYANOCARPUS (Lat.), adj. Si(ku^6)″a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-o(o^2)-ka^{3}rp′u^{3}s-(u^{4}s). From κυάνεος, blue, and καρπός, a fruit. Fr., cyanocarpe. Ger., blaufruchtig. Having blue or bluish fruit. [L, 41.]

CYANOCEPHALUS (Lat.), adj. Si(ku^6)″a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-o(o^3)-se^{2}f-(ke^{2}f)′a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Fr., cyanocéphale. Ger., blauköpfig. Having a blue head. [L, 341.]

CYANOCHLOROUS, adj. Si″a^{2}n-o-klor′u^{3}s. From κύανος, a bluish color, and χλωρός, green. 1. Bluish-green. 2. Containing cyanogen and chlorine. [α, 27.]

CYANOCHROIA (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-o(o^3)-kro(ch^{2}ro^3)′-i^2-a^3. From κυάνεος, blue, and χροιά, the skin. Cyanosis. [G.]

CYANOCHROME, n. Si′a^{2}n-o-krom. A substance, $Cu''K_2(SO_4)_2+6$ aq., found in the lava of Vesuvius. [B, 2 (α, 24).]

CYANOCHROUS (Lat.), adj. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-o^{2}k(o^{2}ch^2)′ro(ro^2)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κυάνεος, blue, and χροός (gen. of χρώς), color. Having a blue skin. [B, 19 (α, 21).]

CYANOCOLLIS (Lat.), adj. Si(ku^6)″a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-o(o^2)-ko^{2}l′li^{2}s. From κυάνεος, blue, and collum, the neck. Fr., cyanocolle. Ger., blauhalsig. Having a blue neck or corselet. [L, 41, 180.]

CYANO-CONJUGUÉ (Fr.), adj. Se-a^3-no-ko^{3}n^2-zhu^6-ga. Containing cyanogen as an associated radicle. [B, 38.]

CYANOCUMIDINE, n. Si-a^{2}n-o-ku^{2}m′i^{2}d-en. An artificial alkaloid, $C_{20}H_{26}N_4$, formed by the action of cyanogen chloride on cumidine. [A, 1.]

CYANODERMA (Lat.), CYANODERMIA (Lat.), n′s n. and f. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-o(o^3)-du^{6}rm(de^{2}rm)′a^3, -i^2-a^3. From κυάνεος, blue, and δέρμα, the skin. See CYANOSIS.

CYANOFERRATE (Fr.), n. Se-a^3-no-fe^{2}r-ra^{2}t. See FERROCYANIDE.

CYANOFERRUM (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-o(o^2)-fe^{2}r′ru^{3}m-(ru^{4}m). Fr., cyanoferre. Ger., Cyaneisen. Of Gay-Lussac, a supposed radicle consisting of iron and cyanogen. [B. 3.]

CYANOFERRURETUM (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku^6)″a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-o(o^2)-fe^{2}r-ru^2(ru^4)-re(ra)′tu^{3}m(tu^{4}m). Fr., cyanoferrure. See FERROCYANIDE.

CYANOFORM, n. Si-a^{2}n′o-fo^{2}rm. Fr., cyanoforme. A compound, $CH(CN)_3$, formed by heating chloroform with cyanide of potassium or of silver and a little alcohol. It forms small white acicular crystals of a disagreeable odor. [B, 2 (α, 24).]

CYANOFORMATE (Fr.), n. Si-a^{2}n-o-fo^{2}rmat. See CYANFORMATE.

CYANOFORMIC ACID, n. Si-a^{2}n-o-fo^{2}rm′i^{2}k. See CYANFORMIC.

CYANOGASTER (Lat.), adj. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-o(o^3)-ga^{2}s(ga^{3}s)′-tu^{6}r(tar). From κυάνεος, blue, and γαστήρ, the belly. Fr., cyanogastre. Ger., blaubauchig. Having a blue abdomen. [L, 41.]

CYANOGEN, n. Si-a^{2}n′o-je^{2}n. Lat., cyanogenium (from κύανος, a bluish color, and γεννᾶν, to engender). Fr., cyanogène. Ger., Cyan. It., cianogeno. Sp., cianógeno. A compound radicle, usually univalent, consisting of an atom of carbon and one of nitrogen united together. Symbol, CN or Cy. In its chemical relations it is analogous to bromine, chlorine, and iodine. There are several isomeric varieties of c. depending upon the mode of connection of the elements: 1. True c., or carbonitrile, C≡N, in which the free bond is attached to the carbon atom; the nitrogen, however, may be a pentad, and then there result trivalent compounds of the formula – C≡N =. 2. Isocyanogen, or carbammonium, C≡N –, in which the free bond is attached to the nitrogen, which is here a pentad. 3. Pseudocyanogen, a trivalent radicle, = C = N –. In the free state c. consists of a double molecule, C_2N_2. See C. gas. [B, 4, 158, 270 (α, 24).]—C. bromide. Fr., bromure de cyanogène. Ger., Bromcyan, Cyanbromür. It., bromuro di cianogeno. Sp., bromuro de cianógeno. A compound of c. and bromine, CNBr = Br—C≡N, occurring as colorless cubical or acicular volatile crystals, which are very poisonous. [B, 4, 158 (α, 24).]—C. chloride. Fr., chlorure de cyanogène. Ger., flüssiges Chlorcyan Cyanchlorür. It., cloruro di cianogeno. Sp., cloruro de cianógeno. A compound of c. and chlorine, CNCl = Cl—C≡N; a mobile liquid, crystalliz-ing at 6° C. and boiling at 15·5° C. Its vapor is acrid and highly poisonous. [B, 4, 158 (α, 24).]—C. gas. Dicyanogen, $C_2N_2 = N \equiv C - C \equiv N$. A colorless inflammable gas, of a peculiar almond odor, obtained by heating mercuric cyanide. It may be condensed into a thin, colorless liquid by exposing it to a pressure of 3·6 atmospheres, at a temperature of 7·20° C. Water dissolves 4 or 5 times its volume of c. gas, and alcohol a still larger quantity. [B, 158 (α, 24).]—C. disulphydrate. Ger., Rubeanewasserstoff. A union of c. gas with hydrogen sulphide, forming red acicular crystals, $C_2N_2 + 2H_2S = {}^{H}_{SH}\!\!>\!N \equiv C - C \equiv N\!<^{H}_{SH}$. [B, 4 (α, 24).]—C. iodide. Fr., iodure de cyanogène. Ger., Jodcyan, Cyanjodid. It., ioduro di cianogeno. Sp., yoduro de cianógeno. A product of the compound of iodine with c., $I - C \equiv N$, forming colorless acicular crystals. It sublimes with a strong odor, and is very poisonous. [B, 4 (α, 24).]—C. monosulphydrate. Ger., Flaveanwasserstoff. A compound of dicyanogen and hydric sulphide, forming yellow crystals, $C_2N_2H_2S$. [B, 4 (α, 24).]—C. sulphide. Fr., sulfure de cyanogène. Ger., Cyansulfür, Schwefelcyan. It., solfuro di cianogeno. Sp., sulfuro de cianógeno. A compound of dicyanogen and sulphur, obtained in transparent, volatile, rhombic tabular crystals, C_2N_2S. It has a powerful odor, melts at 60° C., and is soluble in ether, in alcohol, and in water. [B, 158 (α, 24).]—Liquid c. chloride. Ger., flüssiges Cyanchlorür. See C. chloride. —Solid c. chloride. Ger., festes Cyanchlorür. See TRICYANOGEN.

CYANOGYNUS (Lat.), adj. Si(ku6)-a2n(a3n)-o2j(o2g)'i2n(u6n)-u3s(u4s). From κυάνεος, blue, and γυνή, a female. Fr., cyanogyne. Ger., blaugriffelig. Having blue pistils. [L, 41.]

CYANOHYDRIC, adj. Si-a2n-o-hid'ri2k. See HYDROCYANIC.

CYANOIDES (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-a2n(a3n)-o(o3)-i(e)'dez(das). The genus Centaurea. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CYANOIL, n. Si-a2n'o-i2l. Fr., cyanoïle. A volatile oil, $C_6H_{11}NO$, formed during the fermentation of almond-cake and from fruits containing prussic acid; colorless, with an odor of bitter almonds; pungent and astringent to the taste; insoluble in water. [B, 2 (α, 24).]

CYANOL, n. Si'a2n-o2l. Lat., cyanoleum. Fr., cyanole. See ANILINE.

CYANOMELAMINE, n. Si-a2n-o-me2l'a2m-en. An artificial alkaloid, $C_{16}H_{13}N_6$, formed by the action of cyanogen chloride on melaniline. [A, 1.]

CYANONE, n. Si'a2n-on. A compound formed when coal-gas containing carbon disulphide is passed into a solution of mercuric cyanide. [B, 270 (α, 27).]

CYANOPATHY, n. Si-a2n-o2p'a2th-i2. Lat., cyanopathia (from κυάνεος, blue, and παθός, disease). Fr., cyanopathie. See CYANOSIS.

CYANOPHILOUS, adj. Si-a2n-o2f'i2l-u3s. From κυάνεος, blue, and φιλεῖν, to love. Fr., cyanophile. Ger., cyanophil. Having an elective affinity for a blue staining agent. [Sahli, "Ztsch. d. wiss. Mikr.," 1885 (J).]

CYANOPHYCEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku6)-a2n(a3n)-o(o3)-fi2s-(fu6k)'e2-e(a3-e2). Of Sachs, a subclass (of Bessey and Bastin, a class) of the Protophyta (of Bastian and others, a subclass of the Schizophyta), comprising the orders Chroococcaceæ and Nostocaceæ, and, according to Bessey, also the Oscillatoriaceæ and Rivulariaceæ. [B, 77, 291 (B).]

CYANOPHYLL, n. Si-a2n'o-fi2l. From κύανεος, blue, and φύλλον, a leaf. Fr., cyanophylle. Ger., Cyanophyll. The bluish-green pigment obtained by Frémy and by Kraus by acting on an alcoholic solution of chlorophyll with benzene. [B, 229 (α, 24).]

CYANOPYRA (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-a2n(a3n)-o2p'i2(u6)-ra3. From κυάνεος, blue, and πῦρ, fever. Fr., cyanopyre. Ger., Blaufieber. The febris cærulea of Gölis. [A, 322.]

CYANOSE (Fr., Ger.), n. Se-a3-noz, tsu6-a3n-oz'e2. See CYANOSIS.—C. blanche (Fr.). Of J. Simon, a condition of pallor, notwithstanding the admixture of arterial and venous blood due to patency of the foramen ovale. ["Rev. mens. des mal. de l'enfance," Apr., 1888, p. 151 (α, 18).]

CYANOSED, adj. Si'a2n-osd. Fr., cyanosé. Affected with cyanosis. [A, 301.]

CYANOSIN, n. Si-a2n'o-si2n. See EOSIN.

CYANOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-a2n(a3n)-os'i2s. Gen., cyanos'eos (-is). Gr., κυάνωσις. Fr., cyanose, ictère bleu. Ger., Cyanose, Blausucht. It., cianosi, cianopatia, itterizia bleu. Sp., cianosis, cianopatía. Syn.: blue jaundice, cyanopathy, hæmatocyanosis, hæmatocyanopathia, kyanosis, morbus (seu icterus) cœruleus. 1. A bluish coloration of the skin from defective aeration of the blood, either temporary, as in asphyxia, collapse, etc., or permanent, as in the subjects of some malformation of the heart, especially persistent patency of the foramen ovale. [A, 301.] 2. Of Naumann, lividity of the face from venous plethora. [A, 322.]

CYANOSPERMIA (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-a2n(a3n)-o(o3)-spu3rm-(spe2rm)'i2-a3. From κυάνεος, blue, and σπέρμα, seed. Fr., cyanospermie. Ger., Cyanospermie. A condition in which the semen has a bluish tinge, apparently due to the presence of indigo. [Ultzmann (A, 326); O. Guelliot, "Ann. des mal. des org. gén.-urin.," May, 1886, p. 294.]

CYANOSULFURE (Fr.), n. Se-a3-no-su6l-fu6r. See THIOCYANIDE.

CYANOTIC, adj. Si-a2n-o2t'i2k. Lat., cyanoticus. Fr., cyanotique. Ger., cyanotisch. It., cianotico. Sp., cianótico. Pertaining to or of the nature of cyanosis. [D.]

CYANOTIS (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-a2n(a3n)-ot'i2s. Gen., cyanot'idos (-is). Fr., cyanotise, cyanotide. Of Don, a genus of the Commelynaceæ. [B, 121 (α, 24).]—C. axillaris. A plant growing in the East Indies; an infusion is used in tympanites. [α, 22.]

CYANOTOLUDINE, n. Si-a2n-o-to2l'u2-den. An artificial alkaloid, $C_{16}H_{18}N_4$, formed by the action of cyanogen chloride on toluidine. [A, 1.]

CYANOTOLUENE, n. Si-a2n-o-to2l'u2-en. Ger., Cyantolvol. Toluonitril, a compound of the formula $C_6H_4(CN)CH_3$. There are three isomeric modifications: orthoc', a colorless liquid with the odor of nitrobenzene, boiling at about 204° C.; parac', forming acicular needles which melt at about 28° C.; and metac', not yet obtained in the pure state. [B, 4, 158 (α, 24).]

CYANOTYPE, n. Si-a2n'o-tip. From κυάνεος, blue, and τύπος, a stamp. A blue print; in photography, a positive made by exposing paper impregnated with ferricyanide of potassium to the action of light under a negative. [L.]

CYANOURIN, n. Si-a2n-u'ri2n. See CYANURIN.

CYANPYRIDINE, n. Si-a2n-pi2r'i2d-en. Fr., cyanopyridine. Ger., Cyanpyridin. A cyanogen substitution compound of pyridine, $C_5H_4(CN)N = C_6H_4N_2$. It forms colorless crystals, melting at 48° to 49°. [B, 79.]

CYANSAUER (Ger.), adj. Tsu6-a3n'za3-u4-e2r. Pertaining to cyanic acid; with the name of a base, the cyanate of the base.—Cyansaures Salz. A cyanate.

CYANSÄURE (Ger.), n. Tsu6-a3n'zoir-e2. Cyanic acid. [α, 24.]—Normale C. See CYANIC acid.—Unlösliche C. See CYAMELIDE.

CYANURAMIDE, n. Si-a2n-u2'ra2m-i2d(id). Lat., cyanuramidum. Fr., c. An amide derived from cyanuric acid. Three such derivatives are known: ammeline, ammelide, and melamine. The last is the compound usually known as c. [B, 158 (α, 24).]

CYANURATE, n. Si-a2n-u2'rat. Fr., c. Ger., cyanursaures Salz. A salt of cyanuric acid. [L, 41 (α, 14).]

CYANURDIAMIC, adj. Si-a2n-u2r-di-a2m'i2k. Having the nature of a diamide and derived from cyanuric acid. [α, 24.]—C. acid. See AMMELINE.

CYANÜR (Ger.), CYANURE (Fr.), n's. Tsu6-a3n-u6r', se-a3n-u6r. See CYANIDE.—Cyanure ferroso-potassique [Fr. Cod.]. Ferrocyanide of potassium. [B, 113 (α, 21).]

CYANUREA, n. Si-a2n-u2-re'a3. Fr., cyanurée. Ger., Cyanharnstoff. It., cianurea. Sp., cianúrea. An amorphous, yellowish substance, $C_2H_3N_3O = CO.(NH_2)(N.H.CN)$, formed by heating urea with cyanogen iodide. [B, 2.]

CYANURENIC, adj. Si-a2n-u2-re2n'i2k. Fr., cyanurénique. See CYANURIC.

CYANURET, n. Si-a2n'u2-re2t. See CYANIDE.

CYANURETUM (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku6)-a2n(a3n)-u2(u4)-re(ra)'-tu3m(tu4m). See CYANIDE.—C. ferrico-potassicum. See POTASSIUM ferrocyanide.—C. ferroso-ferricum [Fr. Cod.]. Ferroso-ferric cyanide; ferrocyanide of iron. [B.]—C. ferroso-potassicum [Fr. Cod.]. Ferroso-potassic cyanide; ferrocyanide of potassium. [B.]—C. ferroso-quinicum [Fr. Cod.]. Hydroferrocyanide of quinine. [B.]—C. hydrargyricum [Fr. Cod.]. Mercury cyanide. [B.]—C. kalium, C. potassicum. See POTASSIUM cyanide.—C. zincicum [Fr. Cod.]. Zinc cyanide. [B.]

CYANURIC, adj. Si-a2n-u2'ri2k. Fr., cyanurique. Ger., cyanursauer. It., cianurico. Sp., cianúrico. Resembling or containing cyanurea. [α, 24.]

CYANURIN, n. Si-a2n-u2'ri2n. Lat., cyanurinum. Fr., cyanurine. Ger., Harnblau. A dark-blue coloring matter found occasionally in urine containing indican. [α, 27.]

CYANURMONAMIC, adj. Si-a2n-u2r-mo2n-a2m'i2k. Having the nature of a monamide, and derived from cyanuric acid. [α, 24.]—C. acid. See AMMELIDE.

CYANUS (Lat.), adj. Si(ku6)'a2n(a3n)-u3s(u4s). Gr., κύανος. Blue; as a n., a section of the genus Centaurea. [B, 42, 121 (α, 24).] —C. ægyptiacus. The Nelumbium speciosum [B, 180 (α, 24).] —C. arvensis, C. cærulea, C. major. See CENTAUREA c.—C. nelumbo. The Nymphæa nelumbo. [α, 24.]—C. segetum, C. vulgaris. See CENTAUREA c.—Flores cyani. The flowers of Centaurea cyanus. [B, 180 (α, 21).]

CYANWASSERSTOFFSÄURE (Ger.), n. Tsu6-a3n'va3s-se2r-sto3f-zoir-e2. Hydrocyanic acid. [α, 24.]—C.-amylester. See AMYL hydrocyanic ether.—C'äther, C. Aethylester. Ethyl cyanide. [B, 48.]

CYANYL, n. Si'a2n-i2l. A colorless, very poisonous liquid, smelling like hydrocyanic acid, obtained by oxidizing aloes with nitric acid. It is heavier than water, in which it is insoluble, and volatilizes at a high temperature without decomposition. [α, 27.]

CYANYLIC ACID, n. Si-a2n-i2l'i2k. Fr., acide cyanylique. Ger., Cyanylsäure. Tricyanic acid, obtained by dissolving mellone in boiling nitric acid. [B, 2 (α, 24).]

CYAPHENINE, n. Si-a2f'e2n-en. Ger., Cyaphenin. A compound, C_7H_5N, obtained by heating potassium cyanate with benzene chloride. [B, 2 (α, 24).]

CYAR (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku6)'a3r. Gen., cy'atos. Gr., κύαρ. Of Hippocrates, the eye of a needle; of Pollux, the internal auditory meatus. [A, 325.]

CYATHAXONIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku6)-a2th(a3th)-a2x-(a3x)-o2n'i2d-e(a3-e2). A family of the Rugosa. [α, 121.]

CYATHEA (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-a2th(a3th)-e(a)'a3. Gr., κυάθειον, a little cup. Fr., cyathée. Of Smith, a genus of arborescent ferns of the Cyatheaceæ. [B, 19, 121 (α, 24).]—C. affinis [Swartz]. See C. medullaris.—C. angustata [Smith]. The Cystopteris fragilis, var. dentata. [B, 242.]—C. arborea. Syn.: Polypodium arboreum. A poisonous South American species. The fronds are used as a pectoral, and the root as a demulcent and diuretic. [B, 138 (α, 24); B, 173, 249.]—C. dealbata [Swartz]. A species indigenous to

New Zealand. The pulp of the stem is eaten by the natives. [B, 19 (a, 24).]—C. elegans. A variety of C. arborea. [B, 138, 249.]—C. excelsa [Swartz]. A species indigenous to the Isle of France. The natives eat the pulp of the stem. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. extensa. See C. medullaris.—C. fragilis. The Cystopteris fragilis. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. grevilleana. See C. arborea.—C. medullaris [Swartz]. The Aspidium furcatum. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. mertensiana. A variety of C. medullaris. [B, 242.]—C. minor. See C. arborea.—C. orientalis. The Cystopteris fragilis. [B, 242.]—C. Rumphii. The C. arborea [B, 88 (a, 24).]—C. Smithii. A plant found in Sumatra, Timor, and Amboina, the wooly masses of which, under the microscope, prove to be composed of long hairy threads, containing no visible air-cells. The cellular tissue is smooth and glistening and has chemically the composition of cork. ["Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," xxii (a, 21).]

CYATHEACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}th(a^{3}th)-e^2-a(a^3)'-se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cyathéacées. 1. Of Reichenbach, a subdivision of the Polypodiaceæ indusiatæ, comprising Alsophila, Chnoophora, Hemitelia, and Cyathea. 2. Of Kunze, an order of the Filices, comprising the Cyatheoideæ and Trichonanoideæ (of Matten, comprising Cibotium, Balantium, Thyrsopteris, Alsophila, Hemitelia, Cyathea, and Mattonia). 3. Of Endlicher, a suborder of the Polypodiaceæ, comprising Thyrsopteris, Hemitelia, Alsophila, Cyathea, and Mattonia. 4. According to others, a class of ferns comprising Cyathea, Eatoniopteris, Disphenia, Schizocœna, Fourneia, Hemistegia, Amphidesmium, Trichopteris, Alsophila, Dichorexia, and Lophosoria. [B, 19, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYATHEACEOUS, adj. Si-a^{2}th-e-a'shu^{2}s. Fr., cyathéace. Resembling the genus Cyathea or belonging to the Cyathaceæ. [a, 24.]

CYATHEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}th(a^{3}th)-e(a)'e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cyathées. 1. Of Gray, a division of ferns comprising Woodsia, Trichomanes, Hymenophyllum, subsequently a subtribe of the Polypodiaceæ, comprising Cyathea, Hemitelia, Alsophila, Woodsia, and Chnoophora. 2. Of Lindley, a class comprising Thyrsopteris, Schizochlœna, Hemitelia, Cnemidaria, Alsophila, Haplophlebia, Dicranophlebia, Metaxya, Trichopteris, Arachniodes, Gymnosphæra, Cyathea, Schizocœna, Disphenia, Cnemidaria, and Mattonia. 3. Of J. Smith, a tribe of the Polypodiaceæ, comprising the sections Cyatheæ, Gleicheniaceæ, Osmundaceæ, Marattiaceæ, and Ophioglosseæ. [B, 170 (a, 24).] 4. Of Hooker, a tribe of ferns (Polypodiaceæ) comprising Thyrsopteris, Cyathea, Hemitelia, Alsophila, Dicalpe, and Mattonia. [B, 249.] Cf. CYATHEACEÆ.

CYATHEINEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}th(a^{3}th)-e^2(a)-i^{2}n'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). See CYATHINÆ.

CYATHIDEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}th(a^{3}th)-i^{2}d'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cyathidées. 1. Of Léveillé, a tribe of the Ectotheci, comprising the sections Cyttaria, Pezizei, Argriei, Cenangiei, and Stictei. 2. Of Gray, a division of the Gasteromycetes, consisting of the genus Cyathus. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYATHIFORM, adj. Si-a^{2}th'i^2-fo^{2}rm. See CYATHOID.

CYATHINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}th(a^{3}th)-i(e)'ne(na^3-e^2). Of Batsch, an order of the Monopetalæ, comprising the Primulariæ, and Anagallideæ. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYATHISCOS (Lat.), CYATHISCUS (Lat.), n's. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}th-(a^{3}th)-i^{2}sk'o^{2}s, -u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κυάθισκος. Fr., cyathisque. 1. A small cup or glass. 2. The scoop-like extremity of a probe. 3. An aural curette. [A, 322, 325.]

CYATHIUM (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}th(a^{3}th)'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). A little goblet or cup. [a, 22.]

CYATHOCRINIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}th(a^{3}th)-o(a^3)-kri^{2}n'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cyathocrinides. A family of Crinoidea. [L, 87.]

CYATHOID, adj. Si'a^{2}th-oid. Gr., κυαθώδης (from κύαθος, a cup, and εἶδος, resemblance). Fr., cyathoïde. Ger., becherförmig. Cup-shaped.

CYATHOIDEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}th(a^{3}th)-o(o^3)-i^{2}d(ed)'-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cyathoidées. Of Reichenbach, a subdivision of the Amphibolocarpæ, corresponding to the Cyatheoideæ of Kunze. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYATHOLITH, n. Si-a^{2}th'o-li^{2}th. From κύαθος, a cup, and λίθος, a stone. Fr., cyatholithe. Of Huxley, a coccolith having the shape of two cups placed base to base. [A, 301.]

CYATHOPHORUS (Lat.), adj. Si(ku^6)-a^{2}th(a^{3}th)-o^{2}f'o^{2}r-u^{3}s-(u^{4}s). From κύαθος, a cup, and φορεῖν, to bear. Fr., cyathophore. Ger., bechertragend. Having cup-like excavations. [L, 41.]

CYATHOS (Lat.), n. m. Si(ku^6)'a^{2}th(a^{3}th)-o^{2}s. See CYATHUS.

CYATHOZOOID, n. Si-a^{2}th-o-zo'oid. From κύαθος, a cup, ζῶον, an animal, and εἶδος, resemblance. Of Huxley, a rudimentary zooid formed from the posterior part of the blastoderm of the Tunicata. From it is given off a stolon on which arise 4 ascidiozooids, that gradually surround the c., which eventually disappears, its place being occupied by the general cavity of the animal. [L, 11, 201.]

CYATHUS (Lat.), n. m. Si(ku^6)'a^{2}th(a^{3}th)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κύαθος. 1. An ancient measure for liquids and solids. 2. A cup for receiving the blood in venesection. 3. A genus of Fungi, commonly called bird's-nest Peziza. 4. The cup-shaped receptacle of the spores of Marchantia. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]

CYATOLYTH, n. Si'a^{2}t-o-li^{2}th. Ger., C., Doffelscheibe. See CYATHOLITH.

CYBE (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku^6)'be(ba). Gen., cyb'es. Gr., κυβη. The head, also any round, hollow object. [A, 325.]

CYBELLION (Fr.), n. Se-be^{2}l-le-o^{3}n^2. The Viola odorata. [L, 87, 105.]

CYBISTAX (Lat.), n. Si^{2}b-i^{2}s'ta^{2}x. 1. A tumbler: one who turns a somersault. 2. A genus of Bignoniaceæ. [B, 19.]—C. antisyphilitica. A Brazilian species the bark of which is used in syphilis externally and internally. It is also employed in dropsy, dysuria, and liver complaints. The leaves furnish a blue dye. [B, 19, 121, 270 (a, 24).]

CYBITON (Lat.), CYBITOS (Lat.), n's n. and m. Si^{2}b(ku^{6}b)'-i^{2}t-o^{2}n, -o^{2}s. See CUBITUS.

CYBIUM (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}b(ku^{6}b)'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Gr., κυβίον. A genus of the Scombridæ (the mackerels). [L, 207.]

CYBOIDES (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}b(ku^{6}b)-o(o^2)-i(e)'dez(das). See CUBOID.

CYCADACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-a(a^3)'se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). For deriv., see CYCAS. Fr., cycadacées. 1. Of Lindley, the Cycadeæ of Richard. 2. Of Reichenbach, a family of the Anægopterides, comprising the divisions Ophioglosseæ, Zamieæ, and Cycadeæ. 3. Of Endlicher, an order of the Zamieæ, comprising Cycas, Encephalartos, Palæozamia, Zamites, Pterophyllum, Nilsonia, Cycadites, Mantellia, and Hauffia. 4. Of Eichler, a family divided into the tribes Cycadeæ and Zamieæ. [B, 19, 34, 121, 170, 279 (a, 24).]

CYCADACEOUS, adj. Si^{2}k-a^{2}d-a'shu^{3}s. Lat., cycadaceus. Fr., cyadacé. Resembling the genus Cycas or belonging to the Cycadaceæ. [L, 73.]

CYCADEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-a(a^3)'de^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cycadées. 1. Of Reichenbach, a class of plants (between palms and ferns) comprising Cycas and Zamia. 2. Of R. Brown, an order of monocotyledons, comprising the genera of Reichenbach, and subsequently an order allied to the Coniferæ, with the same genera. 3. Of Richard, an order of the Synorrhizæ, comprising the same genera. 4. Of De Candolle, an order of the Endogenæ. 5. Of Eichler, a subdivision of the Cycadaceæ, consisting of the genus Cycas. [B, 121, 170, 180 (a, 24).]

CYCADIFORM, adj. Si^{2}k-a^{2}d'i^2-fo^{2}rm. See CYCADACEOUS.

CYCADINÆ (Lat.), CYCADINEÆ (Lat.), n's f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-i(e)'ne(na^3-e^2), -i^{2}n'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Engler, a class of gymnosperms, consisting of the Cycadaceæ; of Miquel, the Cycadeæ. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CYCADS, n. pl. Si^{2}k'a^{2}dz. The Cycadeæ. [B.]

CYCAS [Linnæus] (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku^6)'ka^{2}s(ka^{3}s). Gen., cyc'ados (-is). Fr., c. Ger., Cycade. The fern-palm; the typical genus of the Cycadeæ. [B, 19, 42, 121, 275 (a, 24).]—C. caffra [Thunberg]. A species indigenous to South Africa. The root cooked, as well as the medulla of the trunk, is eaten by the Hottentots. The fruit is used as a substitute for coffee. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. circinalis. Fr., c. en crosse. A tree much resembling the cocoanut-tree, growing in the East Indies. The fruits cause purging; the kernels are said to produce vomiting. [a, 22.]—C. enroulé (Fr.). See C. revoluta.—C. inermis. Fr., c. inerme. A Tonquin species having the same properties as C. revoluta. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. revoluta. Fr., c. enroulé. A tree found in Japan, and much cultivated as an ornament in Europe, which yields an excellent quality of sago. [B, 245; L, 41 (a, 21).]

CYCEON (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}s(ku^{6}k)'e^2-o^{2}n(on). Gen., cyceon'os (-is). Gr., κυκεών. An ancient dietetic or medicinal drink or pap the basis of which was barley. [A, 318, 322, 387; L, 87, 94 (a, 21).]

CYCIMA, n. An old name for litharge. [Ruland (A, 325).]

CYCLAMEN [Linnæus] (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)'la^{2}m(la^{3}m)-e^{2}n. Gen., cyclam'inis. Gr., κυκλάμινος, κυκλάμινον, κυκλαμίς. Fr., cyclame. Ger., Erdscheibe. Apple of the earth; a genus of the Primulaceæ. [B, 19, 34, 121, 173, 275 (a, 24).]—C. arthanita. See C. europæum.—C. europæum [Linnæus]. Fr., pain depourceau. Ger., Schweinbrod. Sp., artanita [Sp. Ph.], pan de puerco [Sp. Ph.]. Common c.; a species indigenous to southern Europe and naturalized in England. The rhizome—tubera (seu radix) cyclaminis (seu cyclaminis officinalis, seu arthanitæ, seu panis porcini)—is blackish externally, white within, has an acid, bitter taste, contains cyclamin, and has laxative and emmenagogue properties. It is official in the Sp. Ph. [B, 95, 97.]—C. hederæfolium. 1. Of Tenore, a European species with cordate, prickly leaves and purple flowers; according to the Sp. Ph., it may be substituted for the C. europæum. [B, 95.] 2. Of Aiton, Ivy-leaved c.; a European species with deeply dentate leaves and purple flowers, found growing near old walls and ruins. [B, 64, 180, 275 (a, 24).]—C. officinalis. The C. europæum. [B, 97 (a, 21).]—C. repandum [Sibthorp]. The C. hederæfolium of Tenore. [B, 95.]—Radix cyclaminis, Radix cyclaminis officinalis, Rhizoma cyclaminis arthanitæ, Tubera cyclaminis. The rhizome of C. europæum. [A, 319.]

CYCLAMEN EUROPÆUM. [A, 327.]

CYCLAMIN, n. Si^{2}k'la^{2}m-i^{2}n. Lat., cyclaminum. Fr., cyclamine. Ger., C. The active principle of the root of Cyclamen europæum; a white, amorphous substance without odor and, when held a short time in the mouth, very acrid. It readily dissolves in cold water, but with difficulty in cold alcohol. According to Klinger, its formula is $C_{20}H_{34}O_{10}$. It is poisonous, and, in a milder way, acts like curare. Mutscher believes it to be identical with saponin. [Tufanow, quoted in "Ctrlbl. f. klin. Med.," Oct. 6, 1888, p. 729; B, 5, 270 (a, 24).]

CYCLAMINON (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-la^{2}m(la^{3}m)-i(e)′no^{2}n. See CYCLAMEN.

CYCLAMINOS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-la^{2}m(la^{3}m)-i(e)′no^{2}s. 1. Of Dioscorides, the genus Cyclamen and the Tamus communis. 2. Probably the Cucubalus baccifer and the Maianthemum bifolium. [B, 116, 121 (a, 24).]

CYCLAMIRRHETIN, n. Si^{2}k-la^{2}m-i^{2}r-re′ti^{2}n. From κυκλάμινος (see CYCLAMEN), and ῥητίνη, resin. A white, amorphous substance, $C_{15}H_{22}O_2$, derived from cyclamin. It is insoluble in water, but soluble in alcohol, and gives, with concentrated sulphuric acid, a violet-red color. [B, 5, 270 (a, 24).]

CYCLAMIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)′la^{2}m(la^{3}m)-i^{2}s. Gen., cyclam′idos (-is). See CYCLAMEN.

CYCLAMOSE, n. Si^{2}k′la^{2}m-os. A sugar, $C_{12}H_{22}O_{11}$, obtained from the tubers of Cyclamen europæum, which readily reduces Fehling's solution, and is lævorotatory. [G. Michaud, "Brit. and Colon. Druggist," May 22, 1886, p. 358.]

CYCLANTHACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-la^{2}n(la^{3}n)-tha-(tha^3)′se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cyclanthacées. 1. Of Lindley, a tribe of the Pandanaceæ corresponding to the Cyclantheæ of Poiteau. 2. Of Bentham and Hooker, an order of monocotyledons corresponding to Lindley's Pandanaceæ. 3. Of Drude, an order of monocotyledons comprising the Cyclantheæ and Carludoviceæ. [B, 42, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYCLANTHEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-la^{2}n(la^{3}n)′the^2-e-(a^3-e^2). Fr., cyclanthées. A group of monocotyledons the relations of which are not well defined. Poiteau, who established the family, places it between the Aroideæ and the Pandaneæ, and includes under it the single genus Cyclanthus. Reichenbach (1828) makes it a division of Palmæ, consisting of Cyclanthus and Carludovica, which genera are adopted by Dumortier and Bartling. Schott, who classes the C. as an order of the Aroideæ, adds to the genera of Reichenbach Phytelephas. In Jussieu's system the C. are a family of the Spadicifloræ, and in Lindley's, at first, an order of the Pandales, and subsequently a suborder of the Pandanaceæ, comprising Carludovica, Nipa, Cyclanthus, and Wettinia. Endlicher (1837) makes the C. not a distinct order, but a family of the Pandaneæ, comprising Cyclanthus, Carludovica, and Wettinia, which genera are adopted by Brongniart (who makes the C., however, a family of the Pandanoideæ). Reichenbach (1841), Spach, and most other authors—though Bentham and Hooker and Drude class the C. as a tribe of the Cyclanthaceæ—retain only the genus Cyclanthus. [B, 42, 121, 170, 245 (a, 24).]

CYCLANTHEREÆ (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-la^{2}n(la^{3}n)-the(tha)′-re^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Schrader, a tribe of the Cucurbitaceæ, consisting of Cyclanthera; of Endlicher, a division of the Cucurbiteæ, with the same genus and Discanthera; of Reichenbach, a subsection of the Zygantheræ; of Römer, a tribe of the Cucurbiteæ, with the same genera. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYCLE, n. Sik′l. Gr., κύκλος. Lat., cyclus. Fr., c. Ger., Cyclus. It., Sp., ciclo. 1. A period of time in which a certain series of events or acts is completed, especially if repeated again and again. 2. The imaginary spiral described by leaves round the stem to make one complete turn (i. e., to reach a leaf which stands directly above the first). 3. A course of diet and exercise arranged in a definite manner, for a certain end. 4. See CYCLUS. [B, 291 (a, 24); L, 41.]—Cardiac c. Fr., c. cardiaque. The series of the normal auscultatory phenomena proceeding from the heart and caused by one contraction of that organ. It embraces the period comprised between the commencement of one contraction and the commencement of the contraction immediately following it, and is divided into 4 parts, viz.: 1, the first sound; 2, the first silence or pause; 3, the second sound; 4, the second silence or pause. The entire average duration of the c. has been given as 1·058 second, but this is manifestly too great for all hearts that beat 60 or more times a minute. [Bramwell (a, 18).]—C. cardiaco-vasculaire (Fr.). The circuit made by the blood in its passage through the organism. [L, 88.]—C. défini (Fr.). In pathology, the period of evolution of a disease having a fixed and regular course, in which the symptoms generally succeed each other in the same order, and of which the duration can be predicted approximately. [L, 88 (a, 18).]—C. fébrile (Fr.). The period of the duration of fever in diseases. [a, 18.]—C. foliaire (Fr.), C. folial (Fr.). See CYCLE (2d def.).—C. métasyncritique (Fr.), C. récorporatif (Fr.). See CYCLUS metasyncriticus.—C. résomptif (Fr.). See CYCLUS resumptivus.

CYCLEA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)′le^2-a^3. Of Arnott, a genus of menispermaceous plants. [B, 245.]—C. Burmanni [Miers]. A species employed in India as a bitter tonic. The root is used in fevers and liver complaints, and in Malabar it is employed in dysentery and hæmorrhoids. [B, 121, 245 (a, 24).]—C. peltata. A species having similar properties to those of C. Burmanni. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CYCLEAL, n. Si^{2}k′le^2-a^{2}l. Fr., cycléal. See CYCLOVERTEBRAL.

CYCLENCEPHALIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-le^{2}n(le^{2}n^2)-se^{2}f-(ke^{2}f)-a(a^3)′li^2-a^3. See CYCLOCEPHALIA.

CYCLENCEPHALUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-le^{2}n(le^{2}n^2)-se^{2}f-(ke^{2}f)′a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CYCLOCEPHALUS.

CYCLESIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-le(la)′si^{2}s. Gen., cycles′eos (-is). Gr., κύκλησις. See CIRCULATION.

CYCLIC, adj. Si^{2}k′li^{2}k. Gr., κυκλικός. Lat., cyclicus. Fr., cyclique. Ger., cyklisch, kreisförmig. 1. Arranged in whorls (said of flowers). [B, 291 (a, 24).] 2. See CYCLICAL.

CYCLICA [Latreille] (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)′li^{2}k-a^3. A division of the Phytophaga. [L, 121.]

CYCLICAL, adj. Si^{2}k′li^{2}k-a^{2}l. Gr., κυκλικός. Lat., cyclicus. Fr., cyclique. Ger., cyklisch. 1. Recurring at regular periods. 2. Arranged in concentric circles. 3. Rolled in the form of a circle or of a series of circles. [B, 19 (a, 24); L, 121.]

CYCLICOTOMY, n. Si^{2}k-li^2-ko^{2}t′o-mi^2. From κυκλικός, circular, and τέμνειν, to cut. An incision into, or division of, the ciliary body, done for the purpose of relieving increased tension; devised by Hancock for the cure of glaucoma, and called by him intra-ocular myotomy. [F.]

CYCLISCUS (Lat.), CYCLISMUS (Lat.), n's m. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-li^{2}s′ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s), -mu^{3}s(mu^{4}s). Gr., κυκλίσκος (dim. of κύκλος, a circle). Fr., cyclisme. 1. A troche. 2. A small circular knife, or some similar instrument, used in the treatment of fracture of the skull. [A, 322; Galen (A, 325); L, 94 (a, 21).]

CYCLITIS (Lat.), n. f. Sik(ku^{6}k)-li(le)′tis. Gen., cyclit′idos (-is). From κύκλος, a circle (see also *-itis). Inflammation of the ciliary muscle.—C. minima. A slight form of c. [Boucheron, cited in "N. Y. Med. Jour.," Mar. 17, 1888, p. 305.]—C. plastica. Inflammation of the ciliary body with an effusion of plastic lymph, uniting the surfaces of the iris, ciliary processes, and sometimes the suspensory ligament to each other, and sometimes involving the iris to such an extent as to cause posterior synechia and occlusion of the pupil. [F.]—C. purulenta. Inflammation of the ciliary body with an effusion of pus which may cause a hypopyon. [F.]—C. serosa. Inflammation of the ciliary body, in which the effusion is almost entirely serous, causing increased tension and a haziness of the vitreous and occasionally of the aqueous humor. [F.]—C. vasomotoria. A form of inflammation of the ciliary body described by Samelsohn, and referred by him to some lesion of the sympathetic nervous system. The tension may be either increased or diminished. There is pain on the corresponding side of the head, marked ciliary neuralgia and injection, and sometimes a herpetic eruption on one side of the face. [F.]

CYCLOBRANCHIATE, adj. Si^{2}k-lo-bra^{2}n^{2}k′i^2-at. Lat., cyclobranchius, cyclobranchiatus (from κύκλος, a circle, and βράγχια, the gills). Fr., cyclobranche. Having the branchiæ surrounding the body, belonging to the Cyclobranchiata, or Cyclobranchia (a family of the Gasteropoda so characterized). [L, 180, 296.]

CYCLOCAUTERIUM (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-ka^4(ka^3-u^4)-te(ta)′ri^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). From κύκλος, a circle, and καυτήριον, a cautery-iron. A ring-shaped cautery-iron. [A, 322.]

CYCLOCEPHALIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-se^{2}f(ke^{2}f)-a(a^3)′li^2-a^3. From κύκλος, a circle, and κεφαλή, the head. Fr., cyclocéphalie. Ger., Cyclocephalie. The form of monstrosity described under CYCLOCEPHALUS.

CYCLOCÉPHALIENS (Fr.), n. pl. Se-klo-sa-fa^3-le-a^{3}n^2. A family of monsters including ethmocephalus, cebocephalus, rhinocephalus, cyclocephalus, and stomocephalus. [I. Geoffroy St.-Hilaire (A, 301).]

CYCLOCEPHALUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-se^{2}f(ke^{2}f)′-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Fr., cyclocéphale. A monster having two contiguous eyes or a double eye in the median line and an atrophied nose. [I. Geoffroy St.-Hilaire (A, 301).]

CYCLOCERA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}s(lo^{2}k)′e^{2}r-a^3. From κύκλος, a circle, and κέρας, a horn. A tribe of the Brachycera. [L, 121.]

CYCLOCŒLUS [Ehrenberg] (Lat.), adj. Sik(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-sel′-(ko^2′el)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κύκλος, a circle, and κοιλία, the belly. Fr., cyclocèle. Having the alimentary canal circular, so that the oral and anal apertures are united (said of Infusoria). [L, 180.]

CYCLODIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lod-i(i^2)′e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cyclodiées. Of Fée, a tribe of the Cathetogyratæ, comprising Polystichum, Phanerophlebia, Hemicardium, Amblia, Cyclodium, Cyrtomium, Podopeltis, and Bathmium. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CYCLOGANGLIATA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-ga^{2}n^2-(ga^{3}n^2)-gli^2-a(a^3)′ta^3. From κύκλος, a circle, and γάγγλιον (see GANGLION). Of Grant, animals in which one portion of the nervous system is disposed around some portion of the alimentary canal (usually the œsophagus) and the remainder of the ganglia and cords in different parts of the body (e. g., the Tunicata). [L.]

CYCLOGASTER (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-gast(ga^{3}st)′ur-(ar). From κύκλος, a circle, and γαστήρ the belly. Fr., cyclogastre. Ger., kreisbauchig. Sp., ciclogastro. Having the abdominal fins united into a disc. [L, 180.]

CYCLOGEN, n. Si^{2}k′lo-je^{2}n. From κύκλος, a circle, and γεννᾶν, to engender. In botany, an exogen, a plant showing concentric rings in its stem. [B, 77 (a, 24).]

CYCLOID, adj. Sik′loid. Gr., κυκλοειδής (from κύκλος, a circle, and εἶδος, resemblance). Fr., cycloïdique. Ger., kreisbinig. 1.

The transcendental curve described by a point in the circumference of a circle rolling in a straight line on a plane. The c. is used in investigating the laws of the pendulum and the fall of heavy bodies. [α, 27.] 2. In ichthyology, a circular or elliptical figure with a more or less completely smooth outline (said of scales). [L, 147.]

CYCLOIDEI [Agassiz] (Lat.), n. m. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-i^{2}d-(ed)'e^2-i(e). Fr., cycloïdes. The cycloids; a family of fishes having cycloid scales. [L, 147.]

CYCLOLABRIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-la^{2}b(la^{3}b)'-ri^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A family of the Phagrynyognathi. [L, 14.]

CYCLOLOBEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-lob(lo^{2}b)'-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). From κύκλος, a circle, and λόβος, a lobe. Fr., cyclolobées. 1. Of Meyer, a suborder of the Chenopodeæ, comprising the tribes Chenopodieæ, Salicornieæ, and Atripliceæ. 2. Of Moquin, a tribe of the same order, comprising the Anserineæ and Salicornieæ. 3. Of Meissner, a suborder of the Chenopodiaceæ, comprising the same tribes as Meyer's. 4. Of others, a suborder of the Chenopodiaceæ, comprising the tribes Salicornes, Spinacieæ, and Chenopodieæ. 5. Of Bentham and Hooker, a series of the suborder Chenopodieæ, comprising the tribes Euchenopodieæ, Atripliceæ, Camphorosmeæ, Corispermeæ, Polycnemeæ, Chenoleeæ, and Salicornieæ. [B, 42, 170 (α, 24).]

CYCLOMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo'ma^3. Gen., cyclom'atos (-is). Gr., κύκλωμα. Anything that is circular or circulated (e. g., the blood, or some substance contained in it). [A, 322.]

CYCLOMIDES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}m'i^{2}d-ez(e^{2}s). A subfamily of the Curculionidæ. [L, 262.]

CYCLOMYARIA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^2)-mi(mu^6)-a(a^3)'ri^2-a^3. From κύκλος, a circle, and μυῖα, a fly. An order or suborder of the Thaliacea. [L, 121, 353.]

CYCLONEURA [Eimer] (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-nu^{2}r'a^3. 1. Animals in which the arrangement of the nervous system is cycloneurous. 2. A division of the Hydrozoa. [L, 121.]

CYCLONEUROSE, CYCLONEUROUS, adj's. Si^{2}k-lo-nu^{2}r'os, -u^{3}s. Lat., cycloneurus (from κύκλος, a circle, and νεῦρον, a nerve). Having the nervous system arranged in a circle, as in certain Medusæ, where there is a nervous cord surrounding the oral aperture, from which branches proceed to other portions of the body. [L.]

CYCLONOTUS (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^2)-not'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κύκλος, a circle, and νῶτος, the back. Fr., cyclonote. Ger., kreisrückenartig. Marked on the back with a colored circle. [L, 41.]

CYCLOPANOPHTHALMIA, n. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}p(lop)-a^{2}n-(a^{3}n)-o^{2}f-tha^{2}l(tha^{3}l)'mi^2-a^3. From κύκλωψ, round-eyes, α priv., and ὀφθαλμός, the eye. Fr., cyclopanophthalmie. Ger., Cyklopanopthalmie. Cyclopia, with one orbit and perfect or imperfect eyelids, without an eyeball. [A, 322.]

CYCLOPE (Fr.), adj. Se-klop. See CYCLOPS.

CYCLOPHORIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-fo^{2}r'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). From κυκλος, a circle, and φορεῖν, to bear. Fr., cyclophoridées. A family of the Platypoda. [L, 282.]

CYCLOPHYLLA [Van Beneden] (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-fi^{2}l(fu^{6}l)'la^3. Fr., cyclophylles. See TÆNIADÆ.

CYCLOPIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lop'i^2-a^3. From κυκλώπιος, round-eyed. Fr., cyclopie. Ger., Cyklopie, Einäugigkeit (1st def.). 1. That defect of development, or monstrosity, in which there is apparently but one eye, though minute investigation generally reveals the presence of the second eye, at least in part. The cyclopic eye is usually in the lower middle part of the forehead. The formation of the interpalpebral aperture, which is of a rhomboidal form, indicates at least the rudimentary presence of four eyelids. [F: Hannover, "Dublin Jour. of Med. Sci.," May, 1888; "N. Y. Med. Jour.," Oct. 13, 1888, p. 415.] 2. A genus of leguminous shrubs. [B, 19, 121 (α, 24).]—C. brachypoda. A South African species, constituting one source of the so-called bush-tea of the Cape. [B, 5 (α, 24).]—C. genistoides. A South African species. An infusion and a decoction of the leaves, called bush-tea, is used in pulmonary complaints. It contains a glucoside cyclopin (though more abundant in the other species) but no theine. [B, 5, 19, 270 (α, 24).]—C. latifolia. A species which furnishes bush-tea, and from the leaves of which cyclopin has been more abundantly obtained. [B, 270 (α, 24).]—C. longifolia. Ger., Honigthee. A species the stalks and leaves of which (with occasionally some of the flowers), bound together, occur in commerce. They constitute a pleasantly aromatic, slightly bitter and astringent drug. ["Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," xxix (α, 21).]—C. Vogelii. An African species, used in the preparation of bush-tea. It contains cyclopic acid. [B, 2.]

CYCLOPIC, adj. Si-klo^{2}p'i^{2}k. Gr., κυκλωπικός. Lat., cyclopicus. Fr., cyclopique. Ger., cyklopisch. 1. Pertaining to or resembling a cyclops. 2. Derived from a plant of the genus Cyclopia. —C. acid. Fr., acide cyclopique. An acid, $C_7H_8O_4$, obtained from Cyclopia Vogelii. [B, 2; L, 87.]

CYCLOPIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}p(lop)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cyclopidées. A family of the Copepoda. [L, 240.]

CYCLOPIEN (Fr.), n. Se-klo-pe-a^{3}n^2. See CYCLOPS.

CYCLOPIGÈNE (Fr.), adj. Se-klo-pe-zhan. From κύκλωψ (see CYCLOPS), and γεννᾶν, to engender. Laying eggs from which the larvæ emerge in the condition of a cyclops. [A, 385.]

CYCLOPIN, n. Si^{2}k'lo-pi^{2}n. A glucoside, $C_{25}H_{28}O_{18} + H_2O$, obtained by Greenish from the leaves of Cyclopia latifolia. [B, 270 (α, 24).]

CYCLOPIO-FLUORESCIN, n. Si^{2}k-lop''i^2-o-flu^2-o^{2}r-e^{2}s'i^{2}n. A fluorescent hydrocarbon found, together with cyclopin, in the leaves of Cyclopia latifolia. [B, 270 (α, 27).]

CYCLOPION (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lop'i^2-o^{2}n. Gr., κυκλώπιον. The white of the eye. [Aristotle (A, 325).]

CYCLOPLEGIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-ple(pla)'ji^2(gi^2)-a^3. From κύκλος, a circle (hence the ciliary muscle), and πληγη, a stroke. Fr., cycloplégie. Ger., Cykloplegie. Paralysis of the ciliary muscle. [F: "Lancet," Nov. 6, 1886, p. 861.]

CYCLOPODI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}p'o^{2}d-i(e). From κύκλος, a circle, and πούς, the foot. See CYCLOPTERIDÆ.

CYCLOPS (Lat.), adj. Si(ku^6)'klo^{2}ps(klops). Gen., cyclop'os (-is). Gr., κύκλωψ (from κύκλος, a circle, and ὤψ, the eye). Round-eyed, one-eyed; as a n., a monster having but one eye, placed in the middle of the forehead. [L, 109.] Cf. CYCLOPIA (1st def.).—C. megalostomus arrhyncus. A uniocular monster without nasal cavities or passages. ["Am. Vet. Rev.," Aug., 1889, p. 228 (L).]

CYCLOPTERIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}p-te^{2}r'i^{2}d-e-(a^3-e^2). A family of the Physostomi. [L, 303.]

CYCLOPTERINA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}p-te^{2}r-i(e)'na^3. A group of the Discoboli. [L, 280.]

CYCLOPTEROUS, adj. Si^{2}k-lo^{2}p'te^{2}r-u^{3}s. Lat., cyclopterus (from κύκλος, a circle, and πτερόν, a wing or fin). Fr., cycloptère. Ger., kreisflügelig. 1. Having fruit with lateral orbicular alæ. [α, 24.] 2. Having circular wings or fins. [A, 322.]

CYCLORCHIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}rk(lo^{2}rch^2)'-i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A family of the Cubostomæ. [L, 121.]

CYCLORRHAPHA [Brauer] (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}r'-ra^3-fa^3. From κύκλος, a circle, and ῥαφή, a seam. A division of the Diptera in which the larval skin opens in the last moult in a curved line on the back. [L, 121.]

CYCLORRHAPHOUS, adj. Si^{2}k-lo^{2}r'a^{2}f-u^{3}s. Pertaining to or resembling the Cyclorrhapha. [L, 121.]

CYCLOS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)'lo^{2}s. Gr., κύκλος. See CIRCLE and CYCLE.

CYCLOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-los'i^{2}s. Gen., cyclos'eos (-is). Gr., κύκλωσις. Fr., cyclose. 1. An encircling, also the state of being encircled. 2. A circulation; of Schultz, the intercellular, as distinguished from the general, circulation in plants. [A, 322; B, 19, 77, 121 (α, 24).]

CYCLOSPONDYLIE (Fr.), n. Se-klo-spo^{3}n^2-de-le. From κύκλος, a circle, and σπόνδυλος, a vertebra. The state in which a ring-shaped bony layer takes part in the formation of the body of a vertebra, as in certain chondropterygians. [A, 385.]

CYCLOSTEGIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^2)-ste(sta)'ji^2(gi^2)-a^3. A genus of the Satureineæ. [L, 24.]—C. strobilifera. An East Indian species, with strong aromatic properties used as a carminative. [B, 180 (α, 24).]

CYCLOSTOMATA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}s-to^{2}m'a^{2}t-(a^{3}t)-a^3. 1. A tribe or suborder of the Gymnoœmata. [L, 353.] 2. See MARSIPOBRANCHII.

CYCLOSTOMATOUS, adj. Si^{2}k-lo-sto^{2}m'a^{2}t-u^{3}s. Lat., cyclostomus (from κύκλος, circle, and στόμα, the mouth). Fr., cyclostome. Ger., rundmündig. Having a circular mouth. [A, 322.]

CYCLOSTOMI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}st'o^{2}m-i(e). See MARSIPOBRANCHII.

CYCLOSTOMIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}s-to^{2}m'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A family of the Tænioglossa. [L, 353.]

CYCLOSTOMOUS, adj. Si^{2}k-lo^{2}st'o^{2}m-u^{3}s. See CYCLOSTOMATOUS.

CYCLOSYPHILIDOCHTHUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-si^{2}f(su^{6}f)-i^{2}l-i^{2}d-o^{2}k(o^{2}ch^2)'thu^{3}s(thu^{4}s). From κύκλος, a circle, syphilis (q. v.), and ὄχθος, a hard elevation. Fr., c. Ger., kreisförmiges Knotensyphilid. A circular syphilitic node. [A, 322.]

CYCLOSYSTEM, n. Si^{2}k'lo-si^{2}s-te^{2}m. Of Mosely, the arrangement of a number of dactyozooids arranged in a circular manner around a central gastrozooid. [L, 121.]

CYCLOTHYRIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-thi^{2}r-(thu^{6}r)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). See TERABRATULIDÆ.

CYCLOTHYMIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-thim(thu^{6}m)'-i^2-a^3. From κύκλος, a circle, and θυμός, the mind. Circular insanity. [D, 36.]

CYCLOTINA (Lat.), n. m. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo^{2}t-i(e)-na^3. A subfamily of the Cyclophoridæ. [L, 282.]

CYCLOTOME, n. Si^{2}k'lo-tom. Lat., cyclotomus (from κύκλος, a circle, and τέμνειν, to cut). Fr., c. Ger., Cyclotom. An instrument invented by Guérin, of Bordeaux, for the extraction of cataract. It was composed of a ring of gold and a cutting blade, by means of which the eyeball could be fixed while the cornea was being cut. [F.]

CYCLOVERTEBRAL [Grant], n. Si^{2}k-lo-vur^{5}rt'e^2-bra^{2}l. Fr., cycléal [Geoffroy St.-Hilaire]. The body of a vertebra. [L, 27.]

CYCLOZOA [Eichwald] (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lo(lo^3)-zo'a^3. From κύκλος, a circle, and ζῷον, an animal. Fr., cyclozoaires. Ger., Kreisthiere. Animals the plane of whose bodies is circular. [L, 180.]—C. echinoderma [Eichwald]. See ECHINODERMATA.

CYCLURUS (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-lu^2(lu)'ru^{3}s(ru^{4}s). From κύκλος, a circle, and οὐρά, the tail. Fr., cyclure. Ger., kreisschwanzig. Having a round tail. [L, 180.]

CYCLUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)'lu^{3}s(lu^{4}s). See CYCLE.—C. amphigenes [Haeckel]. Ger., amphigene Zeugungskreis. The cycle of changes that take place in an animal that reproduces by means of ova between the period of its production and that of its becoming capable of reproduction. [L, 178.]—C. foliorum. See CYCLE (2d def.).—C. generationis [Haeckel]. Ger., Zeugungskreis, Generations-Cycle. The series of changes which take place in an individual between the time when it is produced and the period when it is capable of producing individuals similar to itself. [L, 178.]—C. metasyncriticus. Fr., cycle métasyncritique (ou ré- corporatif). A cycle (3d def.) that was employed after the c. resumptivus, in which food somewhat more difficult of digestion was allowed. [Cælius Aurelianus (A, 301).]—C. monogenes [Haeckel]. Ger., monogener Zeugungskreis. In animals that reproduce by fission or sporogenesis, the cycle of changes that take place in the individual between the time of its production and that of its becoming capable of reproduction. [L, 178.]—C. resumptivus. Fr., cycle résomptif. A cycle (3d def.), lasting nine days, of systematic feeding and exercise for restoring the strength after the excessive use of drugs. [Cælius Aurelianus (A, 301).]

CYCNARION (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-na(na^3)'ri^2-o^{2}n. Gr., κυκνάριον. A certain external application mentioned by Galen and Paulus Ægineta, consisting ma nly of starch, Samian earth, and cerussa. [A, 325.]

CYCNOCHIDEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}k(ku^{6}k)-no(no^2)-ki^{2}d-(ch^{2}i^{2}d)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Reichenbach, a group of the Orchidaceæ, comprising Cycnoches and Luddemmania. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CYDAR, n. Of the alchemists, tin. [Ruland (A, 325).]

CYLLOPODION (Lat.), n. m. Si2l(ku6l)-lo(lo3)-po2d'i2-o2n(on). Gr., κυλλοποδίων. See Cyllopodes.

CYLLOS (Lat.), adj. Si2l(ku6l)'lo2s. Gr., κυλλός. Bandy-legged, bow-legged, club-footed. [A, 322; L, 97.]

CYLLOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}l(ku^{6}l)-los'i^{2}s. Gen., cyllos'eos (-is). Gr., κύλλωσις. Fr., cyllose. The state of being crippled, especially by club-foot. [A, 322; E; L, 41.]

CYLLOSOMUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}l(ku^{6}l)-lo(lo^3)-som'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κυλλός, crippled, and σῶμα, the body. Fr., cyllosome [I. Geoffroy St.-Hilaire]. A monster having eventration of one side at a low situation and lack of development of the corresponding lower limb. [A, 301; L, 41, 88.]

CYLLUM (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}l(ku^{6}l)'lu^{3}m(lu^{4}m). Gr., κύλλον. Of Hippocrates, knock-knee, also an outward dislocation of the leg or foot. [A, 322.]

CYMA (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku^6)'ma^3. Gen., cym'atos (-is). Gr., κῦμα. 1. The young sprout of a cabbage. [B, 114 (α, 24).] 2. The fœtus in utero. [A, 322.] 3. See CYME.

CYMATIUM [Wallroth] (Lat.), n. n. Sim(ku^{6}m)-a(a^3)'shi^2(ti^2)-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). The apothecium of a lichen. [B, 121 (α, 24).]—C. excipuliforme [Wallroth]. See APOTHECIUM crateriforme.

CYMATODES (Lat.), adj. Sim(ku^{6}m)-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-od'ez(as). Gr., κυματοειδής (from κῦμα, a wave, and εἶδος, resemblance). Ger., fluctuirend, wellenformig. Fluctuating (said anciently of a weak, dicrotic pulse). [L, 81.]

CYMATOGRAMMUS (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)''a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-o(o^3)-gra^{2}m(gra^{3}m)'mu^{3}s(mu^{4}s). From κῦμα, a wave, and γράμμα, a line. Marked with wavy lines. [L, 341.]

CYMATOID, adj. Sim'a^{2}t-oid. See CYMATODES.

CYMATOPHOROUS, adj. Sim-a^{2}t-o^{2}f'o^{2}r-u^{3}s. Lat., cymatophorus (from κῦμα, a cyme, and φορεῖν, to bear). Fr., cymatophore. Provided with cymatia. [L, 180.]

CYMBA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)'ba^3. Gr., κύμβη. 1. A boat or any boat-shaped structure. [A, 311.] 2. A sponge spicule when it is c.-shaped. [L, 121.] 3. That portion of the fossa conchæ that lies above the spine of the helix. [L, 31.]—C. conchæ. See C. (3d def.).

CYMBÆFORM, adj. Si^{2}m'be-fo^{2}rm. See CYMBIFORM.

CYMBALARIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-ba^{2}l(ba^{3}l)-a(a^3)'ri^2-a^3. Fr., cymbalaire. A section of the genus Linaria. [B, 121 (α, 24).]—C. elatine. The Linaria elatine. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. muralis. The Linaria c. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—C. spuria. The Linaria spuria. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—Herba cymbalariæ. The Linaria c. (the whole plant). [B, 180 (α, 24).]

CYMBALARIS (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-ba^{2}l(ba^{3}l)-a(a^3)'ri^{2}s. See ARYTÆNOID.

CYMBALION (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-ba(ba^3)'li^2-o^{2}n. Gr., κυμβάλιον. Of Dioscorides, according to Dalechamps, either the Cotyledon umbilicus or the Saxifraga cotyledon. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CYMBALOID, adj. Si^{2}m'ba^{2}l-oid. Lat., cymbaloides (from κύμβαλον, a cymbal, and εἶδος, resemblance). Fr., cymbaloïde. Ger., zimbelähnlich. Resembling a cymbal. [L, 41.]

CYMBARIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-ba^{2}r(ba^{3}r)-i(i^2)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of D. Don, a section (of G. Don, a tribe) of the Rhinanthaceæ consisting of the genus Cymbaria. [B. 170 (α, 24).]

CYMBECEPHALIC, adj. Si^{2}m-be^2-se^{2}f-a^{2}l'i^{2}k. See CYMBOCEPHALIC.

CYMBELBLUME (Ger.), n. Tsu^{6}m'be^{2}l-blum-e^2. The Epipactis latifolia. [B, 180 (α, 24).]

CYMBELLÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-be^{2}l'le(la^3-e^2). From κύμβη, a boat. Elliptical reproductive locomotive bodies found in some algals. [B, 19.]

CYMBELLEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-be^{2}l'le^2-e(a^3-e^2). 1. Of Agardh, a division of the Diatomaceæ, consisting of Cymbella, Schizonema, Micromega, Berkeleya, Homœocladia, Gloiodictyon, Hydrurus, Gloionema, and Gomphonema. 2. Of Harvey, a tribe of the Diatomaceæ, consisting (in 1838) of Gomphonema, Micromega, and Schizonema, and subsequently (in 1841) of Gomphonema, Homœocladia, Berkeleya, Schizonema, and Cymbella. These classifications have been rejected by modern mycologists. Kützing divides the c. into four genera: Cymbella, Cocconema, Syncyclya, and Encyonema. Rabenhorst adds Ceratoneis and Amphora. H. L. Smith in a recent classification makes it a family of Raphidieæ. [B. 121, 170 (α, 24); B, 275.]

CYMBICARPUS (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-bi^2-ka^{3}rp'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κύμβη, a boat, and καρπός, a fruit. Fr., cymbicarpe. Ger., kahnfruchtig. Having boat-shaped fruits. [L, 180.]

CYMBIDIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-bi^{2}d-i(i^2)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Bentham and Hooker, a subtribe of the Vandeæ, order Orchideæ. [B, 4 (α, 24).]

CYMBIDIUM (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-bi^{2}d'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Fr., cymbidie. Ger., Kahnlippe. Of Swartz, a genus of orchids, referred by Bentham and Hooker to the Vandeæ. [B. 42 (α, 24).]—C. scriptum. The Vanda scripta. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—C. tesselloides. See AERIDES tessellatum.

CYMBIFOLIUS (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-bi^2-fol(fo^{2}l)'i^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From cymba, a boat, and folium, a leaf. Fr., cymbifolié. Ger., kahnblättrig. Having boat-shaped leaves. [L, 180.]

CYMBIFORM, adj. Si^{2}m'bi^2-fo^{2}rm. Lat., cymbiformis (from cymba, a boat, and forma, form). Fr., cymbiforme. Ger., kahnförmig. See Scaphoid BONE.

CYMBOCEPHALIC, CYMBOCEPHALOUS, adj's. Si^{2}m-bo-se^{2}f-a^{2}l'i^{2}k, -se^{2}f'a^{2}l-u^{3}s. From κύμβη, a boat, and κεφαλή, the head. Fr., cymbocéphalique. Ger., kahnschädelig. Having the vault of the skull shaped like a skiff or boat. [L, 149, 150.]

CYMBOCEPHALY, n. Si^{2}m-bo-se^{2}f'a^{2}l-i^2. Fr., cymbocéphalie. The condition of being cymbocephalous. [L, 149.]

CYMBOÏDE (Fr.), adj. Sa^{2}n^2-bo-ed. From κύμβη, a boat, and εἶδος, resemblance. See SCAPHOID.

CYMBOPOGON (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-bo(bo^3)-pog'o^{2}n(on). Gen., cymbopogon'os (-is). From κύμβη, a cup, and πώγων, the beard. Of Sprengel, a section of the genus Andropogon. [B, 121 (α, 24).]

CYMBULIADÆ [Gray] (Lat.), CYMBULIDÆ [Contraine] (Lat.), CYMBULIIDÆ (Lat.), n's f. pl. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-bu^{2}l(bu^{4}l)-i(i^2)'a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-e(a^3-e^2), -bu^{2}l(bu^{4}l)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2), -bu^{2}l(bu^{4}l)-i(i^2), -i^{2}d-e-(a^3-e^2). Fr., cymbuliidées. A family of the Thecosomata. [L, 121, 234.]

CYME, n. Sim. Gr., κυμα. Lat., cyma. Fr., c. Ger., Trugdolde, Scheindolde, Afterdolde, Afterschirm. In general, any loose flower-cluster on the determinate or cen'rifugal plan; more properly, that level-topped, or fastigiate. form of centrifugal inflorescence which resembles the corymb, as in the elder. [B, 1, 19, 34, 121, 123, 291 (α, 24).]—Biparous c. Fr., c. bipare. A c. in which the primary axis, ending in a single flower, produces at its base two leaves or bracts from which arise secondary axes, which, also ending in single flowers, produce at their bases each two bracts from which arise tertiary axes, and so on. [B. 77, 104, 121 (α, 24).]—Bostrychoid c. Fr., c. bostrychoïde. Ger., lockenförmige Trugdolde. See Helicoid c.—Cicinnal c. Ger., kreiselnde Trugdolde. See Scorpioid c.—Circinate c. See Helicoid c.—Contracted c. Fr., c. contractée. Ger., zusammegezogene Trugdolde. See FASCICLE.—Compound c. Fr., c. composée. Ger., zusammengesetzte Trugdolde. A diffuse and freely branching c. [B, 291 (α, 24).]—Dichasial c., Dichotomous c., Forked c. Fr., c. dichotome. Ger., wiederholt-gabelästige Trugdolde. See Biparous c.—Globous c. Fr., c. globcuse. Ger., kugelrunde Trugdolde. A rounded c., like that of the snow-ball. [B. 34 (α, 24).]—Helicoid c. A uniparous curling c. in which all the branches are suppressed on one side of the primary axis. [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Panicled c. Fr., c. paniculé. Ger., rispige Trugdolde. A compound of loosely spreading c., as in Staphylea triloba. [α, 24.]—Polytomous c. See Trichotomous c.—Scorpioid c. Fr., c. scorpioïde. Ger., skorpionartige Trugdolde. A uniparous c. having the flowers pedicelled and arranged along a lengthened axis and curving on itself like a scorpion's tail, as in the Hyoscyamus niger. [B. 34, 77, 121, 291 (α, 24).]—Spiked c. Lat., cyma spicata. Fr., c. spiciforme. Ger., ährige Trugdolde. A mixed inflorescence partaking of both forms, c. and spike, the branches bearing sessile flowers. [α, 24.]—Trichotomous c., Triparous c. Fr., c. trichotome. Ger., wiederholtdreitheilige Trugdolde. A c. in which more than two lateral axes are produced from the primary floral axis. [B. 77, 121 (α, 24).]—Uniparous c. A c. in which the lateral branches are more or less suppressed on one side or on both sides alternately. It includes the helicoid and scorpioid c's. [B, 75.]

CYMECHOS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-e(a)'ko^{2}s(ch^{2}o^{2}s). From κῦμα, a wave, and ἦχος, a sound. Ger., Schülpgeräusch, Wellengeräusch. A wave-like sound. [A, 322.]

CYMENE, n. Si'men. Fr., cymène. Ger., Cymol, Cymen. A colorless, oily liquid having an odor somewhat like that of lemons, derived from various volatile vegetable oils, such as that found in the seeds of Cuminum cyminum. In chemical constitution, it is parapropylmethylbenzene—i. e., benzene in which two hydrogen atoms at opposite points of the closed carbon chain are replaced by propyl and methyl, $C_6(H.CH_3,H,H.C_3H_7,H=C_{10}H_{14}$. It is isomeric with diethylbenzene, metacymene, isocymene, ethyldimethylbenzene, and isoamylbenzene. [B.]

CYMENOL, n. Si'me^{2}n-o^{2}l. See CARVACROL.

CYMENYL, n. Si'me^{2}n-i^{2}l. Fr., cyményle. Ger., Cymenyl. The univalent radicle, $C_{10}H_{13}$, found in cymene. [B, 2.]

CYMEUX (Fr.), adj. Se-mu^6. See CYMOSE.

CYMIC, adj. Si'mi^{2}k. Fr., cyminique. Of or pertaining to cymene. [B.]—C. acid. Fr., acide cyminique. Ger., Cyminsäure. A monatomic aromatic acid, $C_{11}H_{14}O_2$, formed by the action of alkalies on cymyl cyanide. [α, 24.]

CYMIDE [Löwig], n. Si'mi^{2}d(mid). Fr., cymyde. Ger., Cymid. See CYMYL.

CYMIDINE, n. Si'mi^{2}d-en. Fr., c. Ger., Cymidin. A homologue of toluidine, $C_{16}H_{15}N=C_{10}H_{13}(NH_2)$. [B, 158 (α, 24).]

CYMIFEROUS, adj. Sim-i^{2}f'e^{2}r-u^{3}s. Lat., cymifer (from κῦμα, a cyme, and ferre, to bear). Fr., cymifère. Ger., trugdoldentragend. Bearing cymes. [B, 123 (α, 24).]

CYMINE, n. Si'men. Lat., cymina, cyminum. See CUMENE.

CYMINIC, adj. Si-mi^{2}n'i^{2}k. Fr., cyminique. See CUMINIC.

CYMINUM (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku^6)-mi(me)'nu^{3}m(nu^{4}m). See CUMINUM.—Emplastrum e cymino. See Emplastrum CUMINI.—Semen cymini. Cumin-seed. [B, 180 (α, 24).]

CYMLING, n. Si^{2}m'li^{2}n^{2}g. A popular name for a variety of the Cucurbita melopepo. [B, 77 (α, 24).]

CYMO-BOTRYOSE, adj. Sim''o-bo^{2}t'ri^2-os. Having the characters of a cymobotrys.

CYMOBOTRYS (Lat.), n. m. Sim(ku^{6}m)-o(o^3)-bo^{2}t'ri^{2}s(ru^{6}s). From κῦμα, a cyme, and βότρυς, a cluster of grapes. Of Guillard, a compound indefinite cymose inflorescence. [B, 104 (α, 24).]

CYMODOCEADÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Sim(ku^{6}m)-o(o^3)-dos(do^{2}k)-e(a)'a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-e(a^3-e^2). See CYMODOCIDÆ.

CYMODOCEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Sim(ku^{6}m)-o(o^3)-dos(do^{2}k)'e^2-e-(a^3-e^2). Of Bentham and Hooker, a tribe of the Naiadaceæ, of Ascherson, a tribe of the Potamogetonaceæ, comprising Cymodaceæ and Halodule. [B, 42 (α, 24); B, 245.]

CYMODOCEIDÆ (Lat.), CYMODOCIDÆ (Lat.), n's f. pl. Sim(ku^{6}m)-o(o^3)-dos(do^{2}k)-e(e^2)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2), -dos(do^{2}k)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A family of the Gymnosomata. [L, 234.]

CYMOGEN (Ger.), adj. Tsu^{6}m-o-ge^{2}n'. Giving rise to fermentation; as a n., see CYMOGEN. [A, 396.]

CYMOGEN, n. Sim'o-je^{2}n. Ger., Cymogen. A very volatile oil formed from the distillation of petroleum. It can be condensed from the gaseous state only under very great pressure, and boils at 0° C. It is used in the manufacture of artificial ice. [B, 270 (a, 24).]

CYMOGRAPHION (Lat.), n. n. Sim(ku^{6}m)-o(o^3)-gra^{2}f(gra^{3}f)'-i^2-o^{2}n. Fr., cymographe. See KYMOGRAPH.

CYMOID, adj. Sim'oid. From κῦμα, a cyme, and εἶδος, resemblance. Having somewhat the form of a cyme. [L, 56.]

CYMOL, n. Sim'o^{2}l. See CYMENE.

CYMOPHENOL, n. Sim-o-fe^{2}n'o^{2}l. See CARVACROL.

CYMOPOLIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Sim(ku^{6}m)-o(o^3)-po^{2}l-i(i^2)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Trevisan, a tribe of the Siphonothallæ, consisting of Neomeris and Cymopolia. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CYMOPTERIS (Lat.), CYMOPTERUS [Rafinesque] (Lat.), n's f. and m. Sim(ku^{6}m)-o^{2}p'te^{2}r-i^{2}s, -u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κῦμα, a swelling, and πτερίς, a fern. A genus of umbelliferous plants of the tribe Seselineæ. [B. 42, 121, 275 (a, 24).]—C. Fendleri [Gray]. The gamote of New Mexico. It has a peculiar pleasant odor, and is used, combined with whisky, as a stomachic tonic. [B, 66, 275 (a, 24).]

CYMOSÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-os'e(a^3-e^2). A Linnæan order of plants, comprising Diervilla, Lonicera, Mitchella, Loranthus, Ixora, Morinda, and Cinchona. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYMOSE, adj. Sim'os. Lat., cymosus. Fr., cymeux. Ger., trugdoldig, cymös, doldenblüthig. In the form of or bearing a cyme. [a, 24.] See C. INFLORESCENCE.

CYMOTHOADÆ (Lat.), CYMOTHOIDÆ [Kossmann] (Lat.), n's f. pl. Si^{2}m(ku^{6}m)-o(o^3)-tho(tho^3)'a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-e(a^3-e^2), -tho(tho^3)-i(e)'de(da^3-e^2). Fr., cymothoadées. A family of the Isopoda. [L, 41, 240.]

CYMOUS, adj. Sim'u^{3}s. See CYMOSE.

CYMULE, n. Sim'u^{2}l. A diminutive cyme. [a, 24.]

CYMYL, n. Sim'i^{2}l. Fr., cymyle. The radicle, $C_{10}H_{13}$, of cymene. [a, 24.]—C. alcohol. See CUMIN alcohol.

CYNA (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku^6)'na^3. The Artemisia vulgaris. [B, 88.]—Semen cynæ barbaricum. The immature flower-heads of the Artemisia glomerata.

CYNAGROSTIS (Lat.). n. f. Si^{2}n(ku^{6}n)-a^{2}g(a^{3}g)-ro^{2}s(ros)-ti^{2}s. Gen., cynagros'tidos (-is), -eos (-is). The Triticum repens. [B, 88.]

CYNANCHE (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}n(ku^{6}n)-a^{2}n^2(a^{3}n^2)'ke(ch^{2}a). Gen., cynan'ches. Gr., κυνάγχη (said to be from κύων, a dog, and ἄγχειν, to strangle, because, according to Cælius Aurelianus, in some form of the affection the tongue was protruded as in a panting dog). Fr., cynancie. Ger., Bräune. Any acute inflammatory affection of the throat; of Hippocrates, an inflammation of the interior of the larynx as opposed to paracynanche (q. v.). [A, 311, 312; B, 117; E.]—C. cellularis maligna gangrænosa. See ANGINA Ludovici. —C. contagiosa. Diphtheritic c. [L, 132.]—C. œsophagea. See ŒSOPHAGITIS.—C. parotidæa. Fr., parotite. Ger., Ohrenspeicheldrüsenentzundung. The mumps; an acute infectious disease characterized by inflammation of the parotid gland. [D.]—C. pharyngea. See PHARYNGITIS.—C. prunella. See C. tonsillaris.—C. purpuroparotidea. See Malignant ANGINA.—C. simplex. See Simple ANGINA.—C. strepitoria, C. stridula. See CROUP.—C. sublingualis maligna gangrænosa. See ANGINA Ludovici.—C. suffocativa. See CROUP.—C. thyreoidea. See GOÎTRE.—C. tonsillaris. Fr., angine tonsillaire. Ger., Mandelentzündung. Quinsy; an acute inflammation of one or both tonsils. Cf. AMYGDALITIS.—C. trachealis [Cullen]. Croup. [L.]—C. ulcerosa. See Malignant ANGINA.

CYNANCHEACEOUS, adj. Si^{2}n-a^{2}n^2-ke-a'shu^{3}s. Fr., cynanché. Belonging to the genus Cynanchum. [a, 24.]

CYNANCHEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}n(ku^{6}n)-a^{2}n^2(a^{3}n^2)'ke^2(ch^{2}e^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cynanchées. 1. Of Reichenbach, a division of the Asclepiadeæ, comprising Eustegia, Philibertia, Sarcostemma, Dimia, Cynanchum, Holostemma, Solenostemma, Canahia, Asclepias, etc., and subsequently comprising also Asclepias, Acerates, Gomphocarpus, Enslenia, and Oxystelma. 2. Of Bentham and Hooker, a tribe of the Asclepiadeæ. [B, 42, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYNANCHICUS (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}n(ku^{6}n)-a^{2}n^2(a^{3}n^2)'ki^{2}k(ch^{2}i^{2}k)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κυναγχικός. Fr., cynanchique. 1. Pertaining to or affected with cynanche; as a n., in the neut., cynanchicum, a remedy supposed to be efficacious in cynanche. [A, 387; L, 116.] 2. The Asperula cynanchica. [B, 88 (a, 21).]

CYNANCHIN, n. Si^{2}n-a^{2}n^2'ki^{2}n. See ASCLEPIADIN.

CYNANCHOCEIN, n. Si^{2}n-a^{2}n^2-ko-se'i^{2}n. A substance existing in the sap of Cynanchum acutum, forming flat, lance-like, acicular crystals which melt at about 145° C., and is perhaps identical with cynanchin. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CYNANCHOL, n. Si^{2}n-a^{2}n^2'kol. A phenol, $C_{15}H_{24}O$, obtained as a soft resin from the sap of Cynanchum acutum. Its physical properties are like those of cynanchin, with which it is perhaps identical. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CYNANCHORTHOPNŒA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}n(ku^{6}n)-a^{2}n^{2}k-(a^{3}n^{2}ch^2)-o^{2}r-tho^{2}p-ne'(no^3'e^2)-a^3. For deriv., see CYNANCHE and ORTHOPNŒA. Fr., cynanchorthopnée. The orthopnœa of croup. [A, 322.]

CYNANCHUM (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}n(ku^{6}n)-a^{2}n^2(a^{3}n^2)'ku^{3}m(ch^{2}u^{4}m). Fr., cynanche, cynanque. Ger., Hundswürger. A Linnæan genus of Asclepiads of the tribe Cynancheæ. CYPROS (Lat.), CYPRUS (Lat.), n's f. Si^{2}p(ku^{6}p)′ro^{2}s, -ru^{3}s-(ru^{4}s). Gr., κύπρος. An Egyptian tree mentioned by Celsus, corresponding perhaps to the Lawsonia inermis of Linnæus. [B, 45, 270 (a, 24).]—Radix cypri antiquorum. See Radix ALKANNÆ veræ.

CYPSELA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}p(ku^{6}p)′se^{2}l-a^3. Gr., κυψέλη. Fr., cypsèle. The achænium of a composite plant. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]

CYPSELE (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}p(ku^{6}p)′se^{2}l-e(a). Gen., cyp′seles. Gr., κυψέλη. Ger., Käpselchen (1st def.), kleine Höhle (2d def.). 1. In pharmacy, a small capsule. 2. In anatomy, any small cavity, especially that of the ear. 3. Cerumen. [L, 50 (a, 14).]

CYPSELI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Si^{2}p(ku^{6}p)′se^{2}l-i(e). From κύψελος, the sand-martin. Of Sclater, a suborder of the Picariæ. The Cypseliformes are the same. The Cypselidæ (Fr., cypselidées) are a family of the Fissirostres. The Cypselinæ are a subfamily of the Cypselidæ and of the Hirundinidæ. The Cypselomorphæ are a group of the Carinatæ. [L, 121, 147, 221, 303.]

CYPSELION (Lat.), CYPSELIS (Lat.), CYPSELIUM (Lat.), n's n., f., and n. Si^{2}p(ku^{6}p)-se^{2}l′i^2-o^{2}n, si^{2}p(ku^{6}p)′se^{2}l-i^{2}s, si^{2}p(ku^{6}p)-se^{2}l′i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Gen., cypsel′ii, -sel′idos (-is), -selii. Gr., κυψελίς, κυψέλιον. See CYPSELE.

CYPTARION (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}p(ku^{6}p)-ta(ta^3)′ri^2-o^{2}n. An old name for a certain antidote. [L, 94.]

CYRÆNIA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}r(ku^{6}r)-e′(a^3′e^2)-ni^2-a^3. An old name for the sediment of an infusion of saffron in oil. [L, 94.]

CYRBASIA (Lat.), CYRBASIS (Lat.), n's f. Su^{5}r(ku^{6}r)-ba-(ba^3)′si^2-a^3, su^{5}r(ku^{6}r)′ba^{2}s(ba^{3}s)-i^{2}s. Gen., cyrbas′ias, -bas′eos (cyr′basis). Gr., κυρβασία, κύρβασις. Of Hippocrates, a turban-like covering for the mammary gland. [L, 94 (a, 21).]

CYREBIA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}r(ku^{6}r)-e(a)′bi^2-a^3. Gr., κυρήβια. See ACHYRON.

CYRENAICUM (Lat.), n., n. of adj. cyrenaicus (gummi understood). Si^{2}r(ku^{6}r)-e^{2}n(an)-a(a^3)′i^{2}k-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Fr., cyrénaïque. A gum-resin obtained from Cyrene, in northern Africa; probably the product of Thapsia silphion or Thapsia garganica, and when obtained by inspissating the juice of the plant, it was called laser. [B, 51.]

CYRENAICUS (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}r(ku^{6}r)-e^{2}n(an)-a(a^3)′i^{2}k-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κυρηναικός. Pertaining to or obtained from Cyrene, in Africa. [B.]

CYRÈNE (Fr.), n. Se-re^{2}n. The Ferula asafœtida. [B, 88.]

CYRIACUS (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}r(ku^{6}r)-i(i^2)′a^{2}k(a^{3}k)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κυριακός (from κύριος, a master). Magisterial, lordly; as a n. m., see ASCLEPIOS (2d def.).

CYRILLACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}r(ku^{6}r)-i^{2}l-la(la^3)′se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Of Lindley, an order of the Berberales, comprising Cyrilla, Mylocaryum, and Elliottia. The Cyrilleæ (Fr., cyrillées) are a small group of dicotyledonous plants, by Endlicher made a family of the Bicornes, related to the Ericaceæ, comprising Cyrilla and Cliftonia; subsequently a family of the Frangulaceæ, comprising the same genera; of Reichenbach, a subdivision of the Vaccinieæ, comprising the same genera as Endlicher's; of Planchet, a section of the Ericeæ, including the same genera with the addition of Purdiæa and Elliottia; of Wood, a suborder of the Ericaceæ; of Bentham and Hooker, a distinct order, comprising Cyrilla, Cliftonia, and Costæa, placed in the same cohort with the Ilicineæ. [B, 42, 121, 170, 270 (a, 24).]

CYROUENNE (Fr.), n. Se-ru-a^{3}n. The Melia azedarach. [B, 88, 121 (a, 24).]

CYROYENNE (Fr.), CYROYER (Fr.), n's. Se-rwa^3-ya^{3}n, -ya. The genus Rheedia. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—C. d'Espagne. The Rheedia americana. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CYRSOTOMY, n. Su^{5}r-so^{2}t′o-mi^2. See CIRSOTOMY.

CYRTANDRACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-a^{3}n(a^{3}n)-dra-(dra^3)′se^3(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cyrtandracées. 1. Of Jack, the Gesneraceæ of Bentham and Hooker. 2. Of Nees, a family of the Bignoniaceæ, comprising the Trichosporeæ and the C. veræ (consisting of Cyrtandra, Whitia, Didymocarpus, and Loxonia). 3. Of Lindley, an order of the Monopetalæ. The Cyrtandreæ are: 1. Of Blume, a section of the Bignoniaceæ, including Cyrtandra, Whitia, Rhynchothechum, Loxonia, Centronia, and Kuhlia. 2. Of Bartling, a division of the Acanthaceæ, comprising Cyrtandra, Henckelia, Loxonea, Lysionotus, and Trichosporum. 3. Of G. Don, a subtribe of the Cyrtandraceæ, comprising the same genera as Blume's (with the exception of Kuhlia), and in addition Utania and Fieldia. 4. Of Reichenbach, a subdivision of the Orobancheæ. 5. Of Bentham and Hooker, a tribe of the Gesneraceæ, comprising the subtribes Columneæ, Eucyrtandreæ, Æschynantheæ, Beslerieæ, and Didymocarpeæ. The Cyrtandridæ are a tribe of the Cyrtandreæ, consisting of Cyrtandra, Whitia, Rhynchothecum, and Fieldia. [B, 42, 170 (a, 24).]

CYRTANTHEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-a^{3}n(a^{3}n)′the^2-e-(a^3-e^2). Fr., cyrtanthées. 1. Of Reichenbach, a subdivision of the Amaryllideæ, comprising Gastronema, Bravoa, Cyrtanthus, Urceolina, etc. 2. Of Kunth, a subtribe of the Amaryllineæ, consisting of Vallota, Cyrtanthus, and Cyphonema. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

CYRTIDA [Haeckel] (Lat.), n. n. pl. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)′i^{2}d-a^3. Fr., cyrtidés. A family of the Monopylæa. [L, 121.]

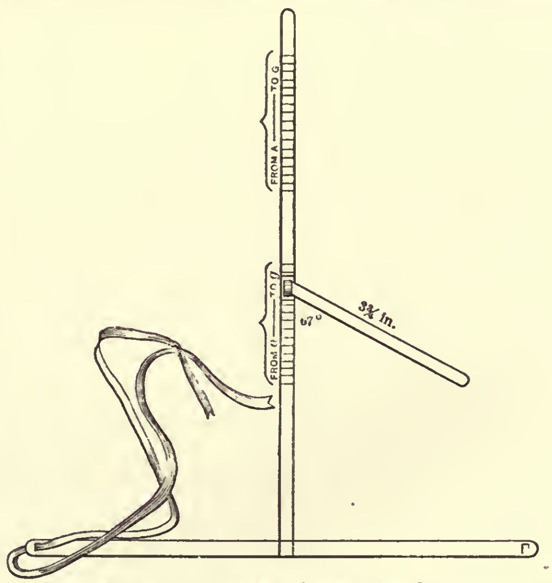
CYRTIDIUM (Lat.), n. n. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-i^{2}d′i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). From κυρτίδιον (dim. of κύρτος), a little basket. In botany, a dimidiate and operculate conceptacle. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CYRTOBLASTÆ [Presl] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-o(o^3)-bla^{2}st(bla^{3}st)′e(a^3-e^2). From κυρτός, crooked, and βλαστή, a sprout. See CURVEMBRYÆ.

CYRTOCEPHALUS (Lat.), adj. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-o(o^3)-se^{2}f(ke^{2}f)′-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κυρτός, convex, and κεφαλή, the head. Fr., cyrtocéphale. Having a short head; as a n., in the m. pl., Cyrtocephali, a family of the Gastropterygii. [L, 41, 180.]

CYRTOCORYPHUS (Lat.), adj. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-o(o^3)-ko^{2}r′i^{2}f(u^{6}f)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κυρτός, convex, and κορυφή, the crown of the head. Ger., cyrtocoryph. Having an angle of from 122° to 132° formed at a point highest above and in the same vertical plane with a line drawn from the punctum occipitale to the punctum bregmatis, the angle being formed by two lines drawn from those points respectively and meeting at the point indicated. [Lissauer (L).] Cf. EUTHYCORYPHUS and HOMALOCORYPHUS, and see cut under CATANTOSTOMUS.

CYRTODES (Lat.), adj. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-od′ez(as). See CYRTOID.



CYRTOGRAPH, n. Su^{5}rt′o-gra^{3}f. From κυρτός, curved, and γράφειν, to write. See CYRTOMETER.

CYRTOGRAPHIE (Fr.), n. Ser-to-gra^{3}f-e. The art or process of making reduced fac-similes of the outlines of curved surfaces (of the skull, the chest, etc.) by means of recording cyrtometers. [Maurel, "Bull. gén. de thérap.," Nov. 15, 1887, p. 399.]

CYRTOID, adj. Su^{5}rt′oid. Gr., κυρτώδης, κυρτοειδής (from κυρτός, crooked, and εἶδος, resemblance). Lat., cyrtodes, cyrtoides. Fr., cyrtoïde. Ger., buckelähnlich. Hump-like. [A, 322.]

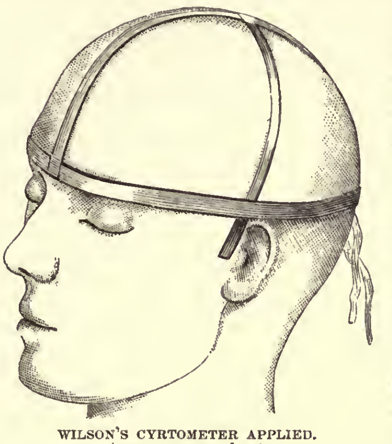
CYRTOMA (Lat.), n. n. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-o′ma^3. Gen., cyrtom′atos (-is). Gr., κύρτωμα. A convexity, natural or pathological. [A, 387; L, 50.]



CYRTOMETER, n. Su^{5}rt-o^{2}m′e^{2}t-u^{5}r. Lat., cyrtometrum (from κυρτός, convex, and μέτρον, a measure). Fr., cyrtomètre. Ger., Wölbungsmesser. An instrument for measuring the curve of any portion of the body. The name is sometimes applied to callipers for measuring the diameters of the chest. [A, 322; D; L, 50 (a, 14).]—Wilson's c. A special c. devised by C. Wilson for ascertaining the position, length, and direction of the fissure of Sylvius in the living subject. It consists of three strips of flexible metal and a tape for securing it in situ. "The broadest transverse strip passes coronally round the forehead, corresponding with the glabella and the external angular process; the narrower longitudinal strip passes backward from the glabella in the middle line to the occiput. This strip is marked with two scales of letters: capitals in its posterior fourth, and small letters about the middle of the strip. These two scales bear an exact relation to one another, calculated to suit in the application of the instrument to any ordinary head. Measured from the glabella backward, the distance to any given small letter is 55·7 per cent. of the distance from the glabella to the corresponding capital letter; thus, when any capital letter falls directly over the inion, the corresponding small letter will coincide with the top of the fissure. A third narrow reversible strip slides on the longitudinal strip of metal, marking an angle of 67°, opening forward, and marked at 3⅜ inches from its attached end, thus giving the length and direction of the fissure on the surface of the head." [A. W. Hare, "Lancet," March 3, 1888, p. 407.]

WILSON'S CYRTOMETER APPLIED.
(AFTER HARE, l. c.)

CYRTOMETOPUS (Lat.), adj. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-o(o^{3})-me^{2}t-op'u^{3}s-(u^{4}s). From κυρτός, convex, and μέτωπον, the forehead. Ger., cyrtometop. In craniometry, having an angle of between 120° and 130·5° formed by the intersection (at the point highest above a plane touching the punctum bregmatis and the punctum naso-frontale, the plane being horizontal) of two lines drawn one from each of those puncta. [Lissauer, "Arch. f. Anthrop.," xv, suppl. (L).] Cf. ENTHYMETOPUS and HOMALOMETOPUS, and see cut under CATANTOSTOMUS.

CYRTOMETRY, n. Su^{5}rt-o^{2}m'e^{2}t-ri^{2}. Fr., cyrtométrie. Ger., Wölbungsmessung. The use of the cyrtometer. [L, 41.]

CYRTONOSUS (Lat.), n. f. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-o^{2}n'o^{2}s-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κυρτός, crooked, and νόσος, a disease. An old name for rickets. [L, 116.]

CYRTOPISTHOCRANIUS (Lat.), adj. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-o(o^{3})-pi^{2}s-tho(tho^{3})-kra(kra^{3})'ni^{2}-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κυρτός, convex, and ὀπισθοκράνιον, the occiput. In craniometry, having the angle formed (at the highest point on the inner surface of the occipital bone above a horizontal plane touching the punctum occipitale and the external occipital protuberance) by the intersection of two lines drawn respectively from the punctum occipitale and the external occipital protuberance between 117° and 140°. [Lissauer, "Arch. f. Anthrop.," xv, suppl. (L).] Cf. ENTHYOPISTHOCRANIUS and HOMALOPISTHOCRANIUS, and see cut under CATANTOSTOMUS.

CYRTOSIPHYTUM (Lat.), n. n. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-o(o^{3})-si^{2}f'i^{2}t(u^{6}t)-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). From κυρτός, convex, and φυτόν, a plant. Fr., cyrtosiphyte. Of Necker, a genus (family) of plants, comprising Ricinus, Croton, Luntia, Cinogasum, Aroton, Brunsvia, Chrozophora, Clutia, Cratochwilia, Plunkenetia, Acalypha, Stellingia, Mercurialis, Omphalea, Tragia, Phylanthus, Sapium, Hippomane, etc. [B, 270 (α, 24).]

CYRTOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-os'i^{2}s. Gen., cyrtos'eos (-is). Gr., κύρτωσις. 1. A certain form of hereditary dyscrasia, included by Good in Class III (Hœmatica), Order IV (Dysthetica), in which the head is bulky and prominent anteriorly, the stature stunted, and the spine curved. [α, 25.] 2. See KYPHOSIS.—C. cretinismus. Of Good, an hereditary condition in which the c. affects chiefly the head and neck. The countenance is vacant and stupid, the mental faculties are feeble or idiotic, and the sensibilities are obtuse. Enlargement of the thyreoid is a frequent concomitant (see CRETINISM). [α, 25.]—C. rhachia. A form of osseous maldevelopment in which the spine is crooked, the ribs are depressed, the articular epiphyses are enlarged and spongy, and the belly is tumid, the mental faculties being clear and even their development premature (see RICKETS). [Good (α, 25).]

CYRTOTES (Lat.), n. f. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)'o^{2}t-ez(as). Gen., cyrtotet'os (-is). Gr., κυρτότης. See CYRTOMA.

CYRTURANUS (Lat.), adj. Su^{5}rt(ku^{6}rt)-u^{2}r(ur)'a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-u^{3}s-(u^{4}s). From κυρτός, convex, and οὐρανός, the roof of the mouth. Ger., cyrturan. Having an angle of between 132° and 147·5° formed (at the point of the roof of the mouth highest above a horizontal plane touching the posterior nasal spine and the punctum præmaxillare) by the intersection of two lines drawn respectively from those points. [Lissauer, "Arch. f. Anthrop.," xv, suppl. (L).] Cf. ENTHYURANUS and HOMALURANUS, and see cut under CATANTOSTOMUS.

CYSOS (Lat.), CYSSAROS (Lat.), CYSSARUS (Lat.), n's m. Si(ku^{6})'so^{2}s, si^{2}s(ku^{6}s)'sa^{2}r(sa^{3}r)-o^{2}s, -u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κυσός, κύσσαρος. See CYSTHOS.

CYSSOTIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}s(ku^{6}s)-sot'i^{2}s. Gen., cyssot'idos (-is). Fr., cyssote. Of R. A. Vogel, the lower end of the rectum. [L, 50 (α, 14).]

CYST, n. Si^{2}st. Gr., κύστις. Lat., cystis. Fr., kyste. Ger., Cyste, Sackgeschwulst. It., cisti. Sp., quiste, cista. An organized structure consisting of a distinct sac-like wall together with its contents, especially one of pathological formation or abnormal development.—Adventitious c. Lat., cystis adventitia. Fr., kyste adventive. A c.-like wall formed around a foreign body or an effusion.—Air-c. See Gaseous c.—Alveolar c. Fr., kyste alvéolaire. Ger., Alveolarcyste. A c. connected with the alveolus of a tooth. [Marchand (A, 319).]—Aneurysmal c. Fr., kyste anévrysmal. The sac of an aneurysm. [A, 301.]—Apoplectic c. Fr., kyste apoplectique. Ger., apoplektische Cyste. An adventitious c. formed around a cerebral effusion of blood. [D, 3.]—Arachnoid c. Fr., kyste arachnoïdien. A meningeal hæmatoma. [Virchow (A, 301).]—Atheromatous c. Ger., Atheromcyste. See ATHEROMA (1st def.).—Autogenous c. A c. having an independent life, and being capable of secreting its own contents or producing solid growths. [Paget (E).]—Blood-c. Fr., kyste hématique (ou sanguin). A c. formed around effused blood and containing blood or its remains. [A, 301.]—Boyer's c. A subhyoid c. ["Province méd.," Oct. 6, 1888, p. 577.]—Branchial c. Fr., kyste branchial. Ger., Kiemengangcyste. A c. of the neck formed by defective closure of an embryonic branchial cleft. [Marchand (A, 319).]—Bursal c. A c.-like enlargement of a bursa. [E.]—Butter-c. Ger., Buttercyste. A retention-c. of the mammary gland containing a butter-like material. [Marchand (A, 319); "Practitioner," Oct., 1886, p. 289.]—Cholesteatomatous c. See CHOLESTEATOMA.—Coccygeal c. Any c. growing from or in the tissues about the coccyx. [J. McCarthy, "Lancet," May 12, 1888, p. 920.]—Compound c. See Multilocular c.—Colloid c. A c. containing colloid material.—Conjunctival c. Fr., tumeur cystique de la conjonctive. Ger., Bindehautcyste. A rare form of c. usually appearing as a sharply defined, spheroidal or hemispheroidal prominence, about as large as a pea and transparent, occasionally met with near the corneal margin. It is congenital and distinct from the true dermoid c. [F.]—Cowperian c., Cowper's c. A c. formed in the vulvo-vaginal gland or its duct. [Grünfeld (A, 319).]—Cutaneous c., Cuticular c. 1. A c. developed in the skin. 2. See Dermoid c.—C. of the broad ligament. Fr., kyste du ligament large. A c. springing from the ovary or the epoophoron and developed between the layers of the broad ligament of the uterus.—C. of the iris. Fr., tumeur cystique de l'iris. Ger., Kyste der Regenbogenhaut. A rare form of c. almost always of traumatic origin. It usually appears as a small, transparent vesicle on the surface of the iris, with either a broad base or a small pedicle. The contents may be limpid or opaque, fluid or semi-solid. [F.]—Daughter-c. A secondary c. developed within another c.—Dentigerous c. A c. containing teeth, either a dermoid c. or one connected with an embryonic dental capsule. [E.]—Dermoid c. Fr., kyste dermoïque (ou dermoïde). Ger., dermoide Cyste, Cysto-Dermoid. A c. the wall of which consists of a skin-like structure, often true skin, and which sometimes contains hair, sebaceous matter, and, when occurring in the ovary, bony and dental formations. [Marchand (A, 319).]—Dilatation-c. See Retention-c.—Echinococcus-c. See under ECHINOCOCCUS.—Epidermal c. See ATHEROMA (1st def.).—Extravasation-c., Exudation-c., False c. See Adventitious c.—Follicular c. Fr., kyste folliculaire. Ger., folliculäre Cyste, Follicularcyste. A retention-c. of a follicle. [Marchand (A, 319).]—Gaseous c. Fr., kyste aériforme (ou gazeux). Ger., Luftcyste. A c. containing gas (e. g., in colpo-hyperplasia cystica).—Hæmatic c. See Blood-c.—Hæmorrhagic arachnoid c. See Arachnoid c.—Hairy c. Fr., kyste pileux. Ger., Haarcyste. A dermoid c. containing hair. [A, 301.]—Hydatid c. See under ECHINOCOCCUS.—Hydroc'. A c. containing watery contents. [E.]—Hygromatous c. See HYGROMA.—Intraligamentous c. See C. of the broad ligament.—Labial c. A c. on the lip or on the labium pudendi. [E.]—Meibomian c. See CHALAZION.—Milk-c. Fr., kyste laiteux. Ger., Milchcyste. A cystic dilatation of a galactophorous duct, containing milk. [E.]—Morgagnian c. See HYDATID of Morgagni.—Mother-c. The original (external) c. of a multilocular cystoma.—Mucoid c. Fr., kyste mucoïde. A branchial c.; so called because its walls are developed from mucous membrane. [Lannelongue, "Progr. méd.," Jan. 26, 1889, p. 73.]—Mucous c. A retention-c. formed in a mucous follicle or in the duct of a muciparous gland. [E.]—Multilocular c. Fr., kyste multiloculaire (ou cloisonné). Ger., multiloculare (oder mehrkammerige) Cyste. A c. containing several compartments, usually by the formation of secondary c's within a mother-c. [A, 301.]—Nabothian c. Fr., glande de Naboth. A dilated mucous follicle of the cervix uteri. [A, 301.]—Ovarian c. Fr., kyste ovarien. Ger., Ovarialcyste. See Ovarian CYSTOMA.—Parent-c. See Mother-c.—Parovarian c. Fr., kyste para-ovarique. Ger., Parovarialcyste. A c. springing from the epoophoron.—Phylloid c. Of Müller, a cystic adenosarcoma.—Piliferous c. See Hairy c.—Primary c. See Autogenous c. and Mother-c.—Proliferation c., Proliferative c., Proliferous c. Fr., kyste prolifératif. Ger., Proliferationscyste. 1. The mother-c. of a multilocular cystoma. 2. Of Paget, a c. containing solid outgrowths from its wall (the sero-cystic tumor of Brodie; the cystoid adenocele of Birkett). [Marchand (A, 319).]—Proligerous c. Of Paget, a cystic adenosarcoma.—Recurring proliferous c. See Proligerous c.—Renal c. A cyst-like dilatation of the kidney.—Resting c. See HYPNOCYST.—Retention c. Fr., kyste par rétention. Ger., Retentionscyste. A c. formed by the accumulation of products of secretion in a follicle or a gland or its duct in consequence of obstruction of the outlet.—Rice-grain c. Fr., kyste synovial tendineux (ou synovite) à grains riziformes, kyste hordéiforme. Ger., reisskörperchenenthaltendes Hygrom. A cystic dilatation of a synovial sheath containing rice-like bodies. [Weiss, "Rev. de chir.," June, 1885, p. 449.]—Salivary c. A retention-c. of the duct of a salivary gland.—Sanguineous c. Fr., kyste sanguin. Ger., Blutcyste. 1. See Blood-c. 2. Any c. containing blood, either from hæmorrhage from its wall or from the establishment of communication with a neighboring blood-vessel. [Gluck, "Dtsch. med. Woch.," 1886, No. 5; "N. Y. Med. Jour.," Sept. 18, 1886, p. 333.]—Sebaceous c. Lat., cystis sebacea. Fr., kyste sébacé. Ger., Balggeschwulst. See ATHEROMA (1st def.).—Secondary c. Fr., kyste secondaire. Ger., secundäre Cyste. See Daughter-c.—Seminal c. Fr., kyste spermatique. Ger., Samencyste. Syn.: spermatocele. A retention-c. of a tubulus seminiferus. [Marchand (A, 319).]—Serous c. Fr., kyste séreux. Ger., seröse Cyste. A c. containing a clear, watery liquid. [E.]—Simple c., Single c. See Unilocular c.—Spermatic c. Fr., kyste spermatique. 1. See Seminal c. 2. A spermatoblast when it has become considerably increased in size and its nuclei have been multiplied by segmentation. [A, 15.]—Sublingual c. A c. situated under the tongue.—Sublingual mucous c. A c. due to obstruction of the duct of a mucous gland of Rivini. [E.]—Synovial c. A cystic enlargement of a synovial sheath or bursa. [D. A. Power, "Brit. Med. Jour.," March 21, 1885, p. 595.]—Tarsal c. See CHALAZION.—Testicular c. See Seminal c.—Thyreoid c. A c. connected with the thyreoid body. [E.]—Umbilical c. A congenital c. situated at the navel. According to Tillman, it is formed by the shutting off of a portion of the stomach during fœtal life. [Roser, "Ctrlbl. f. Chir.," 1887, No. 14; "N. Y. Med. Jour.," June 25, 1887, p. 726.]—Unilocular c. Fr., kyste uniloculaire. Ger., uniloculäre (oder einkammerige) Cyste. A c. having only a single cavity.—Urinary c. Ger., Harncyste. A c. of the kidney, usually thin-walled, projecting beneath the capsule, and consisting of the cortical substance, containing a clear, yellowish liquid. [Marchand (A, 319).]

CYSTADENOMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-e^{2}n(an)-o′-ma^3. Gen., cystadenom′atos (-is). For deriv., see CYST and ADENOMA. An adenoma containing cysts. [A, 326.]—C. papilliferum. A c. with papillary growths on the inner surface of the cyst-walls. [A, 326.]

CYSTALGIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)′ji^2(gi^2)-a^3. From κύστις, the bladder, and ἄλγος, pain. Fr., cystalgie. Ger., Blasenschmerz. Pain, especially neuralgia, in the bladder. [A, 301; D, 35; L, 50.]

CYSTANASTROPHE (Lat.), CYSTANASTROPHIA (Lat.), n's f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-a^{2}s(a^{3}s)′tro^{2}f-e(a), -a^{2}s(a^{3}s)-trof(tro^{2}f)′-i^2-a^3. From κύστις, the bladder, and ἀναστροφή, inversion. Fr., cystanastrophie. Ger., Cystanastrophie, Umkehrung der Blase. Inversion of the urinary bladder. [L, 50, 135.]

CYSTANENCEPHALIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-a^{2}n(a^{3}n)-e^{2}n(e^{2}n^2)-se^{2}f(ke^{2}f)-a(a^3)′li^2-a^3. From κύστις, the bladder, α priv., and κεφαλή, the head. Fr., cystanencéphalie. Ger., Blasengehirn. See CYSTENCEPHALIA.

CYSTATROPHIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-rof(ro^{2}f)′-i^2-a^3. From κύστις, the bladder, and ἀτροφία, atrophy. Ger., Blasendarrsucht. Atrophy of the bladder. [E.]

CYSTAUCHEN (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-a^{4}k′(a^3′u^{4}ch^2)-e^{2}n(an). From κύστις, the bladder, and αὐχήν, the neck. Fr., c. Ger., Blasenhals. The neck of the urinary bladder. [L, 50.]

CYSTAUCHENITIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-a^{4}k(a^3-u^{4}ch^2)-e^{2}n-(an)-i(e)′ti^{2}s. Gen., cystauchenit′idos (-is). For deriv., see CYSTAUCHEN and *-itis. Ger., Blasenhalsentzündung. Inflammation of the neck of the urinary bladder. [E.]

CYSTAUCHENOTOMY, n. Si^{2}st-a^{4}k-e^{2}n-o^{2}t′o-mi^2. Lat., cystauchenotomia (from κύστις, the bladder, αὐχήν, the neck, and τέμνειν, to cut). Fr., cystauchénotomie. Ger., Blasenhalsschnitt. Incision of the neck of the urinary bladder. [A, 322.]

CYSTAUXE (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-a^{4}x′(a^3′u^{4}x)-e(a). From κύστις, the bladder, and αὔξη, enlargement. Fr., c. Ger., Blasenvergrösserung. Blasenverdickung. Enlargement, especially thickening, of the urinary bladder. [A, 322.]

CYSTE (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)′e(a). Gen., cyst′es. Gr., κύστη. 1. See CYSTIS. 2. See VULVA.

CYSTE (Ger.), n. Tsu^{6}st′e^2. See CYST.—Bindehautc′. See Conjunctival CYST.—C′ngeschwulst (Ger.). A cystic tumor. [Marchand (A, 319).]—Einfache C., Einkammerige C. See Unilocular CYST.—Erweichungsc′. A cyst left after the breaking down of a clot, etc.; usually not a true cyst, but a collection of soft connective tissue with its meshes filled with liquid. [Marchand (A, 319).]—Harnc′. See Urinary CYST.—Kiemengangc′. See Branchial CYST.—Luftc′. See Gaseous CYST.—Mehrkammerige C. See Multilocular CYST.—Milchc′. See Milk-CYST.—Morgagni′sche C. See HYDATID of Morgagni.—Samenc′. See Seminal CYST.—Seifenc′. A form of milk-cyst containing a soapy material. [Marchand (A, 319).]—Zusammengesetzte C. See Multilocular CYST.

CYSTECTASY, n. Si^{2}st-e^{2}k′ta^{2}s-i^2. Lat., cystectasis, cystectasia (from κύστις, the bladder, and ἔκτασις, dilatation). Fr., cystectasie. Ger., Cystectasie, Blasenerweiterung. A method of extracting foreign bodies from the bladder by dividing the membranous part of the urethra and dilating the prostatic portion. A forceps is then introduced and the foreign body removed. [Moreland (a, 18).]

CYSTECTOMUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-e^{2}k′tom(to^{2}m)-u^{3}s-(u^{4}s). From κύστις, a sac, and ἐκτέμνειν, to cut out. See CYSTOTOME emporte-pièce.

CYSTEINE, n. Si^{2}st′e^2-en. Fr., cystéine. Ger., Cystein. A basic derivative of cystin, having, according to Baumann ["Ztschr. f. physiol Chem.," viii, p. 299], the formula once assigned to cystine, $C_3H_7NSO_2$. From this body are formed the derivatives known as phenylcystine, bromphenylcystine, chlorphenylcystine, etc. [B.]

CYSTELCOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-e^{2}l-ko′si^{2}s. Gen., cystelcos′eos (-is). From κύστις, the bladder, and ἕλκωσις, ulceration. Ger., Harnblasengeschwür. Ulceration of the urinary bladder. [L, 50.]

CYSTENCEPHALIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-e^{2}n(e^{2}n^2)-se^{2}f-(ke^{2}f)-a(a^3)′li^2-a^3. From κύστις, the bladder, and ἐγκέφαλος, the brain. Fr., cystencéphalie. A monstrosity characterized by a bag-like structure in place of the brain. [Geoffroy St.-Hilaire (A, 322); L, 41, 49, 50.]

CYSTENCEPHALUS [St.-Hilaire] (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-e^{2}n(e^{2}n^2)-se^{2}f(ke^{2}f)′a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Fr., cystencéphale. Ger., Blasenkopf. A monster characterized by cystencephalia. [A, 322.]

CYSTENCHYME (Fr.), n. Sest-a^{3}n^2-kem. From κύστις, a sac, and ἔγχυμα, something poured in. A parenchymatous tissue found in certain sponges, consisting largely of oval cells with fluid contents. [L, 121.]

CYSTEODERMUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}st(ku^{2}st)-e^2-o(o^3)-de^{2}rm-(du^{6}rm)′u^{3}s(u^{4}s). A genus of the Coleoptera. [L.]—C. armatus. A species very common in Arizona and parts of California having feeble vesicating properties. [L, 22.]

CYSTEOGENESIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-e^2-o-je^{2}n(ge^{2}n)′e^{2}s-i^{2}s. Gen., cysteogens′eos (-gen′esis). From κύστις, the bladder, and γένεσις, generation. Ger., Blasenbildung. The formation of a cyst. [A, 322.]

CYSTEOLAPAROTOMIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-e^2-o(o^3)-la^{2}p(la^{3}p)-a^{2}r(a^{3}r)-o^{2}t-om(o^{2}m)′i^2-a^3. From κύστις, the bladder, λαπάρα, the belly, and τέμνειν, to cut. See Suprapubic CYSTOTOMY.

CYSTEOLITHUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-e^2-o^{2}l′i^{2}th-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κυστεόλιθος (from κύστις, the bladder, and λίθος, a stone). Fr., cystéolithe. Ger., Blasenstein. A vesical calculus. [L, 41, 50.]

CYSTERCOID, n. Si^{2}st-u^{6}rk′oid. A cysticercus. [L, 182.]

CYSTERNA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-u^{6}rn(e^{2}rn)′a^3. See CISTERNA.

CYSTHÆMORRHOIDES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-he^{2}m-(ha^3-e^{2}m)-o^{2}r-ro(ro^3)-id(ed)′ez(e^{2}s). From κύστις, the bladder, and αἱμοῤῥοΐδες, hæmorrhoids. Fr., cysthémorrhoïdes. Ger., Blasenhämorrhoïden. Hæmorrhoids of the urinary bladder. [L, 50.]

CYSTHELCOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}s(ku^{6}s)-the^{2}l-kos′i^{2}s. See CYSTELCOSIS.

CYSTHEPATICUS (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}s(ku^{6}s)-the^{2}p(thap)-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)′-i^{2}k-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κυσθηπατικός (from κύστις, the bladder, and ἧπαρ, the liver). Fr., cysthépatique. Belonging to or connected with the liver and the gall-bladder. [L, 41, 50.]

CYSTHEPATOLITHIASIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}s(ku^{6}s)-the^{2}p(thap)-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-o(o^3)-li^{2}th-i^2-a(a^3)′si^{2}s. Lithiasis of the gall-bladder and of the bile-ducts. [A, 322.]

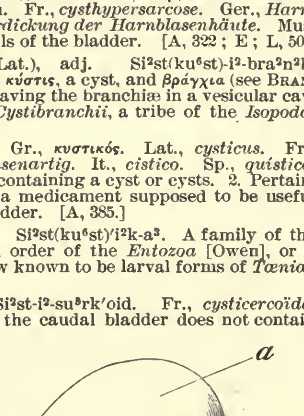
CYSTHEPATOLITHUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}s(ku^{6}s)-the^{2}p(thap)-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-o^{2}l′i^{2}th-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κύστις, the bladder, ἧπαρ, the liver, and λίθος, a stone. A concrement formed in the gall-bladder. [A, 322.]

CYSTHITIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}s(ku^{6}s)-thi(the)′ti^{2}s. Gen., cysthit′idos (-is). From κύσθος, the vulva. Ger., Entzündung der Mutterscheide (oder der äusseren weiblichen Schaamtheile). Inflammation of the vagina or of the vulva. [A, 322.]

CYSTHOS (Lat.), CYSTHUS (Lat.), n's m. Si^{2}s(ku^{6}s)′tho^{2}s, -thu^{3}s(thu^{4}s). Gr., κύσθος. Any aperture, especially the anus and the vulva. [L, 50.]

CYSTHYGROMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}s(ku^{6}s)-thi(thu^6)-gro′ma^3. Gen., cysthygrom′atos (-is). For deriv., see CYST and HYGROMA. Fr., cysthygrome. Ger., Sacklymphgeschwulst. A cystico-lymphatic tumor. [L, 50.]

CYSTHYPERSARCOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}s(ku^{6}s)-thi(thu^6)-pu^{6}r-(pe^{2}r)-sa^{3}r-kos′i^{2}s. From κύστις, the bladder, ὑπέρ, above measure and σάρκωσις, a fleshy growth. Fr., cysthypersarcose. Ger., Harn, blasengewächs, fleischige Verdickung der Harnblasenhäute. Muscular hypertrophy of the walls of the bladder. [A, 322; E; L, 50.]



CYSTIBRANCHIUS (Lat.), adj. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^2-bra^{2}n^{2}k-(bra^{3}n^{2}ch^2)′i^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κύστις, a cyst, and βράγχια (see BRANCHIA). Fr., cystibranche. Having the branchiæ in a vesicular cavity; as a n., in the m. pl., Cystibranchii, a tribe of the Isopoda. [L, 41.]

CYSTIC, adj. Si^{2}st′i^{2}k. Gr., κυστικός. Lat., cysticus. Fr., cystique. Ger., cystisch, blasenartig. It., cistico. Sp., quistico. 1. Cyst-like, consisting of or containing a cyst or cysts. 2. Pertaining to a bladder. 3. As a n., a medicament supposed to be useful in diseases of the urinary bladder. [A, 385.]

CYSTICA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)′i^{2}k-a^3. A family of the Sterelmintha [Rudolphi], an order of the Entozoa [Owen], or a family of the Tænioidea, now known to be larval forms of Tæniæ. [L, 127, 296.]

CYSTICERCOID, n. Si^{2}st-i^2-su^{6}rk′oid. Fr., cysticercoïde. The larva of a Tænia when the caudal bladder does not contain fluid. [L, 340.] Cf. PLEROCERCUS.

CYSTICERCUS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^2-su^{6}rk-(ke^{2}rk)′u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κύστις, a sac, and κέρκος, a tail. Fr., cysticerque. Ger., Blasenwurm, Finne, Blasenschwanz. Syn.: bladder-worm. 1. Of the older authorities, a genus of the Cystica. 2. The scolex of a Tænia when it is encysted in the body of its host and consists of a single head provided with hooks and suckers connected with a bladder-like expansion. [L. 121, 147.] Cf. ECHINOCOCCUS.—C. acanthotrias. The c. of the Tænia acanthotrias. [L, 121.]—C. albopunctata. See C. cellulosæ.—C. bicornis. See DISCERAS rudis.—C. bovis. See C. saginata.—C. canis. See a, embryonic cyst, or vesicle, of the tail, b, head of the worm, with sucking apparatus; c, the neck.

C. cellulosæ.—C. cellulosæ. Fr., cysticerque ladrique. Ger., Zellgewebs-Blasenschwanz, Hülsenwurm, Schweinefinne. The larval stage of Tænia solium, found oftenest in the lower animals, as a rule in the pig, but sometimes in man. It has a quadrangular head, a long, cylindrical body, and an elliptical, caudal vesicle, and is from 10 to 15 mm. in length. Its presence is rarely noticed in man except in the eye or the brain; when lodged in the serous cavities of the body it is free, but elsewhere it is found in cysts, sometimes as large as a hazel-nut. [L.] Cf. MEASLES.—C. clavatus. See C. tenuicollis.—C. coprinus. See C. tenuicollis.—C. dicysta. A c. found in the cranial cavity of man. [Laennec (L, 17).]—C. finna. See C. cellulosæ.—C. fischeriana. A c. found by Fischer in the chorioid plexus of man. [Laennec (L, 17).]—C. fistularis. A c. sometimes found in the peritonæum of the horse. [Rudolphi (L, 17).]—C. globosa, C. lineata. See C. tenuicollis.—C. mediocanellata. See C. saginata.—C. multilocularis. See C. racemosa.—C. ovis. A variety of c. found by Cobbold in the muscles of the sheep. [B, 182.]—C. pisiformis. The embryo of Tænia serrata. [B, 182.] See C. cellulosæ.—C. pyriformis. See C. cellulosæ.—C. racemosa [Zenker]. A c. which sends a number of branches, or processes, into the arachnoid of the brain. [L, 121.]—C. saginata, C. tæniæ mediocanellatæ, C. tæniæ saginatæ. The larval condition of the Tænia mediocanellata. [L, 16.]—C. telæ cellulosæ. See C. cellulosæ.—C. tenuicollis. Fr., bourse, bouteille. The scolex of Tænia marginata, found in the abdominal organs of man. [L, 16.]—C. turbinata [Köberlé]. A variety in which the process connecting the head and the bladder is twisted. [L, 121.]—C. visceralis. See C. tenuicollis.

CYSTICHOLOSTÉNIE [Piorry] (Fr.), CYSTICHOLOSTÉNOSIE [Piorry] (Fr.), n's. Ses-te-ko-lo-sta-ne, -no-ze. From κύστις, the bladder, χολή, bile, and στένωσις, constriction. Stenosis of the gall-bladder. [A, 250.]

CYSTICI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)'i^2-si(ke). 1. A family of the Tæniadæ whose larvæ are cysticerci. 2. An order of the Helminthes. The Cysticidæ are the Cystica of Rudolphi. [L, 121, 231, 243, 340.]

CYSTICLES [Owen], n. pl. Si^{2}st'i^2-k'lz. See Marginal BODIES.

CYSTICOXYDUM (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^{2}k-o^{2}x-id(u^{6}d)'-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Of Wollaston, cystin. [A, 322.]

CYSTICULE, n. Si^{2}st'i^2-ku^{2}l. Lat., cysticula (dim. of cystis). Fr., c. In certain fishes, a division of the vestibule, which contains an otolith. [L, 14.]

CYSTID, n. Si^{2}st'i^{2}d. Fr., cystide. The cell or case which contains a polypid. [L, 353.]

CYSTIDÆMORRHOIDES (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^{2}d-e^{2}m(a^3-e^{2}m)-o^{2}r-ro(ro^3)-id(ed)'ez(e^{2}s). See CYSTHÆMORRHOIDES, and for other words in Cystid-, not here given, see the corresponding words in Cyst- or Cysth-.

CYSTIDE (Fr.), n. Ses-ted. See CYSTID and CYSTIDIUM.

CYSTIDEA (Lat.), n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^{2}d'e-a^3. An order of the Echinodermata. [L, 121, 173, 196.]

CYSTIDIUM (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^{2}d'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Fr., cystidion, cystide. Ger., Bläschen. 1. A cell of the basidium or arcus of Fungi which, according to N. G. Smith, opens by an operculum at the top to discharge its granules, which he considers the analogues of antherozooids. 2. Of Link, a menospermous fruit which does not adhere to the calyx; the utricle of Gärtner, the carcerule of Mirbel. [B, 1, 19, 77 (α, 24).]

CYSTIDOMYELOMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)''i^{2}d-o(o^3)-mi-(mu^6)-e^{2}l-o'ma^3. Gen., cystidomyelom'atos (-is). From κύστις, the bladder, and μυελός, the brain (see also *-oma). Ger., Blasenmarkschwamm. Medullary cancer of the urinary bladder. [A, 322.]

CYSTIDOTRACHELOTOMY, n. Si^{2}st''i^{2}d-o-tra^{2}k-e^{2}l-o^{2}t'o-mi^2. See CYSTAUCHENOTOMY.

CYSTIFELLEOTOMY, n. Si^{2}st-i^2-fe^{2}l-e^2-o^{2}t'o-mi^2. See CHOLECYSTOTOMY.

CYSTIGÉNÈTE (Fr.), adj. Ses-te-zha-ne^{2}t. From κύστις, a sac, and γενετή, origin. Developed in a sporangelum. [A, 385.]

CYSTIGNATHI (Lat.), CYSTIGNATHIDÆ (Lat.), n. m. pl. and f. pl. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^{2}g-na(na^3)'thi(the), -na^{2}th(na^{3}th)'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). From κύστις, a sac, and γνάθος, the jaw. A family of the Arcifera. [L, 204, 288.]

CYSTINE, n. Si^{2}st'i^{2}n. Fr., c. Ger., Cystin. It., Sp., cistina. Syn.: cystic oxide [Wollaston]. A body occurring in minute tabular hexagonal crystals, in urine and in the kidneys, and sometimes forming a constituent of calculi. It is a sulphur derivation of serine and has the formula $C_3H_7NO_2S$. According to Baumann and Preusse ("Ztsch. f. phys. Chem.," vi, p. 307), it is isomeric with pyruric acid in which an atom of oxygen is replaced by a molecule of hydrogen sulphide and one of ammonium; $C_3H_7NO_2S{=}CH_3-C\begin{smallmatrix}\diagup(SH)(NH_2)\\ \diagdown CO.OH\end{smallmatrix}$. [B, 4 (α, 24).]

CYSTINEUX (Fr.), adj. Ses-ten-u^6. See CYSTINOUS. [A, 301.]

CYSTINGORRHONCHUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^{2}n^2-go^{2}r-ro^{2}n^2'ku^{3}s(ch^{2}u^{4}s). From κύστιγξ, a little sac, and ῥόγχος (see RHONCHUS). See Vesicular RÂLE.

CYSTINOUS, adj. Si^{2}st'i^{2}n-u^{3}s. Fr., cystineux. Containing cystin. [A, 301.]

CYSTINURIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^{2}n-u^2(u)'ri^2-a^3. From κύστις (see CYSTINE), and οὖρον, urine. Fr., cystinurie. Ger., Cystinurie. That condition of the system in which cystine is voided with the urine. [D, 1; α, 18.]

CYSTINX (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)'i^{2}n^{2}x. Gen., cysting'os (-is). Gr., κύστιγξ (dim. of κύστις). A vesicle. [L, 94.]

CYSTIPATHY, n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^{2}p'a^{2}th-i^2. Lat., cystipathia (from κύστις, the bladder, and πάθος, disease). Fr., cystipathie. Ger., Blasenkrankheit. Any disease of the urinary bladder. [L, 41.]

CYSTIPHYLLIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^2-fi^{2}l(fu^{6}l)'-li^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). A family of the Rugosa. [L, 121.]

CYSTIRRHAGIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i^{2}r-ra(ra^3)'ji(gi^2)-a^3. See CYSTORRHAGIA, and for other words in Cystirr-, not here given, see the corresponding words in Cystorr-.

CYSTIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)'i^{2}s. Gen., cyst'eos (-is). Gr., κύστις. Fr., vessie (1st def.), kyste (2d def.). Ger., Blase. 1. A bladder, especially the urinary bladder. 2. A cyst.—C. adventitia. See Adventitious CYST.—C. bilis, C. choledocha, C. fellea. Fr., vésicule biliaire. Ger., Gallenblase. The gall-bladder. [A, 322.]—C. sebacea. See Sebaceous CYST.

CYSTISCH (Ger.), adj. Tsu^{6}st'i^{2}sh. See CYSTIC.

CYSTITIC, adj. Si^{2}st-i^{2}t'i^{2}k. Lat., cystiticus. Pertaining to or affected with cystitis. [A, 322.]

CYSTITIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i(e)'ti^{2}s. Gen., cystit'idos (-is). From κύστις, the bladder (see also *-itis). Fr., cystite. Ger., Blasenentzündung, Harnblasenentzündung. It., cistite. Sp., cistitis. Inflammation of the mucous membrane of the urinary bladder. [D, 1.]—Blennorrhagic c. See Gonorrhœal c.—Calculous c. Fr., cystite calculeuse. C. due to the presence of a calculus. [L, 41.]—Cantharidal c. Fr., cystite cantharidienne. C. due to poisoning with cantharides, either taken internally or applied to the skin. [L, 80.]—Catarrhal c. Ordinary c.—Croupous c., Diphtheritic c. Fr., cystite pseudo-membraneuse. Ger., croupöse C. See Exfoliative c.—C. fellea. See CHOLECYSTITIS.—C. parenchymatosa, C. submucosa, C. subserosa. Inflammation of the entire thickness of the wall of the bladder. [A, 326.]—Exfoliative c. Lat., c. exfoliativa. Fr., cystite exfoliatrice. Ger., exfoliative C. C. resulting in the shedding of a so-called "cast" of the bladder, being either a fibrinous deposit on its interior or more or less of the thickness of its mucous membrane in a state of necrosis.—Gonorrhœal c. Fr., cystite blennorrhagique. Ger., Tripperblasenentzündung. C. due to an extension of gonorrhœa from the urethra. [L, 80.]—Necrotic c., Pseudo-membranous c. See Exfoliative c.—Tubercular c. Fr., cystite tuberculeuse. C. due to tuberculosis of the bladder. [L, 87.]—Varicose c. Fr., cystite variqueuse. C. attended with varicosities of the mucous membrane of the bladder. [L, 88.]

CYSTITOME, n. Si^{2}st'i^2-tom. See CYSTOTOME.

CYSTITOMY, n. Si^{2}st-i^{2}t'o-mi^2. See CYSTOTOMY.

CYSTO-ADENOMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-a^{2}d-(a^{3}d)-e^{2}n(an)-o'ma^3. Gen., cysto-adenom'atos (-is). An adenoma that contains cysts.—C. papilliferum. A form of tumor in which connective-tissue growth predominates and vascular offshoots from the connective tissue push the epithelium forward into the interior of the cyst, forming minute papillæ. [α, 25.]

CYSTOBLASTE (Fr.), n. Ses-to-bla^{3}st. See CYTOBLAST.

CYSTOBLASTÈME (Fr.), n. Ses-to-blas-te^{2}m. See CYTOBLASTEMA.

CYSTOBLENNORRHŒA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-ble^{2}n-no^{2}r-re'(ro^2'e^2)-a^3. See CYSTORRHŒA.

CYSTOBUBONOCELE (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-bu^2(bu)-bo^{2}n(bon)-o(o^3)-se(ka)'le(la); in Eng., si^{2}st-o-bu^2-bo^{2}n'o-sel. From κύστις, the bladder, and βουβωνοκήλη (see BUBONOCELE). Fr., cystobubonocèle. Ger., Leistenblasen. An inguinal hernia of the bladder. [L, 41.]

CYSTO-CARCINOMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)''o(o^3)-ka^{3}r-si^{2}n-(ki^{2}n)-o'ma^3. See under CARCINOMA.

CYSTOCARP, n. Si^{2}st-o-ka^{3}rp. From κύστις, a sac, and καρπός, a fruit. Fr., cystocarpe. Ger., Cystokarp. A spore-case of an Alga, as in the Florideæ. [B, 19, 291 (α, 24).]

CYSTOCATARRHUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-ka^{2}t(ka^{3}t)-a^{3}r'ru^{3}s(ru^{4}s). From κύστις, the bladder, and καταῤῥοῦς, catarrh. See CYSTORRHŒA.

CYSTOCELE (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-se(ka)'le(la); in Eng., si^{2}st'o-sel. From κύστις, the bladder, and κήλη, a tumor. Fr., cystocèle, hernie vésicale. Ger., Blasenbruch. 1. Hernia of a portion of the urinary bladder. 2. Protrusion of an inverted portion of the bladder through the urethra (in the female). 3. A sinking of the floor of the bladder so as to form a swelling encroaching on the vagina or emerging from it. [A, 326.]—Crural c., Femoral c. Fr., cystocèle crurale. Ger., Dammblasenbruch. A femoral hernia of the bladder.—Inguinal c. Fr., cystocèle inguinale. An inguinal hernia of the bladder.—Perineal c. Fr., cystocèle périnéale. Ger., Schenkelholenblasenbruch. A hernial protrusion of the bladder through the perinæum. [A, 385.]—Vaginal c. See C. (3d def.).

CYSTOCEPHALUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-se^{2}f(ke^{2}f)'-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). See CYSTENCEPHALUS.

CYSTOCHONDROMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-ko^{2}n-(ch^{2}o^{2}n)-dro'ma^3. Gen., cystochondrom'atos (-is). Fr., cysto-chondrome. An enchondroma that contains cysts. [α, 18.]

CYSTOCLONIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-klo^{2}n-i(i^2)'-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cystoclonièes. 1. Of Kützing, a family of the Periblasteæ, comprising Cystoclonium and Hypnophycus, and subsequently Dasyphetæa and Hypnea. 2. Of Agardh, a family of Algæ, comprising Ahnfeldtia, Gymnogongrus, Cysticlonium, and Calophyllis. 3. Of Trevisan, a subtribe of the Sphærococceæ. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CYSTOCOCCUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-ko^{2}k'ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s). From κύστις, a sac, and κόκκος, a kernel. Ger., Furchungskern [Hertwig], Keimkern [Strasburger]. CYSTOSOMATOTOMIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-som-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-o(o^3)-tom(to^{2}m)'i^2-a^3. From κύστις, the bladder, σῶμα, a body, and τέμνειν, to cut. Fr., cystosomatotomie. Ger., Blasenkörperschnitt. See Suprapubic cystotomy.

CYSTOSPASMUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-spa^{2}z(spa^{3}s)'-mu^{3}s(mu^{4}s). From κύστις, the bladder, and σπασμός, spasm. Fr., cystospasme, spasme de la vessie. Ger., Blasenkrampf. Spasm of the urinary bladder. [L, 46, 50, 57.]

CYSTOSPASTIC, adj. Si^{2}st-o-spa^{2}s'ti^{2}k. Lat., cystospasticus. Fr., cystospastique. Ger., kystospastisch. Pertaining to spasm of the bladder. [E.]

CYSTOSPERMEÆ [Hasskarl] (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-spu^{5}rm(spe^{2}rm)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). From κύστις, a sac, and σπέρμα, a seed. A tribe of Algæ, comprising Vesiculifera and Bulbochæte. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

CYSTOSPERMITIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-spu^{6}rm-(spe^{2}rm)-i(e)'ti^{2}s. Gen., cystospermit'idos (-is). From κύστις, a sac, and σπέρμα, semen (see also *-itis). Fr., cystospermite. Inflammation of the seminal vesicles. [E.]

CYSTOSPOREI [Léveillé] (Lat.), n. m. pl. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-spor(spo^{2}r)'e^2-i(e). From κύστις, a sac, and σπορά, seed. Fr., cystosporé. A division of Fungi, comprising the Columellei and Saprophilei. [B, 121, 170 (α, 24).]

CYSTOSTEATOMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-ste(ste^2)-a^{2}t-(a^{3}t)-o'ma^3. Gen., cystosteatom'atos (-is). From κύστις, a sac, and στεάτωμα (see Steatoma). Fr., cystostéatoma. A sebaceous cyst. [A, 301.]

CYSTOSTENOCHORIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-ste^{2}n-o(o^3)-ko(ch^{2}o)'ri^2-a^3. From κύστις, the bladder, and στενοχωρία, narrowness. Ger., Blasenverengerung. Stenosis of the urinary bladder. [A, 322.]

CYSTOSTOME, n. Si^{2}st'o-stom. From κύστις, a sac, and στόμα, an aperture. The oral aperture of the Infusoria and other low forms of life. [L, 210.]

CYSTOTÆNIA [Leuckart] (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-te'-(ta^3'e^2)-ni^2-a^3. From κύστις, a sac, and ταινία (see Tænia). A division of the genus Tænia, including those in which the head arises in the wall of the embryonic bladder. [L, 121.]

CYSTOTHROMBOID, adj. Si^{2}st-o-thro^{2}m'boid. Lat., cystothromboides (from κύστις, the bladder, θρόμβος, a clot, and εἶδος, resemblance). Fr., cystothromboïde. Pertaining to clots in the urinary bladder. [L; L, 41.]

CYSTOTOME, n. Si^{2}st'o-tom. Lat., cystotomus (from κύστις, the bladder or a sac, and τέμνειν, to cut). Fr., c. Ger., Cystotom, Steinmesser (1st def.). 1. An instrument for making or enlarging an opening into the bladder in the operation of lithotomy. [E.] 2. An instrument invented, it is said, by Lafaye for dividing the anterior capsule of the crystalline lens in the extraction of cataract. It consists of a malleable steel shank which ends in a right-angled hook with a cutting edge. It is introduced through the corneal wound and across and behind the pupil, and the capsule is more or less freely incised. Used in this sense, the word is often written cystitome. [F.]—C. caché (Fr.). A c. (1st def.) with a concealed blade. [L, 57.]—C. emporte-pièce [Rognetta]. Ger., stückwegnehmender Capselschneider. A punch-like instrument devised by Rognetta for removing portions of the capsule of the crystalline lens in operations for cataract. [A, 322.]—Double c. Fr., c. double. A two-bladed c. invented by Dupuytren for incising the bladder in bilateral lithotomy. [A, 301.]

CYSTOTOMIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-tom(to^{2}m)'i^2-a^3. See Cystotomy.—C. cum apparatu alto. See Suprapubic cystotomy.—C. cum apparatu magno. See Median cystotomy.—C. cum apparatu parvo. See Apparatus minor.—C. hypogastrica. See Suprapubic cystotomy.—C. lateralis. See Lateral cystotomy.—Proctoc'. See Rectal cystotomy.

CYSTOTOMIE (Fr., Ger.), n. Ses-to-to-me, tsu^{6}s-to-to-me'. See Cystotomy.—C. hypogastrique (Fr.). See Suprapubic cystotomy.—C. sous-pubienne (Fr.). See Perineal cystotomy.—C. sus-pubienne (Fr.). See Suprapubic cystotomy.

CYSTOTOMY, n. Si^{2}st-o^{2}t'o-mi^2. Lat., cystotomia (from κύστις, the bladder, and τέμνειν, to cut). Fr., cystotomie, incision de la vessie. Ger., Blasenschnitt, Harnblasenschnitt, Blasenöffnung. It., cistotomia. Sp., cistotomía. An operation for gaining access to the interior of the bladder through an incision, although, as in the perineal operation, the incision does not necessarily involve the wall of the bladder itself. [E.]—Bilateral c. C. by means of a transverse perineal incision crossing the median line. [E.]—Colpo-c. See Vaginal c.—Colpo-uretero-c. Vaginal c. by means of an incision that exposes the orifice of a ureter, through which drainage of the pelvis of the kidney is then effected. [N. Bozeman, "Am. Jour. of the Med. Sci.," Mar., Apr., 1888, pp. 255, 368.]—C. by cutting on the gripe. Lat., methodus celsiana. See Apparatus minor.—Lateral c. Lat., cystotomia lateralis. Fr., cystotomie latérale. Ger., Seitensteinschnitt. A form of perineal c. in which the incision is carried from the median line to one side, involving the prostate and the neck of the bladder. [E.]—Median c. Lat., cystotomia media, apparatus major. Fr., cystotomie prérectale. Syn.: Allarton's operation. C. in the median line of the perinæum. The incision involves the prostate, and the neck of the bladder is then stretched to admit of the extraction of a calculus.—Perineal c. Fr., cystotomie périnéale. C. through the perinæum. [E.]—Pre-rectal c. Fr., cystotomie prérectale. See Median c.—Rectal c., Recto-vesical c. Lat., sectio rectovesicalis. Fr., cystotomie recto-vésicale, taille postérieure. A method in which, after the external sphincter ani has been stretched, the bladder is incised between the prostate and the recto-vesical pouch, through the anterior wall of the rectum. [A, 385.]—Suprapubic c. Lat., cystotomia hypogastrica. Fr., cystotomie (ou taille) sus-pubienne. Ger., höher Blasenschnitt. Syn.: epicystotomy, the high operation for stone. C. above the pubic bone and below the prevesical peritoneal pouch.—Vaginal c. Fr., taille vaginale, c. vagino-vésicale. C. through the vesico-vaginal septum.

CYSTOTRACHELOTOMIA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-tra^{2}k(tra^{3}ch^2)-e^{2}l(al)-o(o^3)-tom(to^{2}m)'i^2-a^3. From κύστις, the bladder, τράχηλος, the neck, and τέμνειν, to cut. See Cystauchenotomy.

CYSTOTRAUMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-tra^4'(tra^3'u^4)-ma^3. Gen., cystotraum'atos (-is). From κύστις, the bladder, and τραῦμα, a wound. Fr., cystotraume. Ger., Blasenverletzung. A wound of the urinary bladder. [L, 50.]

CYSTOUS, adj. Si^{2}st'u^{3}s. See Cystic.

CYSTOVARIUM (Lat.), n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-va(wa^3)'ri^2-u^{3}m-(u^{4}m). An ovarian cystoma.

CYSTOXYDUM (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o^{2}x-id(u^{6}d)'u^{3}m(u^{4}m). See Cystine.

CYSTULA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)'u^2(u^4)-la^3. Fr., cystule. A round, closed apothecium (of lichens) filled with spores adhering to filaments and arranged like rays around a common centre. [α, 24.]

CYSTURASIE [Piorry] (Fr.), CYSTURECTASIE [Piorry] (Fr.), n's. Ses-tu^6-ra^3-ze, -re^{2}k-ta^3-ze. Dilatation of the urinary bladder. [A, 250.]

CYSTUREMPHRAXIE [Piorry] (Fr.), n. Ses-tu^6-ra^{3}n^2-fra^{3}x-e. Obstruction of the urinary bladder. [A, 250.]

CYSTURIQUE (Fr.), adj. Ses-tu^6-rek. Cystic; vesical; relating to the urinary bladder.

CYSTURITE (Fr.), n. Ses-tu^6-ret. See CYSTITIS.

CYSTUROSTÉNIE [Piorry] (Fr.), CYSTUROSTÉNOSIE [Piorry] (Fr.), n's. Ses-tu^6-ro-sta-ne, -no-ze. Constriction (a diminished expansive power) of the urinary bladder. [A, 250.]

CYSTUROTOPIE [Piorry] (Fr.), n. Ses-tu^6-ro-to-pe. Hernia of the urinary bladder. [A, 250.]—C. perididymique [Piorry]. Inguinal hernia of the urinary bladder. [L, 82.]

CYSUS (Lat.), n. m. Si(ku^6)'su^{3}s(su^{4}s). Gr., κυσός. The anus, also the orifice of the vagina. [Aristophanes (A, 387).]

CYTAROS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)'a^{2}r(a^{3}r)-o^{2}s. Gr., κύταρος. The cup of an acorn. [A, 387.]

CYTEOPHYTUM (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)'e-o-fi^{2}t-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Fr., cytéophyte. Of Necker, a group of leguminous plants belonging to the suborder Papilionaceæ, consisting of genera (Medicago, Lotus, Indigofera, Hedysarum, and many others), which by Bentham and Hooker are referred to the tribes Trifolieæ, Loteæ, Galegeæ, and Hedysareæ. [B, 42, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYTERIUM (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)-e(a)'ri^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Probably a misspelling of cyeterium (from κυητήριος, promoting conception). Fr., cytérion. Ger., fruchtbarmachendes Mittel. An old term for a supposed remedy for barrenness. [A, 322.]

CYTHEREADÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}th(ku^{6}th)-e^{2}r-e(a)'a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-e(a^3-e^2). Of D'Orbigny, the Veneridæ. The Cytheridæ are a family of the Entomostraca. [L, 303.]

CYTHEREAN, adj. Si^{2}th-e^{2}r-e'a^{2}n. Lat., cythereius (from κυθερέιος, pertaining to the Island of Cythera, which was sacred to Venus; hence, pertaining to Venus or to venery). See VENEREAL.

CYTHION (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}th(ku^{6}th)'i^2-o^{2}n. Gr., κύθιον. A certain ash-colored collyrium mentioned by Celsus. [Gorræus (A, 325).]

CYTINACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)-i^{2}n-a(a^3)'se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., cytinacées. Ger., Cytineen. 1. Of Bentham and Hooker, an order of the series Multi-ovulatæ terrestres, embracing the Rafflesieæ and Hydnoreæ. 2. Of Lindley, an order of the Rhizogenæ, comprising Cytinus, Hydnora, Hypolepis, and Thismia. The Cytineæ (Fr., cytinées; Ger., Citineen) are: 1. Of Brongniart, an order of plants allied to the Aristolochieæ, comprising Rafflesia, Cytinus, and Nepenthus, to which others add Apodanthes, Aplytia, and Gonyanthus. 2. Of Reichenbach, a family of the Imbricatæ. [B, 42, 170 (a, 24).] Cf. ARISTOLOCHIEÆ.

CYTINUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)'i^{2}n-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κύτινος, the calyx of the pomegranate. Fr., cytinelle, cytinet. A genus of the Cytinaceæ. [A, 385.]—C. hypocistus. Fr., cytinelle hypociste. Ger., gewöhnlicher Hypocist. A species growing on the roots of different species of Cistus in southern Europe, northern Africa, and Asia Minor. From the sap of the plant and the juice of the berries there was formerly prepared a dark substance of a sourish, astringent taste, official as succus hypocistidis. It was used in diarrhœa and dysentery. It also formed a part of the confection of opium known as theriaca. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).]

CYTIODERMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)-i^2-o(o^3)-du^{6}rm(de^{2}rm)'a^3. Gen., cytioderm'atos (-is). From κυτίς, a cell, and δέρμα, skin. The envelope of a vegetable cell. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CYTIOPLASMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)-i^2-o(o^3)-pla^{2}z(pla^{3}s)'-ma^3. Gen., cytioplas'matos (-is). From κυτίς, a cell, and πλάσμα, formed matter. The protoplasm of vegetable cells. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CYTIS (Lat.), n. f. Sit(ku^{6}t)'i^{2}s. Gen., cyt'idos (-is). Gr., κυτίς. Fr., cyte. A vegetable cell. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

CYTISE (Fr.), n. Se-tez. The genus Cytisus, especially Cytisus nigricans and Cytisus laburnum. [L. 41, 105.]—C. à feuilles sessiles. See CYTISUS sessilifolius.—C. à grappes. See CYTISUS laburnum.—C. d'Adam. See CYTISUS purpurascens.—C. des Alpes. See CYTISUS laburnum and CYTISUS alpinus.—C. des anciens. See MEDICAGO arborea and CYTISUS laburnum.—C. des Indes. The Cajanus indicus. [B, 88.]—C. des jardins, C. des jardiniers. See CYTISUS sessilifolius.—C. épineux. See CYTISUS spinosus.—C. pourpre. See CYTISUS purpureus.—C. velu. See CYTISUS hirsutus.

CYTISEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)-i^{2}s'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). 1. Of Lindley, a division of the Genisteæ, comprising Ulex, Stauracanthus, Adenocarpus, Erinacea, Spartium, Genista, Retama, Calycotome, Syspone, Sarothamnus, Lembotropis, Cytisus, and Laburnum. 2. Of Bentham and Hooker, a subtribe of the Genisteæ, comprising Ulex, Cytisus, Hypocalyptus, and Loddigesia. [B, 42, 121, 170 (a 24).]

CYTISINE, n. Si^{2}t'i^{2}s-i^{2}n. Lat., cytisina. Fr., c. Ger., Cytisin, Bohnenbaumbitter. A poisonous alkaloid, $C_{20}H_{27}N_3O$, found in the seeds of Cytisus laburnum and, it is said, in arnica-flowers also. It is a white crystalline solid, of a bitter, nauseous taste, soluble in water and in alcohol, but scarcely soluble in ether, in chloroform, in benzene, or in carbon disulphide. It is strongly basic and melts at 150° C. In poisonous doses it produces vomiting, convulsions, and death. [B, 5, 270 (a, 24).]

CYTISMA ECZEMA (Lat.), n. n. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)-i^{2}z(i^{2}s)'ma^3 e^{2}k'-ze^{2}m-a^3. Eczema. [G, 16.]

CYTISMA HERPES (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)-i^{2}z(i^{2}s)'ma^3 hu^{6}rp-(he^{2}rp)'ez(e^{2}s). Herpes. [G, 16.]

CYTISOGENISTA (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)''i^{2}s-o(o^3)-je^{2}n(ge^{2}n)-i^{2}st'a^3. The Genista tinctoria. [B, 180, 270 (a, 24); L, 135.]—Summitates cytisogenistæ. The flowering tops of Genista sagittalis. [B, 180 (a, 24).]

CYTISPORACEI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)-i^{2}s-po^{2}r-a(a^3)'-se^2(ke^2)-i(e). Of Fries, an order of the Pyrenomycetes, comprising the divisions Leveillinei, Cystisporei, and Scuto-adnati, including Parmularia and Microthyrium. The Cytisporeæ (Fr., cytisporées) are: 1. Of Brongniart, a tribe of the Hypoxyleæ, comprising Sphæronema, Cytispora, Pilidium, Leptostroma, Actenothyrium, and Phoma. 2. Of Math, the same tribe and genera, to which he added Melasmia, Labrella, Ceuthospora, Micropera, Microthyrium, and Aylographa. 3. Of Sprengel, a division of the Gastromycetes. The Cytisporei are: 1. Of Fries, a section of the Pyrenomycetes, comprising Apiosporium, Chætominium, Coccopleurum, and Sphæronema; subsequently a division of the Pyrenomycetes, comprising Sphæronuema, Cytispora, and Phoma; and subsequently an order of the Pyrenomycetes, comprising the same genera and, in addition, Zythia, Septorea, and Ceuthospora. 2. Of Reichenbach, a division of the Sphæriacei, comprising the subdivisions Xylomacei and Phomacei. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYTISUS (Lat.), n. m. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)'i^{2}s-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κύτισος. Fr., cytise. Ger., Bohnenstrauch, Guissklee. 1. Milk- (or shrub-, or tree-) trefoil; of Linnæus, a genus of leguminous plants of the Genisteæ, indigenous to Europe, Asia, Africa, and the Canaries. 2. Of Celsus, the C. hirsutus or C. nigricans. [B, 42, 45, 121, 275 (a, 24).]—C. alpinus [Miller], C. angustifolius [Mönch]. Fr., cytise des Alpes. Ger., Alpenebenholz. Two species very much like C. laburnum, and having the same uses. [B, 19, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—C. Antillarum [De Candolle]. A species found in the Antilles. The flowers and bitter seeds are employed as a febrifuge and as a digestive tonic. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. cajan. The Cajanus indicus. [a, 24.]—C. hirsutus. A species growing in the southern part of Europe, the leaves of which are said to be diuretic. [a, 22.]—C. laburnum. Fr., cytise à grappes (ou des Alpes, ou des anciens), arbois, aubour, bois de lièvre, ebénier des Alpes (ou sauvage). Ger., gemeiner Bohnenstrauch, Goldregen. The common laburnum, false ebony, golden chain; a species indigenous to the higher mountains of Europe, and widely cultivated. All parts of the plant are poisonous; its flowers contain oil, gum, lignin, gallic acid, and calcium chloride and sulphate; its seeds contain cytisin and laburnine. It has been employed as a sedative in nervous disorders and externally and internally in prurigo. It is also emetic. ["Am. Jour. of Pharm.," July, 1888, p. 33; B, 5, 173, 180 (a, 24); A, 385.]—C. lanigerus [De Candolle]. A species found in southern Europe and the East; formerly used as an astringent. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—C. odoratus. See C. alpinus.—C. pseudocajan [Linnæus]. The Cajanus flavus. [B, 173.]—C. purpurascens. Fr., cytise d'Adam. The purple laburnum; a hybrid between C. laburnum and C. purpureus. [B, 19 (a, 24).]—C. purpureus. Fr., cytise pourpre. Ger., rother Bohnenbaum. The purple-flowered laburnum; a species indigenous to Carniola. [B, 19 (a, 24).]—C. scoparius [Link]. The Spartium scoparium. [B, 5 (a, 24).]—C. sessifolius. Fr., cytise (ou trèfle) des jardiniers, cytise à feuilles sessiles, trifolium. Ger., italiänischer Bohnenbaum. The stalkless-flowered laburnum. [B, 173, 275 (a, 24).]—C. spinosus. Fr., cytise épineux. Ger., dorniger Bohnenbaum. Prickly laburnum; a species formerly used in southern Europe as an astringent. [B, 173, 180, 275 (a, 24).]

CYTITIS (Lat.), n. f. Si^{2}t(ku^{6}t)-i(e)-ti^{2}s. Gen., cytit'idos (-is). See DERMATITIS.

CYTOBLAST, n. Si'to-bla^{2}st. Lat., cytoblastus (from κύτος, a cell, and βλαστός, a germ). Fr., cytoblaste. Ger., C., organischer Hautkeim. Syn.: nucleus. 1. Schleiden's term for a cell-nucleus; now rarely used. ["Arch. f. Anat.," 1838, p. 137; L, 20.] 2. The enveloping or encysting substance of a colony of choanoflagellate Infusoria. [Sollas, "Quart. Jour. of Micr. Sci.," 1884 (J).] 3. Of Baillon, the nucleus of a vegetable cell. [B, 19, 105, 121, 146 (a, 24).]

CYTOBLASTEMA (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku^6)-to(to^3)-bla^{2}s(bla^{3}s)-te-(ta)'ma^3. Gen., cytoblastem'atos (-is). From κύτος, a cell, and βλάστημα, germ substance. Lat., substantia hyalina (seu vitrea), matrix. Fr., cytoblastème. Ger., Cytoblasteim, Zellenkeimstoff, Bildungsstoff, Bildungsflüssigkeit. Syn.: blastema. 1. Formative fluid, ground (or intercellular, or hyaline) substance; the fluid, semi-fluid, or solid intercellular substance in which cells were supposed to be developed by free cell-formation. 2. The contents of cells which give rise to young cells. 3. Of Schwann, the liquid formative material of the ovum, supposed to be produced by the liquefaction of the blastospheres, and to furnish the nidus of the primitive cells of the embryo. 4. In botany, the liquid in which all vegetable cells are formed. [A, 8; B, 121 (a, 24); J, 21, 27, 36; K, 4.]

CYTOBLASTION (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku^6)-to(to^3)-bla^{2}st(bla^{3}st)-i(e)'-o^{2}n. From κύτος, a cell, and βλαστεῖον, a sprout. An anatomical element consisting of spherical or ovoid nuclei, or of spherical cellules very little or not all granular. [L, 41.]

CYTOCHYLEMA [Strasburger] (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku^6)-to(to^3)-ki^{2}l(ch^{2}u^{6}l)-e(a)'ma^3. Gen., cytochylem'atos (-is). From κύτος, a cell, and χυλός, juice. Ger., Interfilarmasse. The more fluid portion of the cell protoplasm which fills up the spaces of the network formed by the cytohyaloplasm. [" Quart. Jour. of Micr. Sci.," xxx, p. 211 (L).]

CYTOCHYME [Strasburger], n. Si'to-kim. Lat., cytochyma (from κύτος, a cell, and χυμός, juice). Ger., Cytochym. The watery fluid found in the vacuoles of plant-cells; also the homogeneous ground-substance of the body of a cell. ["Arch. f. mikr. Anat.," 1884, p. 246 (J); " Quart. Jour. of Micr. Sci.," xxx, p. 211 (L).]

CYTOCOCCUS (Lat.), n. m. Si(ku^{6}s)-to(to^3)-ko^{3}k'ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s). From κύτος, a cell, and κόκκος, a kernel. Ger., Stammkern. The nucleus of a cytula. [L, 146.]

CYTOCORMUS (Lat.), n. m. Si(ku^6)-to(to^3)-ko^{2}rm'u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From κύτος, a cell, and κορμός, a stem. Haeckel's term for one of

A, ape; A^2, at; A^3, ah; A^4, all; Ch, chin; Ch^2, loch (Scottish); E, he; E^2, ell; G, go; I, die; I^2, in; N, in; N^2, tank; his six forms of morphological units derived from a cell-stock or cell-fusion of previously separated cells such as occur in lactiferous and spiral vessels of plants and muscular and nerve-fibres of animals. [a, 24.]

CYTODA (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-tod'a3. See CYTODE.—Cytodæ membranosæ. See LEPOCYTODES.—Cytodæ primordiales. See GYMNOCYTODE.

CYTODE, n. Si'tod. Lat., cytoda (from κύτος, a cell, and εἶδος, resemblance), cellina. Fr., c. Ger., C., kernloses Plasmastück, kernlose Zelle, Plasmaklumpen, ohne Kern, Protoplasmakörperchen. Syn.: protoplasmic corpuscle. Of Haeckel (1866), a minute cell-like mass of living matter without a nucleus. [J, 9.]—C. générateur [Van Beneden] (Fr.). A Gregarina when it presents itself as a spherical mass of naked, granular, non-nucleated protoplasm. [L, 321.]—Encased c. See LEPOCYTODE.—Naked c., Primitive c., Simple c. See GYMNOCYTODE.

CYTODIÆRESIS (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-to(to3)-di(di2)-e2r'(a3'e2r)-e2s-i2s. Gen., cytodiæres'eos (-ær'esis). From κύτος, a cell, and διαίρεσις, division. Fr., cytodiérèse. Of Carnoy, cell division. ["La cellule," 1885 (J).]

CYTODIÆRETIC, adj. Si-to-di-e2r-e2t'i2k. Fr., cytodierétique. Pertaining to cytodiæresis. [A, 385.]

CYTOGENESIS (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-to(to3)-je2n(ge2n)-e2s-i2s. Gen., cytogenes'eos (-gen'esis). From κύτος, a cell, and γένεσις, generation. Cell-formation. [J.]

CYTOGENETIC, CYTOGENIC, adj's. Si-to-je2n-e2t'i2k, -je2n'i2k. Lat., cytogeneticus. Pertaining to or concerned in the formation of cells. [K.]

CYTOGENOUS, adj. Sit-o2j'e2n-u3s. Lat., cytogeneticus. Fr., cytogène, cytogénétique. Ger., cytogen. 1. Pertaining to a tissue or part containing cells, especially lymphoid cells. 2. Pertaining to a tissue giving rise to cells. [J, 33, 35.]

CYTOGENY, n. Si-to2j'e2n-i2. See CYTOGENESIS.

CYTOHYALOPLASMA [Haustein and Strasburger] (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku6)-to(to3)-hi(hu6)-a2l(a3l)-o(o3)-pla2z(pla3s)-ma3. Gen., cytohyaloplas'matos (-is). From κύτος, a cell, ὕαλος, transparent, and πλάσμα, formed matter. Ger., Filarmasse. The more solid constituent of cell-protoplasm, which forms threads that may or may not be arranged in a network. ["Quart. Jour. of Micr. Sci.," xxx, p. 211 (L).]

CYTOID, adj. Si'toid. Lat., cytoides (from κύτος, a cell, and εἶδος, resemblance). Fr., cytoïde. Cell-like. [J.]

CYTO-IDIOPLASMA (Lat.), n. n. Si(ku6)-to(to3)-i2d-i2-o(o3)-pla2z(pla3s)'ma3. Gen., cyto-idioplas'matos (-is). From κύτος, a cell, ἴδιος, peculiar, and πλάσμα, formed matter. The idioplasma of the cell-body, in contradistinction to that of the cell-nucleus. [Strasburger (J).]

CYTOLOGY, n. Si-to2l'o-ji2. From κύτος, a cell, and λόγος, understanding. Fr., cytologie. The science of cells. [J.]

CYTOMICROSOME, n. Si-to-mi2k'ro-som. From κύτος, a cell, μικρος, small, and σῶμα, a body. Ger., Cytomikrosom. A microsome, or tube-shaped granule, of chromatin found in the threads of the cytohyaloplasma of cells. ["Quart. Jour. of Micr. Sci.," xxx, p. 211 (L).]

CYTOMITOME, n. Si-to2m'i2t-om. From κύτος, a cell, and μίτος, a thread. The fibril or fibrils of a cell-body. ["Quart. Jour. of Micr. Sci.," 1886 (J).]

CYTOPLASM (Lat.), CYTOPLASMA (Lat.), n's n. Si(ku6)-to(to3)-pla2z'm, -pla2z(pla3s)'ma3. Gen., cytoplas'matos (-is). From κύτος, a cell, and πλάσμα, formed matter. Fr., cytoplasme Ger., C., Zellplasma. 1. Of Kölliker (1862), protoplasm. 2. The substance of the cell-body in contradistinction to that of the nucleus, or caryoplasma. [Strasburger, "Arch. f. mikr. Anat.," 1884, p. 246 (J).]—C. fäden (Ger.). Fibrils of the protoplasm of the cell-body. ["Arch. f. mikr. Anat.," 1884, p. 285 (J).]—C'fasern (Ger.). See Achromatic FIBRILS.

CYTOPLASTIC, adj. Si-to-pla2s'ti2k. Ger., cytoplastisch. Pertaining to or of the nature of cytoplasm. [J.]

CYTOPLASTIN, n. Si-to-pla2st'i2n. A "viscous, extensible" substance, resisting the action of pepsin and trypsin, found by F. Schwarz in cell-protoplasm. ["Quart. Jour. of Micr. Sci.," xxx, p. 171 (L).]

CYTOPROCT, n. Si'to-pro2kt. From κύτος, a cell, and πρωκτός, the anus. In certain Infusoria, an orifice serving for the discharge of the non-nutritious portions of the food. [L, 210.]

CYTOSPERMEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si(ku6)-to(to3)-spu6rm-(spe2rm)'e2-e(a3-e2). From κύτος, a cell, and σπέρμα, seed. A subsection of Algæ, of the old suborder Gymnospermeæ, comprising genera now ranked among the Fucoideæ. The Cytosporæ (Fr., cytosporées) of Ehrenberg are a cohort of Fungi, consisting of Coccopleum, Apiosporium, Chætomium, and Cytospora. The Cytosporiacei of Pfeiffer are an order of the Pyrenomycetes, comprising the Leveilleini, Cytosporei, and Parmulariei. [B, 41; B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYTOSTASIS (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-to2st'a2s(a3s)-i2s. Gen., cytostas'eos (-ost'asis). From κύτος, a cell, and στάσις (see STASIS). Stasis of the white blood-corpuscles, as in the incipient stage of inflammation (q. v.). [K.]

CYTOSTOME, n. Si'to-stom. Lat., cytostoma (from κύτος, a cell, and στόμα, an aperture). In certain Infusoria, an orifice serving for the ingestion of food. [L. 210.]

CYTOTÆNIA [Leuckart] (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-to(to3)-te'(ta3'e2)-ni2-a3. See TÆNIA.

CYTOTHECA (Lat.), n. f. Si(ku6)-to(to3)-the(tha)'ka3. From κύτος, a cell, and θήκη, a cover. Fr., cytothèque. That portion of the cocoon of an insect which covers the body. [L, 180.]

CYTOTOMIE (Fr.). n. Se-to-to-me. From κύτος, a cell, and τέμνειν, to cut. The anatomy of cells. [Carnoy (J, 15).]

CYTOZOA (Lat.), n. n. pl. Si(ku6)-to(to3)-zo'a3. Fr., cytozoaires. See PROTOZOA.

CYTOZOÖN, n. Si(ku6)-to(to3)-zo'o2n. From κύτος, a cell, and ζῶον, a living being. Fr., cytozoaire. A peculiar mass of protoplasm found in blood-corpuscles and in many epithelial cells; considered by Lankester to be a parasite. [K, 16.] Cf. WÜRMCHEN.

CYTR DRZEWO (Polish), n. The Citrus medica. [B, 88.]

CYTRULE, n. In Bohemia, the Cucurbita citrullus. [B, 88.]

CYTRYN, n. In Bohemia, the Citrus medica. [B, 88.]

CYTTARIA (Lat.), n. f. Si2t(ku6t)-ta(ta3)'ri2-a3. Fr., cyttaria. A genus of hymenomycetous Fungi, parasites upon South American evergreen beeches. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]—C. Berteroi. A species found in Chili, occasionally eaten. [B, 61.]—C. Darwinii. A species found in Tierra del Fuego and forming an important article of food there. [B, 61.]—C. Gunnii. An edible species found in Tasmania.

CYTTARIEI (Lat.), n. m. pl. Si2t(ku6t)-ta2r(ta3r)-i(i2)'e2-i(e). 1. Of Léveillé, a family of Fungi (subsequently a section of the Cyathidei), consisting of the genus Cyttaria. 2. Of Pfeiffer, a section of the tribe Dichænacei, of the Pyrenomycetes. [B, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

CYTTAROS (Lat.), n. m. Si2t(ku6t)'ta2r(ta3r)-o2s. Gr., κύτταρος. See CYTAROS.

CYTTIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Si2t(ku6t)'ti2d-e(a3-e2). A family of the Acanthopterygii. The Cyttina are a group of the Scombridæ. [L, 207, 280.]

CYZICENUS (Lat.), n. m. Si2z(ku6z)-i2-se(ka)'nu3s(nu4s). Gr., κυζικνός. A certain vulnerary plaster mentioned by Galen. [A, 325.]

CZACKIA (Lat.), n. f. Kza3k'i2-a3. A genus of plants, made by some authors a section of the genus Anthericum. [B, 19 (a, 24).]—C. liliastrum. Fr., lis de Saint Bruno. A species found in mountainous forests in southern Europe. Its tuberous root was formerly official as radix liliastri. [B, 180 (a, 24).]

CZARKOW (Pol.), n. Tsa3r'ko. A place in Silesia, where there is a gaseous saline spring. [L, 49.]

CZERVICZE (Hung.), n. Che2r'vi2-che2. See PARÁD.

D

DA, n. 1. In Languedoc, the date. [L, 41.] 2. A Japanese variety of rice with small, reddish grains. [A, 385.]

DAAN (Hind.), n. The Punica granatum. [A, 496 (a, 24).]

DAANGA (Singh.), n. The Spathodes longiflorus. [A, 496 (a, 24).]

DAAURITH, n. See MAL de coït.

DAB (Hind.), n. 1. The Viburnum nervosum and the Poa cynosuroides. 2. In Bengal, the Xyris indica. [A, 496 (a, 24).]

DABACH (Ar.), n. The Viscum album. [B, 88, 121 (a, 24).]

DABA CHETTA (Tel.). The Citrus medica. [A, 496 (a, 24).]

DÁBALI (Guz.), n. The Abutilon indicum. [A, 479.]

DABANE-HINDI (Pers.), n. The Mylabris cichorii. ["Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," xx (a, 21).]

DABBERLACK, n. Da2b'u6r-la2k. The Alaria esculenta. [A, 505.]

DABBERRIES, n. pl. Da2b'be2r-i2z. The fruit of Ribes grossularia. [A, 505.]

DABER-LOCKS, n. Da2b'u6r-lo2ks. See DABBERLACK.

DABINGORA, n. The Croton variegatum. [B, 88.]

DACNODES (Lat.), adj. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-nod'ez(as). Gr., δακνώδης. Ger., beissend. Biting (i. e., highly irritating). [A, 322.]

DACNOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-nos'i^{2}s. Gen., dacnos'eos (-is). From δάκνειν, to bite. Fr., dacnose. Ger., Beissen. A biting or pungency. [L, 50.]

DACRÆMORRHYSIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-re^{2}m(ra^3-e^{2}m)-o^{2}r-ri(ru^6)'si^{2}s. See DACRYÆMORRHYSIS.

DACRY (Lat.), n. n. Da(da^3)'kri(kru^6). Gr., δάκρυ. See DACRYON.

DACRYADENALGIA (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-a^{2}d-(a^{3}d)-e^{2}n a^{2}l(a^{3}l)'ji^2(gi^2)-a^3. From δάκρυ, a tear, ἄδην, a gland, and ἄλγος, pain. Fr., dacryadénalgie. Ger., Thränendrüsenschmerz. Pain in the lacrymal gland. [A, 322.]

DACRYADENITIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^3)-a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-e^{2}n-i(e)'ti^{2}s. Gen., dacryadenit'idos (-is). From δάκρυ, a tear, and ἄδην, a gland (see also *-itis). Fr., dacryadénite. Ger., Thränendrüsenentzündung. Inflammation of the lacrymal gland. [A, 322.]

DACRYADENOSCIRRHUS (Lat.), n. m. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-e^{2}n-o(o^3)-si^{2}r(ski^{2}r)'ru^{3}s(ru^{4}s). From δάκρυ, a tear, ἄδην, a gland, and σκιῤῥουσθαι, to become indurated. Fr., dacryadenoscirrhe. Ger., Thränendrüsen-Skirrhus, Thränendrüsenkrebs. Scirrhus of the lacrymal gland. [L, 50.]

DACRYÆMORRHYSIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-e^{2}m-(a^3-e^{2}m)-o^{2}r-ri(ru^6)'sis. Gen., dacryæmorrhys'eos (-is). From δάκρυ, a tear, αἷμα, blood, and ῥύσις, a streaming. Fr., dacryhémorrhyse. Ger., Thränenblutfluss. Originally, a flow of bloody tears; subsequently, hæmorrhage from the lacrymal passages. [F; L, 50, 135.]

DACRYAGOGATRESIA (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-a^{2}g-(a^{3}g)-o^{2}g(og)-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-re(ra)'zi^2(si^2)-a^3. From δάκρυ, a tear, ἀγωγός, conducting, and ἄτρητος, imperforate. Fr., dacryagogatrésie. Ger., Verschliessung der Thränengänge. Occlusion of the lacrymal duct. [L, 50.]

DACRYAGOGUS (Lat.), adj. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-a^{2}g(a^{3}g)-og'-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From δάκρυ, a tear, and ἀγωγός, conducting. Fr., dacryagogue. Ger., thränenführend. Tear-conducting (said of the lacrymal passages). [L, 116.]

DACRYALLŒOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)-le(lo^3-e^2)-os'i^{2}s. Gen., dacryallœos'eos (-is). From δάκρυ, a tear, and ἀλλοίωσις, a change. An abnormal state of the lacrymal secretion. [A, 322.]

DACRYDIUM (Lat.), n. n. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^{2}d(ru^{6}d)'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Gr., δακρύδιον (dim. of δάκρυ, a tear). Ger., Thränchen (1st def.). 1. A drop (a so-called tear) of gum or resin, especially scammony. [A, 311.] 2. Of Solander, a genus of the family Taxineæ. [B, 48 (a, 14).]—D. cupressinum [Solander], D. taxifolium. A species of D. (2d def.) indigenous to New Zealand, said to acquire a height of 200 feet. Its shoots are made into a beverage having the same antiscorbutic properties as spruce-beer. [B, 19, 245 (a, 24).]

DACRYELCOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-e^{2}l-ko'si^{2}s. Gen., dacryelcos'eos (-is). From δάκρυ, a tear, and ἕλκωσις, ulceration. Fr., dacryelcose Ger., Verschwärung der Thränenwerkzeuge, Thränengeschwür. Ulceration of the lacrymal apparatus. [L, 135.]

DACRYGELOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-je^{2}l(ge^{2}l)-o'-si^{2}s. Gen., dacrygelos'eos (-is). From δακρύγελως. smiling through tears. Alternating laughter and weeping, as in hysteria. [L, 56.]

DACRYHÆMORRHYSIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-he^{2}m(ha^3-e^{2}m)-o^{2}r-ri(ru^6)'si^{2}s. See DACRYÆMORRHYSIS.

DACRYHELCOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-he^{2}l-ko'-si^{2}s. See DACRYELCOSIS.

DACRYIN, n. Da^{2}k'ri^2-i^{2}n. Lat., dacryinum, dacryina (from δάκρυ, a tear). Fr., dacryine. Ger., Thränenstoff, Dakryin. A peculiar substance found in tears. [L, 50.]

DACRYMA (Lat.), n. n. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri(ru^6)'ma^3. Gen., dacrym'atos (-is). Gr., δάκρυμα. See DACRYON (1st def.).

DACRYOADENALGIA (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-o-(o^3)-a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-e^{2}n-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)'ji^2(gi^2)-a^3. See DACRYADENALGIA.

DACRYOADENITIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-o(o^3)-a^{2}d(a^{3}d)-e^{2}n-i(e)'ti^{2}s. See DACRYADENITIS.

DACRYOBLENNORRHŒA (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-o(o^3)-ble^{2}n-no^{2}r-re'(ro^3'e^2)-a^3. From δάκρυον, a tear, βλέννα, mucus, and ῥεῖν, to flow. Fr., dacryoblennorrhée. Ger., Thränenschleimfluss. A mucous discharge from the lacrymal passages. [L, 41, 50.]

DACRYOCYSTALGIA (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-o(o^3)-si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-a^{2}l(a^{3}l)'ji^2(gi^2)-a^3. From δάκρυον, a tear, κύστις, a sac, and ἄλγος, pain. Fr., dacryocystalgie. Ger., Thränensackschmerz. Pain in the lacrymal sac. [L, 50.]

DACRYOCYSTATONIA (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-o-(o^3)-si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-a^{2}t(a^{3}t)-on(o^{2}n)'i^2-a^2. From δάκρυον, a tear, κύστις, a sac, and ἀτονία, relaxation. Fr., dacryocystatonie. Ger., Erschlaffung des Thränensacks. Atony of the lacrymal sac. [L, 50.]

DACRYOCYSTE (Lat.), DACRYOCYSTIS (Lat.), n's. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-o(o^3)-si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)'e(a), -i^{2}s. From δάκρυον, a tear, and κύστη or κύστις, a sac. Fr., dacryocyste, sac lacrymale. Ger., Thränensack. The lacrymal sac. [F.]

DACRYOCYSTITIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-o(o^3)-si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-i(e)'ti^{2}s. Gen., dacryocystit'idos (-is). Fr., dacryocystite. Ger., Thränensackentzündung. Inflammation of the lacrymal sac. [L, 50.]—D. blennorrhoica. Fr., dacryocystite blennorrhéique. Ger., blennorrhöische Thränenschlauchentzündung. Suppurative inflammation of the lacrymal sac. [F.]—D. catarrhalis. Fr., dacryocystite catarrhale. Ger., catarrhalische Thränenschlauchentzündung. A disease of the lacrymal sac characterized by a reddened and swollen condition of the mucous membrane lining the sac and canaliculi, and the secretion of an abundant, clear or slightly cloudy fluid, mucus or muco-pus, which can be pressed out of the puncta by the finger. There is always some catarrhal conjunctivitis present, with perhaps slight reddening of the skin over the sac. [F.]—D. phlegmonosa. Fr., dacryocystite phlegmoneuse. Ger., phlegmonöse Thränenschlauchentzündung. Phlegmonous inflammation of the lacrymal sac, characterized by infiltration of the skin and subcutaneous tissue with serum and lymphoid cells. There is a very hard, brawny, prominent swelling of the region of the sac, and this dense infiltration spreads to all the neighboring tissues. No pus can be pressed out from the puncta; there are great pain and local heat of skin, and often a rise in the general temperature. The lids are often entirely closed, and the skin is purple and glazed. [F.]—D. purulenta. Fr., dacryocystite purulente. Ger., eitrige Thränenschlauchentzündung. See D. blennorrhoica.

DACRYOCYSTOBLENNORRHŒA (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-o(o^3)-si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-ble^{2}n-no^{2}r-re'(ro^3'e^2)-a^3. From δάκρυον, a tear, κύστις, a sac, βλέννα, mucus, and ῥεῖν, to flow. Fr., dacryoblennorrhée. Ger., Thränensackschleimfluss. A mucous discharge from the lacrymal sac. [L, 50.]

DACRYOCYSTOBLENNOSTASIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-o(o^3)-si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-ble^{2}n-no^{2}st'a^{2}s(a^{3}s)-i^{2}s. Gen., dacryocystoblennostas'eos (-nost'asis). From δάκρυον, a tear, κύστις, a sac, βλέννα, mucus, and στάσις, stagnation. Ger., Stockung des Schleimabganges aus dem Thränensack. An accumulation of mucus in the lacrymal sac. [L, 50 (a, 14).]

DACRYOCYSTOCELE (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)-o(o^3)-si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o(o^3)-se(ka)'le(la); in Eng., da^{2}k-ri^2-o-si^{2}st'o-sel. From δάκρυον, a tear, κύστις, a sac, and κήλη, a tumor. Fr., dacryocystocèle. Ger., Thränensackbruch. A hernia of the lacrymal sac. [L, 50 (a, 14).]

DACRYOCYSTOPTOSIS (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}k(da^{3}k)-ri^2(ru^6)o-(o^3)-si^{2}st(ku^{6}st)-o^{2}p-to'si^{2}s. Gen., dacryocystoptos'eos (-is). From δάκρυον, a tear, κύστις, a sac, and πτῶσις, a falling. Ger., Vorfall des Thränensacks. Prolapse of the lacrymal sac. [A, 322.]

DAMMAR, n. Da^{2}ma^{3}r'. Jav. and Malay, dâmar. Fr., d. Ger., D. A generic name for certain oleo-resins resembling copal, employed in the arts for varnishes, and as an addition to plasters in the Ger. and East Indian Ph's. It is an exudation from many species of Coniferæ and other trees of eastern Asia, the islands of the Pacific, New Zealand, Australia, and South America. It is soluble in chloroform, in fats, in oils, in benzene, in ether, and in hot alcohol. Its sp. gr. is from 1·040 to 1·112; its melting point, 120° C. It contains dammarylic acid, resin, gum, and a volatile oil. [B, 270 (a, 24).]—American d. Ger., amerikanisches D. A hard, fragrant resin, of a reddish color, obtained from Araucania brasiliana. [B, 270 (a, 24).]—Aromatic d. Of Guibourt, a variety differing somewhat from Australian and East Indian d.; soluble in ether. [a, 27.]—Australian d. Ger., australisches D'harz. Syn.: New Zealand d., Kauri copal. A product of Dammara australis and Dammara ovata; a half-fossil resin found a short distance underground in the Kauri fields of New Zealand, very like copal, and occurring in roundish fragments from the size of an egg to that of a man's head. It has an aromatic taste and a balsamic odor. [B, 270 (a, 24).]—Bengal d. The Shorea robusta. [a, 24.]—Black d. Lat., dammara nigra. Fr., d. noire. Ger., schwarzes D'harz. Hind., kala-d. A resin obtained from Canarium strictum, or, according to some persons, the Marignia acutifolia, recommended as a substitute for Burgundy pitch. It is only black when on the tree. When held to the light, it is of a transparent, brownish-yellow or amber color. It is somewhat soluble in boiling alcohol, and entirely soluble in oil of turpetine. [B, 77, 172 (a, 24).]—D. batu (Malay). See Rock d. and D. puti.—D. des Indes (Fr.). See Indian d.—D'fichte (Ger.). The genus Agathis (Dammara). [B, 180, 270 (a, 24).]—D. of the sal-tree. Bengal d., called by the natives ral or ethooma; the product of Shorea robusta. [B, 172 (a, 24).]—D.-pine. The Dammara alba. [a, 24.]—D.-pitch. See D. of the sal-tree.—D. puti [Hind.]. Literally, cat's-eye d.; the resin of Dammara alba. [a, 24.] See also Rock-d.—D. resin. See D.—D. selan [Malay]. The resin of Anona selanica; also a resinous extract from Vatica selanica. [B, 121 (a, 24); L, 41.]—D. varnish. A varnish made by adding 10 parts of powdered d. to 20 of benzene. This is allowed to stand 24 to 48 hours, when the dissolved portion is carefully poured off and added to 4 parts of pure oil of turpentine. It is often used in preference to Canada balsam in microscopy on account of its being more nearly colorless, and of its not rendering the preparations so transparent as the latter, being therefore preferable to it for colored objects. [a, 27.]—East Indian d., Indian d. Fr., d. des Indes. Ger., indisches D. In commerce, the product of Hopea splendida, Hopea micrantha, Dammara alba, Dammara orientalis, and Englehardtia spicata. It occurs in long, irregularly-shaped fragments, more or less colorless or yellowish, transparent, breaking conchoidally, and having a soft, smooth outer surface. It is softer than copal and harder than colophony. [B, 270 (a, 24).]—New Zealand d. Ger., Neuseeländisches D. See Australian d.—Rock d. Malay, d. batu. An Indian d. obtained from Hopea micrantha. [B, 77 (a, 24).]—Sal-d. See D. of the sal-tree.—Schwarzes D. (Ger.). See Black d.—Sufel-d. (Hind.), White d. Ger., weisses D. The resin or varnish obtained from Vateria indica (seu malabarica). [B, 77, 172 (a, 24).]

DATHIATUM (Lat.), n. n. Da^{2}th(da^{3}th)-i^2-at(a^{3}t)′u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Carpheotum (q. v.) when gathered in winter. [Bory (B, 121).]

DATISCA [Linnæus] (Lat.), n. f. Da^{2}t(da^{3}t)-i^{2}s′ka^3. Fr., datisque. Ger., Streichkraut. A genus of the Datisceæ. [B, 42 (a, 24).]—D. cannabina. Fr., chanvre de Crète, cannabine. Ger., gelber Hanf, hanfartiges Streichkraut. It., canape di creta. Sp., d. del Levante. A species often cultivated in European gardens. The herb has a bitter, nauseous taste, and in Candia is used instead of cinchona. In Italy it is employed in intermittent fevers and in gastric and scrofulous troubles. The leaves of the female plant yield a very fine yellow dye. The root contains datiscin. [B, 121, 173, 180 (a, 24).]

DATISCACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. Da^{2}t(da^{3}t)-i^{2}s-ka(ka^3)′se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Of Lindley, an order of the Cucurbitales (of Jussieu, a family of the Dicotyledoneæ diclinæ), consisting of Datisca, Tetrameles, and Tricerastes. The datiscads of Lindley are the same as his D. His Datiscales, or datiscal alliance, are an alliance of the Rectembryæ, consisting of the Datisceæ and Lacistemeæ. The Datisceæ are of Presl an order of the Peponiferæ; of R. Brown, an order comprising Datisca and Tetrameles; of Reichenbach, a division of the Halorageæ, containing the same genera; of Baillon, a series of the Saxifragaceæ, comprising Datisca, Tetrameles, and Octomeles; of Bentham and Hooker, an order of the Passiflorales, consisting of the same genera. [B, 19, 42, 121, 170 (a, 24).]

DATISCETIN, n. Da^{2}t-i^{2}s′e^{2}t-i^{2}n. Fr., datiscétine. Ger., D. It., Sp., datiscetina. A compound, $C_{10}H_{10}O_6$, produced by the decomposition of datiscin; it forms colorless, tasteless, acicular crystals, freely soluble in ether, and moderately soluble in alcohol and in alkaline solutions. [B, 4, 270 (a, 24).]

DATISCIN, n. Da^{2}t′i^{2}s-i^{2}n. Fr., datiscine. Ger., D. It., Sp., datiscina. A bitter glucoside, $C_{21}H_{22}O_{12}$, similar to quercitin, occurring in the roots of Datisca cannabina, forming acicular crystals, melting at 180° C., slightly soluble in cold water and in ether, and easily soluble in alcohol; used in the East as a yellow dye for silk. [B, 42, 270 (a, 24).]

DATISQUE (Fr.), n. Da^3-tesk. The Datisca cannabina. [A, 385 (a, 21).]

DA-T-KAI, n. A kind of purslane common in Kaffraria and said to be eaten there. [B, 88, 121 (a, 24).]

The state of being deaf.—Clang-d. That form of defect of the sense of hearing in which, although the loudness and other gross qualities of sounds are perceived correctly, their more delicate qualities are not recognized. [J. R. Leaming, "N. Y. Med. Jour.," Mar. 23, 1889, p. 309.]—Hysterical d. D. occurring suddenly in severe cases of hysteria and independent of any local disease in the ear. [F.]—Intellectual d. See Psychical d.—Malarial d. D. sometimes met with in aggravated cases of malarial poisoning. It is supposed to be due to a lesion of the auditory nerve or of its nucleus, and may be associated with a loss of power in the optic nerve, and with loss of sensation in other nerves. [F.]—Nervous d. Fr., surdité nerveuse. Ger., nervöse Taubheit. It., sordità nervosa. Sp., sordera nerviosa. That form of d. in which the cause lies in a primary affection of the auditory nerve or of the labyrinth or of both. [F, 34.]—Psychical d. Lat., amnesia (seu akamathesia) acustica. Ger., Seelentaubheit. A condition in which, although sounds are heard, their significance is not recognized; observed in cases of lesion of the gyrus inframarginalis. [R. Arndt (A, 319).]—Throat-d. D. induced by some obstruction in the throat, as from enlarged tonsils, or due to some inflammatory affection starting in the pharynx and involving the Eustachian tubes. [F.]—Vascular d. Fr., surdité d'origine vasculaire. Of R. T. Cooper, a variety of impaired hearing due to "a basic aural dyscrasia." A condition of ill health in which a diffuse irritability attacks the walls of the blood-vessels, and which, left untreated, very often settles in the ears, giving rise to two prominent ear symptoms. One of these is enfeebled hearing power, divided into obstructive and non-obstructive. The latter variety Cooper terms "vascular d." [F.]—Word-d. Fr., aphémie auditive. Ger., sinnliche Aphasie. It., sordità di parola (o verbale). Sp., sordera de palabras. Syn.: sensory aphasia. Of Kussmaul, that variety of psychical d. in which, while impressions of sound can still be perceived, spoken words can not be understood. It is attributed to some pathological change in the cortex of the left temporal lobe of the brain (the seat of Wernicke's centre for the sense of hearing, where the impressions received by the auditory nerves are united to form sound-pictures and the acoustic representation of words). [F.]

DECATYL, n. De^{2}k'a^{2}t-i^{2}l. From δέκα, ten, and ὕλη, matter. Fr., décatyle. Ger., Dekatyl. A compound containing 10 atoms of carbon in a molecule.—D. alcohol. Ger., Dekatylalkohol. A monatomic alcohol containing 10 atoms of carbon in a molecule, $C_{10}H_{21}.OH$. Several alcohols of this formula have been described, but the constitution of none is known with certainty. One, derived from petroleum decane, boils at between 210° and 215° C. Another is formed by the action of zinc ethyl on bromacetic bromide, and is probably of the constitution $CH(C_2H_5)_2 - C(C_2H_5)_2OH$ of tetraethylated ethyl alcohol. It boils at between 155° and 157° C. [B, 4, 158, 270 (a, 24).]

DECAY, n. De-ka. Lat., ruina. Fr., décadence. Ger., Verfall, Abnahme. A decline of the normal condition of a substance or of the whole or a part of an organism, especially putrefactive decomposition; also the condition of having undergone such a decline; figuratively, the gradual failure of health and strength incident to old age. [B, 4 (a, 24).]

DECEIVER, n. The Nepeta glechoma. [A, 505 (a, 21).]

DECEMCOSTATE, adj. De-se^{2}m-ko^{3}st'at. Lat., decemcostatus (from decem, ten, and costa, a rib). Fr., décemcoté. Ger., zehngerippt. Having ten ribs. [a, 24.]

DECEMDENTATE, adj. De-se^{2}m-de^{2}nt'at. Lat., decemdentatus (from decem, ten, and dens, a tooth). Fr., décemdenté. Ger., zehnzähnig. Having ten teeth or tooth-like processes. [L, 41.]

DECEMFID, adj. De'se^{2}m-fi^{2}d. Lat., decemfidus (from decem, ten, and findere, to split). Fr., décemfide. Ger., zehngespalten. Cleft into ten parts. [A, 385 (a, 21); B, 1, 121 (a, 24).]

DECEMFLOROUS, adj. De-se^{2}m-flo^{2}r-u^{3}s. Ten-flowered. [a, 24.]

DECEMJUGATE, adj. De-se^{2}m-ju^2-gat. Having ten pairs of leaflets. [a, 24.]

DECEMLOCULAR, adj. De-se^{2}m-lo^{2}k'u^{2}l-a^{3}r. From decem, ten, and loculus, a compartment. Fr., décemloculaire. Having ten compartments. [A, 385 (a, 21).]

DECEMMACULATUS (Lat.), adj. De(de^2)-se^{2}m(ke^{2}m)-ma^{2}k-(ma^{3}k)-u^2(u^4)-la(la^3)'tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). From decem, ten, and macula, a spot. Fr., décemmaculé. Ger., zehnfleckig. Marked with ten spots. [L, 41.]

DECEMNERVIUS (Lat.), adj. De(de^2)-se^{2}m(ke^{2}m)-nu^{5}r(ne^{2}r)'-vi^2(wi^2)-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From decem, ten, and nervus, a nerve. Fr., décemnervé. Ger., zehnnervig. In botany, ten-nerved. [a, 24.]

DECEMPARTITE, adj. De-se^{2}m-pa^{3}rt'i^{2}t. Lat., decempartitus (from decem, ten, and partire, to divide). Fr., décempartite, décemparti. Ger., zehngetheilt. Divided into ten parts. [A, 385 (a, 21).]

DECEMPEDATE, adj. De-se^{2}m'pe^{2}d-at. See DECEMPES.

DECEMPENNATUS (Lat.), adj. De(de^2)-se^{2}m(ke^{2}m)-pe^{2}n-na-(na^3)'tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). From decem, ten, and penna, a feather. Having ten large feathers. The Decempennatæ of Sundevall are a phalanx of the Conirostres. [L, 121.]

DECEMPES (Lat.), adj. De(de^2)-se^{2}m(ke^{2}m)'pez(pas). From decem, ten, and pes, the foot. Fr., décempède. Ger., zehnfüssig. Having ten feet or claws. The Decempedes are the Decapoda. [L, 41.]

DECEMPLICATUS (Lat.), adj. De(de^2)-se^{2}m(ke^{2}m)-pli^{2}k-a-(a^3)'tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). From decem, ten, and plicare, to fold. Fr., décemplissé. Ger., zehngefaltet. Having ten folds. [a, 24.]

DECEMSTRIATUS (Lat.), adj. De(de^2)-se^{2}m(ke^{2}m)-stri(stri^2)-a(a^3)'tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). From decem, ten, and striare, to stripe. Fr., décemstrié. Having ten narrow stripes or bands of a color different from that of the rest of the body. [L.]

DECENE, n. De^{2}s'en. A substance, $C_{10}H_{20}$, obtained by keeping turpentine oil heated for some hours to 200° to 250° C. with 20 parts of hydriodic acid. It boils at 160° C., has a strong odor, and dissolves in fuming sulphuric acid. [B, 2, 77 (a, 24).]

DECENTRED, adj. De-se^{2}nt'rd'. Not having a common focus. [a, 27.]

DECENYLENE, n. De^{2}s-e^{2}n'i^{2}l-en. Fr., décenylène. See DECINE.

DECEPHALIZATION, n. De-se^{2}f-a^{2}l-i^{2}z-a'shu^{3}n. From de priv., and κεφαλή, the head. Loss of prominence of the head. [L, 196.] Cf. CEPHALIZATION.

DECEREBRATION, n. De-se^{2}r-e^2-bra'shu^{3}n. From de priv., and cerebrum, the brain. The removal of the brain in the operation of craniotomy.

DECEREBRIZED, adj. De-se^{2}r'e^2-brizd. Having had the brain removed. [B. G. Wilder, "N. Y. Med. Jour.," July 31, 1886, p. 134.]

DÉCÈS (Fr.), n. Da-sa. Death. [A, 301 (a, 21).]

DECESSIO (Lat.), n. f. De(da)-se^{2}s(ke^{2}s)'si^2-o. Gen., decession'is. From decedere, to depart. A fracture of the skull. [L, 135.]

DÉCHAPELLEMENT (Fr.), n. Da-sha^3-pe^{2}l-ma^{3}n^2. The operation of cutting away the crown of a decayed tooth, the root of which is to be preserved. [A, 301 (a, 21).]

DÉCHARGE (Fr.), n. Da-sha^{3}rzh. See DISCHARGE.

DÉCHARNÉ (Fr.), adj. Da-sha^{3}r-na. Excessively emaciated. [A, 385 (a, 21).]

DÉCHAUSSOIR (Fr.), n. Da-shos-wa^{3}r. Lat., dentis scalpium. Ger., Zahnfleischablöser. A gum-lancet. [E; L, 41, 43.]

DÉCHET (Fr.), n. Da-sha. Refuse tissue. [a, 27.]

DÉCHIQUETÉ (Fr.), adj. Da-shek-ta. Laciniate. [A, 301 (a, 21).]

DÉCHIRÉ (Fr.), adj. Da-she-ra. Lacerated. [A, 301 (a, 21).]

DÉCHIREMENT (Fr.), DÉCHIRURE (Fr.), n's. Da-sher-ma^{3}n^2, -u^{6}r. See LACERATION.

DECIDENTIA (Lat.), n. f. De^{2}s(de^{2}k)-i^2-de^{2}n(dan)'shi^2(ti^2)-a^3. From decidere, to fall down. Fr., décidence. 1. See CATAPTOSIS. 2. An old term for a turn or change in an acute disease whereby it was prolonged beyond fourteen days. 3. A declining, falling into debility or sickness. [A, 322 (a, 21); L, 94.]

DÉCIDU (Fr.), adj. Da-se-du^6. See DECIDUOUS.

DECIDUA (Lat.), n., f. of adj. deciduus (membrana understood). De^2-si^{2}d(ki^{2}d)'u^2(u^4)-a^3. For deriv., see DECIDUOUS. Fr., caduque, membrane caduque, couche anhiste [Velpeau]. Ger., D., hinfällige Haut. It., d. Sp., d., caduca. Syn.: caduca. An adventitious envelope formed around the fertilized ovum on its entrance into the uterine cavity, consisting of the mucous membrane lining the

The subchorionic layer of the maternal placenta.—D. protrusa, D. reflexa. Fr., caduque réfléchie. That portion of the d. which, being continuous with the d. vera, covers the ovum as it projects into the uterine cavity, and finally, coming to lie in contact with the d. vera, constitutes the inner layer of the decidual sac taken as a whole. Toward the close of gestation the d. vera and the d. reflexa become fused into one membrane, forming a thin layer over the chorion.—D. serotina. So called from the old idea of the tardiness of its formation. By most writers this term is applied to the layer or layers of decidual substance which intervene between the developed placenta and the uterine wall; by some, however, it is considered to include also that part of the d. that enters into the formation of the maternal portion of the placenta. Hence a placental and a uterine d. serotina are spoken of. [A, 5.]—D. serotina uterina. See Uterine d. serotina.—D. spongiosa. Of Bojanus, the inner layer of the chorion in the dog. [A, 45.]—D. subchorialis. See D. placentalis subchorialis.—D. tuberosa et polyposa. A variety of decidual endometritis characterized by a roughened condition with polypoid outgrowths. [A. Jour.," May 3, 1884, p. 854.]—D. tunica. See D.—D. tunica reflexa. See D. reflexa.—D. tunica uteri, D. uteri, D. uterina, D. vera. Fr., caduque utérine. That portion of the mucous membrane lining the cavity of the uterus which, when the fecundated ovum comes to be imbedded in the membrane, continues to line the general cavity of the uterus in every part except that occupied by the attachment of the ovum. [A, 5.]—Epichorial d. See D. reflexa.—Glandular d. serotina. See Uterine d. serotina.—Interuteroplacental d. See D. serotina.—Menstrual d. Lat., d. menstrualis. 1. The superficial layer of the mucous membrane of the body of the uterus which is cast off during menstruation. 2. The membranous structure cast off in membranous dysmenorrhœa. [A, 326 (a, 21).]—Placental d. See D. serotina.—Placental d. serotina. Lat., d. serotina placentalis, d. placentalis sensu strictiori. Fr., partie para-utérine du placenta utérin. Ger., Basalplatte der Placenta [Winkler]. That layer of the d. serotina which covers the cotyledons.—Uterine d. See D. vera.—Uterine d. serotina. Lat., d. serotina uterina. Syn.: glandular d. serotina. The outer portion of the d. serotina.

DECIDUAL, adj. De^{2}s-i^{2}d'u^2-a^{2}l. Lat., decidualis. Pertaining to or resembling the decidua.

DECIDUATA (Lat.), n. n. pl. De^2-si^{2}d(ki^{2}d)-u^2(u^4)-a(a^3)'ta^3. Of Huxley, those Mammalia that shed a portion of the uterine mucous membrane in parturition. [A, 11.]

DECIDUATE, adj. De^{2}s-i^{2}d'u^2-at. Belonging to the Deciduata.

DECIDUATE, v. intr. De^{2}s-i^{2}d'u^2-at. To be shed. [A, 11.]

DECIDUATION, n. De^{2}s-i^{2}d-u^2-a'shu^{3}n. A process of shedding. [A, 11.]

DECIDUOMA (Lat.), n. De^2-si^{2}d(ki^{2}d)-u^2(u^4)-o^{2}m-a. Fr., déciduome. Ger., Deciduom. A neoplasm formed in the uterine cavity resembling the decidua serotina. very vascular, dark-brown in color, somewhat lobular upon the surface. It contains decidual and small nucleated cells, dilated glandular cavities, and blood and lymph spaces. It is believed to be caused by a hyperplasia of some portions of the decidua remaining in the uterus after the embryo proper has been expelled in an abortion. [Klotz, "Arch. of Gyn." xxix; "Deutsche Med.-Zeitung," March, 10, 1887 (a, 18).]

DECIDUOUS, adj. De^{2}s-i^{2}d'u^2-u^{3}s. Gr., εὐκατάπτωτος. Lat., deciduus (from decidere, to fall). Fr., décidu. Ger., abfallend. It., Sp., caduco. Falling or destined to fall off or be shed (said of the mucous membrane of the uterus, of the milk-teeth, of horns, etc.; in botany, of leaves that fall off annually, and of the calyx and the corolla when they fall off before the fruit develops). [B, 119, 121, 123 (a, 24).] Cf. CADUCOUS.

DECIGRAMME, n. De^{2}s-i^2-gra^{2}m. From δεκάτη, a tenth part, and γράμμα, a small weight. Fr., décigramme. A weight of one tenth of a gramme (= about 1·54 grain).

DECILITRE, n. De^{2}s'i^2-let'r. Fr., décilitre. A measure of the tenth of a litre (= about 6·10 cubic inches).

DECIMANA (Lat.), n., f. of adj. decimanus (febris understood). De^{2}s(de^{2}k)-i^{2}m-a(a^3)'na^3. Fr., décimane. An old term for a form of intermittent fever returning every tenth day. [L, 41, 84.]

DECIMANUS (Lat.), adj. De^{2}s(de^{2}k)-i^2-ma(ma^3)'nu^{3}s(nu^{4}s). Pertaining to a tenth; of the old medical writers, occurring every tenth day (see DECIMANA). [A, 301 (a, 21).]

DECIMETRE, n. De^{2}s'i^2-met'r. Fr., décimètre. A measure of one tenth of a metre (= about 3·93 inches).

DECINE, n. De^{2}s'en. A substance, $C_{10}H_{18}$, derived from bromodecylene by the abstraction of the elements of hydrobromic acid. It has a faint odor, and boils at 165° C. [B, 77, 158 (a, 24).]

DECINORMAL, adj. De^{2}s-i^2-no^{2}rm'a^{2}l. From decimus, tenth, and normalis, according to rule. Having one tenth the regular value (said of solutions which are so diluted as to be of one tenth the standard strength). [B.]

DECIPIUM (Lat.), n. n. De(de^2)-si^{2}p(ki^{2}p)'i^2-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Of Delafontaine, a metal found in North Carolina. Atomic weight, 130; symbol, Dp. [a, 27.]

DECKBLATT (Ger.), n. De^{2}k'bla^{3}t. A bract. [B.]

DECKBLÄTTCHEN (Ger.), n. De^{2}k'blat-ch^{2}en. A small bract, a bracteole. [a, 24.]

DECODON (Lat.), n. n. De^{2}k-o'do^{2}n(don). A genus of plants closely related to Lythrum, from which it differs chiefly in having a bell-shaped calyx-tube. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—D. verticillatum. The Nesœa verticillata. [B.]

DÉCOLIMÈTRE (Fr.), n. Da-ko-le-me^{2}t'r. An instrument invented by Payen for comparing the different decolorizing powers of the various kinds of commercial charcoal. [α, 27.]

DECOLLATED, adj. De-ko^{2}l'at-e^{2}d. Lat., decollatus. Fr., décollé. Having the apex worn away (said of univalve shells). [L, 296.]

DECOLLATION, n. De-ko^{2}l-a′shu^{3}n. Lat., decollatio (from decollare, to behead). Fr., décollation. See DECAPITATION.

DECOLLATOR (Lat.), n. m. De(da)-ko^{2}l-la(la^3)′to^{2}r; in Eng., de-ko^{2}l′at-o^{2}r. Gen., decollator′is. See DECAPITATOR.

DÉCOLLEMENT (Fr.), n. Da-ko^{3}l-ma^{3}n^2. Gr., ἀποκόλλησις. Lat., deglutinatio. Ger., Ablösen. The state of an organ separated from adjoining parts by destruction of the areolar tissue that normally unites them. The term is often applied to a morbid separation of skin from the subjacent parts, as in the care of a burn, a subcutaneous abscess, or the edges of an ulcer. [G.]—D. de la rétine. Detachment of the retina. [L, 88.]—D. de l'iris. See IRIDODIALYSIS.—D. des épiphyses. A solution of continuity of the long bones at the point of junction with their diaphyses. [A, 301 (α, 21).]—D. du placenta. 1. The spontaneous separation of the placenta or a portion of it. 2. The operation of separating the placenta from the uterine wall by peeling it off.—D. du sabot. Separation of the ungual matrix from the hoof. [A, 301 (α, 21).]—D. épiphysaire. See D. des épiphyses.—D. rétinien. Detachment of the retina.

DECOLOR (Lat.), adj. De(da)-ko^{2}l-o^{2}r. Gen., docolor′is. Gr., ἄχροος. Fr., décoloré. Ger., entfärbt. Colorless. [A, 325; L, 94 (α, 21).]

DECOLORANT, n. De-ku^{3}l′o^{2}r-a^{2}nt. Lat., decolorans. Fr., décolorant. Ger., entfärbende Mittel. A bleaching agent. [L, 56.]

DECOLORATIO (Lat.), n. f. De(da)-ko^{2}l-o^{2}r-a(a^3)′shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., decoloration′is. See DECOLORATION.—D. argentea. See ARGYRIASIS (1st def.).

DECOLORATION, n. De-ku^{3}l-o^{2}r-a′shu^{3}n. Lat., decoloratio. Fr., décoloration. Ger., Entfärbung. It., descolorazione. Sp., descoloración. The removal or absence of color. [L, 56.]

DECOLORATUS (Lat.), adj. De(da)-ko^{2}l-o^{2}r-a(a^3)′tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). Fr., décoloré. Ger., entfärbt. It., decolorato. Sp., descolorado, desteñido. Decolorized or discolored.

DECOLORES (Lat.), n. m. pl. De(da)-ko^{2}l-o′rez(ras). The chromatoses (see under CHROMATOSIS).

DECOLORIZATION, n. De-ku^{3}l-o^{2}r-i^{2}z-a′shu^{3}n. See DECOLORATION.

DÉCOMBANT (Fr.), adj. Da-ko^{3}n^2-ba^{3}n^2. See DECUMBENT.

DECOMBUSTION, n. De-ko^{2}m-bu^{3}st′yu^{3}n. From de priv., and combustio, combustion. Fr., décombustion. It., decombustione. Sp., decombustión. See DEOXYGENATION.

DECOMPOSABILITY, n. De-ko^{2}m-poz-a^{2}b-i^{2}l′i^{2}t-i^2. From de priv., and componere, to compound. Capability of decomposition. [B.]

DECOMPOSE, v. tr. and intr. De-ko^{2}m-poz′. From de priv., and componere, to compound. Fr., décomposer. Ger., zertrennen (1st def.), zersetzen (1st def.), verfaulen (2d def.). It., scomporre. Sp., descomponer. 1. (Tr.) to reduce a compound body to its simpler constituents. [B.] 2. (Intr.) to putrefy.

DECOMPOSED, adj. De-ko^{2}m-pozd′. Lat., decompositus. Fr., décomposé. Ger., zersetzt. 1. Reduced to a simpler arrangement of constituents. 2 In botany, see DECOMPOSITE. 3. Decayed.

DECOMPOSITE, adj. De-ko^{2}m-po^{2}z′i^{2}t. Lat., decompositus. Fr., décomposé. Ger., doppelt-zusammengesezt. Many times compound (e. g., the leaves of Acacia). [B, 19, 121, 123, 291 (α, 24).]

DECOMPOSITION, n. De-ko^{2}m-po-zi^{2}sh′u^{3}n. Lat., decompositio. Fr., décomposition. Ger., Zersetzung. The process of decomposing or of being decomposed.—Double d. Fr., décomposition double. Ger., doppelte Zersetzung. Syn.: double metathesis. A chemical change in which the molecules of two interacting compounds exchange a portion of their constituents. [B.]—Hydrolytic d. The more or less complete dissolution of minerals in water. [B, 270 (α, 27).]—Simple d., Single d. Fr., décomposition unique. Ger., einfache Zersetzung. A chemical change by which the molecule of a single compound either breaks up into its simpler constituents, or exchanges one of these constituents for the entire molecule of another body. In the latter case the process is called single metathesis. [B.]

DECOMPOUND, adj. De-ko^{2}m-pu^5′u^{4}nd. See DECOMPOSITE.

DÉCOMPRESSION (Fr.), n. Da-ko^{3}n^2-pre^{2}s-e-o^{3}n^2. The diminution or cessation of atmospheric or other pressure. [A, 385 (α, 21).]

DÉCOÖRDINATION (Fr.), n. Da-ko-o^{3}rd-e-na^3-se-o^{3}n^2. An interruption or abolition of co-ordination. [L, 41.]

DECORATIO (Lat.), n. f. De^{2}k-o^{2}r-a(a^3)′shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., decoration′is. From decorare, to beautify. See COSMESIS.

DECORTICALIA (Lat.), n. n. pl. De(da)-ko^{2}rt-i^2-ka(ka^3)′li^2-a^3. Of Dumortier, a subclass of the Staminacia, including the stipes Bitegmia, Unitegmia, and Insolitegmia. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

DECORTICATED, adj. De-ko^{2}rt′i^{2}k-at-e^{2}d. Lat., decorticatus. Fr., décortiqué. Ger., abgeschält (1st def.), entrindet (1st def.), schallos (2d def.). It., decorticato. Sp., descortezado. 1. Deprived of bark or rind. 2. Having no bark or rind, in contradistinction to corticate. [B, 123 (α, 24).]

DECORTICATION, n. De-ko^{2}rt-i^2-ka′shu^{3}n. Lat., decorticatio (from decorticare, to peel). Fr., décortication. Ger., Abschälen. It., scorticamento. Sp., decorticación. The operation of removing the bark of a tree or the outer envelope of a root, fruit, seed, or any other vegetable substance. [A, 301 (α, 21).]

DECOSTATE, adj. De-ko^{2}st′at. Gr., ἄπλευρος. Lat., decostis (from de priv., and costa, a rib). Destitute of ribs. [A, 325 (α, 21).]

DÉCOUPÉ (Fr.), adj. Da-ku-pa. See INCISED.

DÉCOUPURE (Fr.), n. Da-ku-pu^{6}r. See INCISURE.

DÉCOURANT (Fr.), adj. Da-ku-ra^{3}n^2. See DECURRENT.

DÉCOURS (Fr.), n. Da-kur. See DECLINATION.

DÉCOUSU (Fr.), adj. Da-ku-su^6. Having disproportionate parts (said familiarly of domestic animals). [A, 301 (α, 21).]

DÉCOUVERT (Fr.), adj. Da-ku-ve^{2}r. Naked, exposed to view; of fruits, having no hard envelope. [L, 41 (α, 14).]

DECREMENT, n. De^{2}k′re^2-me^{2}nt. Gr., παρακωή. Lat., decrementum (from decrescere, to decrease). See DECLINE.

DECREPIT, adj. De-kre^{2}p′i^{2}t. Gr., ἐσχατονέρων, παρῆλιξ. Lat., decrepitus. Fr., décrepit. Ger., abgelebt, schwach. It., decrepito. Sp., decrépito. Broken down with age. [L, 56.]

DECREPITATION, n. De-kre^{2}p-i^{2}t-a′shu^{3}n. Lat., decrepitus. Fr., décrépitation. Ger., Abknistern. It., decrepitazione. Sp., decrepitación. See CREPITATION.

DECREPITUDE, n. De-kre^{2}p′i^{2}t-u^{6}d. Lat., ætas decrepita. Fr., décrépitude. Ger., Decrepität, Abgelebtheit. It., decrepitezza. Sp., decrepitud. The state of being decrepit.

DECRESCENTIA (Lat.), n. f. De(da)-kre^{2}s-se^{2}n(ke^{2}n)′shi^2-(ti^2)-a^3. See DECLINE.

DECRESCENTI-PINNATUS (Lat.), adj. De(da)-kre^{2}s-se^{2}nt-(ke^{2}nt)″i^2-pi^{2}n-na(na^3)′tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). Having a pinnate leaf the folioles of which diminish gradually in size from the base toward the summit. [L, 180.]

DECRETORIUS (Lat.), adj. De(da)-kre^{2}t(krat)-o′ri^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., κρίσιμος, κριτικός. Fr., décrétoire. Ger., entscheidend, kritisch. It., decretorio. Sp., critico. Critical. [A, 301, 325 (α, 21); L, 50.]

DÉCROISSANCE (Fr.), n. Da-krwa^3-sa^{3}n^{2}s. Decrease. [A, 385 (α, 21).]

DÉCROISSEMENT (Fr.), n. Da-krwa^{3}z-ma^{3}n^2. The state of being diminished. [A, 385 (α, 21).]

DECRUS (Lat.), adj. De(da)′kru^{3}s(krus). From de priv., and crus, the leg. See ASCELES.

DECRUSTATION, n. De-kru^{3}st-a′shu^{3}n. From de priv., and crusta, a crust. Fr., décroûtation. Ger., Entkrustung. It., decrostazione. Sp., decrustación. The falling or shedding of a crust or incrustation. [L, 56, 73.]

DECUBATION, n. De^{2}k-u^2-ba′shu^{3}n. The act of lying down. [L, 56.]

DECUBITUS (Lat.), n. m. De(da)-ku^2(ku)′bi^{2}t-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From decumbere, to lie down. Fr., décubitus. Ger., Lage, Lagerung, Liegen, Niederliegen, Aufliegen (3d def.). It., decubito. Sp., decúbito. 1. The recumbent posture. 2. The particular attitude of a person in bed. [L, 50.] 3. According to German and Italian usage, a bed-sore or the production of bed-sores. [G, 73.] 4. In Spanish, also the particular flow of humors in diseases.—D. acutus. Fr., décubitus aigu. Syn.: d. neuriticus. An acute bed-sore, occurring in the course of certain spinal or cerebral affections, usually accompanied with paralysis and affecting especially the skin and the subcutaneous tissue over bony prominences; differing from ordinary bed-sores in the slight degree and duration of pressure required to produce it. ["Union méd.," Aug. 18, 1883, p. 295; "Glasgow Med. Jour.," Oct., 1886, p. 269.]—D. chronicus. Fr., décubitus chronique. See D. (3d def.).—D. neuriticus, D. ominosus. See D. acutus.—D. traumaticus. Ger., Druckbrand. See D. (3d def.).—Dorsal d. Fr., décubitus dorsal, d. en supination. Ger., Rückenlage. D. (2d def.) on the back.—Erythematous d. Lat., erythema paratrimma. Ger., erythematöser D. A traumatic erythema due to d. [G.] See DERMATITIS per decubitum.—Forced d. Fr., décubitus forcé. Recumbency secured by force, as by straps, the strait-jacket, etc. [A, 301 (α, 21).]—Lateral d. Fr., décubitus latéral. Ger., Seitenlagerung. D. on the side.—Prone d. See Ventral d.—Sterno-costal d. See Ventral d.—Supine d. See Dorsal d.—Ventral d. D. (2d def.) on the belly.

DÉCUIT (Fr.), adj. Da-kwe. Having become thin on account of the addition of water or lack of sufficient boiling. [A, 301; B, 52 (α, 21).]

DECUMBENCE, DECUMBENCY, n's. De-ku^{3}m′ben^{2}s, -be^{2}ns-i^2. See DECUBATION and DECUBITUS.

DECUMBENT, adj. De-ku^{3}m′be^{2}nt. Lat., decumbens. Fr., décombant. Ger., niederliegend. 1. Declinate. 2. In botany reclining upon the earth after rising again. [B, 1, 19, 121, 123 (α, 24).]

A DECURRENT LEAF. (AFTER YOUMANS.)

DECUMBITURE, n. De-ku^{3}m′bi^{2}t-u^{2}r. See DECUBATION.

DÉCUPELLATION (Fr.), n. Da-ku^6-pe^{2}l-a^3-se-o^{3}n^2. See DECANTATION.

DECURRENCE, DECURRENCY, n's. De-ku^{5}r′e^{2}ns, -e^{2}ns-i^2. Fr., décurrence. The state of being decurrent.

DECURRENT, adj. De-ku^{5}r′e^{2}nt. Lat., decurrens (from decurrere, to run down). Fr., décurrent. Ger., herablaufend. Running down upon a part (said generally of leaves which are prolonged down the side of the stem below the point of their insertion, and especially of the lamellæ of the Agaricinæ when they run down upon the stipes). [B, 19, 121, 123, 291 (α, 24).]

DECURSIVE, adj. De-ku^{5}rs′i^{2}v. Lat., decursivus. Fr., décursif. Ger., herablaufend. See DECURRENT.—D'ly pinnate. Lat., decursivo-pinnatus. Fr., decursivo-penné. Ger., herablaufend-gefiedert. Having the petiole winged by the elongation of the base of the decurrent leaflets. [B, 1, 19, 121, 123 (α, 24).]

DECURSUS (Lat.), n. m. De(da)-ku^{5}rs(kurs)′u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Gr., ἀποδρομή. The duration or course of a disease. [A, 325 (α, 21).]

DECURTATION, n. De-ku^{5}rt-a'shu^{3}n. Lat., decurtatio (from decurtare, to cut short). Fr., décurtation. A shortening, ablation ; the destruction of a tree's axis of growth. [A, 385 (a, 21).]

DECURTATUS (Lat.), adj. De(da)-ku^{5}rt(kurt)-a(a^3)'tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). Gr., μείυρος. 1. Curtailed, 2. Flagging, growing weak (said of the pulse). [A, 325 (a, 21).]

DECURVATURE, n. De-ku^{5}rv'a^{2}t-u^{2}r. A downward curvature. [" Proc. of the Zool. Soc.," 1856, p. 374 (L).]

DECURVED, adj. De-ku^{5}rvd'. Curved downward. [L, 221.]

DECUSSATE, v. intr. De-ku^{3}s'at. Gr., χιάζειν. Lat., decussari. Fr., décusser. Ger., kreuzen. To form a decussation.

DECUSSATE, DECUSSATED, adj's. De-ku^{3}s'at, -at-e^{2}d. Gr., χιαστός. Lat., decussatus, decussativus. Fr., décussatif, décussé. Ger., kreuzweisstehend. Crossed, forming a decussation (in botany). said of pairs of leaves, etc., when each pair stands at right angles to the pair above or below it. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24) ; L, 343.]

DECUSSATIO (Lat.), n. f. De(de^2)-ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s)-sa(sa^3)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., decussation'is. See Decussation.—D. corporum pyramidalium, D. fasciculorum pyramidalium. See Decussation of the pyramids.—D. fontinalis [Spitzka]. See Fountain-decussation.—D. nervorum. Decussation of nerves or of nerve-fibres. [a, 18]—D. nervorum opticorum. See Chiasm.—D. piniformis [Spitzka]. See Piniform decussation.—D. pontis Varolii. The crossing of the superficial and deep transverse fibres of the pons Varolii from side to side in the median line. [L, 50 (a, 18).]—D. pyramidum. See Decussation of the pyramids. [L, 50 (a, 18).]—D. tegmenti caudicis cerebri. See Wernekinck's commissure.—D. tractuum opticorum. See Chiasm.

DECUSSATION, n. De-ku^{3}s-a'shu^{3}n. Gr., χιασμός. Lat., decussatio (from decussare, to place crosswise in the form of an X), decussis (from decem, ten, and as, a coin [a coin stamped with the numeral X]). Fr., décussation. Ger., Kreuzung, Durchkreuzung. It., decussazione. Sp., decusación. A crossing of structures in the form of the letter X. Cf. Chiasm.—D. of the interolivary stratum. See Sensory d. of the pyramids.—D. of the optic nerve. Fr., décussation des nerfs optiques. Ger., Durchkreuzung der Sehnesven. It., decussazione degli nervi ottici. Sp., decusación de los nervios ópticos. See Chiasm.—D. of the pyramids. The d. formed by the anterior pyramids of the medulla oblongata as they separate each into from three to six bundles of fibres which cross obliquely downward to the opposite side of the anterior median fissure, interlacing with similar bundles from the opposite pyramids. Having crossed from one side of the medulla to the other, these bundles become reunited and penetrate more deeply into the spinal cord, where they occupy the posterior part of the lateral columns of the cord. [L, 50 (a, 18).]—Fountain-d. [Spitzka]. A d. such as that of the nerve-fibres in the cortex of the anterior corpora quadrigemina. [" Jour. of Nerv. and Ment. Dis.," July, 1880, p. 408 (K).]—Fountain-like tegmental d. See Tegmental d. of Meynert.—Inferior d. See D. of the pyramids.—Middle sensory d. A d. described by Huguenin as formed by a few fibres from the posterior cornu which cross in the median line between the upper and the lower pyramids. [Hoffman-Schwalbe (a, 18).]—Motor d. See D. of the pyramids.—Pineal d. [Spitzka]. The d. of fibres of the inner division of the reticular formation, because of its resemblance to a pine-cone on cross-section. [" Jour. of Nerv. and Ment. Dis.," April, 1880, p. 208 (K).]—Piniform d. See Sensory d. of the pyramids.—Pyramidal d. See D. of the pyramids.—Sensory d. of the pyramids. The crossing of fibres derived from the funiculi cuneati of the spinal cord which takes place in the upper part of the medulla oblongata, between the anterior pyramids and the gray floor of the fourth ventricle, and is not apparent by external inspection of the medulla. [Gegenbaur (a, 18).]—Sensory d., Superior d. [Meynert]. The d. of the outer fasciculi of the anterior pyramids of the spinal cord, whereby they enter the posterior columns. This he distinguishes from the inferior or motor, which occurs in the region of the first and second cervical nerves. [I, 31 (K).]—Tegmental d. of Meynert. Ger., Haubenkreuzung von Meynert. Of Forel, the d. of nerve-fibres in the cortex of the anterior corpora quadrigemina. [" Jour. of Nerv. and Ment. Dis.," July, 1880, p. 407 (K).]—Upper pyramidal d. See Sensory d. of the pyramids.—Ventral d. of the pyramids. Ger., ventraler Kreuzung. See D. of the pyramids.

DECUSSATIVUS (Lat.), adj. De(de^2)-ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s)-sa^{2}t(sa^{3}t)-i(e)'-vu^{3}s(wu^{4}s). See Decussate (adj.).

DECUSSIO (Lat.), n. f. De(da)-ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s)'si^2-o. Gen., decussion'is. From decutere, to shake aside. Gr., χάσις. The act of using the decussorium (q. v.).

DECUSSORIUM (Lat.), n. n. De(da)-ku^{3}s(ku^{4}s)-so'ri^2-u^{3}m-(u^{4}m). Fr., décussoire. An instrument for depressing the dura mater after trephining, to facilitate the escape of pus. [E ; L, 30, 44.]

DECYL, n. De^{2}s'i^{2}l. From δέκα, ten, and ὕλη, matter. Fr., décyle. A monatomic radicle, $C_{10}H_{21}$. [A. 385 (a, 21) ; B. 158 (a, 24).]—D. alcohol. See Decatyl alcohol.—D. hydride. See Decane.

DECYLENE, n. De^{2}s'i^{2}l-en. Fr., décylène. Ger., Decylen. See Decine.

DECYLIC, adj. De^{2}s-i^{2}l'i^{2}k. Fr., décylique. Ger., decylisch. Containing the radicle decyl. [a, 24.]—D. acid. An acid, C_9H_{19}-CO.OH, isomeric with capric acid.

DED, n. A sort of white gum. [B, 88.]

DEDAIGNEUX (Fr.), adj. Da-de^{2}u-yu^5. The external rectus muscle of the eye. [L, 32.]

DEDALEIRA (Port.), DEDALERA [Mex. Ph.] (Sp.), n's. Da-da^3-la-e'ra^3, -la'ra^3. The Digitalis purpurea. [A, 447 (a, 21) ; B, 88.]

DEDES (Jav.), D'ED'ES (Malay), n's. Musk. [B. Balfour (a, 24).]

DEDOLATIO (Lat.), n. f. De(da)-do^{2}l-a(a^3)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., dedolation'is. From dedolare, to hew. Fr., dédolation. Ger., Abhobelung. See Apoxysis.—D. cranii. See Aposceparnismus.—D. membrorum. The bruised feeling felt in the limbs at the onset of a febrile disease. [L, 50 (a, 14).]

DÉDOUBLEMENT (Fr.), n. Da-dub'l-ma^{3}n^2. See Reduplication and Chorisis.—D. de la personnalité. See Double consciousness.

DEDUPLICATION, n. De-du^{2}p-li^2-ka'shu^{3}n. From de priv., and duplicare, to fold. Fr., déduplication. 1. The segmentation of cells. 2. See Chorisis.

DEEB-KANCHUM (Hind.), n. See Bauhinia purpurea.

DEEI-XANR (or XANH) VUONG (Chin.), n. The Cissus quadrangularis. [B, 88 (a, 24) ; L, 105.]

DEELINA OIL, n. De-le'na^3. Lat., oleum deelinæ. A "member of the hydrocarbon family," "manufactured on the banks of the Dee, by the Dee Oil Company, by a process of refining." It has been used topically in eczema and other skin diseases. [J. Roberts, "Practitioner" ; " N. Y. Med. Jour.," July 11, 1885, p. 56.]

DEE-OH (Chin.), n. The Rehmannia lutea. [" Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," xxviii, p. 204 (a, 21).]

DEER, n. Der. Fr., cerf. Ger., Hirsch. It., cervo. Sp., ciervo. A ruminant quadruped of the genus Cervus, various parts of which have been used in medicine. [L.]—D.-balls. The Elaphomyces granulatus. [A, 505 (a, 21).]—D.-berry. The Gaultheria procumbens and the Vaccinium stamineum. [a, 24.]—D.-food. The Brasenia peltata. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—D's-foot grass. The Agrostis setacea. [A, 505 (a, 21).]—D's-hair. The Scirpus cæspitosus. [B, 275 (a, 24).]—D's-milk. The Euphorbia amygdaloides. [A, 505 (a, 21).]—D.-tongue. The Liatris odoratissima. [" Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc." (a, 21).]

DEERINGIA (Lat.), n. f. Der-i^{2}n^2'i^2-a^3. Fr., déeringie. A genus of the Amarantaceæ. tribe Celosieæ, growing in India and Australia. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]—D. celosioides. A species growing in New Holland which bears long spikes of red berries as large as cherries. [B, 19 (a, 24).]

DEFÆCATION, n. De^{2}f-e^{2}k-a'shu^{3}n. See Defecation.

DÉFAILLANCE (Fr.), n. Da-fa^3-el-ya^{3}n^{2}s. 1. Deliquescence. 2. Syncope. [L, 41, 87 (a, 21).]

DEFATIGATIO (Lat.), n. De(da)-fa^{2}t(fa^{3}t)-i^2-ga(ga^3)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., defatigation'is, from defatigare, to fatigue. Gr., κάματος. Lit., fatigue ; an overstraining of the muscular and nervous systems, especially of the muscular tissue of the heart. [A, 326 (a, 21).]

DÉFAUT (Fr.), n. Da-fo. A defect ; the deficiency or absence of a part. [A, 301, 385 (a, 21) ; L, 41.]

DEFECATED, adj. De^{2}f'e^{2}k-at-e^{2}d. Freed from dregs, lees, etc. [L, 56.]

DEFECATION, n. De^{2}f-e^{2}k-a'shu^{3}n. Lat., defæcatio (from de priv., and fæx, refuse). Fr., défécation. Ger., D. (1st def.), Kothentleerung (2d def.). It., defecazione. Sp., defecación. 1. See Clarification. 2. A discharge of fæcal matter from the intestine ; in birds, from the cloaca. [B ; L, 41, 49, 171, 343.]

DEFECT, n. De-fe^{2}kt'. Gr., ἔκλειψις. Lat., defectus, defectio (from deficere, to be wanting). Fr., défaut. Ger., D. An abnormity of structure or failure of function ; in teratology, absence of a part by reason of failure of development.

DEFECTIO (Lat.), n. f. De(da)-fe^{2}k'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., defection'is. See Defect.—D. animi, D. mulierum. See Syncope.—D. virium. Loss of strength. [A, 322 (a, 21).]

DÉFECTUOSITÉ (Fr.), n. Da-fe^{2}k-tu^6-o^{3}s-e-ta. Defectiveness. [A, 385 (a, 21).]

DEFECTUS (Lat.), n. m. De(da)-fe^{2}k'tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). Gen., d. Gr., ἔλλειμμα, ἔλλειπον. See Defect.—Coloris d. See Achromasia.—D. animi. See Syncope.—D. cavi. See Acœlia.—D. cordis. See Acardia.—D. cornuum. See Aceratosis.—D. corneæ pelluciditatis. Opacity of the cornea. [F.]—D. cranii. See Acrania.—D. criseos. See Acrisia.—D. juncturæ. See Asynthesis.—D. lactis. See Agalactia.—D. loquelæ. See Aphonia.—D. mammarum. See Amazia.—D. mensium. See Amenorrhœa.—D. profluvii. See Arrhœa.—D. Veneris. See Anaphrodisia.—D. vitæ. See Abiosis.—D. voluntatis. See Abulia.—D. vuloæ. Atresia of the vulva. [A, 326 (a, 21).]—Labiorum d. See Acheilia.

DÉFENSES (Fr.), n. pl. Da-fa^{3}n^{2}s. See Arma.

DÉFENSEUR (Fr.), n. Da-fa^{3}n^{2}s-u^{5}r. A shield or protective appliance. [A, 385 (a; 21).]

DEFENSIVE, adj. De-fe^{2}ns'i^{2}v. Lat., defensivus (from defendere, to defend). Fr., défensif. Ger., defensiv. See Prophylactic and Protective. [L, 50.]

DEFERENT, adj. De^{2}f'e^{2}r-e^{2}nt. Lat., deferens (from de, from, down from, and ferre, to hear). Fr., déférent. Ger., niederführend, ableitend. It., deferente. Sp., descendiente. Passing or leading down from ; conveying anything downward. [B, 19 ; L, 41.] See Vas deferens.

DEFERENTIAL, adj. De^{2}f-e^{2}r-e^{2}n'sha^{2}l. Fr., déférentiel. Pertaining to or accompanying the vas deferens. [A, 385 (a, 21).]

DEFERENTIOVESICALIS [Barkow] (Lat.), adj. De(da)-fe^{2}r-e^{2}n''shi^2(ti^2)-o(o^3)-ve^{2}s(we^{2}s)-i^{2}k-a(a^3)'li^{2}s. Belonging to or connected with the vas deferens and the bladder ; as a n., a bundle of muscular fibres which extends upon the vas deferens from the bladder. [L, 31.]

DEFERENTITIS (Lat.), n. f. De(da)-fe²r-e²nt-i(e)'ti²s. Gen., deferentit'idos (-is). Fr., déférentite. Inflammation of the vas deferens. [Mibelli, "Boll. d. cult. d. sci. med.," 1888, No. 3; "Mntsh. f. prakt. Dermat.," 1888, No. 21, p. 1111.]

DEFERVESCENCE, n. De-fu⁵r-ve²s'e²ns. From defervescere, to become calm. Fr., défervescence. Ger., Defervescenz. It., defervescenza. Sp., defervescencia. The decline of a fever. [A, 385 (a, 21).]

DEFERVESCENT, adj. De-fu⁵r-ve²s'e²nt. Declining (said of fevers).

DÉFEUILLAGE (Fr.), DÉFEUILLAISON (Fr.), n's. Da-fu⁵-el-ya³zh, -ye²-zo²n². See DEFOLIATION.

DÉFEUILLÉ (Fr.), adj. Da-fu⁵-el-ya. See DEFOLIATED.

DEFIBRINATED, adj. De-fi'bri²n-at-e²d. Fr., défibriné. Ger., entfibrinirt. It., defibrinato. Sp., defibrinado. Deprived of fibrin. [L, 107.]

DÉFIBRINATION, n. De-fi-bri²n-a'shu³n. Fr., défibrination. Ger., D. It., defibrinazione. Sp., defibrinación. The process of depriving of fibrin. [K.]

DEFIBRINIZED, adj. De-fi'bri²n-izd. See DEFIBRINATED.

DEFIGURATION, n. De-fi²g-u²-ra'shu³n. Lat., defiguratio (from de priv., and figura, shape). See DEFORMATION.

DEFINING POWER, n. De-fin'i²n² pu⁵'u⁴-u⁵r. Power of definition.

DEFINITE, adj. De²f'i²n-i²t. Lat., definitus (from definire, to define). Fr., défini. Ger., bestimmt. It., definito. Sp., definido. Limited (said of some trees that complete their annual work of vegetation and form their buds for the succeeding year before the close of the season; also applied to stamens and petals, which are said to be d. if not exceeding 12 or, according to other authorities, 20 in number). [B, 1, 77, 291 (a, 24).]

DEFINITION, n. De²f-i²n-i²sh'u³n. Lat., definitio. Fr., définition. Ger., Begrenzung, Erklärung. It., definizione. Sp., definición. In microscopy, the capability of an object-glass of bringing out a sharply defined image of an object.

DEFIXUS (Lat.), adj. De(da)-fi²x(fex)'u³s(u⁴s). See IMPOTENT.

DEFLAGRATION, n. De-fla-gra'shu³n. Gr., ἐπιφλόγισμα. Lat., deflagratio (from deflagrare, to burn furiously). Fr., déflagration. Ger., Abbrennung. A sudden, sharp combustion, usually with a crackling sound; also the setting up to such combustion by friction, etc. [A, 385 (a, 21).]

DEFLAGRATOR, n. De-fla'grat-o²r. Fr., déflagrateur. Ger., D. See Hare's BATTERY.

DEFLE, n. The Nerium oleander. [L, 105 (a, 21).]

DEFLECTED, adj. De-fle²kt'e²d. Lat., deflexus (from deflectere, to turn aside). Fr., défléchi. Ger., deflectirt, abgelenkt. It., deflesso. Sp., desviado. Turned aside from a regular course.

DEFLECTION, n. De-fle²k'shu³n. Lat., deflexio. Fr., déflexion. Ger., Abweichung, Ablenkung. It., deflessione. Sp., desvio, combadura. The act of becoming or causing or the state of being deflected.

DEFLECTIVE, adj. De-fle²kt'i²v. Causing deflection.

DÉFLEGMATION (Fr.), n. Da-fle²g-ma³-se-o³n². Ger., Entwässerung. It., deflegmazione. Sp., deflegmación. See DEHYDRATION.

DÉFLEURAISON (Fr.), n. Da-flu⁵r-e²z-o³n². See DEFLORATION.

DÉFLEURI (Fr.), adj. Da-flu⁵r-e. See DEFLORATE.

DEFLEXED, adj. De-fle²xd'. See DEFLECTED.

DEFLEXION, n. De-fle²x'yu³n. Lat., deflexio. Fr., déflexion. 1. See DEFLECTION. 2. An old term for a flexion, as of the uterus. 3. The procedure of producing or restoring the normal flexion of the fœtal head on the trunk during parturition. 4. Of the fœtal arm, its deviation from the trunk, its extension, and its subsequent prolapse in a shoulder presentation. [A, 15, 42; A, 385 (a, 21).]

DÉFLORAISON (Fr.), n. Da-flor-e²z-o³n². See DEFLORATION.

DEFLORATÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. De(da)-flor-a(a³)'te(ta³-e²). Fr., defloratées. Of Scopoli, a tribe comprising Xylophylla, Pharmaecum, Illecebrum, Suæda, Aruna, Rotala, Queria, Mollugo, Ortegia, Hudsonia, Tonina, Balanophora, Pennantia, Mabea, Rocama, Amanoa, Galenia, Dodonœa, Mölleria, Aniba, Herniaria, Scleranthus, Peteveria, Calligonum, Camphorosma, Ulmus, Parietaria, Urtica, and Axyris. [B, 170 (a, 24).]

DEFLORATE, adj. De-flor'at. Lat., defloratus. Fr., defloré. Ger., abgeblüht. 1. Destitute of flowers or past flowering (said of anthers after the emission of the pollen). 2. Deprived of physical virginity. [B, 1 (a, 24).]

DEFLORATION, n. De-flor-a'shu³n. Lat., defloratio (from de priv., and flos, a flower). Fr., défloration. Ger., D., Schandung einer Jungfrau (1st def.), Entjungferung (1st def.). It., deflorazione. Sp., desfloramiento, estupro. 1. The destruction of physical virginity by coitus. 2. The condition of an anther after the emission of the pollen. [B, 1 (a, 24).]

DEFLOWERED, adj. De-flu⁵'u⁴-u⁵rd. See DEFLORATE.

DEFLUXIO (Lat.), n. f. De(da)-flu³x(flu⁴x)'i²-o. Gen., defluxion'is (from defluere, to flow down). 1. See DEFLUXION. 2. Fever accompanied with mucous or serous discharges; in Young's classification of diseases, a genus of the order Pyrexiæ, class Parrhæmasiæ. [L, 290.]—D. capillorum. 1. Alopecia of the scalp. 2. Excessive falling of the hair, occurring as a symptom of a local or general disease, but not from a primary or idiopathic affection of the hair itself. [Pincus, "Berl. klin. Wochenschr.," 1869, 32, 33 (G).]—D. catarrhus. Influenza. [L, 290.]—D. ciliorum et superciliorum. Ger., Augenwimpernausfallen. A falling out of the eyelashes and eyebrows. [L, 135.]—D. dysenteria. Dysentery. [L, 290.]

DEFLUXION, n. De-flu³x'yu³n. Lat., defluxio, defluxus. Fr., défluxion, écoulement. Ger., Abfluss. It., deflussione, deflusso. Sp., deflujo. A flowing down, a discharge. [L, 41, 56.]

DEFŒDATIO UNGUIUM (Lat.), n. f. De(da)-fe²d(fo²-e²d)-a(a³)'shi²(ti²)-o u³n²(u⁴n²)'gwi²-u³m(u⁴m). An excessive degree of thickness of the nails accompanied with yellow and dirty discoloration. The nails resemble horn, rather than their own natural texture. In this state it is not uncommon to find the nail separating from its matrix. [Wilson (a, 18).]

DEFOLIATE, DEFOLIATED, adj's. De-fol'i²-at, -at-e²d. Lat., defoliatus (from de priv., and folium, a leaf). Fr., défolie, défeuillé. Ger., entblättert, entlaubt. It., defogliate. Sp., deshojado, desfoliado. 1. Deprived of leaves (said of plants after the fall of their leaves). [B, 1 (a, 24).] 2. Shedding the radical leaves early. [L, 180.]

DEFOLIATION, n. De-fol-i²-a'shu³n. Lat., defoliatio. Fr., défoliation, défeuillaison, défeuillage. Ger., Entblättern, Entblätterung, Entlaubung, Abfallen der Blätter. It., defogliazione. Sp., desfoliación, deshojamiento. The process of the annual casting off of leaves in plants; also the time when leaves fall. [B, 19, 290 (a, 21); L, 180.]

DEFORMANS (Lat.), adj. De(da)-fo²rm'a²nz(a³ns). From deformare, to deform. Fr., déformant. Deforming (see ENDARTERITIS d. and Rheumatoid ARTHRITIS).

DEFORMATION, n. De-fo²rm-a'shu³n. Lat., deformatio. Fr., déformation. Ger., D. The production of deformity.

DÉFORMATION (Fr.), n. Da-fo³rm-a³-se-o³n². See DEFORMATION and DEFORMITY.—D. couchée. Deformity by depression. [Scheuthauer (A, 319).]—D. dressée, D. élevée. Deformity by elevation. [Scheuthauer (a, 319).]—D. hippocratique des doigts. The deformity known as clubbed fingers. [D, 72.]—D. pariétale. The flattening of one of the parietal bones observed in new-born children that have presented by the vertex. [Labat, "Recherches clin. et expér. sur la tête du fœtus au point de vue obstét.," Paris, 1881; rev. in "Ann. de gynéc.," Feb., 1882.]—D. posthume. Deformity of the cranium caused by the pressure of the earth after burial. [L, 150 (a, 18).]—D. professionalle. A change occurring in the form of an organ, a member, or a region of the body due to the particular occupation of the person, such as the alterations in the form of the fingers and hands observed in cobblers, carpenters, tailors, and others. [L, 88 (a, 18).]

DEFORMITY, n. De-fo²rm'i²t-i². Gr., κακομορφία. Lat., deformitas (from de, without, and forma, form). Fr., déformation, difformité. Ger., Deformität, Ungestaltung, Verunstaltung, Afterbildung, Missbildung. It., deformità. Sp., deformidad. A morbid alteration in the form of a part or organ of an organism.—Cross-legged d. See Cross-legged PROGRESSION.—Volkmann's d. Congenital tibio-tarsal luxation. ["Un. méd. et sci. du Nord-Est"; "Province méd.," Oct. 6, 1888, p. 577.]

DEFRANCIINA (Lat.), n. n. pl. D'fra³n²k-i²-i(e)'na³. A subfamily of the Pleurotomidæ. [L, 282.]

DEFRUTUM (Lat.), n. n. De(da)-fru²t(fru⁴t)'u³m(u⁴m). Gr., ἕψημα, σίραιον. Of the Latins, sweet wine boiled down to the consistence of honey. [B, 45; L, 87 (a, 21).]

DEFUNCTUS (Lat.), adj. De(da)-fu³n²k(fu⁴n²k)'tu³s(tu⁴s). From defungi, to be through with. Dead. [A, 325 (a, 21).]

DEFURFURATION, n. De-fu⁵r-fu²-ra'shu³n. Lat., defurfuratio (from de, from, and furfur, bran). Branny desquamation. [A, 326 (a, 21).]

DEFUSELATION, n. De-fu²-se²l-a'shu³n. The process of freeing spirit from fusel oil; e. g., by filtering the crude spirit through freshly ignited and finely divided wood charcoal. [B, 3 (a, 27).]

DEFUSION, n. De-fu²'zhu³n. Lat., defusio (from defundere, to pour out). See DECANTATION.

DEG (Hind.), n. Steel filings. [Balfour (a, 24).]

DÉGAGEMENT (Fr.), n. Da-ga³zh-ma³n². See DISENGAGEMENT.

DEGEN (Ger.), n. Da'ge²n. A term for several oils. [a, 24.]—D'öl, Schwarzer D. Birch-oil. [B, 270 (a, 24).]—Weisser D. Oil of turpentine. [B, 270 (a, 24).]

DEGENERACY, n. De-je²n'u⁵r-a-si². Degeneration, in the sense of an absence or loss of that degree of development or energy seen in the ancestry of an organism; reversion to a lower type. [a, 17; a, 24.]

DEGENERATION, n. De-je^{2}n-u^{5}r-a'shu^{3}n. Gr., νοθεία. Lat., degeneratio (from degenerare, to degenerate). Fr., dégénération, dégénérescence. Ger., D., Entartung. It., degenerazione. Sp., degeneración. Loss of race characteristics; of tissue, structural impairment; in botany, the transformation of parts so as to render a plant asymmetrical or irregular in form (as when undeveloped stamens become filiform bodies or scales; stamens and pistils, petals; or florets, leaves). [B, 77 (α, 24).]—Acute fatty d. A disease rarely observed in man, but not infrequently seen among animals. In colts it is known as foot-halt. It occurs in puerperal women in the form of acute yellow atrophy of the liver. [α, 25.]—Adipose d. See Fatty d.—Albuminoid d. See Amyloid d.—Albuminous d. Ger., albuminöse Entartung. Albuminous infiltration. [D, 3.]—Amyloid d. Lat., morbus amyloides (seu lardaceus, seu cereus). Fr., dardacée, maladie amyloïde. Ger., speckige (oder amyloïde, oder wachsartige) D., Speckentartung, Amyloïdentartung. It., degenerazione lardacea, malattia amiloidea. Sp., degeneración amiloidea (ó lardácea). Lardaceous [Portal and Abercrombie] or waxy d. (or disease). A lesion in which the normal textural elements are transformed into, or infiltrated with, a peculiar substance suggesting, on the one hand, an alliance (in some respects only) with the chemical characters of amyloid compounds, and, on the other, with albuminous substances similar to those which pervade the tissues of fœtal life. The Royal College of Physicians of London regards it as a substantive disease. Called also bacon-like or lardaceous (by Hodgkin and Bright, albuminous) infiltration; by Budd, scrofulous enlargement (of the liver); by Oppolzer and Schrant, colloid d.; by Meckel, cholesterin disease; by various British writers, waxy d.; and by others hyaloid d. and vitreous d. [D.] Cf. AMYLOID (4th def.).—Atheromatous d. Replacement of a tissue by a material resembling atheroma (2d def.).—Bacony d. See Amyloid d.—Black d. See ANTHRACOSIS (4th def.) and MELANOSIS.—Calcareous d. Fr., dégénérescence calcaire. Ger., Verkalkung, Versteinerung, Verkreidung. It., degenerazione calcare. Sp., degeneración calcárea. The impregnation of the tissues and the gland secretions with calcium or magnesium salts, especially carbonates and phosphates. [D.] See CRETIFACTION and CALCIFICATION.—Caseous d. See CASEATION.—Cellulose d. Fr., dégénérescence celluleuse. Ger., Cellulosentartung. It., degenerazione cellulosa. Sp., degeneración celulosa. See Amyloid d.—Cheesy d. See CASEATION.—Cholesterin d. Fr., dégénérescence cholestérique. Ger., Cholesterinentartung. It., degenerazione colesterica. Sp., degeneración colestérica. Meckel's term for waxy d., on account of the abundance of cholesterin in the waxy material, and the similarity of the reaction. [D, 3.]—Colloid d. Fr., dégénérescence colloïde. Ger., Colloïdentartung, colloide D. D. into colloid (3d def.). See also Amyloid d.—Cystic d. Fr., dégénérescence kystique. Ger., cystische D. The formation of a number of disseminated cysts in an organ or its enlargement in the form of a cyst (as in the kidney). In the chorion it forms the so-called vesicular mole.—Cystoid d. of the retina [Nettleship]. Fr., dégénération kystoïde de la rétine. Ger., cystoïde Entartung der Netzhaut. It., degenerazione cistoidea della retina. Sp., degeneración cistoidea de la retina. Œdema of the retina as described by Iwanoff. Similar changes are found in the retina at all ages and at all portions of the retina. Cystoid spaces are found in both granule layers, are round or oval, and are surrounded by hypertrophied radial fibres. ["Roy. Lond. Ophth. Hosp. Rep.," vii, p. 3 (F).]—Descending secondary d. Fr., dégénération déscendente secondaire. Ger., secundäre absteigende D. In neuropathology, the destruction and disintegration of nerve-fibres from above downward, i. e., from the central or cerebral extremity of such fibres toward their peripheral extremity. This process is caused by the presence of some lesion (called primary) which interrupts the continuity of the degenerating fibres and marks the upper limit of the degeneration. The myelin of each fibre first, and the axis cylinder later, become broken up into irregular masses which are subsequently subdivided into small, fatty, granular globules which ultimately become absorbed. The d. is due to the separation of the fibre from its trophic centre (q. v.) and involves the motor fibres of the encephalon and spinal cord. [Bastian, "Paralysis" (α, 18).]—Earthy d. See CRETIFACTION, Calcareous d., and CALCIFICATION.—Fascicular d. Fr., dégénération fasciculaire. Ger., Fasciculartentartung. It., degenerazione fascicolare. Sp., degeneración fascicular. An atrophic process in paralyzed muscles due to injury or disease of the motor ganglion-cells of the central tube of gray matter of the spinal cord or of the efferent fibres which connect them with the muscles. [D, 35.]—Fatty d. Lat., degeneratio lipamotodes. Fr., dégénérescence graisseuse. Ger., Fettentartung, Fettd', fettige D., Verfettung. It., degenerazione grassosa. Sp., degeneración grasosa. The replacement of normal histological elements by fat. In the muscular fibres of the heart the albuminoid constituents are split up, and within them microscopic particles of fat are deposited. The transverse striæ at length disappear, and functional activity is lost in the affected fibres. [α, 25.]—Fettd' (Ger.). See Fatty d.—Fibro-fatty d. of the placenta [Robin]. Fr., dégénérescence fibro-graisseuse du placenta, fibrome des villosités et de la sérotine [Ercolani]. Ger., fettig-faserartige D. des Mutterkuchens. It., degenerazione fibro-grassosa del la placenta. Sp., degeneración fibro-grasosa de la placenta. Fatty d. of the placenta associated with fibromatous d. of the chorionic villi and of the decidua serotina. [A, 15.]—Fibroid d. Fr., dégénérescence fibroïde. Ger., fibroïde Entartung. A very gradual transformation of tissue, with scarcely any perceptible exudation of material capable of growth, into a material having a fibre-like appearance. [A, 2.]—Fibrous d. of the heart. A connective-tissue hyperplasia, due to chronic interstitial inflammation. [Hayden (α, 25).]—Gelatiniform d. Fr., dégénération gélatiniforme [Cruveilhier]. See Colloid d.—Granular d. Fr., dégénérescence granulaire. Ger., körnige D. It., degenerazione granulosa. Sp., degeneración granular. Parenchymatous d. or albuminous metamorphosis in which the distinguishing feature is that the granular cloudiness seen under the microscope is due to a deposit of albuminoid molecules, and is removed by the addition of acetic acid in excess. [D, 4.]—Gray d. Fr., dégénérescence grise. Ger., graue D. It., degenerazione grigia. Sp., degeneración gris. D. resulting from chronic inflammation in nervous tissue, its peculiarity being the gray color which is apparent. [D, 35.]—Hyaline d. Fr., dégénérescence hyaline. Ger., hyaline D. A form of d. in which deposits of hyaline material, along with those of calcareous or other pathological substances, occur. [Holschewnikoff, "Arch. f. path. Anat. u. Physiol. u. f. klin. Med.," cxii, p. 552; "Fortschr. d. Med.," Nov. 15, 1888, p. 867.]—Hyaloid d. Fr., dégénérescence hyaloïde. Ger., hyaloïde D. It., degenerazione ialoidea. Sp., degeneración hialoidea. See Amyloid d.—Hydrocarbonaceous d. Fr., dégénérescence hydrocarburée. Ger., Kohlenhydratentartung. It., degenerazione idrocarbonacea. Sp., degeneración hidrocarbonácea. Of Paschutin, a special d. of the tissues, comparable to fatty d., which he supposes to be peculiar to diabetes. ["Ctrlb. f. d. med. Wiss.," No. 40, 1884; "Rev. d. sci. méd.," Jan., 1885, p. 217.]—Käsige D. (Ger.). See CASEATION.—Körnige D. (Ger.). See Granular d.—Lardaceous d. See Amyloid d.—Liquefactive d. [Paget]. A process resembling fatty d. in fibrinous exudations. [D.]—Mineral d. See CALCIFICATION.—Mucoid d. Ger., schleimige D. A variety occurring usually in connective tissues, in which the matrix is converted into a jelly-like substance containing mucin. It may be either physiological or pathological. [D, 4; L, 352.]—Myeline d. The breaking down of tissue cells into myelin; a process sometimes occurring coincidently with fatty d. in the pulmonary alveoli in chronic pneumonia. [D, 4.]—Myxomatous d. See Mucoid d.—Ossific d. See OSSIFICATION.—Parenchymatous d. A form of d. such as may occur in the acute nephritis of pregnancy, diphtheria, or an acute attack of fever. It is not usually associated with dropsy; the urine is of about the normal quantity, and may contain from 10 to 25 per cent. of albumin; it is often recovered from, but, if it is fatal, the kidneys are found to be enlarged, with more or less hypertrophy of the parenchyma. [D, 30.]—Pigmentary d., Pigment d. A pathological condition characterized by the presence of dark pigment granules; often found in the muscles in connection with atrophy due to cachexia, diminished food-supply, or the marasmus of old age. [E, 4.]—Putrid d. See Hospital GANGRENE.—Schleimige D. (Ger.). See Mucoid d.—Secondary d. of the spinal cord. Fr., dégénérescence secondaire de la moelle épinière. Ger., secundäre D. im Rückenmark. It., degenerazione secondaria della midolla spinale. Sp., degeneración secundaria della médula dorsal. A variety of fatty d. described by Türck in 1850. It extends above the affected portions, in the middle segments of the posterior columns (the parts affected in ascending d.), and below them in the posterior segments of the lateral columns (the parts affected in descending d.). [D, 4.]—Speckige D. (Ger.). See Amyloid d.—Theroid d. In psychiatry, the lowering of mental faculties and of instincts in the human being, so that they resemble those of lower animals. [Maudsley (α, 18).]—Trabecular d. Of the bronchial wall, a multiplication and increase in volume of the fine tracts of elastic and inelastic connective tissue found in the fibrous sheath of the bronchus and its cartilages. [L, 20 (α, 18).]—Uratic d. Fr., dégénérescence urique. The invasion of the tissues by deposits of uric acid and urates. [α, 18.]—Virchow's d. See Amyloid d.—Vitreous d. See Waxy d. (2d def.) and Amyloid d.—Wallerian d. The fatty d. occurring after the division of a mixed nerve, in its peripheral portion only; a process which takes place, according to the theory formulated by Waller, that nerve-fibres degenerate when separated from their trophic centre, and that regeneration, if it occurs, is centrifugal, being due to an active growth of the nerve-tribes of the central segment. [D, 35; Müller's "Archiv," 1852, p. 392 (D).]—Waxy d. Fr., dégénérescence cireuse. Ger., Wachsentartung. It., degenerazione cerea. Sp., degeneración cerosa (ó cérea). 1. See Hyaline d. 2. See Amyloid d. 3. A condition frequently seen in the acute febrile affections, in which the muscular elements are converted into a waxy or vitreous mass, and the muscular connective tissue undergoes proliferation. DEHISCENCE, n. De-hi^{2}s'e^{2}ns. Lat., dehiscentia. Fr., déhiscence, chute de l'œuf (2d def.), délivrance de l'œuf (2d def.), travail vésiculaire (2d def.). Ger., Dehiscenz, Aufspringen. It., deiscenza. Sp., dehiscencia. 1. In plants, the act of dehiscing, gaping, or splitting open (said particularly of the anthers when emitting the pollen, and of the fruit when it discharges its seed). 2. The bursting of a Graafian follicle. [B, 291 (a, 24).]—Abnormal d. See Irregular d.—Apical d., Apicilar d. Lat., dehiscentia apicilaris. Ger., spitzige Dehiscenz. A partial d. occurring at the top of the capsule only. [B, 77, 291 (a, 24).]—Basilar d. Lat., dehiscentia basilaris. Ger., basiläre Dehiscenz. A partial d. occurring at the base of the capsule only. [B, 291 (a, 24).]—Circumscissile d. See Pyxidiate d.—Complete valvular d. D. extending along the whole length of the capsule, forming 2 valves. [B, 291 (a, 24).]—D. by pores. See Porous d.—Dentate d. Lat., dehiscentia dentata. Ger., gezahnte Dehiscenz. A partial d. where the splitting at the top of the capsule gives it the appearance of teeth. [B, (a, 24).]—Extrorse d. A d. of an anther when the splitting is on the side farthest from the pistil, or the outer surface. [B, 7, 123 (a, 24).]—Introrse d. A d. in which the anther splits on the side next to the pistil or centre of the flower, as in Paconia and Actœa. [B, 123, 291 (a, 24).]—Irregular d. Lat., dehiscentia irregularis. Ger., unregelmässiges Aufspringen. A d. which takes place in an indefinite manner, or by rupture of the walls of the pericarp, as in the snap-dragon. [B, 1, 123, 291 (a, 24).]—Lateral d. Lat., dehiscentia lateralis. Ger., seitliches Aufspringen. A d. of an anther by the sides, as in Iris and some grasses. [B, 77 (a, 24).]—Loculicidal d. Lat., dehiscentia loculicida. Ger., fachspaltige Aufspringen. A d. where the carpels open by their dorsal sutures into the loculi or cavities of the cells, as in the lily, iris, tulip, etc. [B, 77, 123, 291 (a, 24).]—Loculicidally-septifragal d. A septifragal d. in which the splitting is at first loculicidal, as in the thorn-apple. [B, 77 (a, 24).]—Normal d. See Regular d.—Poricidal d. See Porous d.—Porous d. Lat., dehiscentia porosa. A d. when the splitting only extends in a capsule for a short distance, and when it then takes place by pores or irregular openings, toward the middle or base, as in Campanula, or at both top or base, as in snap-dragon. It also takes place in anthers. [B, 77, 123, 291 (a, 24).]—Pyxidiate d. Lat., dehiscentia pyxidiata. Ger., büchsenförmiges Aufspringen. A d. in which the upper portion of the capsule separates from the lower, like a lid, by a transverse d., as in Hyoscyamus, some Guttiferæ, etc. [B, 1, 128, 291 (a, 24).]—Regular d. Lat., dehiscentia regularis. Ger., regelmässiges Aufspringen. A d. produced by the splitting of the upper end of the valves. [B, 1 (a, 24).]—Septicidal d. Lat., dehiscentia septicida. Ger., wandspaltiges Aufspringen. A d. of the pericarp in which the splitting takes place along the septa or partitions, as in Aristolochia, Colchicum autumnale, etc. [B, 1, 128, 291 (a, 24).]—Septicidally-septifragal d. A septifragal d. where the splitting takes place first in a septicidal manner, as in the fruit of Linum catharticum. [B, 77 (a, 24).]—Septifragal d. Lat., dehiscentia septifraga. Ger., wandabreissendes Aufspringen. A d. of a pericarp where the valves break away from the septa, as in Erica, Cobœa, Datura stramonium, etc., in which case the septa are left attached to the columella. [B, 1, 77, 128, 291 (a, 24).]—Sutural d. Lat., dehiscentia suturalis. Ger., Aufspringen in einer Naht. A d. of the pericarp along the sutures, either along the marginal sutures only, as in hellebore, by the dorsal sutures, as in magnolia, or along both, as in the pea and bean. [B, 291 (a, 24).]—Transverse d. Lat., dehiscentia transversalis. Ger., queres Aufspringen. A d. crosswise of an anther—i. e., at right angles to its length ; horizontal, as in Alchemilla arvensis, Lemna, etc. [B, 77, 291 (a, 24).]—Valvular d. Lat., dehiscentia valvularis. Fr., déhiscence valvulaire. Ger., klappiges Aufspringen. A d. in which the pericarp opens vertically along the sutures, forming regular parts called valves ; it includes 5 varieties, sutural, septicidal, loculicidal, septifragal, and porous. It is said also of an anther when it opens by lids, as in the barberry. [B, 34, 291 (a, 24).]

DEHISCENT, adj. De-hi^{2}s'e^{2}nt. Lat., dehiscens. Fr., déhiscent. Ger., aufspringend, zerspringend. It., deiscente. Sp., dehiscente. Dehiscing. [a, 24.]

DEHISCENTIA (Lat.), n. f. De(de^2)-hi^{2}s-se^{2}n(ke^{2}n)'shi^2(ti^2)-a^3. See DEHISCENCE.—D. decussantium. Of Hyrtl, that variety of anastomosis per dehiscentiam in which two arteries cross each other and communicate at the point of intersection. [A, 19.]—D. juxtapositarum. Of Hyrtl, that variety of anastomosis per dehiscentiam in which two arteries running side by side communicate with each other at a certain point. [A, 19.]

DEHNEN (Ger.), DEHNUNG (Ger.), n's. Dan'e^{2}n, -un^2. Stretching, distension. [L, 43.]

DELIRATION, n. De2l-i2r-a'shu3n. See Delirium.

DÉLIRE (Fr.), n. Da-ler. See Delirium and Mania.—D. à deux. Syn.: folie à deux. Delirium with hallucinations, occurring in two persons, usually in the same family, ordinarily communicated to one patient by the other, and presenting the same characteristics in both. [a, 18.]—D. aiguë. Of Georget, see D. fébrile.—D. alcoolique. See Delirium tremens.—D. alcoolique afébrile. Of Magnan, simple delirium tremens without fever. [a, 18.]—D. à quatre. Syn.: folie à quatre. Delirium presenting similar characteristics in four persons of the same family. [Martinenq (α, 18).] Cf. D. à deux.—D. à trois. Syn.: folie à trois. Similar delirium in three patients. [α, 18.] Cf. D. à deux.—D. avec conscience. See Primordial DELIRIUM.—D. bénin. Of Savigny and Becquet, a mild form of delirium of inanition. The cerebral disturbance appears suddenly, the delirium is calm, without excitement; the patient speaks words without sequence, sometimes unintelligible, provoked by incessant hallucinations which are not terrifying, and no longer recognizes the persons surrounding him. When his attention is aroused, he mumbles a few words, and, after a few moments of silence, renews his vagaries. [L, 87 (α, 18).]—D. crapuleux. See DELIRIUM tremens.—D. de Dupuytren. See DELIRIUM nervosum traumaticum.—D. de la folie. Of Londe, the general delirium of mania, and the partial delirium of the different forms of paranoia. [L, 87 (α, 18).]—D. de la lactation. Delirium manifesting itself habitually toward the second or third month of lactation, having as principal causes anæmia and debility. It assumes especially the melancholic type, and the prognosis is less favorable than that of puerperal mania properly so called. [Ball (α, 18).]—D. de la phonation. Loss of complete control of speech, observed in certain choreic patients, who utter at frequent intervals and against their will words without sense or words having a foul meaning. [Ball (α, 18).]—D. démonomaniaque. A variety of religious delirium in which the patient, generally of the feminine sex, believes herself to be possessed by one or by several demons, who vomit insults and obscenities from their mouths, and to whom the patient often replies, speaking to herself in a similar manner. [L, 87 (α, 18).]—D. de négations. That variety of melancholia in which the person affected looks upon the real world about him as having ceased to exist, and as having been replaced by another, of his own imagining, in which he is tormented to find himself. [Cotard, "Arch. de neurol.," Sept., 1882, p. 152.]—D. d'énormité. A variety of melancholic delirium in which the patient believes that the crime or the sin of which he is self-accused is too great to be forgiven. He continually reproaches himself in the severest terms, and considers no punishment too great for the enormity of his sin. ["Ann. méd-psych." (α, 18).]—D. des aboyeuses. An hysterical manifestation characterized by repeated vocal sounds more or less like the barking (aboiement) of a dog; observed among women congregated together, as in boarding-schools and convents. [A, 321.]—D. des actes. A form of insanity in which there is continually a tendency to act impulsively. Its subjects may indulge in sexual improprieties or commit theft, incendiarism, etc. [D, 36.]—D. des convalescents. Delirium observed during convalescence from severe acute diseases, such as typhoid fever, pneumonia, intermittent fever, cholera, eruptive fevers, and diphtheria. It is usually of a violent form, resembling maniacal delirium, with hallucinations. It begins in the morning in general, and lasts from a few hours to two or three days. It usually terminates favorably. [L, 88 (α, 18).]—D. des dégénérés. A form of delirium of long duration occurring in persons presenting intellectual degeneration. The delirium is changeable, taking various forms. [Saury (α, 18).]—D. des femmes en couches. Puerperal insanity. [A, 250 (α, 21).]—D. des grandeurs. See DELIRIUM grandiosum.—D. des ivrognes. See DELIRIUM tremens.—D. des opérés. See DELIRIUM nervosum traumaticum.—D. des persécutions. Lat., delirium persecutionis. Ger., Verfolgungsmelancholie. A form of partial, systematic delirium in which the patient seeks to explain his extraordinary sensations (which are usually disagreeable) by invoking the hostility of some powerful and occult agency; sometimes he attributes his sufferings to some subtle force, such as electricity, magnetism, chemistry, or physics; sometimes to the police, freemasons, Jesuits, etc. He often creates new names for his supposed persecutors. This form of delirium occasionally leads to homicide, the patient believing that he is taking revenge. [L, 88 (α, 18).]—D. des sentiments. Ger., Gefühlsdelirium. Delirium in which the affective faculties (the feelings, affections, etc.) are impaired. They may be exalted, diminished, or perverted. The patient may love those whom he formerly hated, or vice versa. [L, 88 (α, 18).]—D. d'inanition. See DELIRIUM ex inanitione.—D. doux. See DELIRIUM mussitans.—D. du toucher. Repugnance to contact, as a feature of insanity. [L, 57.]—D. ébrieux. The delirium of intoxication. [D, 72.]—D. émotif. Syn.: obsession anxieuse (ou émotive). Of Morel, a symptomatic manifestation of a mental state frequent in different forms of insanity, especially in their period of incubation. It is characterized by the "facility with which the patient receives an impression of a certain order and quickly conforms his thoughts to it, while reason and experience fail to come to his aid to correct these morbid impressions and drive away the baseless terrors which afflict him." [L, 88 (α, 18).]—D. essentiel. See Idiopathic DELIRIUM.—D. fébrile. Delirium caused by some severe febrile disease, such as typhoid fever, articular rheumatism, pneumonia, etc. It is usually a general incoherent delirium, of a depressive, anxious nature, accompanied by hallucinations or dreams. [L, 87 (α, 18).]—D. furieux. See Maniacal DELIRIUM.—D. général. A variety of delirium vesanicum in which the mental disorder invades the entire domain of the psychic faculties, sensibility, understanding, and volition. [L, 87 (α, 18).]—D. grave. Of Savigny and Becquet, a severe form of d. d'inanition appearing at an advanced period of inanition. "The patient, lying upon his back without movement, continually pronounces unintelligible words. The gaze is fixed upon some point in space, though with difficulty, for the eyes are constantly agitated by convulsive movements." The prognosis of this state is unfavorable, for after forty-eight hours the patient almost inevitably dies. [L, 87 (α, 18).]—D. hydrophobique. A variety of acute febrile delirium in which the patient manifests the utmost abhorrence of liquids, and furiously resists every attempt to induce him to drink. This form of delirium may occur in mania, melancholia, puerperal insanity, alcoholism, idiocy, general paresis, etc. [L, 88 (α, 18).]—D. hypochondriaque. A delirium in which the delirious ideas have exclusive reference to the physical individuality of the patient, and are generally based upon some modification of visceral sensibility. Patients presenting this state imagine that animals are lodged in their bodies, that frogs or serpents are moving about in their bowels; or else they pretend that they have no viscera, that they have no intestines, or stomach, or mouth, or that these organs are no longer performing their functions. They refuse to eat, and resist the impulse to micturate or to defecate, and women often imagine themselves pregnant. [L, 88 (α, 18).]—D. impulsif. A form of delirium which comprises those maniacal or insane acts that are prompted by a morbid impulse. It is exemplified in kleptomania, pyromania, homicidal monomania, and suicide. [L, 88 (α, 18).]—D. instinctif. Ger., instinctive Manie. A form of the d. des actes which includes those acts due to a morbid or perverted instinct. [L, 88 (α, 18).]—D. malicieux. Insanity in which the individual shows malicious impulses of a homicidal, incendiary, or other destructive character. [D.]—D. mélancolique. See Depressive DELIRIUM.—D. nerveux, D. nerveux des opérés. See DELIRIUM nervosum traumaticum.—D. non-vésanique. Delirium in persons unaffected with insanity. It includes the febrile delirium of acute or chronic diseases and the nervous delirium of Dupuytren, which is observed after traumatism, surgical operations, or profound emotions. [L, 88 (α, 18).]—D. organisé. See Partial DELIRIUM.—D. panophobique des aliénés gémisseurs. A form of delirium found in certain cases of melancholia, characterized by a great anxiety about everything, especially about the immediate interests of life. This anxiety is often so intense that it causes incessant moaning and spasmodic states which may last for years. Questions addressed to the patient are answered by groans or by reproaches. [Morel (α, 18).]—D. professionnel. Symptomatic delirium in which the vagaries pertain to the ordinary occupations of the patient. [L, 87 (α, 18).]—D. raisonnant. See Reasoning MANIA.—D. religieux. Delirium in which mystic preoccupations, excessive practices of piety, exaggerated religious scruples, and ecstatic tendencies predominate, accompanied by hallucinations. [L, 88 (α, 18).]—D. systématique. See Partial DELIRIUM.—D. systématique hallucinatoire. Acute or chronic insanity taking the form of maniacal agitation, with delusions of persecution. [P. Mayser, "Allg. ztschr. f. Psych.," xlii; "Arch. de neurol.," July, 1886, p. 85.]—D. théomaniaque. A variety of religious delirium in which the patient believes himself to be a divine personage. [L, 88 (α, 18).]—D. tranquille. See DELIRIUM placidum.—D. tremblant. See DELIRIUM tremens.—D. vésanique. See DELIRIUM vesanicum.

DENDROLOGY, n. De^{2}n-dro^{2}l'o-ji^2. Lat., dendrologia (from δένδρον, a tree, and λόγος, understanding). Fr., dendrologie. Ger., Dendrologie, Holzpflanzenslehre. See DENDROGRAPHY.

DENDROMYINÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. De^{2}n-dro(dro^3)-mi(mu^6)-i(e)'-ne(na^3-e^2). From δένδρον, a tree, and μυῖα, a fly. A subfamily of the Muridæ. [L, 121.]

DENDROPHIDÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. De^{2}n-dro^{2}f'i^{2}d-e(a^3-e^2). From δένδρον, a tree, and ὄφις, a snake. The tree-snakes; a family of the Ophidii colubriformes. [L, 121.]

DENDROPHTHOË (Lat.), n. f. De^{2}n-dro^{2}f'tho(tho^3)-e(a). Gen., dendroph'thoes. From δένδρον, a tree, and φθόη, decay. Of Martius, a genus of loranthaceous, parasitic shrubs, distinguished from Loranthus by having the petals united into a tube. [B, 19 (α, 24).]—D. bicolor. The Loranthus bicolor. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—D. longiflora. The Loranthus longiflorus. [B, 180 (α, 24).]

DENDROSAURA (Lat.), n. n. pl. De^{2}n-dro(dro^3)-sa^{4}r'(sa^3'u^{4}r)-a^3. From δένδρον, a tree, and σαύρα, a lizard. A tribe of the Lacertilia, consisting of the single genus Chamæleo. [L, 121.]

DENDROSERIDEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. De^{2}n-dro(dro^3)-se^{2}r-i^{2}d'-e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., dendroseridées. Of Bentham and Hooker and others, a subtribe of the Cichoriaceæ, including Dendroseris and Fitchia. [B, 42, 121 (α, 24).]

DENDROSTYLES, n. pl. De^{2}n'dro-stilz. From δένδρον, a tree, and στῦλος, a column. Four columns which spring from the angles of the syndendrium of the Rhizostomidæ, and are attached to four corresponding points on the lower surface of the umbrella. [L, 147.]

DENDRYPHIACEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. De^{2}n-dri^2(dru^6)-fi^2-a(a^3)'-se^2(ke^2)-e(a^3-e^2). Fr., dendryphiacées. 1. Of Corda, a family of the Hyphomycetes, consisting of Dendryphium and Dactylium. 2. Of Rabenhorst, a subsection of the Mucedinei genuini, consisting of the same genera. The Dendryphiei of Reichenbach are a subsection of the Mucedinei genuini, consisting of Dactylium, Cladobotryum, and Dendryphium. [B, 121, 170 (α, 24).]

DENECKIEÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. De^{2}n-e^{2}k-i(i^2)'e^2-e(a^3-e^2). Of Schultz, a division of the Conyzeæ, consisting of Deneckia and Micropsis. [B, 170 (α, 24).]

DENERVATIO (Lat.), n. f. De(da)-nu^{6}r(ne^{2}r)-va(wa^3)'shi^2(ti^2)-o. Gen., denervation'is. From de priv. or intens., and nervus, a nerve or a tendon. See APONEUROSIS and ENERVATION.

DENGUE (Sp.), n. Dan'ga; in Eng., de^{2}n^2'gu^2. Lat., denguis. Fr., d. Ger., D'fieber, Polkafieber. It., d. Literally, fastidiousness, prudery, affectation, or the manner of a dandy; dandy-fever (from the patient's constrained attitude, due to dread of motion); knee-aching disorder; epidemic gastrorrheumatic (or breakbone, or broken-wing, or stiff-necked, or bucket, or bouquet, or sun, or solar, or neuralgic, or Colorado, or eruptive articular) fever; epidemic inflammatory fever of Calcutta; eruptive epidemic fever of India; toohutia, giraffe, dunga, dingee. An acute febrile disease occurring as an epidemic in the East and West Indies and in the southern United States, characterized by severe pains, swelling, and stiffness of the joints, gastric disturbance, and a cutaneous exanthem. The eruption begins on about the third day, appearing first upon the palms of the hands, and thence extending over the general cutaneous surface; in appearance it is said sometimes to resemble that of scarlatina, sometimes that of measles, and sometimes that of urticaria. D. is often attended with severe itching, and may or may not be followed by desquamation. [A, 326 (α, 21); Christie, "Indian Med. Gaz.," Mar., 1882; G; L, 41.] Cf. ACRODYNIA.

DENI (Lat.), adj. pl. De(da)'ni(ne). Arranged in tens. [α, 24.]

DENIDATION, n. De-ni-da'shu^{3}n. From de priv., and nidus, a nest. The process by which the superficial portion of the mucous membrane of the body of the uterus, after having become tumid and succulent (fit to form a nest for the fertilized ovum) during menstruation, is said to be disintegrated and cast off.

DENIGRATION, n. De-ni-gra'shu^{3}n. Gr., μελασμός. Lat., denigratio (from denigrare, to blacken). Ger., Schwärzung. A blackening, also the state of having become black. [A, 322, 325 (α, 21).]

DENIS-SUR-LOIRE (Fr.), n. De^{3}n-e-su^{6}r-lwa^{3}r. A place near Blois, in the department of Loir-et-Cher, France, where there is a mineral spring called Fontaine de Médicis. [L, 105.]

DENITRATION, n. The process of withdrawing nitric acid from a chemical compound. [B.]

DENITRIFY, v. tr. De-nit′ri^{2}-fi. To deprive of nitrogen. [“Drugg. Circ. and Chem. Gaz.,” June, 1883, p. 91 (B).]

DENS (Lat.), n. m. De^{2}nz(dans). Gen., dent′is. Gr., ὀδούς. Fr., dent. Ger., Zahn. A tooth, also a structure in the form of a tooth. [α, 24.]—D. acutus, D. adversus. Fr., dent inciseur. Ger., Schneidezahn. An incisor tooth. [L.]—D. angularis. A canine tooth. [L.]—Dentes apparentes [Corti]. Dentes habenulæ. The so-called teeth found in that portion of the habenula perforata of Corti's organ which is called the zona denticulati, and which extends from the crista spiralis to the outer end of Corti's organ. [F.]—D. bicuspidatus, D. bicuspis. A bicuspid tooth. [L, 115.]—D. buccalis. A premolar tooth. [L, 115.]—Dentes buccalis externus. The posterior bicuspid tooth. [L, 304.]—D. buccalis internus. The anterior bicuspid tooth. [L, 304.]—D. caballinus. The Hyoscyamus niger. [B, 88, 200.]—D. canaliculatus. A canaliculate tooth. [L, 14.]—D. caninus. A canine tooth. [L, 115.]—D. canis. See ERYTHRONIUM d. canis.—D. columellaris. A canine tooth. [L, 94.]—Dentes complicati. See Complicated TEETH (under TOOTH).—Dentes cranteres. See Wisdom TEETH.—D. ctenis. An incisor tooth. [L, 50.]—Dentes cuneati. The wedge-shaped dental plates of certain fishes. [L, 14.]—D. cuspidatus. See D. caninus.—Dentes decidui. See Deciduous TEETH (under TOOTH).—D. dichaster. An incisor tooth. [A, 325 (α, 21).]—D. elephantis. Ivory; the tusk of Elephas indicus. [B, 180 (α, 24).]—D. elephantis petrefactus. An old name for fossil ivory. [L, 105 (α, 21).]—D. epistrophei, D. epistropheos. The odontoid process of the axis. [L, 115, 175.]—Dentes equi hippopotami (seu marini). See Dentes HIPPOPOTAMI.—Dentes fibrillarum lentis. Tooth-like processes found upon the lateral faces of the fibres of the crystalline lens. [L, 7.]—D. gelasinus. An incisor tooth. [L, 50.]—D. gomphius. A molar tooth. [L, 50.]—Dentes graniformes. Small, thickly studded teeth which give a granular appearance to the jaws. [L, 14.]—Dentes hippopotami. See Dentes HIPPOPOTAMI.—D. incisivus (seu incisor). An incisor tooth. [L.]—D. incisivus externus. A lateral incisor tooth. [L, 304.]—D. incisivus internus. A middle incisor tooth. [L, 304.]—Dentes infantiles (seu lactei). See Milk TEETH (under TOOTH).—Dentes lamelliformes. See Dental PLATES.—Dentes laniarii. See Canine TEETH (under TOOTH).—D. leonis. The Taraxacum officinale. [B, 5, 121 (α, 24).]—D. molaris. A molar tooth. [L.]—D. molaris anterior. A premolar tooth. [L, 135.]—D. molaris externus. A wisdom tooth. [L, 304.]—D. molaris internus. The first molar tooth. [L, 304.]—D. molaris major. See D. molaris.—D. molaris medius. The second molar tooth. [L, 304.]—D. molaris minor. See D. molaris anterior.—D. molaris posterior (seu verus). See D. molaris.—D. mordens. A canine tooth. [L.]—D. multicuspidatus. See D. molaris.—D. ocularis. A canine tooth. [L.]—D. opsigonus. A wisdom tooth. [L, 50.]—Dentes pectinati. See Pectinate TEETH (under TOOTH).—Dentes permanentes. See Permanent TEETH (under TOOTH).—D. præmolaris. A premolar tooth. [L, 115.]—Dentes primores. See Incisor TEETH and Milk TEETH (under TOOTH).—Dentes raduliformes. See Rasp TEETH (under TOOTH).—D. sapientiæ. A wisdom tooth. [L, 115.]—Dentes scalprarii. Chisel-shaped teeth. [“Proc. of the Zool. Soc.,” 1839, p. 15 (L).]—D. sectorius. An incisor tooth. [L.]—D. serotinus. See Wisdom TOOTH.—Dentes setiformes. See Setiform TEETH (under TOOTH).—Dentes simplices. See Simple TEETH (under TOOTH).—Dentes solidi. See Simple TEETH (under TOOTH).—D. sophronister, D. sophronistus, D. sophroreticus. A wisdom tooth. [L, 50.]—D. spurius. A premolar tooth. [L.]—Dentes tardivi, D. tardivus. A wisdom tooth. [L, 135.]—Dentes temporarii. See Milk TEETH (under TOOTH).—D. tomicus. An incisor tooth. [L.]—Dentes unicornu. Fragments of the tooth of the Monodon monoceras, or, according to some pharmacopœias, of the Rhinoceros indicus. [B, 88 (α, 21).]—Dentes villiformes. See Villiform TEETH (under TOOTH).

DENSATIO (Lat.), n. f. De^{2}n-sa(sa^{3})′shi^{2}(ti^{2})-o. Gen., densation′is. Gr., πύκνωσις. See CONDENSATION.

DENSE, adj. De^{2}ns. Gr., πυκνός. Lat., densus. Fr., d. Ger., dicht. It., Sp., denso. Having the constituent parts or the molecules close together and compact; of roots, branches, leaves, or flowers, numerous and crowded together. [A, 301 (α, 21); B, 121, 123 (α, 24).]

DENSIFLORUS (Lat.), adj. De^{2}ns-i^{2}-flo′ru^{3}s(ru^{4}s). From densus, dense, and flos, a flower. Fr., densiflore. Ger., dichtblüthig. Having numerous flowers crowded together. [α, 24.]

DENSIFOLIUS (Lat.), adj. De^{2}ns-i^{2}-fol(fo^{2}l)′i^{2}-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). From densus, dense, and folium, a leaf. Fr., densifolié. Ger., dichtblättrig. Having dense leaves (a botanical species name). [B.]

DENSIMETER, n. De^{2}ns-i^{2}m′e^{2}t-u^{5}r. From densus, dense, and μέτρον, a measure. Fr., densimètre. Ger., Dichtigkeitsmesser. A hydrometer or other similar instrument for ascertaining the specific gravity of liquids. [α, 24.]

DENSIMÈTRE (Fr.), n. Da^{2}n^{3}-se-matr. See DENSIMETER.—D. de Rousseau. An instrument employed in physiological research to determine the density of liquids. It consists of a Beaumé areometer provided at the top of the tube with a little capsule intended to receive 1 cubic centimetre of the liquid, the density of which is to be ascertained and so graduated that the degree of submersion into water indicates the degree of density. [A, 301 (α, 21).]

DENSIMETRIC, adj. De^{2}ns-i^{2}-me^{2}t′ri^{2}k. Pertaining to the use of the densimeter (see D. ANALYSIS).

DENSIROSTRIS (Lat.), adj. De^{2}ns-i^{2}-ro^{2}st′ri^{2}s. From densus, dense, and rostrum, a beak. Fr., densirostre. Ger., dickschnabelig. Having a thick beak. [L.]

DENSITY, n. De^{2}ns′i^{2}t-i^{2}. Gr., πυκνότης. Lat., densitas. Fr., densité. Ger., Dichtigkeit. It., densità. Sp., densidad. 1. In physics and chemistry, the relative weight of a substance as compared with that of some other substance of equal bulk. 2. The quality of being dense. [α, 24.]—Electrical d. See Electrical INTENSITY.—Vapor d. Ger., Dampfdichte. The specific gravity of a vapor. [B, 8 (α, 24).]

DENT (Fr.), n. Da^{3}n^{3}. See TOOTH.—D's agrégées. Compound teeth; those made up apparently of a number of smaller teeth. [L, 158.]—D. angulaire. A canine tooth. [L.]—D's à venin. See Poison FANGS.—D. barrée. A molar tooth, especially one having the roots curved and converging. [A, 385 (α, 21).]—D's bicortiquées. Teeth which have a more or less complete investment of both cement and enamel. [L, 158.]—D's broyeuses. Teeth having a large grinding surface. [L, 158.]—D's caduques. See Milk TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's cardinales. The principal teeth of the hinge of a bivalve shell. [A, 385 (α, 21).]—D. carnassière. A canine tooth. [L.]—D's composées. Compound teeth; those of which the dentin and enamel form interior folds, as it were, so that a cross-section of the tooth cuts them several times. [A, 385 (α, 21).]—D. conoïde. A canine tooth. [L.]—D's cortiquées. Teeth having an external covering of cement only. [L, 158.]—D. crantère. A wisdom tooth. [L.]—D. cunéiforme. An incisor tooth. [L.]—D. cuspide, D. cuspidée. A canine tooth. [L, 158.]—D's cystogénètes. Teeth which are developed within a vesicle. [L, 158.]—D. de brebis. The Lathyrus sativus. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—D's de cheval marin. See Dentes HIPPOPOTAMI.—D. de chien. The Dentalium dentalis and the Erythronium dens canis. [B, 173 (α, 24); L, 105.]—D's de lait. See Milk TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's de licorne. See Dentes unicornu.—D. de lion. The Taraxacum officinale. [B, 173 (α, 24).]—D's demi-composées. Semi-compound teeth; those of which the alternate folds of dentin and enamel penetrate only to a certain depth, as in ruminants. [A, 385 (α, 21).]—D's de remplacement. See Second TEETH (under TOOTH).—D. de sagesse. A wisdom tooth. [L.]—D's de septans. The permanent teeth. [L, 7.]—D's d'hippopotame. See Dentes HIPPOPOTAMI.—D's emaillées. Teeth covered with enamel only. [L, 158.]—D's en cardes. See Rasp TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's en crochets. Conical and recurved hook-like teeth. [L. 158.]—D's en râpe. See Rasp TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's en velours. See Villiform TEETH.—D's fausses molaires. The premolar teeth. [L, 158.]—D's fossiculées. Teeth in which the dentin and enamel are so arranged that when the crown is worn the enamel is in separate masses, divided from each other by dentin. [L, 158.]—D's gymnosome. Teeth the principal portion of which are not invested with a covering of cement or enamel. [L, 158.]—D's lacérantes. Strong and large teeth adapted to tearing, e. g., the canines of the dog. [L, 158.]—D. machelière. A molar tooth. [L, 158.]—D. multicuspidée. See DENS multicuspidatus.—D's oculaires, D's œil lières. See Canine TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's palatines. See Palatine TEETH.—D's pectinées. See Pectinate TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's phanérogenètes. Teeth which are not developed within a vesicle, but upon or near the surface of a mucous membrane. [L, 158.]—D's pharyngiennes. See Pharyngeal TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's prehensiles. See Prehensile TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's premaxillaires. See Incisor TEETH.—D's primitives. See Milk TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's principales. See Principal TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's râpenses. See Rasp TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's rubanées. Teeth in which the alternate layers of cement and dentin are placed vertically. [L, 158.]—D's sécatrices. Teeth terminating in a cutting edge. [L, 158.]—D's simples. See Simple TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's stéganosomes. Teeth which have an outer investment of enamel or cement, or both. [L, 158.]—D's temporaires. See Milk TEETH (under TOOTH).—D's vomériennes. See Vomerine TEETH (under TOOTH).

DENTAGOGUM (Lat.), n. n. De^{2}nt-a^{2}g(a^{3}g)-og′u^{3}m(u^{4}m). From dens, a tooth, and ἄγειν, to bring. A forceps or other instrument for extracting teeth. [E.]

DENTAGRA (Lat.), n. f. De^{2}nt′a^{2}g(a^{3}g)-ra^{3}. From dens, a tooth, and ἄγρα, a seizure. 1. Toothache. 2. See DENTAGOGUM. [E.]

DENTAIRE (Fr.), adj. Da^{3}n^{2}-ta^{2}r. See DENTAL; as a n., see DENTARIA.—D. à cinq feuilles. See DENTARIA digitata.—D. pennée. See DENTARIA heptaphyllos.—Petite d. See DENTARIA digitata.

DENTAL, adj. De^{2}nt′a^{2}l. Lat., dentalis, dentarius. Fr., dentaire. Ger., zu den Zähnen gehörig. It., dentale. Sp., d. Pertaining to the teeth; as a n. in the pl., letters which are pronounced chiefly with the teeth, such as d, t, and n. [L.]

DENTALE (Fr.), n. Da^{3}n^{2}-ta^{3}l. The Dentalium elephantinum. [A, 385 (α, 21).]—D. des officines. The Dentalium dentale. [B, 88.]

DENTALES (Lat.), DENTALIA (Lat.), n's m. and n. pl. De^{2}nt-a(a^{3})-lez(las), -li^{2}-a^{3}. Ger., Zahnpurpurschnecken. 1. The Dentalium entale and the Dentalium dentale and their shell; formerly used in pharmacy as a source of lime. [B, 119, 180 (α, 24).] 2. (Applying to the 2d term only) a family of the Cirrobranchiata. [“Proc. of the Zool. Soc.,” 1841, p. 74 (L).]

DENTALIDA (Lat.), n. n. pl. De^{2}n-ta^{2}l(ta^{3}l)′i^{2}d-a^{3}. A sub-order of the Scaphopoda. The Dentaliadæ, or Dentalidæ, are the tooth-shells; a family of the Holostomata and of the Solenoconchæ. The Dentaliidæ are a family of the Solenoconchæ. [“Proc. of the Zool. Soc.,” 1882, p. 656 (L); L, 147, 228, 353.]

DENTALIUM (Lat.), n. n. De^{2}nt-a(a^{3})′li^{2}-u^{3}m(u^{4}m). Fr., dentale. Ger., Zahnschnecke, Meerzahn. A genus of the Dentalidæ; used anciently as a remedy for angina and gout, also as an ingredient of ointments; the shells were a source of lime. [A, 325

(a, 21); B, 200 (a, 21).]—D. dentale. A European species the shells of which constituted the dentalia of the old pharmacists. [B, 180.]—D. entale. A European species the shells of which, called entalia, were formerly official. [B, 180.]

DENTALOSTEOM (Ger.), n. De^{2}nt-a^{3}l'o^{2}st-a-om. See ODONTOMA.

DENTAPHONE, n. De^{2}nt'a^3-fon. From dens, a tooth, and φωνή, a sound or voice. An instrument devised for improving the hearing power of the deaf. It consists of a box open in front, like a watch-case, which contains a plate capable of vibrating, to which is attached a short cord. By catching the cord with the teeth, the plate becomes tense, and sound-waves, falling upon it, are conducted through the bones of the head to the labyrinth. [F, 34.]

DENTARIA (Lat.), n. f. De^{2}nt-a(a^3)'ri^2-a^3. From dens, a tooth (from the tooth-like projections of the rhizome). Fr., dentaire. Ger., Zahnwurz, Zahnwurzel. Pepper-root, toothwort; a genus of the Cruciferæ, closely allied to Cardamine, said to be carminative. [B, 19, 34, 121, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—D. bulbifera. Fr., dentaire bulbifère. Ger., zwiebeltragende Zahnwurzel. Coral-root, tooth-cress, tooth-violet. Its roots were formerly official as radix dentariæ minoris, and were used in the colic of children and in dysentery. In Russia the inhabitants of the Irkutsk are said to employ the root in epilepsy and convulsions. [B, 19, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—D. digitata. Fr., petite dentaire, dentaire digitée (ou à cinq feuilles). An Alpine species. It has been used in children's colic and in diarrhœa. [B, 119, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—D. diphylla. A North American species having a long, large root-stock of a pungent, aromatic taste, used, when dried, as a substitute for mustard. [B, 34, 180 (a, 24).]—D. enneaphyllos. A species found in southern and central Europe, having properties similar to those of D. digitata. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—D. glabra. The Turritis glabra. [B, 173 (a, 24).]—D. glandulosa. An Alpine species, having properties like those of D. digitata. [B, 180 (a, 24).]—D. heptaphylla. Fr., dentaire pennée. An Alpine species, sometimes used like D. digitata. [B, 173, 180 (a, 24).]—D. major. 1. The Lathræa squamaria. 2. The Plumbago europæa. [B, 180, 270 (a, 24).]—D. minor. See D. bulbifera.—D. pentaphylla. Fr., dentaire à cinq feuilles. See D. digitata.—D. pinnata. See D. heptaphylla.—D. polyphylla, D. trifolia. Alpine species, with properties similar to those of D. bulbifera, like which in Europe the D. trifolia was once used. [B, 180 (a, 24).]

DENTARIUS (Lat.), adj. De^{2}nt-a(a^3)'ri^2-u^{3}s(u^{4}s). Dental; as a n., a dentist. [E.]

DENTARPAGA (Lat.), n. f. De^{2}nt-a^{3}rp'a^3-ga^3. From dens, a tooth, and ἁρπαγή, a robber. See DENTAGRA.

DENTARY, adj. De^{2}nt'a-ri^2. Lat., dentarius. Fr., dentaire. Dental; as a n., see D. BONE. [L.]

DENTATA (Lat.), n. De^{2}nt-a(a^3)-ta^3. The axis. [L, 84.]

DENTATÆ (Lat.), n. f. pl. De^{2}nt-a(a^3)'te(ta^3-e^2). Fr., dentées. A family of the Cephalopoda. [L, 180.]

DENTATE, DENTATED, adj's. De^{2}nt'at, -at-e^{2}d. Lat., dentatus. Fr., denté. Ger., gezähnt. It., dentato. Sp., dentado. Provided with teeth, notched along the edge. [A, 385 (a, 21); B, 1 (a, 24).]

DENTATION, n. De^{2}n-ta'shu^{3}n. The formation of a toothed margin (in leaves, etc.). [a, 24.]

DENTATO-ANGULATE, adj. De^{2}n-ta''to-a^{2}n^2'gu^{2}l-at. Having a toothed margin divided into angles (said of leaves). [a, 24.]

DENTATO-CILIATE, adj. De^{2}nt-at''o-si^{2}l'i^2-at. Lat., dentatus-ciliatus. Having the margin dentate and fringed, or tipped with hairs (in leaves). [L, 56.]

DENTATO-CRENATE, adj. De^{2}nt-at''o-kre^{2}n'at. Scalloped and toothed (said of the margin of leaves). [a, 24.]

DENTATO-SERRATE, adj. De^{2}nt-at''o-se^{2}r'at. Having teeth like a saw, sharp and far apart (said of leaves). [a, 24.]

DENTATO-SINUATE, adj. De^{2}n-ta''to-sin'u^2-at. Having margins scolloped and slightly toothed. [a, 24.]

DENTATUS (Lat.), adj. De^{2}nt-a(a^3)'tu^{3}s(tu^{4}s). See DENTATE.

DENT-DE-CHIEN (Fr.), n. Da^{3}n^2-d'she a^{3}n^2. The Erythronium dens canis. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]—D.-d.-c. blanc. The Cordia mirabiliflora. [B, 121 (a, 24).]

DENT-DE-LION (Fr.), n. Da^{3}n^2-d'le-o^{3}n^2. The Taraxacum officinale. [B, 19, 121 (a, 24).]—Extrait de d.-d.-l. See Extractum TARAXACI.

DENTIN, n. De^{2}nt'i^{2}n. Lat., dentinum. Fr., dentine. Ger., D. The principal part of the hard substance of the teeth. It forms an investment for the tooth pulp and is itself covered on the exposed part of the tooth by enamel, and on the implanted part by cement. It is composed of a solid matrix impregnated with salts of calcium, thus resembling compact bone, and is traversed by a multitude of spirally twisted tubes, the dentinal canaliculi, which extend approximately directly from the pulp cavity to the cement or to the enamel. Each canaliculus is lined by a resisting membrane (membrane of Neumann) and contains a protoplasmic process (dentinal fibre) from one of the odontoblasts lining the pulp cavity. [J, 26, 32, 35, 42.]—D'knorpel (Ger.). The dentinal matrix. [L, 332.]—D. of repair [Salter]. A deposit of d. which takes place upon the inner surface of d. when its outer surface becomes denuded of the enamel or cement. [L, 142.]—D'röhrchen (Ger.). See Dentinal CANALS.—D'zellen (Ger.). See Dentinal CELLS.—Gano-d. A variety of non-vascular d. found upon the surface of teeth, analogous to enamel. [L, 14.]—Labyrintho-d. A variety which consists of a central column from which radiate a number of vertical plates which pass to the periphery of the tooth, after dividing and subdividing in a highly complicated manner. [L, 14.]—Osteo-d. That variety of d. in which the cellular basis is arranged in concentric layers around the dentinal canals, and contains stellate cells like those of bone. [L, 14.]—Plico-d. D. which is arranged in folds radiating from the centre. [L, 14.]—Unvascular d. That variety of d. which contains no blood-vessels. [L, 14.]—Vascular d. That variety of d. which contains blood-vessels. [L, 14.]—Vitro-d. See Gano-d.

DENTINAL, adj. De^{2}nt'i^{2}n-a^{2}l. Pertaining to dentin.

DENTINE, n. De^{2}nt'en. See DENTIN.—Artificial d. A substance produced by the employment of calcium lacto-phosphate over exposed dental pulps. ["Proc. of the Am. Pharm. Assoc.," xxvi (α, 21).]—D. vasculaire (Fr.), Vaso-d. (Fr.). See Vascular DENTIN.

DENTINIFICATION, n. De^{2}nt-i^{2}n-i-fi^2-ka'shun. Fr., d. Ger., Dentinbildung. The formation of dentin. The process is in general similar to the ossification of bone, except that there is no preliminary calcification. [J.]

DENTINOID, adj. De^{2}nt'i^{2}n-oid. Fr., dentinoïde. Ger., Dentinoid. Resembling dentin; as a n., a hard swelling which occurs in the matrix of a tooth at the period of its formation. [A, 396 (α, 21).]

DENTIPES (Lat.), adj. De^{2}nt'i^2-pez(pas). From dens, a tooth, and pes, the foot. Fr., dentipède. Ger., zahnfüssig. Having dentate feet or legs. [L, 41, 180.]

DENTIPHONE (Fr.), n. Da^{3}n^2-te-fon. See DENTAPHONE.

DENTIPOROUS, adj. De^{2}n-ti^{2}p'o-ru^{3}s. Lat., dentiporus (from dens, a tooth, and πόρος, a channel). Fr., dentipore. Provided with pores one edge of which is prominent and dentated. [L, 180.]

DENTIROSTRATE, adj. De^{2}nt-i^2-ro^{2}st'rat. From dens, a tooth, and rostrum, a beak. Having the edges of the beak notched. The Dentirostres are a family of the Passeres. [L, 180.]

DENTISCALPIUM (Lat.), n. n. De^{2}nt-i^2-ska^{2}l(ska^{3}l)'pi^2-u^{3}m-(u^{4}m). From dens, a tooth, and scalpere, to scrape. Ger., Zahnkratzer. Syn.: odontoglyphum. An instrument for cleansing the teeth. [A, 322; L, 94 (α, 21).]

DENTIST, n. De^{2}nt'i^{2}st. Fr., dentiste. Ger., Zahnarzt. It., Sp., dentista. A practitioner of dentistry.

Lat., depressus. Fr., déprimé. Ger., niedergedrückt. It., depresso. Sp., deprimido. Affected with depression; in botany, pressed down (said of an organ flattened from above downward, such as a leaf the border of which is higher than the disc). [B, 1, 34, 121, 123 (a, 24).]

DÉPRESSEUR (Fr.), adj. and n. Da-pre^{2}s-u^{5}r. See Depressant and Depressor.

DÉPRESSICAUDE (Fr.), adj. Da-pre^{2}s-e-kod. From deprimere, to depress, and cauda, the tail. Having the tail flattened. [L, 41.]

DEPRESSICOLLIS (Lat.), adj. De(da)-pre^{2}s-si^2-ko^{2}l'li^{2}s. From deprimere, to depress, and collum, the neck. Fr., dépressic lle. Having the neck or corselet flattened. [L, 41, 180.]

DEPRESSIO (Lat), n. f. De(da)-pre^{2}s'shi^2(si^2)-o. Gen., depression'is. See Depression.—D. cataractæ. Fr., dépression (ou abaissement) de la cataracte. Ger., Niederdrücken des Staars. It., abbassamento della cataratta. Sp., depresión (ó abatimiento) de la catarata. The old operation of couching, sinking, or depressing the lens with its capsule into the vitreous by pressing with a needle from above directly downward. The oldest operation of getting rid of an opaque lens, employed in the most remote times. [F.]—D. cataractæ per scleroticam. Depression or reclination of the lens by a needle introduced through the sclera. [F.]—D. uteri. Inversion of the uterus. [A, 396 (a, 21).]

DEPRESSION, n. De-pre^{2}s'yu^{3}n. Lat., depressio (from deprimere, to depress). Fr., dépression. Ger., D., Niederdrückung. It., depressione. Sp., depresión. 1. The act of depressing a part. 2. The state of being depressed, either physically (as of a fragment of the skull) or in the sense of a reduction of strength or of hopefulness. 3. In anatomy, a pit on a surface. [D; L, 41, 44.]—Antero-lateral d. The antero-lateral fissure of the spinal cord. [I, 38; K.]—Auditory d. Lat., fossula velaris. Ger., Gehörgrube. 1. An open d. in the velum of certain Medusæ, containing auditory cells. [L, 358.] 2. A d. of a thickened part of the epiblast marking the early stage of formation of the ear. [A. Thomson (H).]—Crotaphyte d. A d. in the squamosal bone of birds, lodging the muscles which close the jaws, and corresponding to the temporal fossa of man. [L, 221.]—D. of a cataract. See Depressio cataractæ.—D. of the uterus. Lat., depressio uteri. Ger., Einstülpung der Gebärmutter. The first stage of inversion of the organ.—Digital d. The descending cornu of the lateral ventricle of the brain. [I, 62; K.]—Infrasternal d. A d. at the lower end of the sternum, at the bottom of which lies the ensiform process. It is due to the prominence of the mesosternum and the seventh costal cartilages beyond the surface of the ensiform process. [G.]—Interpeduncular d. [Spitzka]. See Interpeduncular space.—Mental d. A state of melancholy. [D.]—Nervous d. Nervous debility.—Vital d. A lowered state of the powers of life.

DEPRESSOR (Lat.), n. m. De(da)-pre^{2}s'so^{2}r. Gen., depressor'is. Fr., dépresseur, abaisseur. Ger., Niederdrücker. It., depressore. Sp., depresor. Syn.: depressorium (2d def.). 1. A muscle the action of which is to depress a part. 2. An instrument for depressing a part.—D. alæ nasi. Fr., pinnal radié, l'incisif mitoyen, myrtiforme. nasillard, maxillo-alvéoli-nasal, maxillo-alvéonasal, abaisseur de l'aile du nez (ou de l'angle du nez). Ger., Niederzieher der Nase. A small muscle arising from the incisive fossa of the superior maxilla and inserted into the ala and septum of the nose. It has been described as a dilator and as a constrictor of the nose. [L, 31.]—D. anguli oris. Fr., maxillo- (ou sousmaxillo-) labial, abaisseur de l'angle des lèvres, triangulaire du menton. A muscle arising from the external oblique line of the inferior maxilla and inserted into the angle of the mouth. [L, 31, 332.]—D. apicis naris. See D. septi mobilis narium.—D. auriculæ. See Stylo-auricularis.—D. auris. See Parotido-auricularis.—D. branchiostegorum. In fishes, a muscle which arises from the lower end of the ceratohyal bone and is inserted into the inferior branchiostegal ray. [L, 14.]—D. cartilaginis arytænoideæ. A bundle of muscular fibres which connects the crico-arytænoideus lateralis of one side with the arytænoideus obliquus of the other side. [L, 332.]—D. cartilaginis Santorini. See Arytænoideus rectus.—D. caudæ. A muscle in certain birds which arises from the lower part of the middle line of the pelvis and is inserted into the inferior spines of the caudal vertebræ. ["Proc. of the Zool. Soc.," 1842, p. 30 (L).]—D. caudæ longus. See Sacro-coccygeus.—D. clitoridis. See Erector clitoridis.—D. coccygis. See D. caudæ.—D. epiglottidis [Merkel]. A band of muscular fibres which separates from the thyreo-arytæno-epiglotticus muscle, to be attached to the lateral margin of the epiglottic cartilage. [L, 31, 332.]—D. glandulæ thyreoideæ. An anomalous muscle which arises from the thyreoid cartilage and is inserted into the posterior surface of the middle lobe of the thyreoid gland. [L, 332.]—D. labii inferioris (proprius). Fr., carré du menton, mento- (ou mentonier) labial, abaisseur de la lèvre inférieure. A muscle which arises from the inferior maxilla near the symphysis, and is blended with its fellow of the opposite side in the orbicularis oris muscle. [L, 31.]—D. labii superioris. 1. See D. alæ nasi. 2. The analogue of the myrtiformis muscle in man, found in many of the lower mammals. [L, 13.]—D. labii superioris alæque nasi (seu proprius). See D. alæ nasi.—D. labiorum (communis). See D. anguli oris.—D. mandibulæ (seu mandibuli). In certain fishes, a muscle which arises from the coracoid bone and is inserted into the middle part of the mandible. [L, 14.]—D. myrtiformis, D. nasi. See D. alæ nasi.—D. oculi. See Rectus inferior oculi.—D. operculi. In fishes, a muscle which arises from the alisphenoid and petrosal bone, and is inserted into the opercular bone. [L, 14.]—D. palpebræ inferioris. An anomalous bundle of fibres of the platysma myoides, which are inserted into the lower eyelid; originally supposed by Heister to be a distinct muscle, which he described as a fleshy bundle forming part of the orbicularis palpebrarum. [F; L, 332.]—D. septi mobilis narium. Ger., Niederzieher der Nasenscheidewand. A small triangular bundle of muscular fibres which extends between the orbicularis oris (with which its fibres blend) and the lower margin of the nasal septum. [L, 175.]—D. supercilii. A bundle of muscular fibres which occasionally extends from the ligamentum palpebrale medium to the skin of the upper eyelid. [L, 332.]—D. tendinis subscapularis. 1. See Tensor capsulæ humeralis. 2. Of Gruber, see Coracocapsularis.—D. tympani. In fishes, a muscle which arises from the basisphenoid and alisphenoid bones and is inserted into the hyomandibular, metapterygoid, and entopterygoid bones. By its contraction it depresses the tympanic pedicle. In reptiles it arises from the basi-occipito-sphenoid bone, and is inserted into the lower end of the tympanic bone. [L, 14.]—D. urethræ. See Sphincter vaginæ.—D. vesicæ (seu vesicalis). See Levator prostatæ.—Sims's d. An instrument consisting of a copper rod terminating in a blunt ring, for pressing the anterior wall of the vagina forward.—Tongue-d. Fr., abaisse-langue, abaisseur de la langue. A spatula for pressing the tongue down, in order to give a view of the throat.

Fr., dérangement. Ger., Störung. It., disordinanza. Sp., desarreglo. Disorder; in common parlance, insanity.—Internal d. of the knee joint. Of Hey, an affection of the knee consequent upon some trifling injury, the explanation of which has never been satisfactorily given. Knott ("Dubl. Jour. of Med. Sci.," June, 1882, p. 479) says: "By the combined twisting and lateral movement conveyed to the knee, at a moment when the ligaments are as lax as possible, the margin of the condyle is jerked over the edge of the internal semilunar fibrocartilage. The immediate result is pressure of this structure, which is increased when the resulting pain brings about spasmodic contraction of the surrounding muscles. The leg undergoes in these injuries a rotatory movement which carries the tibia forward and outward."
